When Director Lord points to the act that the expenditures in 1924 were $2,200,000,000 less than those in 1921, the year before the budget system went into effect it tells its own story. No two years may be exactly alike as far as conditions are concerned, but in a comparatively short time there has been a scientific administration of our affairs. We have cast aside the idea of guesswork and gotten down to brass tacks, a change which General Dawes played an important part in planning and a system which has justified by results all that was claimed for it.

But it is not all in what it has done that furnishes so much cause for satisfaction as in what its continuance promises. Having departed from the old hit or miss method this retrenchment is to be continued. The old wasteful practices are pushed aside and good business methods have taken the place of uncertainty and extravagance. Is it any wonder that Director Lord is gratified over it? Is there any wonder that the country is pleased?

The budget system under able direction is accomplishing all that was expected of it, but an even greater satisfaction comes from the fact that the policies of President Coolidge give assurance that it will be carefully and persistently maintained on the highest basis of efficiency.

GETTING 1925 AUTO MARKERS.

According to the motor vehicle department the users of automobiles should be making their applications for 1925 registration ten times as fast as they are. Where there should be 3,000 a day received by the department there are but about 245, and it is pointed out with accuracy that unless this condition changes there will be a clogging of the department by the end of the year so that many will be obliged to wait in line, to wait for their numbers or not be able to use their cars for some days.

In this part of the state there is marked disappointment over the fact that Norwich and vicinity is not to have the chance, through a temporary branch of the department, to obtain the markers without going out of town for them or mailing the applications for them. Just why there should not be such a convenience extended to the automobile users of this section is difficult to understand. In fact it is impossible to figure out why certain sections should be favored and others are not. The idea of the branch offices was an excellent one, but the present arrangement comes as far from meeting the situation with the increase in automobiles as the one office in Hartford did before the branches were opened.

What is called for under the existing conditions is the extension of a fair amount of service to all sections of the state, and not simply a few of them, and at the present time Norwich feels that it is failing to get the accommodations to which it believes it is entitled.

Norwich had hoped this year that efforts to prevent a clogging of the motor vehicle department and branch offices would result in the establishment of a branch here. It hasn't figured that the hope was unreasonable.

FIREPROOF COAL.

Is New England facing another period of being served Pennsylvania real estate in the expectation that it can be used to furnish steam and heat?

According to a report from Chicopee the high school in that city has been facing the problem of handling coal that won't burn. Probably there have been many homes and schools which have experienced difficulty in obtaining sufficient heat to properly offset the cold resulting from the arctic blast of the past few days, but it is a most unfortunate situation when there is added to such a condition an fuel supply that is not what it is claimed to be.

Heretofore there have been many complaints because coal is not coal. Chicopee is not the only community which has had fuel so filled with stone and other unburnable material that it would not burn. Fireproof coal is in fact no stranger in Massachusetts cities but it has invariably accompanied shortages and transportation troubles.

With Chicopee experiencing poor quality coal, or coal that is termed "little better than dirt" at a time when a sufficient quantity of fuel is available is most unfortunate, but it indicates that all the troubles connected with the coal situation are not confined to one year. Chicopee's only satisfaction can be that it has been able to discover the situation thus early in the season.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If all that was needed was good turkey weather to make Thanksgiving a success, we have it.

Good roads are not always obtained for the asking, but it is a good idea to let it be known what is wanted.

It makes little difference how incorrect your thermometer it seemed just as cold as the lowest mark registered.

On the ground that it is darkest just before dawn, are we justified in considering it's the driest just before a flood?

Where the cold snaps used to make big business for the blacksmiths they now keep the garage and auto supply men on the jump.

The claim is made that Washington has 5,000 bootleggers. But think what a thirst there must be to keep them all busy and prosperous.

Plenty of sympathy will be extended to Jersey City because of its $2,500,000 fires, but it will take something more to replace the losses.

As far as the soaking rain is concerned, the hunting ban might just as well have been raised by the governor the day after it was placed.

The chance to keep out of the rush at the end of the year will be seized by only a few of those who will require their registration tags.

It makes little difference what the name of the safe robber is who killed a New Britain policeman, so long as the right man is secured, convicted and punished.

The young woman in the becoming apron and heavy drill gloves was weeding.

"There is nothing like having a garden to make you feel like a true suburbanite," she remarked to the friend who, in thin dimity gown and chiffon shade hat, leaned over the fence commiserating with her on the hard work. "All your exercises to keep thin are as naught compared with chasing the wily weed in the cool of the morning and the early evening.

"You see," she continued, settling back on her heels and waving her trowel about to ephasize her remarks, "when you look at it from the outside a garden seems a mere matter of grubbing and potato bugs. Or, if you are a poetic soul, you see only the result and none of the labor that produces these results. But to me a garden combines reducing exercises and budget keeping and is a real sporting event."

"Has the sun been too much for you? Does your head feel queer and wumpy?" interrupted the dimity friend.

"There, I thought you didn't know any thing about a garden," the girl in the garden apron responded triumphantly. "But I'm right. Listen and I'll explain so even a fluffy little blond like you can understand. Firstly, you can see what wonderful bending exercise it is and as I work in the open it's lots better than the indoor sport of bed-making. Anyway, what's the good of making a bed? Somebody climbs into it and you have it all to do over again next day. But your plants reward you for bending over them. Two, or at most three weedings and a crop of real flowers or vegetables is grown."

"But you said it was a lesson in budget-making," the friend prompted.

"Well it is, I plant my vegetables and do most of the weeding But once in the summer I have a man come and give the beds all a thorough cleaning out of weeds Besides what I pay him I charge a proportion of the man's time for watering the place every night and of course, the seeds have to be charged as expense, and also any loam or fertilizers I buy. That's all expense.

"Then on the other side of the ledger I enter all the vegetables we use, listing them at market prices. Yesterday we had lettuce and radishes and everbearing strawberries, and today we will have home grown beans. I measure up and credit my account with what I save on my grocery bill."

"Does it pay?"

"I should say it does! Bill asked that question and acted as if my garden was just a plaything and that was why I started budgeting it in the first place. Why, last year, when we were going so much I had to have a man four times to do my weeding and my melons didn't do well at all, so it looked for a while as if I would go in the hole, but at the last minute we got two extra quarts of peas when peas were way up to 30 cents a quart and that made me come out 30 cents to the good for the season.

"And my everbearing strawberries help when unexpected guests come. I can feed folks from tin cans, but if I end up with fresh strawberries in August they are terribly impressed by the 'company lunch' I give them."

"I can see more in a garden than I did before," the friend admitted, "but where does the sporting event come in? Racing grubs and bugs to a finish?"

"Well," waving her trowel, "see that blue hydrangea? That was pink when it came to me a couple of years ago. I planted it here that coal hole and didn't the flowers turn out to be blue the next season? The gardener said the minerals in the coal dust worked into the ground and might easily have had that effect.

"And then there was my pansy bed last summer. I planted a big bed of them with a border of sweet alyssum out there in front of the house. The alyssum came up according to schedule, but would you believe it, those pansy seed all came up radishes!"

"But you couldn't grow radishes on the front lawn!"

"I could and I did. I kept a bowl of fresh water and a bowl of salt on the porch rail and lots of my friends who'd never look at pansies would stop to gather a handful of radishes and then wash and salt and eat them after they came up on the porch. I honestly think Bill is disappointed that I have real pansies out there this year. But he refuses to bet on my garden. Says the odds are too heavy against my raising the same thing that I plant."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

There Is a Remedy

Mr. Editor: The writer of the article in todays Bulletin under "Miss Slattery's Lecture," signed "One of the Audience" stated, that Miss Slattery did not suggest a remedy and asks: "Is there a remedy?" Which club or society can give it?" The first question I may answer: There is a remedy, Christ the great Physician taught us what to do. But our present generation is like a sick man, who pays for a good physician and a good medicine, which would cure him, but does not take the medicine his condition becomes worse, there is no remedy. This is the same reason why the remedy, our Lord had taught us, does not work. The people of today spend great sums of money for religious work, build beautiful churches, and send men and women to big schools, that they may lecture and write books about Christ's teachings. The people listen to great sermons, sing and praise Christ, have study classes, in which the words of Christ are analyzed, and discussed, they study verses like: "Love thy neighbor as thyself" but don't like to associate with people of different, social standing, nationality or race. They listen to the preaching of Christ's parables like, "The lost sheep," and stay with the saved, and let the thousands lost ones go to destruction. They do the best to keep their own children and young people straight, but can do nothing if their own follow the crowd. I am not long enough in Norwich, to know a club or society, which can give a remedy. I know a little group of people of the Central Baptist church under the leadership of Miss Carolyn Rice, who are training children, regardless of social standing, nationality or race. This kind of work of unselfish, sacrificing love for their fellowmen, would be, if more developed, a remedy against the danger which faces our coming generation. Christ promised a great reward for those, who do His will, who care for those which He loved the most, the outcasts, the lost ones and above all, little children. Those, who do not love these, may hear one day the voice of Christ saying: "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the last of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment."

Our Water Supply

Mr. Editor: In this time of drought, inconvenience, and anxiety over the city water shortage, wouldn't it be wise to prohibit the use of water for the washing of automobiles during the period of the drought. Citizens are suffering in different parts of our city, and are without water. Also wouldn't it be a very wise act and just the thing to do, if our city fathers would order the driving of an artesian well at two of our reservoirs, which without doubt would give us a never failing supply of water and thus obviate the liability in the future of a repetition of the serious conditions that our city is now passing through?

Very sincerely,

A. G. THOMPSON, F. S.

Norwich, Nov. 19, 1924.

(By the orders which have been issued by the water department the washing of autos by hose is now prohibited.

A score or more years ago the experiment of driving artesian wells was made at Meadow Brook reservoir where Boston men drove eight to ten wells as test wells. The wells were soon pumped dry indicating no underground water supply.—Ed.)

Tribute to Horatio Brown

Mr. Editor: I see by Monday's Bulletin the death of everybody's friend, Horatio Brown of Putnam. No one can pay him a better tribute than brother Ed Sullivan, the Danielson correspondent of The Bulletin, but I would be lacking in duty if I failed to say just a word in memory of "Ratio" Brown.

He was one of God's most noble men. When a little boy of seven I remember him in the Baptist Sunday school at Packerville. His words of good cheer have always been fresh in my memory.

During the World war when I gave away cabbage plants and seeds of my own raising by the hundreds of dollars worth, one of my recipients was Horatio Brown, he wrote me these words, "I don't know you, 'Monty' but call you that because 'Billy' Taylor says it fits you. I want some of your seeds. I want some of your cabbage plants and I want to know how I feel. 'God bless you' for doing your little bit to help win the war."

I am proud to say "Ratio" Brown's words of advice given to the boys and girls in Packerville over 50 years ago have never been forgotten by me. No better man ever lived.

1000 EGGS In EVERY HEN

If You Keep Chickens CUT THIS OUT

The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system—and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production: make slacker hens hustle. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, a copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. There is big profit for the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 553M, Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "The 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

A Barrel of Lollypops

"You shouldn't tell a secret,
Unless you're told you may.
I'm sorry Old Red Rooster
You gave it all away."

"Didn't mean to. It just slipped out," answered the Old Red Rooster "Hope Uncle Lucky won't send me away. I like to work for him. He never stands around to watch what I'm doing. Leaves me alone to do what I like."

"Then always do your best," twittered the good little bird. At once the Old Red Rooster set to work and pretty soon there wasn't a leaf on the lawn, although there were plenty still clinging to the boughs overhead waiting for Billy Breeze to send them scurrying hither and thither.

After making a bonfire and carting away the ashes, the tired old rooster put the rake away in the Little Red Barn and strutted back to Uncle Lucky's place. As he strode up the roadway to the little red garage, he saw the Big Brown Bear coming up Lettuce avenue. It was about all this good-natured old fellow could do to push along a wheelbarrow loaded down with a barrel of lollypops.

"Hey, there!" he shouted, "where shall I put them?"

"I'll ask Uncle Lucky," answered the Old Red Rooster, turning down the path to the kitchen door.

"Cock-adoodle-doodle-do,
Some one's waiting here for you.
Come out quick in twenty hops

he shouted.

At once Little Miss Mousie opened the door and out on the back stoop hopped dear Uncle Lucky, followed by his small nephew.

"Hello," shouted the little bunny on seeing his kind friend, the Big Brown Bear.

"You must have shaken the lollypop tree
To bring so many lollypops over to me."

"I'll tell the world," answered the old bear, with a grin. "There's only a little pink one left on the top branch."

"Jack Frost will get him," laughed funny Uncle Lucky. "How many have you in the barrel? Did you count them?"

"Didn't have time," answered the Big Brown Bear," setting the wheelbarrow down. "Where do you want them put?"

"In the cellar," answered the dear old gentleman bunny. "Can you roll the barrel down the stone steps?"

And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

Cleveland's Life a Long Battle

Least eager of men for public office, Grover Cleveland was elected president of the United States after one of the most bitter campaigns in our political history, failed of reelection, and when again chosen to fill the office had to grapple with the country's worst panic.

Son of a Presbyterian clergyman, of Caldwell, N. J., Cleveland received a sound education, but did not enter college. He taught for a time and at 20 went to work in a lawyer's office for $4 a week. Admitted to the bar of Erie County, New York, at 22, he was appointed district attorney.

His greatest victory was over himself. Neither his health nor his habits were considered good: he was not temperate and he associated with characters of low standards, but soon he was "captain of his soul."

Elected sheriff at 32, he made a reputation for scrupulous honesty. Elected mayor of Buffalo at 44, he drove the corrupt from office, and in the next year was elected governor of New York by an unprecedented majority.

At 47, he was nominated for president and his opponent was James G. Blaine. A speech by Rev. Dr. Burchard describing the democratic party as the party of "rum, Romanism and rebellion," cost Blaine New York by 1000 votes, and the election.

The first administration of Cleveland was pronounced a success, although he had both houses of congress against him, but his enemies made capital of his use of federal troops to clear the way for the mail in a great railroad strike and of his tariff reform ideas, and at 51 he was defeated by reelection by Benjamin Harrison.

When he took the presidential chair again in 1893, the country was in the throes of business depression. Near death from an ailment, he was saved by an operation, performed, at his request, secretly, lest the panic be aggravated. He made himself immensely popular by his defense of the Monroe Doctrine and defiance of Great Britain in the Venesuela controversy.

In retiring at the end of his term, he spent his last years lecturing at Princeton University and writing. And when he died, he was acclaimed as one of the country's great presidents.

Paraffine

A hostess who serves preserves or jellies, and graces her table with candles, would be surprised to learn that she owes these adjuncts, and perhaps the matches which light the candles, to "a wax that smells."

"Such, however," according to a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, "is a translation of the Greek words which make the name of the mineral, ozocerite. And ozocerite is one source of the paraffine of commerce—a commodity extensively used in the preserving of fruits, and in making candles, some kinds of matches, waterproof paper, floor polish, shoe polish and gobs.

"Ozocerite is as curious a mineral as asbestos. The former is valuable chiefly because it won't mix; the latter because it won't burn, and because, contrary to its name, in its purified state it is odorless. Both metals belie their origin from mines. Asbestos spins like wool or cotton; ozocerite resembles beeswax, indeed it has been termed a 'mineral wax' and was first known as 'mountain fats.'

"Until the World war period there was just one source of ozocerite. That was in the mines near Borvslaw, a town of some 10,000 people in Eastern Galicia.

"In 1914 nearly eight million pounds were imported into the United States When this supply was sharply curtailed deposits in Utah were developed, but the Galician fields still hold their world supremacy in the commercial output.

"When this curious mineral comes out of the earth it varies from a jellylike consistency to the hardness of gypsum. When it is refined it is known chemically as ceresin, or ozocerite paraffin, and when it gets into commerce in white, flat, odorless discs it takes on a final "e" and is the paraffine of many household and manufacturing uses.

"Ozocerite is not the only source of paraffine. The commercial product comes from paraffin, similar to ozocerite paraffin, obtained from distilling wood and coal. It also is a by-product of petroleum.

"The paraffin obtained from petroleum might well be termed an artificial ozocerite because, in that event, man simply reproduces at high speed a process similar to that by which nature makes the mineral. Chemically the natural ozocerite is believed to be formed when petroleum evaporates and leaves in crevices and fissures a mixture of solid hydrocarbons.

"Now all petroleum contains paraffin. That which does yields paraffin oil which has helped make the Tropics habitable for man. The oil forms a solid, impervious coating over stagnant ponds. Just as the refined product does over preserved foods, and thus prevents the breeding of mosquitoes, carriers of yellow fever and malaria. It scares with vaseline another petroleum derivative, the rather dubious honor of being the basis of many 'hair restorers.'"

Paris Sends Us Simple Formula to Get Thin

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can to-day easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better.

"Mrs. Koster, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 30 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fouquerney.

"SAN-GRI-NA is a great help to me. I have reduced 30 pounds since I first started to use it."—Mrs. Wm. Parker.

"I have used 3 boxes of SAN-GRI-NA and I have lost 36 lbs."—Mrs. Dull, Gloucoma.

"I lost 8 pounds with one box of SAN-GRI-NA."—Mrs. Whiting, Springfield, Mass.

"I am very pleased with results. I have lost 14 pounds in 10 days."—Mrs. Hay, Vancouver.

NOTE.—Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that imitations cannot be avoided. Save yourself a disappointment. Ask for SAN-GRI-NA, be sure to get SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept a substitute claimed "just as good."

Stories That Recall Others

Rip Van Winkle Himself.

An elderly man approached the operator of an elevator recently and inquired for the office of a law firm. He was told it was on the top floor.

"That's too far; can I find a telephone around here?"

The starter told him if he would step into the elevator he would be taken to the top floor in a few seconds.

The old man looked at the operator with a look of scorn. "No, siree, you don't get me to ride on one of those new fangled affairs. I ain't taking no chances," and he shuffled out of the building apparently in search of a telephone.

No More Masquerades.

Jimmie, one of the young sons of the family, had been invited to a masquerade party Hallowe'en. His mother worked hard to get him a costume. When it was completed and donned it was seen mother had completed a fine likeness of a rooster, and Jimmie was proud of his mother's handiwork.

He left early for the party, but returned home soon after, crying. He told his mother that he had gone to the house and looked in the window to find that all the other boys and girls were not wearing masks. He said that he would not go in and that he had come home to take off his masquerade. The mother, seeing all her hours of hard work going for naught was exasperated.

An hour later when she and Jimmie's father arrived at their costume party she found she was the only woman in the dressing room in masquerade. After a few bitter moments had passed until one or two others appeared in costume she felt like telephoning to Jimmie: "It's all right, Jimmie, I don't blame you a bit."

Production of Explosives

Last year 530,000,000 pounds of explosives were produced in the United States. Of these, 330,000,000 pounds were high explosives made by the action of nitric acid on glycerine, cotton or such coal-tar compounds as toluene. This shows the peacetime importance of the industry dealt with by Dr. Charles L. Reese in a paper on Twenty-Five Years' Progress in Explosives, read at the Franklin Institute centenary at Philadelphia recently. Glycerine was formerly obtained exclusively from fats, but it may be produced by fermentation, and Dr. Reese said a process is now being perfected for the large scale productions of glycerine from molasses, the cheapest source of sugar. One of the dangerous defects of nitroglycerine is now in the way of being rectified: that is, its liability to freeze in cold weather and its tendency to explode when carelessly thawed. Many a miner has met death while thawing his dynamite by the campfire. A stick of frozen dynamite sometimes goes off on being merely broken in two, probably from internal friction between the crystals. Various methods of reducing the freezing point of nitroglycerine have been devised, but the best, according to the speaker's experience, is to condense the glycerine into a double molecule, heating with sodium acetate. The resulting product, known as "di-glycerine," combines with four parts of nitric acid, instead of three as in the case of the single glycerine molecule, and forms a compound much more viscous and therefore harder to freeze. Dissolving some of this in ordinary nitroglycerine protects it from freezing even when stored throughout the winter in the northwest.

This New Treatment Never Fails To End Piles

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggist and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained.

Lee & Osgood Co. dispense MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES in the original box or can get it for you on short notice.

BRITAIN'S POSITION ON REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS

Geneva, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—After a day of inquiry, with telephone messages to Paris and London, officials of the League of Nations issued a warning tonight against drawing exaggerated inferences from Great Britain's request for postponement by the council of discussion of preparations for the proposed conference of the reduction of armaments.

The officials insist that England merely means what she says in her note to the secretariat of the league, in which she requests it be made that the Rome meeting of the council in December eliminate the disarmament question, the British government had not had sufficient time to form an opinion on the protocol for the Paris settlement of international disputes.

To deduce from this that England will scrap the protocol would be challenged, in the opinion of the officials. On the contrary they say, information reaching the league is that England is likely to approve it, though with reservations, if accorded ample time. It is pointed out that Moody has really thought the disarmament conference would be held in June, because of the necessity of completing preliminary negotiations to insure success.

RUNAWAY MACHINE HIT HOUSE ON BROADWAY

A runaway Ford coupe dashed down Elmwood avenue early Wednesday evening, climbed across Broadway between two machines that had just reached their point, dodged a big elm tree on the walk in front of the home of William A. Norton and kept on across the Norton lawn until it crashed into the bay window of the house. The house was but little damaged, but the machine had the wishbone and other parts at the front end of the machine broken.

The automobile belonged to Frank A. Hazeltine of New London, a salesman for the Inland Paper Board Co., who was calling on Elmwood avenue and had left his car parked at the curb. In some way the brakes loosened up and let the machine slide down the grade into Broadway.

WHERE NORWICH GETS VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

During the past eight years Norwich received approximately 300 carloads of fruits and vegetables from outside the state, according to statistics collected by Paul Mehl, marketing specialist, who is on the staff at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. This is nearly a car per day, excluding Sundays. The accompanying table gives the receipts by railroad. The quantity brought in by truck and boat from other cities is estimated to be somewhere between 50 and 75 carloads. Just how much additional produce is brought in by nearby farmers is unknown, no figures having ever been collected.

Few persons realize from how large an area Norwich draws its food supply. Some products come from as far west as the Pacific coast, as far north as Canada and as far south as Texas. Potatoes, onions, apples, bananas, oranges and peaches are the products which make up most of the receipts.

An average of about one and one-half carloads of potatoes are received weekly from without the state, Maine being the principal state shipping this commodity to Norwich. Over 70 per cent of the shipments received came from that state during the period 1917-1923 inclusive. More than 10 per cent came from Virginia which sends us new potatoes in the early spring months as well as sweet potatoes later in the year.

Approximately a car of onions is received each month of the year, of which two-thirds come from Massachusetts where a considerable area is devoted to the raising of this crop. October and November are the months when onions as well as potatoes are received in the largest quantity.

Receipts of oranges are the heaviest during the period of December to April. The average number of cars received monthly during the year is slightly more than two.

Indications are that for every carload of oranges brought into the city three carloads of bananas arrive. June to August is the season in which the consumption is the heaviest.

California sends Norwich 75 per cent of the grapes it consumes. Although grapes are received from August to December in car lots, October is the month in which the bulk of the shipments arrive.

One-half or more of the apples hauled in by the railroad are produced in New York state and about one-fourth in Washington. The number of cars coming from New York during 1923 and 1922 was between three and five times what they were during previous years, while the shipments from the Pacific in turn have declined.

During the southern peach season Norwich gets probably four cars of peaches per week. Georgia furnishes nearly one-half of the peaches shipped into the city. A few carlots come at various times from New York and Maryland.

Cabbage, celery and turnips are occasionally obtained in carlots. The first two are a New York product and the latter is one raised in Canada. A few carloads of watermelons and canteloupes find their way here. The watermelons come principally from South Carolina and Georgia, the canteloupes from California.

During May and June more than two cars of berries are received monthly. These are mainly southern strawberries coming in when the local berry is not available. Maryland and Delaware each furnishes about one-half of the shipments.

The first carlots of pears since 1917 were obtained in 1923. Two carloads come from California and two from Washington.

Spinach, kale, lettuce, dandelions, peppers, fresh tomatoes, egg plant, asparagus, beets, parsnips, cherries, prunes, etc., are brought to Norwich in less than carlots from New York city. New Haven and other places as the wholesalers cannot move carlots of these commodities locally.

COMMUNITY FELLOWSHIP ADVOCATED BY SPEAKER

An inspiring talk on Community Fellowship was given by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts at the weekly noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting was in charge of the Fellowship committee, Arthur M. Thompson, chairman, and Mr. Ricketts was secured as the speaker of the day.

In his talk Mr. Ricketts said:

"There are two forces in every community, one force working from the outside toward the center and the other force working from the center out. To have a real ideal community these forces should counterbalance because if one overbalances the other there is bound to be trouble. This is shown in the history of Russia and France. This country is not yet the ideal republic, but it is coming to see the light and it is hoped eventually there will be real communal fellowship. Communal fellowship is the application of the spirit of brotherhood in the community.

"The Armistice day parade in this city is an ideal illustration of communal fellowship. As the parade marched through the city we saw the rich and poor, good and not so good, prominent and obscure, black and white, all marching shoulder to shoulder representing the community in one common bond of fellowship. The 50,000 that lined the streets were of every creed and nationality but yet they applauded one and all alike in a most striking example of community fellowship. There are not enough of these get-together undertakings.

We should have more of these community gatherings. Now leave it to the Italian people to celebrate Columbus Day? Columbus typifies that principle of reaching out to discover something new and he should be honored by all nations. Forefathers' Day is another day that should be observed for through their perseverance and aggressiveness were the first seeds of progress sown upon New England soil. Then in February we should more fittingly observe the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington, the Great Emancipator and the Father of our country. Memorial Day should be held sacret in the memory of those who have died in defense of our homes and country. Fourth of July, the birthday of the nation, has lost much of its significance and should be revived with an earnest appeal to observe it in commemoration of those who dared to rebel against tyranny and bring forth a new nation.

"One means of advancing this idea of communal fellowship is through our public schools where today one finds the truest spirit of democracy. Watch the youngsters in the school yard and see democracy, see them scrap together, play together with no thought of the so-called inequalities of race, this is a common democracy. You will find this same democracy carried to some extent in the higher schools but then it is lost. If this spirit of communal fellowship is installed in the boy and young man he will carry it through life and it will be one way of treating this racial complex. We can no longer trade upon the Mayflower traditions and ancestry for it will not get us anywhere. America is made up of other nations and from each one we can learn something. Italy and Germany have contributed to the world's music and art, China teaches us patience and every nation has something that can benefit us. We must build and work for the nation that forgets to work fails. We must amalgamate and bring about the communal unity."

Mr. Ricketts was given a rising vote of appreciation at the conclusion of his talk.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott was another speaker on Fellowship and he dealt with the subject as a club matter of policy.

At the business session Dr. Hugh R. Campbell, president, presided and Lucius Briggs acted as song leader. The song leader proved to be energetic to the extreme, probably seeking revenge for the fun poked at him about his bedtime stories.

The most delightful feature of the luncheon was the duet by Revs. Abbott and Ricketts, who being exponents of the same denomination, harmonized perfectly. Several quartette selections were given by the Rotary Quartette, Eben Learned, Grosvenor Ely, William Park and F. Russel Smith.

The new seating arrangement of the club was something of a novelty but proved very popular. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

Worcester Masons Were Visitors.

Somerset Lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., had a visitation from 24 Masons from Worcester at the lodge meeting Wednesday evening at the Masonic temple when the M. M. degree was worked. The visitors made the trip here in a big motor bus.

The attendance was large and the patronage generous for the attractive articles that were displayed, and at the turkey supper at 6.30 covers were laid for 200, the extreme capacity of the supper room.

BELL RINGERS DELIGHT METHODIST CHURCH AUDIENCE

Under the auspices of the Men's class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, the Scandinavian Bell Ringers entertained an audience of nearly 300 at the church Wednesday evening. The five bell ringers, dressed in Swedish costume such as was in vogue in northern Sweden in the 17th century, very ably demonstrated their skill with the bells. They more than delighted the audience with their rendition of classical and popular selections and the evening came to an end all too soon. The programme was given in three parts and during the intermission Miss Isabel Shearer entertained with readings. Following were the numbers played by the quintet of bell ringers.

Prager's March, Kramer; Minuet in G; Op. 2, Beethoven; Carry M. Back to Old Virginia, Bland; Village Blacksmith, Hins; Lustspiel Overture Op 73, Keler Bela; The Herd Girl's Dream, Labitsky; Poranek, Theimer; Serenade, Cupid Charms, Miller; America.

America, the final number, was played through once by the ringers after which the audience joined in singing two stanzas, standing. The quintet of bell ringers comprises: Alfred Josephson, G. Holmstrom, A. Helmstrong, Theodore Kvarnstrom, J. Lundchin.

During the course of the program Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, spoke briefly on the art of bell ringing. He said the costumes worn by the quintet of bell ringers were worn in northern Sweden about 300y ears ago. Mr. Graham said that the collection of bells used in the concert is the largest aggregation of bell used for bell ringing purposes on the world. In the 12th, 13th and 14 centuries bells were used to a large extent within the churches and took the part in the music now filled by the pipe organ. Rev. Mr. Graham concluded by saying that it was a fine things to have the ringers appear in Norwich.

The Scandinavian Bell Ringers have toured Europe and the United States and have made records for the Victor company. They have devoted their entire lives to this art and have developed bellringing more extensively than any other organization.

In the collection are 125 bells, weighing from a few ounces to fifteen pounds each. They are all provided with padded clappers which produce a soft clear tone. The ringers produce a remarkable variety of tone color by graduation of the energy with which the bells are rung.

Wednesday night's concert was the first of a series of musical treats to be given this fall and winter by the Men's class of the church.

LONERGAN HAS WITHDRAWN FROM SENATE RACE

Norwich democrats who reported to favor the nomination of Augustine Lonergan for United States senator at the party convention in New Haven, Nov. 24, and 25, will be disappointed to learn that he has definitely withdrawn his name.

"I am not and will not be a candidate," said Mr. Lonergan Wednesday when asked for a statement regarding his position. "I deeply appreciate the expressions of good will and offers of support from friends throughout the state, but my law practice requires all of my time and attention."

For the past several weeks former Congressman Lonergan has been regarded as one of the best men most likely to have the backing of the convention if he desired to enter the senatorial race and he has received requests from all over the state to declare himself a candidate for the nomination.

OBITUARY.

George L. Yeomans.

George L. Yeomans, 91, of 21 Lafayette street, passed away late Tuesday night after an illness brought about through the infirmities of age. News of his death was received by many friends in Norwich with sincere regret for he was a man well liked by all who knew him.

Born in Norwich, Town, April 29 1833, Mr. Yeomans had always resided in this city and at the time of his death was probably the oldest resident of the Falls section of the city. In his younger days Mr. Yeomans entered business for himself but for many years past had led a retired life.

His great pride was that he cast his first presidential vote for Abraham Lincoln and for every republican candidate for president up to and including the late President G. Warren Harding. Ill health made it impossible for him to vote for Calvin Coolidge for president early this month. For many years Mr. Yeomans was a great reader and, as possessed a keen mind his knowledge of old Norwich history was extremely interesting to his friends.

He is survived by his son, George P. Yeomans, and two grandchildren, Mrs. A. Chester Brown and John A. Yeomans, all of this city.

BEQUESTS TO PRESTON IN JUDGE PRENTICE'S WILL

Public bequests totalling $32,750 are provided for in the will of the late Samuel O. Prentice, former chief justice of the supreme court, the instrument having been accepted for probate by Judge Walter H. Clark in Hartford Wednesday. Hartford institutions received bequests amounting to $27,500 and institutions at Preston, the Prentice home town, receive the rest of the public bequests. There being no near of kin, distant relatives are remembered by cash bequests and in the distribution of the residue. Specifice bequests were made by Judge Prentice as follows:

To the Hartford hospital, $10,000, as an endowment for a free bed.

To the Hartford Public library, $7,500, the income of which is to be used for the purchase of books "of substantial and permanent worth." Other bequests include: Asylum Hill Congregational church $5,000; Union for Home Work, $5,000; Preston Public library at Preston, Conn., $2,500 for an endowment fund and all books from Judge Prentice's library except dealing with law and local New England history.

To the First Congregational church at Preston, Conn., $2,500; to the Preston Cemetery association, $250, the income of which is to be used for the upkeep of the cemetery lot in which lie buried the father, mother, brother and grandparents of the testator.

The Watkinson library in Hartford is willed all books dealing with local New England history, genealogies, biographies, etc.

To a sister-in-law, Lucy Crary Prentice, of Read, Ia., a cash bequest of $15,000 is made and $5,000 is left to Julia McBride Post, of Mountain Lakes, N. J., a relative of the late Mrs. Prentice. The residue of the estate is to be divided into four parts, two parts to go to Margaret Post Bradley, a sister-in-law, of Englewood, N. J., and each of the remaining two parts to brothers-in-law, Andrew J. Post, of Greenwich, Conn., and Robert C. Post, of Englewood, N. J.

The will was dated April 29, 1922, and the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company was named executor. The will provides at the outset that the entire estate is left to Mrs. Prentice but that in the event of her death preceding that of the testator the above distribution shall be made.

Mrs. Prentice died several months ago and the health of Judge Prentice suffered greatly from that loss.

"CHICK" HARLEY NOTED FOOTBALL STAR TO FIGHT OLD CHARGES OF LUNACY

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Charles "Chic" Harley, leading athlete at Ohio State University, a few years ago, announced through his attorneys today that he will return to Columbus, Ohio, next week to fight the lunacy charge placed against him two years ago.

The case will be heard Monday before Probate Judge Homer Bostwick, who entered the lunacy finding which still stands. James J. Traino, counsel for Harley, said that the famous football player has filed an affidavit with Judge Bostwick setting forth that he was never examined by physicians at a lunacy hearing nor was he ever present at such a proceeding. The Ohio laws require that the subject of lunacy petition be present at the time of the hearing and that the judge shall visit him. Objections would also be raised said the attorney, that as Harley was a resident of Illinois, Ohio courts could have no jurisdiction in the case.

Harley was held at the state hospital for the insane at Dayton Ohio, from December 2, to December 24, 1922, and from January 10 to January 2, 1923, the attorney asserted.

Was Football Hero

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19—Columbus friends of Charles "Chic" Harley, whose running, passing and punting won him an immortal place in football's hall of fame while he was a member of Ohio State's Western conference teams of 1915-16-19, are looking forward with interest to the opening of a hearing Monday before probate Judge Bostwick in which Harley will attempt to have set aside proceedings declaring him insane.

Probate court records show that Harley was sent to the Dayton State hospital December 2, 1922. The lunacy affidavit was sign by Ned Giesy, student at Ohio State university at the time.

J. J. Trainor, Harley's attorney, today brought names into the story that are well known in western conference circles as that of Harley. Frank "Tee" Young, captain of this year's buckeye squad, Trainor asserted, was present in Harley's room the night of December 2, when the latter, according to his attorney was taken against his will by a deputy sheriff to the Dayton institution.

Young, however, today asserted that there was no deputy sheriff in Harley's room that night. He said he and William F. Havens and Ray Pennell were the only ones there.

The name of Dr. John W. Wilce, football coach at the university, it was declared by Trainor, appeared on on the lunacy papers as "next of kin." This, the attorney asserted, was illegal because Harley's parents lived in Chicago.

Dr. Wilce said today he had no knowledge of such use of his name.

Harley was Voluntary Patient

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Records of the Dayton state hospital dispute claims advanced by attorneys seeking to set aside a finding of lunacy against "Chic" Harley, former Ohio State University football star.

Harley was first admitted to the institution on June 13, 1922, and remained until October 26, that year, records as produced today by Dr. H. H. Cleland, superintendent, showed.

Harley then entered the hospital voluntarily for observation.

He was returned on December 5, 1922, on a probate court commitment and remained until January 10, 1923. Records show that he had recovered at the time of his release.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL GETS UNDER WAY JAN. 3

New York, Nov. 18.—The Eastern Intercollegiate basketball league will open its season in Philadelphia Saturday, January 3, with Yale and Pennsylvania as opponents, according to the official schedule for the season. Games will be played periodically until March 14 when Princeton and Pennsylvania clashes at Philadelphia in the final game of the season.

A new rule change was made this season in that league games will be played without the zoning rule which includes different penalties on fouls committed within certain areas, one shot from the foul line will be permitted on all fouls committed except on a player in the act of shooting at the basket. In cases where a player shooting is fouled, two shots will be allowed. This rule change was made to clearify the foul rule and to eliminate the zones.

The executive committee also voted to allow the players more scrimmage and to eliminate if possible, constant whistle-blowing which tends to slow up the game. An interpretation meeting for all coaches, managers and captains will be held in New York December 7 at which time these new changes will be fully explained by members of the executive committee.

Only one new coaching change was announced and that was at Dartmouth where Lew Watcher, brother of Ed Watcher, Harvard coach, will serve as the basketball mentor.

William M. Barber of Yale was re-elected president of the league and Ellwood W. Kemp, Jr., secretary-treasurer, by the executive committee. The latter committee this year is composed of William M. Barber, Yale; Reynolds Benson and Ellwood W. Kemp, Jr., of Columbia; Romeyn Berry, and Edward W. Butler, Cornell; H. H. Salmon, Jr., Princeton; L. L. Kilmarx, Dartmouth and Ralph Horgan and Ernest Cozens, Pennsylvania.

Officials for the league were announced as follows. John O'Brien, David Walsh, Edward Thorp, Thomas Fraser Kinney, Ward Brennan, E. H. Hastings, Jr., Joseph M. O'Shea and C. Benson.

BULKELEY TO PLAY STAMFORD ON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 19.—With the last refusal of Windham High school to engage the Bulkeley eleven on Thanksgiving day, the end of the Orange and Black season will be reached with the Stamford High school game on Saturday. With the vanguard of Bulkeley students already at Stamford anticipating the arrival of the Bulkeley rearguard of 22 men on Friday, Bulkeley is set for the culmination of her most successful year in football.

The team will leave on the 11.10 a. m. train for Stamford on Friday. To do away with the fatigue of the journey on the day of the game, it was thought advisable to have the team move their impedimenta to the Lock City a day before the game, and spend the afternoon going through a signal drill. That night they will be entertained by the Stamford coach and team. Saturday will dawn for the locals to do better things. Conceding the state high school title to be at stake as the result of this game, several sporting writers of the state are taking this attitude toward the outcome.

A traditional rival for over 17 years, Bulkeley has never defeated Stamford in football. This was also true of baseball, but two years ago Bulkeley team sent Stamford down in a 9 to 6 defeat. In football three years ago Bulkeley came the closest to defeating the Lock City eleven. The final score was 9 to 7, a drop kick giving the Stamford eleven a winning margin. But it is expected that the jinx which has been hounding the Bulkeley eleven will be shaken off and that the locals will come back from the city of locks a victorious team.

But Bulkeley will have a hard time coming out on top. The injured list has swelled to a new high number; the new players to be laid up with injuries are Capt. George Sheflott and Fullback Collins. These injuries were the aftermath of the Torrington game. Sheflott is suffering from an injured ankle, while Collins had a ligament torn in his arm. Neither has made his appearance on the field as yet, and while there is a possibility that both may get into the game it will not be for long.

Practice has been held in the cold weather, and the absence of the injured players has been noticed in practice during the past two days. The term examinations failed to take their toll of players as was expected, and it looks as though all players will have clear sailing for another quarter. The lineup during the past two days is but a shadow of the first team lineup. Among those missing are Rice, Sheflott, Collins, Dillon, Daniels and Watterson. No scrimmage has been given the team as yet, but Thursday will mark the final workout with a hard scrimmage. Coach Canty is anxious to add Stamfords scalp to the already large number Bulkeley has. Distance between New London and Stamford is short, compared to any other town on the map in the state. The students are "hitting the road" a day or two ahead of the arrival of the team, and there is a large number of these delinquents from school. It is probable that the entire school body, or, rather, what is left, will march to the station to give the team an official sendoff.

YALE STUDENTS HOLD BIG FOOTBALL RALLY

New Haven, Nov. 19.—With one thousand students taking part, a football rally was held at Yale university tonight and enthusiasm for the Harvard battle was raised to a high pitch. The students, headed by the Yale band, marched about the campus and then assembled at Woolsey hall where addresses were given and pictures of the various players on the variety squad were flashed on a screen.

Burr Chamberlain, who succeeded the late Dr. Bull as coach of the scrubs, said that although this year's team is not the best Yale has ever had, it is a good team and stands a good chance of capturing the classic Saturday if the men go on the field in proper fighting spirit.

Captain Lovejoy of the Yale varsity said he had no prophecy to make regarding the outcome of the Harvard game as he did not believe in predicting results. He pointed out that at the rally before the Princeton game he said that the team was going to New Jersey to do its best and that the score of the game showed what the results of those efforts were. He said the team was determined to do its best in the Harvard game and that he hoped that the results next Saturday night would show the same results they did last Saturday evening.

Coach T. A. D. Jones was not present at the rally. The students with the band practiced the college songs and went through the cheers. Tomorrow, headed by the band, will march to the bowl to watch the afternoon's practice. This is the first open practice this year.

YALE TEAM HAS LONG AND HARD WORKOUT

New Haven, Nov. 19.—Coaches of the Yale varsity football squad put both the first and second teams through a long, stiff practice today, and the first team had its last scrimmage before the battle with Harvard Saturday. For the first time since the Maryland game, the squad practiced in the Bowl, Yale field having been used earlier in the week and for the practice for the Princeton game.

The first team took on the scrubs for the scrimmage and had little trouble in keeping the latter on the defensive at all times. A long signal practice followed.

Sturhahn and Root, both of whom had hard workouts against Princeton, and who are not in first class shape, went through signals, with the second team, while their places in the varsity were taken by Eckhart and Wortham. Bingham is not yet ready for scrimmage and Hart played left end in his place. It is expected that Bingham will be in good shape for the Harvard game. Later in the afternoon, Bingham, Sturhahn and Root went back to their regular places in the first team lineup for signal practice.

Ralph Bloomer, all-American tackle in 1903 and William Bomar, of Fort Worth, Texas, who was halfback in 1907, were at the field watching the practice.

Hartford, Nov. 19.—The sale of all of the brood mares owned by H. T. Schlesinger of Milwaukee, Wis., to W. M. Wright, proprietor of the Calumet farm, Lexington, Ky., was announced today by W. H. Gocher, secretary of the National Trotting association.

Thirteen mares changed owners for a total purchase price of $50,000, making the deal the largest in the light harness world since Mr. Wright bought Belwin now in the stud at Calumet farm from Mr. Schlesinger for $50,000 last year.

Since June 10, when Mr. Wright bought Calumet farm from Mr. Schlesinger he has spent $325,000 in horse deals. The stallions at Calumet farm are Belwin and Peter the Brewer.

The mares that went in the recent deal are Sienna, Walnut Tree, Ruth Coleman, Axcharm, Straight Sally, Memory, Lady Ann, Redarts, Petrella, Olive Phant, Thrill Worthy, Lisetta May and Walnut.

FERRARA KNOCKS OUT SILVANI IN FOUR

New York, Nov. 19.—Miguel Ferrara of Buenos Aires knocked out Joe Silvani of New York tonight in the fourth round of a six round bout, the feature event of a heavyweight tournament at Madison Square Garden. Ferrara weighed 190 1-8 and Silvania 176.

Ed Garvey, former Notre Dame football lineman, knocked out Hugo Ducat in the second round. Garvey weighed 222 and Ducat 195.

Gordon Munce, former amateur champion, won from Elzear Rioux of Montreal when the referee stopped the bout at the end of the third round with Rioux's eye in a badly swollen condition. The Canadian was leading up to that time.

PENN STATE NOT TO PLAY U. OF W. THIS YEAR

State College, Pa., Nov. 19.—Penn State will not meet the University of Washington in a post season game of football at Seattle, Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics, announced tonight. The decision to decline the invitation was reached at a conference among President John M. Thomas, Coach Bezdek and the faculty athletic committee.

The fact that Penn State has been to the coast twice in the last four years made it seem advisable to pass up the opportunity for this year, Bezdek said. Other factors in the decision were the inadvisability of lengthening the football season beyond Thanksgiving and the extended absence from class work that would be necessitated by so long a trip.

YALE 10 TO 3 FAVORITE OVER HARVARD TEAM

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 19.—Although Harvard's chances of beating Yale in the annual football game in the Bowl at New Haven Saturday are being quoted here at odds as long as 3 to 10, tickets for the game were never in greater demand by Harvard men. Three days before the game there is no seat available in official places, and there is a waiting list that is growing hourly of graduates and undergraduates who did not apply and now seek tickets. No one at Harvard will say out loud that he thinks Harvard will win, but in a season of upsets, some are finding hope for another reversal.

WINDHAM HIGH TURNS DOWN BULKELEY CHALLENGE FOR GAME THANKSGIVING

New London, Nov. 19.—The sweeping challenge to the high school teams in the state recently issued by Windham High school for a football game to make the close of that team's football campaign is really no challenge at all. If it was made with the intention of having some high school team in the state take it up and challenge Windham for a game, Windham has failed to fulfill her obligations as challenger.

A letter coming from the Windham management, and being received by the Bulkeley High school management, and which is printed in full below, disproves that Windham is anxious to play a game with the Orange and Black on Thanksgiving day:

Nov. 18, 1924.

Manager of Football, Bulkeley High School, New London, Conn.:

Dear Sir: We play at North Adams Saturday and shall close our season with that game. We had lean decision of playing a post season game here Saturday, Nov. 22, or Thanksgiving day, but were unable to close negotiations.

Wish we could have arranged to have met this year, but are unable to consider such a game now, as we have had a season.

Truly yours,
LEICESTER BENTON,
Manager Football.

Judging from the reply received by the Bulkeley management, Windham had no intention of playing a post season game with any team in this state. If Windham had no intention of playing a post season game which she is credited with having sought, then why should she issue a challenge to play any team in the state?

It would appear that Windham in issuing the challenge expected it not to be accepted and if it was not, then the immaculate record of two seasons would include her as a contender for the state title. Or possibly, expecting a team of little significance to accept the challenge, would keep up its unblemished record. But with the answering of the challenge by Bulkeley and the flat refusal to play a game on Thanksgiving day, debars the Thread City team from even expecting to share the honors of the state with any of the other teams in the state.

In justice to the Bulkeley eleven, as the team challenged, it must be understood that it is not Bulkeley that is holding back in completing arrangements to have the two teams meet. Football fans all over eastern Connecticut expected that this game between Bulkeley and Windham would mature, and no doubt they will receive the information with a good deal of disappointment.

There is a rumor afloat about town that he original reason that Windham refuses to play Bulkeley a post season game is that she would not ultimately gain nay advantage towards the state high school championship. To assure Windham that Bulkeley has as good a claim to the state title as any other team in the state, even New Britain High, which defeated the Orange and Black, quotations from sporting editors of the Waterbury Republican and Waterbury American are as follows: "Bulkeley is championship material, and it is a surprise that this eleven was defeated by New Britain High." "The game with Torrington High should have been won by the Whaling City eleven, for it was a snappy, aggressive eleven which fought Torrington." William H. O'Donnell of the Waterbury American was highly impressed with the showing of Bulkeley this season. He has followed up the activities of the Bulkeley eleven all season and if Windham is in doubt about what kind of a team she will be opposing in the Orange and Black it is a certainty that Mr. O'Donnell will oblige with a recommendation about the eleven which represents the Bulkeley school.

In event that Windham should change her mind about the proposed game with Bulkeley and should be willing to play the locals, it is without a doubt that she will be accommodated with a game, unless another team has been scheduled in the meantime by Bulkeley. The attitude of the Bulkeley management shows an honest endeavor to give fans of this city and eastern Connecticut a chance to see two good teams in action. This cannot be said of Windham, for as Windham and other teams in this section of the satte are aware, Bulkeley is the only eleven which is capable of giving Windham a battle. The Thread City eleven is expecting to retire with her precious record of two undefeated seasons safely stowed away with the moleskins. The refusal to take a chance to engage teams which really deserve being included in her schedule, there seems to be no reason why Windham cannot go through a third season undefeated. Of course, the calibre of teams on a schedule will determine a team's earnestness to be out for the state title.

LEONARD READY TO MEET ALL COMERS HE SAYS

New York, Nov. 19.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, issued a challenge tonight to any and all rivals for his crown.

"I am ready to meet all comers in any part of the United States," declared Leonard, who recently intimated that because of what he characterized as a dearth of opposition in the east, he would accept a title match in Los Angeles.

The champion's latest, however, explains that if he receives no bona fide fight offer within two weeks, he will resume his motion picture career. At the present time, he said, he had no definite offer for a match, and added his belief that "there are no logical contenders in sight at this time."

OTHERS IN COURT OVER FULTON-FUENTE BOUT

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 19.—Late today the four principals in the Fulton-Fuente heavyweight boxing contest at the American Legion stadium in Culver City Monday evening had put up bonds for their appearance on charges of violating the state statute prohibiting prize fighting.

Fred Windsor, manager of Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, with Fuente, appeared in the district attorney's office and through their attorneys denied any part in the alleged frameup in which Fred Fulton, the Minneapolis pitterer-fighter, took the count after 35 seconds in the ring. They then appeared in court, posted bonds, and were released until Nov. 26, when their cases will be called.

Yesterday Fulton and his manager, Jack Reddy, were taken into custody and went through the same procedure. They were scheduled to appear next Monday.

In a one sided, but interesting game, Broadway Grammar school defeated the Elizabeth Street school basketball team yesterday in the Y. M. C. A. gym, by the score of 45 to 6. This was the first game of the season and the playing indicated that the lads will develop lively teams. Deatri and Flathers proved the star cagers of the day. H. Hockey Teams Ready

Boston, Nov. 19.—The eastern group of the American Amateur Hockey association this year will consist of four teams, three in this city and one in Pittsburgh, it was announced today by Vice President Geo. W. Brown. New York and Philadelphia interests wanted to postpone the schedule-making until they had a chance to develop plans for teams, but this was impracticable, he said.

Bike Teams Formed

New York, Nov. 19.—Three of the fifteen teams which will compete in the international six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden starting November 30 have been formed. They are Bobby Walthough, Jr., of Nutley, N. J., and Franco Georgetti, young Italian; Eddie Madden, Newark veteran, and Anthony Beckman, of Secaucus, N. J., and Sammy Gastman of Newark, and Percy Lawrence, of San Francisco.

SPORTING NOTES

Seattle is preparing to make a strong bid for some of the national amateur swimming championships of 1925.

Many of the prominent amateur football teams in England do not elect a captain for the season, but choose one for each game.

When the professional football season is at its height in England the state benefits to the extent of about $100,000 weekly in the entertainment tax which is levied on the gate receipts.

Shakespeare shows us that football is no modern sport, for in "King Lear" (Act 1, Scene 4), "you base football-player" is mentioned. The immortal bard also mentions football in his "Comedy of Errors," so that soccer isn't such a modern sport.

The National Sporting Club, under whose auspices virtually all of the big boxing matches in London in recent years have been held, has seventeen hundred members, whose privilege it is to buy seats at the boxing shows at one-half the price charged the general public.

The game of billiards has undergone many changes since it originated in France in the sixteenth century, the slate bed and cushions being introduced, leather tips fixed to the cues, and chalk used.

Plans are already under way for the 1925 Hudson Bay dog derby, which will be run as usual in late February or early March over the 200-mile course in Manitoba. The race is open to all comers all over the world for any number of days to a team and any type of sleigh, derby rules to govern.

Tennis has been played for many years on grass, gravel, wood, rubber, asphalt; in South Africa it is played on diamond-mine clay and ant-hills; in the higher parts of Switzerland a yellow tufa—volcanic—from the Alps is used; on the Riviera a similar but white "rock" is used as ground material for the tennis courts.

When a golfer drives from the tee he probably little realizes the terrific speed at which he has sent the "wee sma' ba' " on its travels. He would probably be astonished to learn that he has imparted to it a speed more than twice as great as an express train, and considerably greater than that of any bird that flies.

GOSSIP ABOUT REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP IN SENATE

Washington, Nov. 19.—Senator Curtis of Kansas, assistant republican floor leader, is regarded today as the outstanding candidate for the senate republican leadership, made vacant by the death of Senator Lodge.

Final decision concerning the post is expected to be reached at a party conference November 28, and meanwhile word is said to have been received in senate circles that President Coolidge will maintain a hands-off policy with no preference to indicate as among the candidates mentioned, all of whom have recently called at the White House.

Senator Warren, Wyoming, would succeed to the post under the time honored custom of the party of honoring with the leadership the member with the longest service record, but is said to be unwilling to accept the task except for the sake of party harmony.

Two other candidates have been mentioned, Senator Wadsworth, of New York, and Senator Watson, of Indiana. Senator Wadsworth has not taken an active part in the campaign in his behalf and is understood to be in the hands of his friends. Senator Watson says he is not a candidate, although his name has been frequently brought forward.

Senator Warren continues to maintain silence on the question but it is understood he favors Senator Curtis for the leadership and is willing to step aside in favor of the Kansas senator.

INVESTIGATION CREMATION OF MRS. ADDIE SHEATSLEY

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Unwilling to agree to the suicide theory advanced by Coroner J. A. Murphy and accepted today by the Rev. Sheatsley, husband of Addie Sheatsley, 50, whose practically cremated body was found in the furnace of their home in the fashionable Bexley district Monday, County Prosecutor John R. King tonight planned to continue his investigation, seeking to establish a murder motive.

Examination of a brother of the dead woman was interrupted by the minister's request that the prosecutor come to his home.

Further mystery was injected into the baffling case today when Mrs. G. R. Allen, who lives about two miles from the Sheatsley home, reported to the prosecutor that on the morning of the tragedy a strange man, having the appearance of a maniac, visited her home and asked if she would give him an old overcoat. Upon being told she could not, Mrs. Allen said the man asked to be shown the furnace room. When she refused, the man jumped from the porch and ran up the street in the general direction of the Sheatsley home. Police tonight were looking for the man.

While placing little credence in the story, belief was expressed by some officials that a maniac might be at large in the city and might have thrust Mrs. Sheatsley's body into the furnace.

Many critics predict that the Philadelphia Athletics will be a top-notch baseball outfit next season.

STATE LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS IN CONVENTION AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 19.—The fourth annual convention of the Connecticut League of Women Voters opened a two days' session in the ballroom of the Hotel Mohican this morning and is being attended by about 300 women voters of Connecticut and a few from Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The session opened with invocation by Dr. Benjamin T. Marshall, president of Connecticut College for Women. Mayor Waldo E. Clarke delivered an address of welcome.

The session was called to order by Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith of Farmington, president of the organization and the following hour saw the transaction of routine business. At 11 o'clock the convention assembled in the parish house of the Second Congregational church, where an address was made by Mrs. Eugene Chase of Middletown, Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Radcliffe college, and wife of Professor Chase of Wesleyan university. Mrs. Chase's subject was Women in Industry, the discourse being accompanied by moving pictures showing women at their labors in this and other states.

At the afternoon session Mrs. LaRue Brown of Boston addressed the gathering on matters pertaining to child labor, and at 9 o'clock this evening Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, former president of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, spoke in a general way on women serving as jurors.

Dr. Samuel Inman, well known authority on international law, is scheduled to speak at the closing session tomorrow morning.

The annual banquet of the league was held this evening with Prof. James Thomson Shotwell as the guest of honor. Dr. Shotwell was chairman of the committee of American experts who prepared a draft treaty on disarmament and security which was very largely used as the basis of the work of the league of nations. He attended the fifth annual assembly of the league of nations in September, at which the famous protocol outlawing aggressive war was adopted.

An automobile owned and operated by Miss Elizabeth H. Rogers, 504 Bank street, struck Robert Carey, residing on Pacific street, late this afternoon on Montauk avenue. The boy was attended by Dr. Ross Black and his injuries were no more serious than bruises and scratches. The boy had been playing on the grounds of the Harbor school and started to run across Montauk avenue. He did not observe the approaching automobile and ran directly in front of it, being struck by the mudguard.

Sergeant of Police Samuel Hick, who has been confined to his home, Blydenburg avenue, a week by illness, has resumed his duties in charge of the second shift of patrolmen.

William McKay of Vauxhall street is deputy field clerk in the revenue department offices in the custom house, succeeding Joseph F. Harrington.

Miss Rose Winslow has returned to her home, 95 Union street, having visited a month with friends at Bridghampton, L. I.

Nelson E. Bailey of Pearl street, caretaker at the Nathan Hale grammar school, is having a week's vacation.

The police this evening took into custody three youths who have undoubtedly been doing a wholesale thieving from automobiles and places where anything they visited appealed to them. The youngest of the lads was 6 and the eldest 11. All were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The apprehension of the boys resulted following complaint being made by Harold Gaudette, 51 Linden street, that his bicycle, which he had left in front of the Plant building on State street, had been stolen. A short time later Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh, on duty at the corner of Bank and Howard streets, observed three youngsters with a wheel, and, questioning them, decided that the cycle had been stolen. The boys were taken to the police station and questioned, when it was revealed that property in their possession, which included several pairs of gloves, time checks, locks, etc., had been stolen. They also admitted other thefts. One of the boys, who resides in Waterford, when inquiry was made as to what employment his father followed, stated that his parent was a "moonshiner," and when further questioned declared that his father made whiskey and was the chief consumer of his product.

Mrs. Marion Batting of Crystal avenue; Edward Heffernan, Williams street; Mrs. Harry Lezarde, Fowler court; Elizabeth and Viola Heffernan, Williams street, and Miss Jane Cobb, School street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

John Moran, chief petty officer assigned to the U. S. S. Savannah, stationed at this port, is under treatment at the Chelsea hospital, Boston, as a result of Moran having been run down in that city last night. The nature of Moran's injuries is not known here, advices of the accident having reached this city late this afternoon. Moran is on a furlough and went to Boston to visit friends. In crossing one of the congested streets he did not notice an approaching automobile and was struck. He was picked up by pedestrians and as he was apparently seriously hurt he was rushed to the hospital. Moran is a member of New London lodge of Elks.

Newman Harrigan, son of Joseph G. Harrigan of Lincoln avenue, is following in the footsteps of his father as a coon hunter. Last night Newman and a party of old time coon hunters visited the woodland adjacent to North Lyme and with his dogs, Rody and Rock, he bagged two 15-pound coons.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Walter N. Horton, son of Mrs. Jeremiah Dunbar of 2 Fowler court, to Miss Marian Remington Gibney, daughter of William H. Gibney of Berlin, this state. Mr. Dunbar is employed by the Corbin Cabinet Lock Co., New Britain.

Patsy Capone was in the police court today for reckless operation of his automobile on the afternoon of the 11th inst., when he ran down a boy who was passing along Bank street, at a point where there is an entrance to the junk shop conducted by the New England Iron & Metal company. Patsy made the mistake of bringing a nephew to testify for him for the evidence that young man gave injured the case which Patsy put up. Harold eBaney, 11, with George Rowley were killing time while they waited to attend a motion picture show and they strolled down the street. As they passed the entrance referred to the Beaney boy was ahead. The Capone car rushed in from the street and caught Beaney on the walk, the fender striking him in the shoulder and throwing him down, the automobile passing over his leg and breaking it. The boy was plucky and called to Capone to back his automobile away so that he might rise. This Capone did; but he didn't leave the machine to ascertain the extent of the lad's injury. Policeman Dennis Cavanaugh was near by and observing that Beaney was badly hurt, insisted that he should be taken to the hospital. Capone cried out, "What the —— are you doing, getting in the way?" The officer informed him and then hustled the boy into the Capone car and to Lawrence hospital. There he remained till today when he was able to appear against Capone. Three young girls, Mary Kennedy, her sister Georgiana and Mary Newcomb, witnessed all that transpired. They were in court and told what they saw. The stories of the Beaney boy, the Rowley lad and the girls tallied in every essential with that of the policeman. Then came Peter Denoga, the nephew. He made a mess of things, for he admitted that he had talked with his uncle and knew what he was to testify. He said he was waiting for a companion whose name he did not know and whom he had not seen in a considerable time, but with whom he was to go to a show. He declared that the Beaney boy ran in front of the automobile and was knocked down because of that. Denoga declared that there was no one in sight when the accident occurred. He told that his uncle sounded the horn on the auto and that his uncles arm was extended as he drove to turn in to the entrance. Capone was fined $50. He paid up though he was disposed to appeal, till told that such a course was not a wise one.

Charles and Harry Pearl, sons of Manson Pearl, the father of a family that has a considerable court record, were charged with breach of the peace, consisting of fighting. Each pleaded guilty and seemed satisfied when not accused of being intoxicated. They quarrel over a skunk and finally came to blows. They were penalized to the extent of a $10 fine each. They paid and left the court apparently the best of friends.

Hans Haag was fined $5 for a simple drunk. Hans had a friend who liquidated his indebtedness to the court.

Alice B. Griffith has sold a house and lot on Howard street to eorge D Packer.

Miss Wilhelmina Mefle, of Stonington and Miss Alma St. Germain, Montville, patients at Larence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective abodes today.

T. R. Krzygnowski, a former resident of New London, will, it is expected be taken into custody at Camden, N J., within the next 24 hours, for Krzygnowski, who is wanted in this city for the alleged defrauding of Antoinette Ribicky, of Main street, is known to be in Camden and where his arrest can be made at any time. This morning Sergeant John Cavanaugh left here for Hartford with a warrant for Krzygnowski's arrest and with requisition papers, signed by Governor Charles W. Templeton. Sergeant Cavanaugh left Hartford this afternoon and it is expected that Krzygnowski will be taken into custody tonight and returned to this city to stand trial some time Thursday. Krzygnowski, it is claimed, obtained the confidence of the Ribicky woman a fortnight ago and secured $150 from her. After obtaining the money Krzygnowski fled from the city, but his whereabouts became known to the New London police, with the result that the Camden authorities were requested to maintain a watch for the fellow. Yesterday Krzygnowsky's abode became known to the Camden police and the New London authorities being notified, the necessary papers for Krzygnowski's arrest and return to New London were issued.

The funeral of Mrs. Grace T. Arms, widow of Paymaster Frank H. Arms, U. S. N., formerly of Norwich, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. James' Episcopal church and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of the church. The body was forwarded to Annapolis, Md., where burial will take place Thursday.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock for Mrs. Sarah A. Greene, wife of William E. Greene, at her residence, 43 Bellevue place and were attended by a large gathering of mourners. Rev. Joseph A. Elder, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church and Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, conducted the services. The bearers were John and Gordon Arnold, Ralph Wheeler and Henry C. Fuller. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of James F. Maloney took place this morning at 9 o'clock at St. John's church, Montville and was attended by many relatives and friends, including a delegation of members of Montville lodge of Odd Fellows, of which organization Mr. Maloney had been a member for many years. A high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. James A. O'Meara, the pastor. At the conclusion of the mass, Edward Murray of this city, rendered Some Sweet Day. The bearers were Daniel Callahan, Michael O'Connell and John Maloney, of New London and Fred Derwin, Joseph St. Germain and William Spiers of Montville. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, New London.

Two automobile accidents occurred this afternoon on Willetts avenue in which the colliding cars were badly damaged. One of the collisions was between a car owned and operated by George Taylor, of Niantic, and a commercial car, owned by Gates & Beckwith, and operated by Arthur E. Kenyon. The cars came together north of Montauk avenue and with sufficient force to make them ready for the repair shop. The other collision was between a machine, owned and driven by George H. Miller, Bank street merchant and a Tait Brothers' truck, operated by Arthur J. Page, of 22 School street. The cars crashed at the corner of Montauk avenue, the force being such as to drive the Miller automobile upon the sidewalk and against a telephone pole.

DONATES MONEY FOR FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND

Emil M. Fox proprietor of the Providence Bakery, in appreciation of the work of the fire department at a recent fire at the bakery, sent a check for $25 to Chief Howard L. Stanton, Wednesday, the money to be added to the firemen's pension fund. Chief Stanton acknowledged the receipt of the check and the money has been turned over to the city treasurer.

MONTVILLE TO HAVE COMMUNITY HOUSE

Of no small interest to the townspeople of Montville is the fact that, thanks to the initiative of Hon. G. H. Elswald, president of the Uncasville-Shelton company, his representatives —Victor P. Thewlis, manager, and S. Lightowlers, superintendent — an agreement has been brought about between the company and the town of Montville, through its town school committee, whereby the building which gives on the state highway and is located close to the office of The Uncasville-Shelton company, will be remodeled and equipped in a fashion that will leave nothing to be desired, that it may serve as a community centre of social activities for all the residents of the town of Montville and for their friends.

Among the provisions of the agreement which has been made are the following:

The building shall be known as the Montville Community House.

It shall be used for social and community meetings and gatherings for suppers, parties, celebrations and similar purposes, to which the townspeople in general are admitted.

Neither the building and premises nor any part thereof shall be used by any organization or association for fraternal, lodge or club meetings; nor shall the same be used for religious services, exercises or meetings, except temporarily in cases of emergency; nor shall the same be used as a club room for strictly commercial purposes or gain.

The management of the Community House and its premises shall be vested in a board of managers, consisting of not more than 11 members. These members shall be chosen, as nearly as may be, equally from among the men and women of the villages of Uncasville, Palmertown and Oakdale, and these villages and each religious denomination having places of worship in these villages, shall be fairly represented on the board of managers.

The board of managers may make proper rules and regulations for the use of the building and premises. They shall provide police protection when it shall be deemed necessary—the same to be paid for by the society, organization or person using the Community House.

The members of the board of managers shall be chosen at meetings to be held by the townspeople and shall serve for a definite period except the first board which may be divided into classes, the terms of which shall expire in different years as the board shall provide.

It is further agreed that The Uncasville-Shelton company shall provide heat and light for the building and premises in good condition and repair and that it shall be at liberty to make such alterations, changes and additions in and to the building and premises as shall seem desirable for the promotion of the uses and purposes of the building, provided, however, that the town of Montville shall be responsible for all and any claims for injury to persons or property that may accrue to or arise in favor of any person by reason of such use of the land and building and that the town shall indemnify and save harmless the Uncasville-Shelton company by reason of the liability imposed upon it by law for damages on account of bodily injury suffered by any person or injury to the property of any person by reason of such use of the building.

It is further agreed that if any of the foregoing provisions concerning the uses and purposes to which the building and premises shall be put are violated the right to use the building and premises, as aforesaid may be terminated by either of the parties hereto.

In fine, it is understood that each party hereto may cancel and abrogate this agreement on sixty days written notice to the other.

Thus Montville's "community house" will soon throw open its doors to a waiting public that will, it is hoped, find it all that it is intended to be, a second home to Montville's home-loving townspeople.

On the school committee of the town, who have made it possible to open a community house, are Earl Howe, acting chairman; Roscoe C. Dart, secretary; Mrs. Edith M. Vallett, Mrs. Fanny C. Dart, A. J. Huggard and Mrs. Ermine D. Sullivan.

The board of present managers is made up of the following representative townspeople: Victor P. Thewlis, president; George A. Channon, treasurer; Miss Helen D. Driscoll, secretary; Mrs. Albert Avery, Mrs. Arthur Blaisdall, Hubert Dart, Mrs. Hubert Dart, Charles Hope, Mrs. Charles Hope, First Selectman Jerome W. House, Mrs. A. J. Huggard, S. Lightowlers, Rev. Charles Smith and Rev. J. A. O'Meara.

Incidental to the opening of the Community House will be the installation of a branch of the Raymond Hill library from present quarters to the building now used by the Montville Council of Catholic Women whose meetings will hereafter be held in Montville's new community house.

A formal opening of the Community House is being arranged, and it is expected that ere the present year will have come to a close Montville's Community House will be filling a long felt need that will claim as its own reward how good and how happy it is to live as brethren.

NORWICH HAS HUNDREDS OF BROADCAST LISTENERS

The regular weekly meeting of the Norwich Radio club was held in the club rooms in the Thayer building, with the usual large number of members and their guests. Since the meeting the members have been interesting those having receiving sets in the merits of the club, and it is anticipated that several new members will be added shortly.

Several problems which annoy broadcast listeners were discussed at the meeting and those who presented these were more than pleased with the information received for correcting and solving their troubles.

There are now hundreds of broadcast listeners in Norwich and the club would be glad to have each owner of a radio set send his name to the club, stating what outfit he is using and the results being obtained. The club has associated with it men who have a thorough knowledge of the construction of radio apparatus, and they will willingly help to inform others along these lines.

A special mention was made to the members in regard to the pleasure derived from the ability to read the code. There are many amateurs as well as commercial and government stations sending code messages and many of these are extremely interesting.

Following is a report which was read at the meeting, and this kind of information is being received each week from the American Radio Relay league, for the club's information:

L. W. Eberle, acting secretary of the navy, has made public excerpts from the report of the commanding officer of the U. S. S. Shenandoah on the ship's transcontinental flight in which he stated that radio communication had been established with approximately 250 amateur and commercial stations in 39 states. At no time was the ship entirely out of communication on the short waves, he said, even in the remote section of the southwest. The announcement was made in a letter to Hiram Percy Maxim, president of the American Radio Relay league of Hartford, Conn., as follows:

"No mention has been made so far of the great assistance rendered by the hundreds of amateur stations throughout the United States who relieved the Shenandoah of a great amount of work that would otherwise have been necessary on the high power set. This work was conducted over the super short wave transmitter and, although in several instances communication was not entirely satisfactory, due to swinging, fading, etc., it was found that there were enough stations so that satisfactory means of communication could almost always be established over the short waves. The amateur stations worked are so numerous that it will be impossible to mention each one individually, but it may be stated that satisfactory communication was carried on for about 18 hours out of 24 during each day; and at no time was the Shenandoah entirely out of communication over the super short waves even in the most remote sections of the southwest, while flying over the mountains and deserts of New Mexico and Arizona it was possible to keep up the communication.

"In many instances messages of 1,000 words or more were transmitted through these amateurs and some of the finest operators encountered during the entire trip were amateurs. This is no reflection on the army, navy and commercial operators.

"During this flight the Shenandoah flew over 25 states and the District of Columbia. The states flown over are as follows: New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington, Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Approximately 250 amateurs and commercial stations were worked in 39 different states. Stations in Mexico and Canada were worked."

Why Druggists Recommend Swamp-Root

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps to relieve kidney, liver and bladder slowness, and to overcome [illegible] they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send [illegible] to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BREAK IN THE MARKET.

New York, Nov. 19.—Stock prices bounded upward at the opening of today's market on a tremendous volume of business and continued to advance until noon, when they began to crumble under the weight of an enormous amount of profit-taking and short selling, leaving the closing prices irregularly lower. Total sales or 2,446,700 shares were about twenty thousand below the peak of the current up-swing established on November 11th.

Early gains, which ran from one to 5 1-2 points, carried more than 100 issues to new peak prices for the year, including nearly three dozen rails. These advances, however, were substantially reduced or cancelled in the later trading, the sharpest decline taking place in Radio Corporation, which broke 7 1-4 points from its record high of 43 1-2, established earlier in the session, rallying nearly two points from its low at the close.

The initial demand for stocks was probably as heavy as any since the present bull movement started. The scarcity in the floating supply, due to the large blocks of stocks taken out of the market in the last few days, made it virtually impossible to fill large orders except at substantial advances in prices.

Industrial and specialties led the early advance. Establishment of a new 1924 high record by United States Steel common at 116 7-8, stimulated buying of other popular industrials, particularly in the motor and merchandising groups. American Can climbed 4 1-2 points to 155 1-2, a record top for all time, but slipped back later to 151 5-8 for a small fractional gain on the day.

Industrials yielded more readily to selling pressure than the rails. New highs in that group were established, however, by Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, H. R. Mallison, Famous Players, Postum Cereal, Nash Motors, Maxwell "A," North American, Peoples Gas, Laclede as, Consolidated Gas, International Harvester and many others.

Several independent strong spots developed among the rails, Texas and Pacific being boosted four points to a record high at 45 3-4 and Chicago Great Western preferred recording a similar gain at 30 1-4. Missouri Pacific jumped five points to 32 7-8 and "Katy" common closed more than two points higher at 25 3-4.

Some of the sharpest breaks today were recorded in General Electric, Frisco, common, Mack Trucks, United States Industrial Alcohol, Adams Express, Savage Arms, United States Cast Iron Pipe, West Penn Power and Worthington Pump, net losses in which ranged from 2 to 5 points.

Heavy buying of Peoples Gas, which advanced 6 1-4 points to 117 3-4, following the announcement that the annual dividend rate of the stock had been increased from 4 to 8 per cent. Other outstanding strong spots were American Bruke Shoe, Bayuk Cigars, Emerson Brant preferred, Nash Motors, United States Distributing preferred, and Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke, all of which closed 3 to 6 points higher.

Call loans held steady at 2 1-2 per cent. The time money market was slightly easied, sixty to ninety day funds ruling at 3 to 3 1-4 per cent. as compared with 3 1-4 to 3 1-2 earlier in the week. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone with marked gains taking place in some of the South American currencies. Demand sterling ruled fractionally higher around $4.63 1-4 and French francs were quoted just under 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 19.—General profit taking in today's bond market counteracted fresh buying of several selected issues and prices were shaded slightly from previous closing levels. Liberty bonds, however, which had averaged losses of a points since the election, rallied as time funds were reported more abundant.

The recent high levels reached by semi-speculative rail issues induced a flow of realizing sales, and fractional recessions took place in New Haven, Seaboard, St. Paul, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and Colorado and Southern bonds. Chicago and Great Western is displayed independent strength, advancing a point on a heavy turnover.

Numerous cross-currents marked trading in other sections of the list, with prices of active issues churning about considerably but showing trivial net changes. Selling apparently was influenced to some extent by the late reaction in the stock market and by fears, which proved groundless, that the federal reserve bank might increase its rediscount rate.

Bonds of some of the packing and chemical companies registered moderate improvement. Wilson and Company 6s sold at 91, more than ten points above their recent low level, and American Agricultural Chemical and Virginia-Carolina Chemical liens made further recovery. The lull in new financing continued, but it was reported German communes might seek a consolidated loan of $10,000,000 in New York at an early date.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—New smashing of high price records for the season took place in the corn market today as a result of spirited buying together with a dearth of offerings. Profit-taking, however, shaved down corn values at the last. Corn closed unsettled, 1-2 to 2 3-8c net higher, May $1.23 to $1.23 1-8. Wheat finished week, 7-8 to 1 5-8c off, oats at 3-8c decline to a shade advance, and provisions varying from 12c setback to a rise of 42c.

Bulges of price for corn came after all grains had shown a downward tendency in the first part of the day. The early weakness was associated with something of a setback in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where large stocks of wheat were reported on hand with large further arrivals expected. On the decline in prices here, however, the corn market became bare of offerings, and a general buying movement which set in lifted corn nearly 5 cents a bushel, December delivery, as compared with the day's low point.

Although wheat rallied when corn turned strong, the effect on wheat failed to last. Export demand was slow, and Omaha was apparently on a basis which allowed shipments from that city to Chicago.

Oats averaged higher, sympathizing with corn.

Provisions were mostly steady, upheld by corn and hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 19.—Stock prices surged upward at the opening of today's curb market on an unusually heavy overnight accumulation of buying orders, but sold off somewhat during the afternoon in sympathy with the reaction on the "big board."

Heavy accumulation of the radio shares in anticipation of a record-breaking holiday business was one of th cday's features. Theromiodyne and R. E. Thompson attained record peak prices at 13 1-4 and 13 1-2, respectively, closing near the top, but Dubilier and Radio Corporation, which also attained new maximum prices, forfeited their gains in the late wave of realizing.

A four point jump in Prairie Oil and Gas was the outstanding development in the oil group, the other active issues showing considerable irregularity. Reactionary tendencies developed among some of the low priced issues, Woodley falling two points and then recovering about half its loss.

The general industrial list showed mixed changes. United Bakeries sagged about 1 1-2 points to around 134, but Ward Baking B advanced over a point. Public utilities tended higher, American Gas and Electric and Commonwealth Power each gaining about a point.

POETRY

SNAPPY WEATHER.

When the snap comes back to the autumn weather,
And the frost lies white on the leaf-strewn hills,
Ah, then, young heart, you are like a feather,
And then through the veins the red blood spills!
For it's then that the step goes springing forward,
And then that the eyes see all things new,
In the world and the wind and the ways and wander

Not a gray heart now in the world that matters,
Nor a gray thought stirring the soul with care!
How could one grieve, when the west wind chatters,
And the leaves blow by on the winelike air!
Up, soul, and stir to the pleasant music,
The whip and spur of the songs that ring,
When the world is stung by the biting breezes,
And the stars burn deep and the angels sing!

There's a spray of dawn in the light before one,
And the streets are lanes through a world of joy,
And you swing your arms as you stride to duty,
And your heart's as light as the heart of a boy!

It is morn again in the world created,
And you and the toil and the dream together
Are swung to the tune of the veins that tingle—
When the snap comes back to the autumn weather!
—Baltimore Sun.

YOUTH.

Youth has no need of pirate ships,
Of dark and tossing spars,
No need has Youth of silvered path,
Beneath the guiding stars;
Or chanteys sung upon the watch
By men who bear salt scars.

Youth has no need of secret trail
That to the Rainbow lead,
Of Roads to Romance, white and wide,
Youth has no urgent need,
Nor of the magic lore that lurks
In some old wizard's creed.

For Youth itself is all these things,
A sailing-ship, a song,
The Rainbow at the journey's end,
Light Romance, Youth-time long,
And all the wizards' wisdoms to Enchanted Youth belong!
—Faith Baldwin, in Everybody's Magazine.

JEWETT CITY

The November meeting of the Baptist Missionary society was held Tuesday afternoon in the vestry. The vice president, Mrs. S. F. Brown, conducted the devotional service. The program was arranged by Mrs. G. H. Prior, the subject being The Mexican Situation, taking up the work accomplished in Mexico and the Mexicans on this side the border. Articles were read on educational, missionary and nurses' work. The scope of work and trained workers needed, things accomplished by chapel cars and evangelistic zeal were discussed. Mrs. A. M. Brown, the president, read a letter from the state society emphasizing systematic giving, also Christian stewardship.

Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, K. of C., held a meeting Monday evening in Foresters' hall which was well attended in spite of the cold weather. After regular business, the meeting was turned over to the lecturer, Rev. J. J. Tyler, who spoke on matters of interest to the council, and then in his apt and pleasing manner introduced the speaker of the evening, State Advocate Jerome Collins of New London. Mr. Collins' subject, which proved to be very interesting and instructive, was Americanism. At the close of the address the members of the council gave the speaker a rising vote of thanks and expressed their wish to again hear this talented orator.

It is not often a woman tells a good story "on" herself, but occasionally there is one who appreciates a joke of that sort. A small boy had been playing one evening with a certain woman's son. When it was half past 8 he started for home, and, to be funny, after he left the house he rapped on the windows. The woman paid no attention, knowing who it was. But all at once in rushed the boy in a great state of excitement and said a man was going to get him and he was afraid to go home. The woman was exceedingly indignant and marched out the door, saw a man on the sidewalk and demanded most belligerently "What do you want around here?" The man meekly said he was not going to hurt the boy, and walked away. The woman's son was horrer-stricken and informed his mother that she had been addressing the policeman. He had probably seen the boy rapping on the pane and thought he was up to mischief. Thereupon the woman was properly scandalized at her own temerity.

Frank I. Ray states that he has a particularly warm spot in his heart for Horatio Brown, who recently died in Putnam, for 62 years ago Mr. Brown led Mr. Ray by the hand to attend Pigwaucket school, when he was less than 7 years old. Mr. Brown's family then lived in the house which stood on the site owned by R. W. Dearnley at Bishop's Crossing and Mr. Ray was born in a house which then stood near by.

The annual meeting of the Mt. Vernon Masonic association was held Tuseday evening. Financial reports were heard and facts were stated relative to the property which has been recently purchased on the East Main street highlands. The officers were re-elected, with A. M. Brown, A. M. Clarke and G. H. Prior as the directors' officers. Plans were discussed and ideas presented relative to the proposed Masonic temple. Mr. Prior is to draft an information letter which will bring the facts, up to date,

High Blood Pressure Very Dangerous Affliction

Physician Tells What To Do.

Don't neglect to give prompt attention to the first sign that indicates you have high blood pressure, for it is the principal cause of apoplexy and many sudden deaths. Insurance companies report that the numbers of those afflicted with this dangerous condition are increasing altogether too rapidly.

High blood pressure first shows its effects in dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, ringing in the ears and frequent headaches. And when the heart becomes overtaxed because of the poisons that clog the blood vessels to the bursting point there is danger of apoplexy and sudden death.

The best thing to do if you experience any of these symptoms or feel that your blood pressure is too high is to place yourself under treatment with Bi-a-lin, a noted doctor's prescription. Bi-a-lin exerts a quick cleansing action on the poisons that are the real cause for high blood pressure. You feel better at once. Bi-a-lin is harmless, easy to take and can be had at The Lee & Osgood Co.'s.

to the attention of everyone interested. Dr. G. H. Jennings, F. D. Browning and G. T. Bell were elected a committee of personal investigation, to ascertain and report just what financial obligations will be pledged by those they may interest.

There seems to be no need of tree surgeons in town any more. The other day two young men, Harrington and Belisle, assisted by a third, removed a 65 foot cottonwood tree from John Fitzgerald's front yard. The tree was three feet through at the butt and grew within less than ten feet of the house and two fences. The boys didn't scratch the paint and hardly disturbed the grass on the lawn.

Dr. George H. Jennings, Griswold's delegate to the senatorial convention to be held in Hartford next week, has received the honor of appointment to the important committee on rules, as told in Tuesday's Bulletin. The meeting, at which the doctor was not present, was held by the other members of the delegation from the 20th or Shoestring district in Norwich on Monday. John N. Lewis of Voluntown was the presiding officer, and at this time two delegates-at-large were appointed.

The local telephone girls, reading that the telephone calls in the United States annually total about twenty-five billions, figure that all but six come in at the Jewett City exchange.

Wednesday, a little after noontime, the mercury for the first time since Sunday night got above freezing and rose to 39 degrees. Ponds all about that section are frozen over, and Dorrville will bear up a man. A local hunter, recalling the night the ducks were frozen into Tadpole pond, saw an opportunity for this often doubted fact to be deuplicated Sunday night. Had a flock of ducks dropped into the feeding grounds on the eastern side of Tadpole pond after dusk (as they often do) Sunday evening, they would have found themselves in the predicament experienced by the flock of 1880. They would have been frozen in. Last Sunday night, on account of the unprecedented drop in the mercury, ice formed so hard no Tadpole that no duck could have risen from its frozen surface in the morning.

FORMER NORWICH MAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Theodore Kundig of New London, formerly of this city, was bound over to the criminal term of the superior court on a statutory charge when he was presented in the city court Wednesday morning. The case had been continued from last week. The charge against Kundig was made by Margaret Muench, a 14-year-old Norwich girl, and the offense is alleged to have taken place last August. The bonds were fixed at $1,000, which he was unable to furnish so that he was taken to jail.

The girl who is well known as a swimmer, was recently found masquerading in boys' clothes, following her disappearance from home. She was brought back to Norwich at that time and committed to the Norwich state hospital. The charge against Kundig came a few days later. He was arrested about 10 days ago at his home in New London by County Detective William Lewis and Humane Agent F. H. Wyant and brought to Norwich. The case against him was twice continued in the city court last week.

Kundig is also a well known swimmer. He was employed in a local silk mill and for some time past has been employed at the Bloom silk mill in New London.

Given Miscellaneous Shower.

Miss Loretta Cote was recently given a miscellaneous shower at her home on Main street by the girls employed at the White Star in honor of her approaching marriage with John Driscoll on Thanksgiving day. Miss Cote received many beautiful and useful gifts. Games were played and there were vocal and instrumental selections. Refreshments were served, and the evening proved

STONY BROOK RESERVOIR IS NOW 70 ACRES OF NEARLY DRY LAND

Instead of a fine body of 388 million gallons of water, Stony Brook reservoir is now but 70 acres of nearly dry land. All the water in the reservoir is now contained in shallow pools of about three feet in depth, scattered around in the lowest spots in the big basin, as is shown in the accompanying pictures of the bed of the reservoir and the main dam.

Visitors to the reservoir at the present time have opportunity to see what a fine, clean bed the basin has, some of it rocky but much of it sandy and of the right character to make an ideal storage place for a water supply.

The new five foot concrete core wall on top of the main dam has been completed and the stone has been dumped to be laid for the rip rap work that finishes the face of the dam. The concrete work is going on at the small side dam and at the spillway, over which a concrete bridge is under construction.

H. Chandler, formerly president of the National Industrial Traffic League and manager of the transportation bureau of the Merchants Association of New York. Sales, advertising and transportation managers are expected to take part in this conference and arrangements will also be made for Mr. Chandler to speak for a few moments before the luncheon meeting on the "Eastern Class Rate Investigation," a subject which he will discuss in detail at the group conference.

GIVE CHRISTMAS MAIL AN EARLY START

The post office will make every effort to handle the Christmas mails without congestion and delay, but owing to the enormous volume this can be done only with the co-operation of the public. Compliance with the following suggestions will greatly aid the post office and insure the prompt handling of mail.

Shop now and mail early for early delivery. Parcels and envelopes may be entrusted "Please to not open until Christmas."

Wrapping and Packing.

All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed in order to reach their destination in good condition. In wrapping ordinary parcels strong paper and heavy twine should be used.

Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks should be re-inforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied to withstand transportation.

Hats. Pack in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "FRAGILE."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candies: Inclose in strong outside boxes or containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted maps, etc.: Pack or wrap in strong material to avoid damage. When not flat, roll around a wooden core and then wrap and tie carefully or place in strong pasteboard tube.

Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments or tools must have points and edges fully guarded to prevent injury to clerks in handling or damage to other mail. Crate suitably or thoroughly wrap so that they can not cut through the wrapping.

Articles easily broken or crushed must be crated or securely wrapped. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Glassware, fragile toys, crockery must be packed so as to prevent the escape of particles or pieces if broken in transit.

Cigars: Ordinary boxes of cigars wrapped in paper only will be accepted. Pack in a manner to prevent damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material.

All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "FRAGILE."

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "PERISHABLE." Use special delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Limit of Weight and Size.

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first, second, and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Uninsured parcels 4 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over four ounces can not be mailed in street boxes but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations.

Written matter in the nature of personal correspondence can not be inclosed in parcels.

Miscellaneous printed matter weighing NOT MORE THAN 4 POUNDS can not be mailed as parcel post. Such matter weighing OVER 4 POUNDS may be mailed as parcel post.

Communications attached to parcels: A letter placed in an envelope addressed to correspond with the address on the parcel and fully prepaid at the first-class rate, may be tied or otherwise securely attached to the outside of the parcel in such manner as to prevent separation therefrom and not obscure the address on the parcel.

Christmas Stamps and Stickers.

Christmas stamps or stickers of any character must not be placed on the address side of mail matter. Posters or stickers resembling postage stamps are not permissible on mail matter. In using Christmas stickers they should be so placed as not to seal the parcel.

Christmas Cards.

The early mailing of Christmas cards is just as important as parcels. Millions of these cards, separate and in envelopes, are mailed each Christmas. Consequently, great congestion and delay occurs in large post offices, where they are mailed within a day or two of Christmas. Therefore, if you want your Christmas greetings to reach your relatives and friends on or before Christmas Day, follow the suggestion relative to mailing early and be certain of delivery before Christmas.

GAVE DELIGHTFUL SONG RECITAL IN COSTUME

Mrs. W. Clayton Burgy, in her first appearance in Norwich, easily sang her way into the hearts of the music lovers of the city, Wednesday evening, at the parish house of Park Congregational church, giving a splendid costume song recital.

Mrs. Burgy, while a protege of Mrs. E. T. Statesbury of Philadelphia, studied under Madame Phillips-Jenkins and Wassili Leps of that city, and under Percy Rector Stevens of New York. Dramatic art was her chosen field and this training was received from W. Earle Marshall of the Scala theatre, Milan, Italy.

Her song groups last evening were extremely well chosen, affording her ample opportunity to hear her exquisite voice at its best, her dramatic presentations of the varied numbers captivating her audience, which was quick to respond with the conclusion of each well rendered number.

Mrs. Burgy opened the programme with a Watteau group, being dressed in the 17th century costume. These numbers, sung in French, were most pleasing and the singer gave evidence of her ability to interpret songs of entirely different character by swinging to a Norwegian love song and then to the Irish country song for the succeeding numbers.

A group which was most pleasing was the Kentucky Mountain Folk Songs rendered in light and carefree manner typical of the characters in the songs, the humorous features being brought out clearly by the gifted singer, the character impersonations, as well as the words of the songs, being greatly enjoyed.

The beautiful strains of Ave Maria, Bach-Gounod; By the Waters of Minnetonka, Lieurance, and A Swan's Song, Saint Saens, were brought out in most charming manner in the next song group and only served to bring out with force the wide range of Mrs. Burgy's charming lyric soprano voice. To add to the beauty of the numbers a delightful cello obligato was furnished by Ebenezer Learned, who once again demonstrated his ability as a musician. The piano accompaniment by Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, in these numbers, as well as in all others on the program was extremely well rendered, adding much to the presentation.

In closing Mrs. Burgy sang Pierrot by Rubner; The Cunnin' Little Thing, Hageman, and Red, Red Rose, Cottenet, these numbers like those preceding, charming her audience and an insistent applause at the conclusion of the final number once again brought the singer to the platform and the program ended with the song, Kerless Love, Jean Taylor.

The recital which was most enjoyable was arranged for by the parish house department of the Woman's Federation of Park Congregational church.

The programme was as follows:

Watteau Group
Je suis Titania, Thomas
Recitative and Polonaise from Mignon
Le Papillon, Fourdrain
Vieille Chanson Espagnole, Aubert

Norwegian Song
My Lover, He Comes on a Skee,

WOULD ESTABLISH CHAIN OF FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

Proposal Urged in a Russel Sage Foundation Report—Would Be Under Federal, State and Municipal Control—Object is to Reduce Unemployment and Meet the Demands of Important Sections of the Country Not Served by the Present Employment System.

New York, Nov. 20.—Establishment throughout the nation of free employment agencies under joint federal, state and municipal control, was urged today in a Russel Sage Foundation report.

Such an institution is the only remedy for evils of the present system of employment which a 5-year investigation has revealed, said a report the foundation issued under the caption "Public Employment Offices—Their Purpose, Structure and Methods."

A chain of free public agencies, it was set forth, would meet the demands of important sections of the country and important industries which are not served by the existing employment system.

Unemployment would be reduced, it was declared; employers would receive maximum assistance in obtaining workers; impartiality would rule during strikes and other controversies between employer and employed. The foundation investigators placed little value upon the look in a man's eye, the condition of his hands or the color of his collar as signs by which to judge his fitness for a position; nor did they attach much importance to the practice of classifying applicants for jobs according to standard "types" or "personalities." In fact, said the report, "no system or method or character analysis has yet produced results which justify its adoption or even suggest its trial in a public employment office."

Quackery and pseudo science are being exercised in the contemporary technique of choosing men for jobs and, it asserted, the science is still in the crude "home-remedy" stage through which medicine and surgery have struggled. The report then continued:

"The human mind has been grouped by some persons interested in employment questions into types that are presumably mutually exclusive as follows:

"The executive, the detail, the promotion, the accounting, the clerical, the selling, the mechanical type, and so on. These adjectives do describe attributes of the mind, but that people can be so tagged and labeled fairly is doubtful. The temptation to label people is very great, but the science and art of successfully doing it have not been discovered.

"Solution of the problem depends very largely upon the ability of the staff in each local office.

INVESTIGATING MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF MRS. SHEATSLEY

Columbus, O., Nov. 20.—Efforts to solve the mysterious death of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley wife of the minister of Christ's Lutheran church, Bexley, fashionable Columbus suburb, whose charred body was found late Monday in the furnace of the Sheatsley home, were practically suspended here today, while burial of the minister's wife was being made at her old home in Paris, Ohio.

While efforts to solve the mystery were relaxed here, they were being pushed by County Prosecutor John R. King and City Detective Harry Carson at the scene of the funeral and in Canton, 12 miles away, where relatives of the dead woman reside. There the officials sought from Mrs. Lyda Sponseller, mother of Mrs. Sheatsley, and her two brothers, Charles and Harry Sponseller, intimate details concerning Mrs. Sheatsley's early life and her domestic relations after her marriage, to Mr. Sheatsley in the hope of throwing some light on a theory that Mrs. Sheatsley may have ended her life.

County Coroner Joseph Murphy, who favors the suicide theory, has not yet rendered his official finding, as to the cause of her death, and stated today that he probably will not do so for several days.

When Mr. King returns, he is expected to find on his desk a sealed report of an analysis of the lungs of the dead woman made by C. F. Long, analytical chemist. This report may add materially in establishing whether Mrs. Sheatsley was alive when he body entered the furnace.

Officials in having the lungs examined believed that the lung cells will contain traces of gases from the burning coal, which she would of necessity have inhaled before death ensued. Mr. Long expected to finish his analysis tonight.

G. O. P. MAY DISCIPLINE INSURGENT CONGRESSMEN

Washington, Nov. 20.—The possibility of some concerted action by republicans to "read out of the party" in the newly elected congress the insurgent group, which has been privately favored by some, became more sharply focused today with an open declaration on the matter from members of both groups.

Representative Treadway, republican, Massachusetts, declared after a visit to the White House that he favored eliminating the insurgents in important republican committee assignments in organizing the new congress to meet, unless called in special session, a year from next month.

Saying that he thought the republicans "would be too wise" to attempt such action, Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, leader of the insurgents, later asserted his group "neither feared expulsion from the republican ranks nor did they care about it, or welcome it."

The "progressives" he said, expect to continue their fight for progressive legislation and intend to do all in their power to bring this country back to a "normal moral basis."

DUTCH GUILDERS AT PAR; FIRST TIME IN FIVE YEARS

New York, Nov. 20—Dutch guilders sold in the local foreign exchange market at par—40.20 cents—today for the first time in five years. This makes the third European currency to get back to parity since he war, the Swiss and Swedish exchanges selling now at a slight premium.

The recent improvement in Dutch exchange is due primarily to the economic recuperation of Germany, which has always been Holland's best customer and the establishment of a gold basis for that country under the Dawes plan, which has made it possible for the Dutch to ship gold to countries where the guilder was at a discount. Holland already has shipped about 135,000,000 in gold to this country this year.

ANOTHER MURDER IN CHICAGO'S GANG WAR

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The shooting to death of one man and the rounding of another today were attributed by police to the latest outbreak in Chicago's gang war.

The body of Tony Manusco was found with bullets in a South Side alley. A valuable ring, a gold watch and his wallet, containing $37.50, has not been disturbed. A few blocks away a man believed to be Michael Mokovitch, was found unconscious, with several bullet wounds. He refused to discuss the shooting.

DEADLINE HAS BEEN DRAWN AROUND BOSTON'S CHINATOWN

Boston, Nov. 20.—As a result of the unrest which has been growing daily in Boston's Chinatown since Wong Talk Gin, a laundryman, was found murdered in his shop last Tuesday night, a detail of 42 police swooped down on the district today in seven simultaneous raids. On the surface all was tranquil for not a weapon was found. Nor was the gambling equipment mentioned in the search warrants, the ostensible object of the raids, seized, for, the police said, dominos and other gaming equipment, all celluloid, went into open fires as they entered.

Nevertheless tonight a deadline was drawn around Chinatown and orders went into effect establishing a guard of 25 officers, both in uniform and plain clothes, who will patrol Chinatown night and day. Today, also, it was indicated that white gunmen might have been hired in the factional strife.

Wong Talk Gin was found dead on the floor of his shop Sunday night. There were two bullet wounds in his head.

It was suspected that the shooting was the work of a white man. This theory was strengthened today when it was learned that a white gunman entered the shop of Charley Lew on Washington street last night, drew his weapon and then, surprised when the Chinese also drew a revolver, disappeared after firing two shots at Lew who pursued him.

TO CONCENTRATE OPPOSITION TO MAYOR HYLAN, NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 20.—Plans to bring the affairs of the New York police department into a state supreme court investigation and to fuse forces opposed to Mayor Hylan into one body for the 1925 election were well under way today.

John Wirth, republican minority leader in the board of aldermen, announced he had determined to petition the court for a police department investigation.

Joseph M. Price, who had led fusion campaigns in previous elections, heads the present movement which seeks to align all anti-tammany interests into a homogenous non-partisan organization to fight Mayor Hylan and the rest of the democratic city and county ticket in next year's election. He reported tonight the movement was making unlooked for progress.

Alderman Wirth said his fight to take the police department investigation into the court—an investigation of persistent rumors that graft and corruption are rampant among members of the forces engaged in the enforcement of the liquor and vice laws—would be based on a precedent established by former Supreme Court Justice Gaynor who similarly ordered investigation of the administration of former Mayor Van Wyck.

FAVORS MODIFICATION OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT

Miami, Fla., Nov. 20.—Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, who is spending several days here, said today that he favored modification of the Volstead act but does not see any immediate home of achieving that end.

"Defeat of the democratic party in 1924 was due to the injection of racial and religious issues into the campaign," he said, "and to the superior ability of the republicans to reach the public with propaganda through newspapers controlled by their party. If the Madison Square convention is duplicated in 1928, it will mean another victory for the republicans, as the voters want political parties to deal in political and economic issues only.

"The democrats have a definite economic policy," he said, "but failed to impress the public with it."

While here Senator Walsh will visit William Jennings Bryan. "My visit to Florida," he said, "is without any political significance whatever."

AUTHOR WILLARD MACK IS ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Nov. 20—Willard Mack, author, playwright and actor, is seriously ill with pneumonia in Mount Vernon hospital but Dr. J. H. Brennan of New Rochelle, his physician, said today that he was confident the patient would recover. Mr. Mack's condition showed slight improvement during the day, Dr. Brennan said.

Mr. Mack was brought to the hospital four days ago. Beatrice Beebe Bayard Stone, his fourth wife from whom he was separated several years ago, is at his bedside.

JUDGE BROWN HEARS BUILDING SUIT CASE

New Haven, Nov. 20.—The construction and sale of the Professional building on Lafayette street, Bridgeport, was the basis of a suit before Judge Allyn L. Brown in superior court today. Marco Tosti, of New York, is bringing action against David Rivkin, formerly an attorney here, and Israel Gordon, of this city.

Mr. Tosti claims that in 1917 and 1918, he met Mr. Rivkin, now a Bridgeport real estate dealer, and conversation resulted in a contract for the mason work on the new building in Bridgeport. Mr. Tosti claims there is a balance of a few thousand dollars due him on the contract.

Mr. Rivkin and Mr. Gordon, partners, replied with a counter claim, in which they asked $30.000 on the ground that the work was abandoned and that this act delyed completion of the building for three months.

Mr. Rivkin, cross examined by counsel for Mr. Tosti, was asked what he finally did with the building. Mr. Rivkin replied that he "gave it away," declaring that he sold it to Attorney Benjamin Slade, of this city for $130,000. Asked how much the building was worth, Mr. Rivkin said $350,000. He claimed there were defects in the building which damaged the selling value of the structure to the extent of $25,000.

The case was adjourned until next Tuesday.

BALTIMORE PAPER TARGET IN TEST OF TAX PUBLICITY

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20.—The Baltimore Post company, publisher of the Baltimore Daily Post, was indicted by the federal grand jury here today on charges of publishing income tax returns in violation of Section 3167 of the revised statutes, despite a warning given by the treasury department when public inspection was ordered. It is the first test case instituted by the department of justice to obtain judicial consruction of conflicting provisions of the income tax law.

Harold Allen and Sewall Key, two special assistants to the attorney general, appeared before the grand jury after conferring with local federal officials, and selecting from the list of persons whose income taxes were published by the Post, the names of five residents of Baltimore on which to base the indictments. Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore park board; Saido Newsomer, banker; Leon Coblentz and Frank Furst were the names chosen.

Guen L. Tait, internal revenue collector for the Maryland district, was the only witness before the jury and the proceedings were brief. The jury was in session less than an hour and a half and besides the Post company indictment, handed in five other indictments, for minor offenses.

HAD FURNISHED LIST OF REGISTERED PACKAGES

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The defense in the case of William J. Fahy, former postal inspector, who, with James Murray, Chicago politician, and Walter McComb, is on trial for the $2,000,000 train robbery at Rondout, Ill., last June, today were surprised when a postal official testified that at Fahy's request he had furnished the inspector with a list of all registered currency packages leavin gthe city.

The witness was Louis A. Wegat, night superintendent of the registry division of the Chicago post office. In May, he said, Fahy ordered him to submit each day a list of all currency packages to all important points, particularly Indianapolis and Milwaukee, he said, the postal inspector explaining that he had information which made him believe a raid was contemplated on the mails anywhere between Chicago and Milwaukee.

On cross-examination Wegat admitted that Fahy did not ask for the amounts of money in the currency packages, but did want the number of packages, the road over which they left, the number of the train, the time it was scheduled to leave and the time it actually left. The list was furnished the inspector each night for several weeks, Wegat said, adding that he had never before had such a request.

MRS. PEARL BASKING HELD FOR MURDER OF LAW STUDENT

Lebanon, Tenn., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Pearl Basking was charged late today with murder and held without bond after the fatal shooting last night at her home of Paul Patterson, 21, of Springfield, Mo., a law student at Cumberland university.

The woman claimed that she had warned the student to remain away from her home, according to Sheriff C. S. Reeves, who made th earrest. Patterson, officers declared, "had been drinking."

Mrs. Basking was taken to Nashville tonight for the purpose, Sheriff Reeves said, of avoiding possible trouble with students of the university.

Although no disorder has occurred, Sheriff Reeves said he thought it best to remove Mrs. Basking, inasmuch as Patterson's fellow students were obviously aroused over the killing.

INTERESTING ADDITION TO THE N. Y. C. EXHIBIT

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The New York Central railroad's transportation exhibit at the Grand Central, New York, received an interesting addition today. In connection with the celebration of the opening of the Castleton cut-off, William D. Gould, of this city, presented to President Crowley, the original contract between the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad company and Mr. Gould's grandfather, for the construction of the passenger coaches for the "Dewitt Clinton Train," which was the first train operated on the first tracks of what is now the New York Central system.

Philadelphia, Nov. 20.—Harry V. Baldwin, for nearly a quarter of a century news editor of the Philadelphia Record, died today of pneumonia after a two weeks illness. He was born in Worcester, Mass., in 1866 and started his newspaper career on the Worcester Spy. Later he held editorial positions on the Providence Telegram and Baltimore papers.

High Levels in The Stock Market

New York, Nov. 20—(By the A. P.)—Breaking all records for the volume of business transacted in the post-election boom, the stock market today swept upward to new high levels under the leadership of the low-priced railroad shares. The sales on the New York stock exchange totalled 2,594,300 shares, the heaviest day's trading since December 21, 1916. When the frenzied trading which followed the "leak" of President Wilson's peace note sent sales above the 3,000,000 share mark.

The avalanche of buying orders for the speculative rail issues which poured into the stock market was instrumental in carrying the general price average to record high for all time.

Sixty three individual high records were established during the day's trading, in which 550 issues were dealt in, as compared with yesterday's high of 574.

A series of optimistic predictions by railroads executives regarding 1924 earnings, reports of progress in several pending mergers and of the successful conclusion of refunding plans by some of the roads contributed to the extraordinary demand for the carrier shares.

Thirty two rail issues eclipsed their previous 1924 peak prices, with New Haven and Kansas City Southern leading the davance on gains of 3 3-8 and 4 3-4 points. New Haven sold at 32, the highest prices in two years, in response to reports that the company had arranged successfully for the refunding of a $23,000.000 bond issue.

Other rail stocks which scaled new peaks for the year included Missouri Pacific, "Katy," Norfolk and Southern, Union Pacific, Northern aPcific and Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred.

Overcoming intermittent profit-taking representative industrial shares scored a slight net gain for the day, with 31 separate issues working into new high ground.

These included American Express, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Goodrich preferred, Mack Trucks first preferred, International Harvester, Postum Cereal, Otis Elevator Texas Gulf Sulphur and General Asphalt, which scored gains from one to about four points.

CREDITS TO SOVIET GOVT. BY THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Moscow, Nov. 20 (By the A. P.)—Leonid Krassin, who will leave next week for his new post as soviet ambassador to France, today told employes of the commissariat of foreign trade that, despite the refusal of the British government to grant Russia a loan, the Bank of England has allowed the soviet government credits amounting to $88,000,000.

Ambassador Krassin also said that the government was carrying on extensive financial operations with other British and American banks. He predicted that next year's foreign trade would amount to approximately 1,000,000,000 gold rubles, even allowing for the non-export of grain. The soviet government, he said, would never yield in its policy of retaining a monopoly of foreign trade, no matter how many attempts were made abroad to obtain this control.

Doubt was expressed by the ambassador as to whether the new conservative government in England would accept the Anglo-Russian treaty in its present form, but he was sure "that they will not tear it up."

The speaker said that the soviet government expected soon to begin active direct trade relations with South American countries. Referring to the United States, he said:

"In spite of America's irreconcilable attitude, which is expressed by the recently reformed organization called the "Amtorf," this company has a further agreement with the commissariat of foreign trade. Its chief purpose is to buy cotton, paper and machinery. It is a good indication of how anxious American institutions are to trade with us when it is known that this newly formed company and our bank for foreign trade are favored by Americans with special agreements regarding credits.

"Continuation of trade relations between the two countries undoubtedly will result eventually in the recognition of the soviet government by the United States."

Major General Sir Lee Stack Died of Wounds

Was Governor-General of Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army.

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 20.—Major General Sir Lee Stack, governor-general of Sudan and sirdar of the Egyptian army died at midnight tonight following wounds which he remeived at the hands of assassins.

BRITAIN WILL DEMAND PROMPT SATISFACTION

London, Nov. 20.—(By The A. P.)—The announcement from Cairo of the death of Major General Sir Lee Stack has aroused intense feeling in London. The British cabinet held a specially summoned council today probably for the purpose of discussing the outrage and the policy to be followed. At that time, however, the sirdar had not succumbed to the wounds inflicted by assassins.

Although the king of Egypt and the Sudan authorities have taken a correct attitude, it is expected that the British government will despatch a strong note insisting on prompt satisfaction for the assassination and guarantees for the cessation of anti-British propaganda.

NO REDUCTION IN BAIL FOR THE HIP SING TONG LEADER

New York, Nov. 20—A squad of attorneys in Tombs court argued in vain today for a reduction of the $20,000 bail under which Chin Jack Lem, reputed Hip Sing tong leader, is held as a fugitive from justice at Chicago and Cleveland.

Governor Smith on Saturday will hold a hearing on Chin Jack Lem's extradition to Cleveland. Papers are awaited from that city to show that the Chinese fled under indictment for attempted blackmail and threats of death to a fellow countryman.

Counsel for the On Leongs charged today that Chin Jack Lem was the most dangerous Chinese at large and that he, as leader of the Hip Sings instigated the recent hostilities which resulted in 15 hatchet and pistol murders.

The prisoner's counsel denied Chin Jack Lem was such a dangerous personage. Former United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis was his Chicago attorney, it was said, and it was with former Senator Lewis' knowledge that the Chinese had come to New York and registered at a hotel under a fictitious name at a time when he was under $5,000 bail in Chicago.

COOLIDGE IS WRITING MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 20. — President Coolidge today began writing his message to congress in which he will set forth recommendations for legislative action at the short session which convenes December 1.

The message is expected to include a definition of Mr. Coolidge's position on national problems, already started to some extent, in speech and in his message to the last session of congress.

In view of the administration's present intention not to ask for further tax reduction, pending a study of the new tax bill just now going into effect, and to await the report of his special commission on agricultural questions, it is not believed the president will make any recommendations for outstanding general legislation, devoting his remarks along this line to numerous pending proposals before congress among which are the departmentl reorganization bill, the naval reconstruction measure, reclaimation proposals and some railroad legislation.

Mr. Coolidge has indicated he will send the message to congress to be read, re-establishing a custom of many years, changed first by President Wilson and followed since his administration.

TO ADJUST LOS ANGELES AND OWENS VALLEY WATER FEUD

Today the aqueduct was reopened after a four day gesture by the Owens Valley people in their 20 year feud with Los Angeles over water.

Determination to permit the water of the valley once more to flow into the reservoirs for use by Los Angeles, was hinged by the Owens Valley people upon a resolution adopted Tuesday by the Los Angeles clearing house association. This resolution was in effect that if the armed seizure of the bankers would use their best efforts to bring about an equitable settlement.

HOW AFFAIRS STAND AT COAL RIVER COLLIERIES

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 20.—Henry L. Porter, secretary-treasurer of the Coal River Collieries company, whose mines in West Virginia and Kentucky are owned by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said in a statement today that there is no strike at the workings and that no lockout is in effect. Conduct of the mines was criticized recently at the American Federation of Labor convention in El Paso, Texas. Eighty miners, formerly employed by the company in Boone county, W. Va., have been served with notices to vacate company houses, Porter said, the evictions extending until January 1, next.

The union miners, according to Porter, demand a wage scale under the Jacksonville agreement, but, he added, "the company can not operate on this scale."

"Any miners can find employment at our mines, union or non-union," said Porter. "We are paying a scale slightly over the 1917 scale. We cannot pay the higher scale and survive."

RULING ON USE OF WORDS "IMPORT" OR "IMPORTED"

Washington, Nov. 20—Use of the words "import" and "imported in advertising in connection with sale of goods or merchandise not actually imported into the United States was held by the Federal Trade Commission today to constitute an unfair method of competition.

The commission issued a cease and desist order against Mitchell Blank, of Camden, N. J., trading under the name of Hagen Import Company of New Jersey, requiring the company to discontinue its alleged practice of using the words "import or "imported in a trade name or in advertising in connection with the sale of goods which the commission alleged were manufactured in the United States.

The commission charged that the company's trade name was prominently displayed in newspapers and catalogues but that it does not import any of the merchandise so advertised. The order specifically charged that the company sold a domestically manufactured product under the name of "Imported Bavarian Old Time Barley Malt Extract," and found the alleged practice to be unfair to competitors who truthfully mark their products.

RAILROAD MEN INSPECT THE CASTLETON CUT-OFF

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20.—A new chapter in the history of transportation was written today when the $25,000,000 Castleton cut-off was formally dedicated. The executives of 29 great railroad systems, comprising most of the important lines between the Atlantic and the Pacific, attended as guests of the New York Central railroad, making the first tour of inspection of the cut-off, the A. H. Smith Memorial bridge across the Hudson, the six miles long train yards at Selkirk, and, later, a luncheon in this city.

Chauncey M. Depew, chairman of the New York Central's board of directors, had expected to be present, but remained at his New York home on the advice of his physicians.

At the luncheon an attack was made by Chairman William A. Prendergast of the New York state public service commission and United States Senator Royal S. Copeland against government ownership of public utilities. Mr. Prendergast asked his hearers to bear in mind that every great work undertaken by the public utilities of the state and nation must be liquidated with money, and that when the question of rates is raised this fact should be borne in mind.

Senator Copeland declared that private initiative should be conserved, protected and encouraged in order that the prosperity and progress of all the people might be edeveloped.

Dr. Copeland, in referring to the benefits to follow the operation of the cut-off, said that it would be of incalculable value in supplying foodstuffs for the residents of New York city, which, he said, at its present rate of growth, would have a population of 20,000,000 sixty years hence.

Frederick W. Cook, secretary of state of Massachusetts, who represented Governor Cox, said that the continuance of business prosperity in Massachusetts depended upon transportation. The cut-off, he said, gave needed transportation facilities for the future as well as for the present.

All of the speakers paid tribute to the vision of the late A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, who conceived the Castleton cut-off plna as a relief "to ever-increasing congestion of traffic at the Albany "bottle-neck."

The inspection trip consumed about three hours' time and covered 45 miles of actual rail travel. A special train of 12 cars, carrying more than 1,000 guests, went from Albany to Niverville, where the Boston and Albany connection is made on the eastern end of the cut-off. From Niverville the train proceeded westward across the A. H. Smith Memorial bridge, which was lined with workmen waving American flags and cheering as the train, first to cross the Hudson at this point, rolled slowly over the west bank of the river.

Dozens of the structural steel workers danced jig steps on the three-inch iron railing more than 150 feet above the surface of the Hudson as the train went by, while from the river below came a continuous din from a fleet of tugboats with their whistles tied down. After reaching the west side of the river the train moved slowly through the new freight yard at Selkirk. This yard is six miles long and three miles wide and has a capacity of more than 10,000 cars. Upon reaching the western end of the yard at Unionville, where the cut-off joins the main line of the West Shore railroad, it stopped for a few moments and then traveled back through the yard and up to Albany on a branch line of the West Shore road.

The exterior and interior dimensions of a chicken coop which were noted as varying widely by Officer Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks led to the discovery of a hidden chamber in which liquor was being manufactured on the property of Mike Mikulsky of Atwoodville, shortly after midnight Saturday morning. State Policeman Heinold had been summoned to the Mikulsky home in answer to a complaint to quell a disturbance on the premises. Mikulsky has been previously found guilty of breach of the peace in the Mansfield town court, three times in about a year, and as this was his fourth offense the officer became suspicious that the man must be drinking liquor of his own concoction. The search about the premises led to a fair sized chicken coop. The officer peered inside with the assistance of a flashlight and was surprised to find the chickens confined to comparatively small quarters. Redoubling his investigating efforts, the officer came upon a secret door in the rear of the building. Inside this hidden room he found a 10-gallon still, warm from recent operation, and set on a four-burner oil stove. A barrel contained about 100 gallons of mash. Saturday forenoon Mikulsky was brought before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews of the Mansfield town court and was fined $100 and costs, with a 30-day jail sentence. Another 30-day jail sentence which hung over the man's head for a recent breach of the peace conviction was tacked on and Mikulsky was taken to the Tolland county jail to spend 60 days.

At the opening of the Windham county superior court session in this city Thursday forenoon at 10.02 o'clock the court resumed the taking of evidence in the basturdy case of Yvonne St. Rock vs. Silver Kerouach, both of Wauregan. Leon E. Doyle, a taxi driver from Wauregan, who established an alibi Wednesday for the defendant, stating that the accused was in his company on the day and evening of July 29, 1923, and not with the plaintiff, was recalled to the witness stand. He testified further as to the time Kerouach had spent with him on that and other dates.

Silver Kerouach, the defendant, then took the stand. He stated that he was a teamster in the employ of the Wauregan mills and was 21 years old. He had known the plaintiff all his life, residing but two houses away from her home, but had never been on intimate terms with her. He flatly denied any intimacy with her and mentioned the few occasions when he had been in her company. He related one instance when he had seen the plaintiff at Moosup pond with a sailor who was unknown to him. She was then also with her sister and her sister's present husband, Mathieu Beauregard. He had never asked the girl to go out with him, the parties having been arranged by Beauregard. On one occasion at Wildwood park she had asked him to take her out for a ride, and he had refused on the grounds that he could not leave the friends who were with him. The witness was severely cross-examined by Attorney Torrey. Kerouach said that he had never made it a practice to court young ladies. Aime Kerouach, brother of the accused, corroborated the testimony given in regard to the whereabouts of the defendant on the eventful July 29, when the act resulting in the present case was alleged by the plaintiff to have been committed near a schoolhouse on the Green Hollow road.

For the plaintiff, Mrs. Mathieu Beauregard, sister of plaintiff, testified to the ride on the Green Hollow road on the night of July 29. She stated that she was 17 years of age and the plaintiff 20 years old.

Yvonne St. Rock was then recalled to reassert some of the dates when she had had relations with the defendant. Rose DuBarry, a neighbor of the parties involved in the case, stated that she had seen Kerouach go to the St. Rock home during the day, July 29, while Yvonne was all alone in the house, the remainder of the family having gone to observe the feast of St. Anne in Fall River, Mass. The testimony had been completed at 11.45 o'clock and Judge Maltbie gave the attorneys their choice of making arguments or filing briefs. Attorneys King and Torrey agreed on the latter course and the court ordered the briefs filed one week from Thursday.

The four cases scheduled for Thursday were disposed of or put over. The first listed was that of Alex Coriaty vs. Louis J. Coriaty, a suit for $7,500 damages as the result of an automobile accident June 3, 1923. The plaintiff alleged that he was a passenger in the defendant's car when the machine overturned on Dark Lantern Hill, near Danielson, and he sustained a broken left wrist and injuries to his back and right side. It was hinted that the settlement reached was for $300. Attorney Frank H. Foss appeared for the plaintiff and Attroney Peck of Hartford for the defendant.

The case of Mary A. Vertefeuille vs. Moise Vertefeuille was continued, on account of death in one of the contesting families. Attorney Harvey represents the plaintiff and Attorney Baucher the defendant. In the case of Anthony Pionowski and Stephen Chomenchavitz et al. vs. John Arson (defendant's appeal), a replevin suit brought up on appeal from lower court, which decided in favor of the plaintiff, a settlement was reached on the basis of the lower court decision, $10 damages and costs.

The other case, that of Anthony Pionowski and Stephen Chomenchavitz vs. John Arcakewich, was continued. Attorney Foss represents the plaintiff side in both of the cases.

It was made known that Attorney Frank B. Munn of Winsted, representing the defendant in the Edwin Morin vs. Arthur W. Pierce case, would file an appeal for his client from the decision of a jury Wednesday which allowed damages of $98.10 to Morin. The case is the outcome of a motorcycle collision.

Court was adjourned at 11.45 until this (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock for a short calendar session and assignment of cases.

That the people may understand more thoroughly what their children are doing in the schools and what the schools are trying to do for them, parents and friends have been specially invited to observe the work in the schools during this week. Many of the schools have opened for a short session of regular work during the evening. About forty people responded to the invitation issued to parents and friends of the children of The Oaks to attend a session of that school, held in grades 2, 3, 4 and 5 Tuesday evening. A number also attended the session of kindergarten and first grade specially, in the afternoon from 1.30 to 2.30. Invitation was issued Wednesday afternoon to parents and friends of the children in the Natchaug school to visit at any time, Thursday or Friday. Observance of National Education Week, November 18-24.

"Wednesday, November 19th was set aside as "school and teacher day" and was observed in the Willimantic Training school by all grades from the kindergarten through the eighth.

"The parents and friends of the pupils were invited by Mr. Nobis, the principal, to visit the school at that time.

In the afternoon a session was held in the kindergarten and first and second grades. About seventy were present. In the evening all the other grades were in session from seven to eight o'clock. More than two hundred parents filled the rooms, manifesting much pleasure in the work that they saw.

"The work of both afternoon and evening consisted of the regular school work, such as language, arithmetic, history, reading, spelling, and games.

"The hearty co-operation of the children, and their remarkable ability to concentrate their attention were remarkable.

"It seemed in the opinion of all that the evening was most successful in that it brought together so large a number of parents teachers and pupils in the common interest of education.

How much do you want to know about your cooking fat?

Wouldn't it be fun to recall some of the women who prepared that first Thanksgiving Dinner and show them what a fine wholesome cooking-fat women have nowadays?

FAT IS SO ESSENTIAL as food and your selection of a fat has so much to do with the success of your cooking that you may be interested to read about Snowdrift, even if it looks like a long story.

Snowdrift is made by the Wesson Oil people out of oil as good as fine salad oil. This choice oil is hardened and whipped—much as you might beat the white of an egg—into a creamy white fat.

There couldn't be anything nicer for making cake, biscuit, pie crust or candy or for frying.

Snowdrift is fresh

Open the airtight can in which Snowdrift comes into your kitchen and you find Snowdrift fresh. To be sure that Snowdrift is fresh when you open the can in your own kitchen, we pack it only in cans as truly airtight as you yourself would use to put up fruits or vegetables. Snowdrift, in this airtight can always reaches your kitchen as fresh as the day it was made.

Smell it, taste it, compare it critically and you will see what a difference this freshness makes. Many and many a woman tells us that she has been using cooking fat of one kind or another all her life and never discovered, until she tried Snowdrift, how sweet and fresh a cooking fat can be. Snowdrift is fresh, as you use the word to describe a new laid egg. Snowdrift is sweet—what you mean when you say "sweet" cream.

Snowdrift is pure

When you open a can of Snowdrift you see why Snowdrift was named Snowdrift.

Its whiteness does not make Snowdrift pure, but its purity is one reason why Snowdrift is so white. Snowdrift is made entirely of pure oil—refined by the Wesson Oil people to a degree of purity and goodness that we do not believe is attained by any other fat.

With every impurity removed, this pure oil is almost colorless, and when it is hardened and whipped, as one beats the white of an egg, into Snowdrift, Snowdrift is white.

Whiteness doesn't make Snowdrift pure; but its purity does make Snowdrift white.

Snowdrift improves the flavor of everything cooked with it

Make your favorite cake with Snowdrift and see how rich and delicate and good it is.

Snowdrift improves the flavor of the food cooked with it without adding any flavor of its own. No good cook wants to use a fat that has a strong taste of its own. Cake should be rich and delicate, but not "taste" of the fat used. Fried food should be rich and crispy and brown but it should have its own flavor—not taste merely of the fat it was fried in. Snowdrift is rich—much richer than butter—but so pure and fresh and delicate that it improves, not changes, the flavor of things cooked with it.

The food value of Snowdrift

And the fact that Snowdrift is pure vegetable oil and nothing else means that it has the highest possible food value. Snowdrift not only makes things good to eat but is itself more nourishing food than almost anything else you eat.

Snowdrift is much richer than butter, because butter contains salt and water and curds as well as fat, while Snowdrift is all pure fat.

You may be interested in this table of calories which shows the relative fuel value of Snowdrift compared to the other things you eat:

	CALORIES PER LB.		CALORIES PER LB.
Snowdrift	4050	Sugar	1860
Oleomargarine	3525	Cereals	1665
Butter	3450	Eggs	720
Bacon	3030	Milk	325
Cheese	1950	Vegetables	229

There is more calorie value in Snowdrift, pound for pound, than in any of the food you cook with it. It is rich nourishing wholesome food, easy to digest and assimilate.

Snowdrift is ideal for frying

But all of this is merely from the technical point of view. In actual kitchen practice, Snowdrift has a decided advantage, especially for frying, because of the high temperature to which it may be heated before it "breaks down."

Our experience has been that the proper frying temperature is around 350 degrees. At frying temperature many fats "break down," burn and have a tendency to upset the stomach and are responsible for the objections to fried foods. But Snowdrift may be heated to 450 degrees—about 100 degrees above the necessary temperature—before it breaks down. The result is that, with ordinary care, it is possible to fry food in Snowdrift that is vastly more digestible than the same food fried in any fat that burns at a low temperature.

Snowdrift is economical

Snowdrift is also very economical as a frying fat—especially in deep frying. Strain it, to remove any crumbs of food, and you can use it over and over again for frying

This is true to some extent of any fat. But here is one advantage of Snowdrift. It will not absorb the odor or flavor of any food cooked in it—not even fish nor onions. You may use it over and over again for frying different things.

And Snowdrift is not altered much by heating to cooking temperature. Ordinary cooking fat has to be thrown out after you have used it a few times. But Snowdrift is altered so little by heating that you can use it up and not waste it. It is almost as good the last time you use it as the first.

Creamy Snowdrift is a convenience

To all these virtues, as a food, Snowdrift adds another virtue—convenience. It is always creamy.

You may have tried shortening that got hard as a candle in cold weather or in the ice box, and then runny in warm weather. Snowdrift stays stiff enough in a warm temperature and soft enough in cold so that it is always creamy.

When you start to "cream" Snowdrift with sugar you find most of the hard work already done. It saves much time and trouble to have Snowdrift already the right creamy consistency itself.

Maybe some of us didn't look upon her views very lightly . . . it was to laugh!

My dear friend, I am still laughing . . . not at your product, but because I am able to. I am telling you and the world at large, "Eat Kellogg's Krumbled Bran!" It should be called "Constipation's worst enemy." I owe you my heartfelt gratitude. I can talk, and whenever the opportunity presents itself, my mouth is always full of bran—Kellogg's Krumbled. Wishing you countless days of progress, I am

New looms and other machinery are being installed every day by the National Rhea Mfg. Co. in mills Nos. 1 and 2 of the Manhasset Mfg. company which the Rhea company has taken over on a long-time lease. Rhea products are only made in a few mills in America and the machinery for its production has to be obtained from Germany. William Cherry of Providence, textile manufacturer and capitalist, made a special trip there in the latter part of the fall to place the order for it. The first looms arrived two months ago and weekly consignments have been arriving since then. It was also found necessary to bring over a number of German machinists to install these machines and to instruct the operatives in the use of them. Many of these specialists do not speak English.

Rhea fabric is a little harsher than cotton duck. The raw material is ramie or Chinese grass. Formerly this grass was all imported, but in recent years large quantities have been grown in this country. When dried, treated and broken it is similar to cotton except that it is more brittle.

What is known to the trade as degummed Rhea is especially suitable for the drug trade in place of absorbent cotton and absorbent bandages. According to well authenticated reports, one of the largest manufacturers of surgical supplies will take practically all of the degummed product.

People of this vicinity are interested in a despatch sent out from Atlanta regarding C. Harold Gilpatric, that the former state treasurer is in distinguished company at the federal prison. The occupant of the cot at one side of him is ex-governor Warren S. McCray, of Indiana, who is serving a sentence for using the U. S. mails with intent to defraud. In the cot on the other side is former Sheriff Edward W. Grant, of Aroostook county, Maine. Gilpatric, the despatch states is heading up wonderfully well, is cheerful and good natured, and is rapidly learning to do things without the use of his sight.

The hearing was continued to next Monday. Officers of the state police filed the complaint. Mr. Blake, who sustained a number of scalp wounds when his head was driven through the windshield of his car, is still at the Day Kimball hospital. Mrs. Blake, who was driving the car, was not so seriously injured, although she has several severe bruises. She is at the home of her parents. Mr. and Mrs. John Walberg, of North Woodstock.

Fred Bernard's dog now has a collar with a registration tag. The owner didn't see the necessity of it when the new dog warden, Henry Hurdman, called his attention to the omission, thought it was a dog-conned nuisance, anyway. On the third visit of the officer Bernard made his objections rather strenuous and as a result was summoned into court on Thursday morning. The judge listened to both sides, told Bernard that the law must be obeyed and the executives of it respected, and fined him $5 and costs.

Two ordinary, garden variety of drunks were before Judge Geissler. They came, they said, from Rhode Island where law isn't taken too seriously anyway. According to their story they were approached on the highway by an entire stranger who forced them to take a drink of something that contained more than one-half of one per cent. and then insisted on putting a filled bottle of the solution in the pocket of each. They still had the bottles, almost full, when they fell into the arms of the Putnam police. Judge Geissler sighed a little wearily as if he had heard a similar story before and sentenced them to Brooklyn jail.

THE WASTAGE OF WATER.

Just now the subject of water is one that concerns many more communities than Norwich, and as might be expected attention is invariably being called to the enormous waste that is being experienced and the inevitable effect which it has.

Could the water that is wasted under normal conditions in Norwich be stopped, and had it been prevented some time ago there is no question but what Norwich would now have a much larger available supply of water, so much so that shortage prospects would not be getting attention.

In the city of Philadelphia the engineers and water bureau experts are claiming that if the consumption of water were measured and if payments were made on a basis of water actually used the effect would be to conserve the supply and reduce consumption. Water that is allowed to go to waste benefits no one.

Norwich is not without meters, but the houses are far from being metered and the waste that takes place is clearly displayed in the per capita consumption which far exceeds the average of the country. Conditions like that indicate much unwarranted waste. The real effect of such wastage is brought to attention at times like the present. Because there has been a failure to conserve the supply we are experiencing a greatly reduced pressure and our reservoirs are too rapidly being drained. Waste is always expensive. In this instance it forces upon us the resort to emergency conditions and through the stricter inspection it shows where much of the trouble lies.

There is a failure to realize just what the small leaks amount to. Such a tiny stream as one thirty-second of an inch will mean the discharge of 213 gallons in 24 hours under a pressure of 35 pounds to the square inch, while a half-inch pipe will discharge 54,661 gallons and a seven-eighths inch pipe at full head discharges 167,040 gallons in 24 hours. When we stop to think what the combined leaky fixtures, or those left unclosed, are discharging throughout the city there can be little wonder that there is an abnormal drain upon the water supply. This may not manifest itself so emphatically during normal conditions of rainfall, but it is brought glaringly to the attention now by the period of drought. And the worst of it is that we have passed through just such dry spells, have increased our reservoir capacity and rainshed area and still with the increased demand for water and the continuance of the waste another dry spell finds us in the same predicament. Much of it is due to waste. It will continue while there is waste.

USING THE HIGHWAYS.

In connection with the plan of the Boston & Maine to put on busses and trucks in place of certain trains on branch lines, the writer of a letter to the Springfield Republican considers it the logical thing to do from the standpoint of the railroad since there is reason enough why the railroads should get the benefits of the highways quite the same as other users, instead of maintaining their own right of way and paying taxes thereon.

This is of course a point which has been constantly kept to the front ever since it became apparent that the motor vehicles were breaking into the business of the railroads, as well as before that time had actually arrived. The situation is quite the same in regard to the trolley lines, some of which have passed entirely because of the effects of good roads and autos, and others which have given away to the substitution of busses for trolley cars.

When such a state of affairs results it becomes evident that the cost of maintaining the tracks, overhead wires and part of the highway is not faced by the bus lines. It is possible to render the same service, probably better, with the bus under a greatly reduced expense. Cost of maintenance and cost of operation undergo big changes for the better. Many of the costs are transferred to the highway department of the state, and in some instances to the highway departments of other states. And what is true of the trolley lines is equally true of the railroads. The time may come when they will be some different arrangement for the busses and trucks but as conditions are now there are excellent reasons for eliminating needless costs.

If it is possible for others engaged in the same undertaking to get the benefit of state maintained roadbeds there seems to be no good reason why advantage should not be taken of it by transportation lines which have paid huge sums in taxation which others are skipping. What the state has invited and encouraged there can be no blame attached to the railroads or trolley lines when they accept.

THE AMERICAN PROPOSAL.

Sentiment in this country has been running strongly in favor of a better control of the narcotic drug traffic and the stopping of smuggling. In this connection it is realized that much depends upon the other countries. Regardless of the enforcement of laws in this country dealing with the matter there is bound to be difficulty experienced in meeting the conditions as long as there is no limitation on the production of the raw materials and the distribution of the drugs by other countries.

For that reason this country finds it necessary to take a leading position for the suppression of the evil. Our representatives have presented their recommendations to the international opium conference at Geneva. They are held to be drastic, but it is a situation which calls for nothing less. There must be a firm stand and a united effort if the desired end is to be attained. According to the proposals of the American commission the restriction of drugs to medical and scientific purposes is sought. It is known that such cannot be arranged at once and it knows that there is bound to be opposition encountered. When it proposes to have production be reduced 10 per cent each year for ten years, when it seeks to have importations restricted and when it tries to have the manufacture of certain forms of habit forming drugs prohibited because unnecessary there is aimed at and needed a universal application of such an arrangement. It may be drastic but so was the naval agreement that was proposed. There is a world condition that needs to be bettered and it remains to be seen how general will be the disposition to participate in it.

JOHNSON AS OWNER.

Before the season ended it was declared that this year would mark the departure of Walter Johnson from big league baseball. For that reason there was a marked and widespread desire that his career in the major league should be closed with this popular pitcher figuring prominently therein. Johnson's part in the national game has always been gratifying. He played a conspicuous part in getting the pennant in his own league and when it came to the world series great weight was attached to his services. Disappointment and regret were intermingled when he figured in two of the losing contests, but unbridled was the demonstration over the manner in which he came back in the final contest and pitched the winning game. It was a wonderful finish, so much so that it might have been sufficient to change the mind of some who had determined to quit the game.

Any such thought in regard to Johnson is eliminated by the announcement to the effect that he has purchased an interest in the Oakland team of California. That doesn't mean that Johnson is through with baseball, but that he is to be identified with it in a new way. He passes as a big league star and now turns his attention to getting from others what he has so successfully given.

Probably Johnson's active identification with baseball has been longer than that of the average player, but his passing simply means that he has reached that "old age" limit where it becomes necessary to step aside for the younger men, Johnson of course being old only in the baseball sense.

But who could be welcomed into the ranks of baseball magnates with more acclaim than Johnson? He has given much to the game. He is known throughout fandom and it is certain that his efforts in providing baseball teams will be quite as effective and conspicuous as has been his work with the world's champions. Though he disappears from the list of stars Johnson has by no means dropped out of sight. Unless we are greatly mistaken Johnson will continue to be heard from.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Of course all the woodland fires can now be attributed to the hunters.

You're aware of course that the opening of congress is only about ten days off.

Few reports are received these days of persons being stricken down by the heat.

The general impression is that the mercury has been far enough and it is time for it to come back.

It took an overwhelming verdict from the people at the polls to bring the Rhode Island legislature to terms.

The man on the corner says: It is interesting these days to read over some of the pre-election predictions.

"Maine jails are filled" and yet there are those who have been advocating the abandonment of such institutions.

Housewives can probably tell you that the rise in the price of bread has nothing to do with the amount of yeast that is used.

They may be less numerous but the youngsters who prepare for the Thanksgiving barrel burnings have not entirely disappeared.

After they get through making gold from mercury perhaps new attention will be given to bricks and that Wauwecus hill mine.

Perhaps there has been no greater home entertainment provided recently than the cross word puzzles. They are tantalizingly interesting.

If it is possible for Harvard to play football it can be expected to be displayed when Yale is confronted. Other games count much less.

The Literary Digest figures that its nationwide poll on the election was practically 100 per cent correct. There's not much to dispute about that.

The election in Indiana where a judge was chosen to the supreme court bench by a majority of one out of a total of 1,203,731 votes shows once more that every vote counts.

Those obstructionists who figure on continuing their tactics must, by some strange method of reasoning, think their course was approved by the recent election instead of being denounced.

THINGS TO SAVE

"There isn't any place in this apartment to put anything," despairingly declared the man who liked things in perfect order. "Whenever I see anything lying around and go to put it in its proper place the place is already full of things that do not belong there at all. And if I take them out all I can do with them is to lay them down on the floor upon which I have just removed the first set of objects."

"It certainly is a serious situation," agreed the gymnastic husband. "I have lived in several different apartments in my life and invariably the lady of the house or the janitress or either my mother or sister Sue or you, has wailed that same identical wail frequently."

"The trouble is that apartments are built by rude men who hate closets because they take up space for which they can't get any rent. If there is a closet inside to each room, confidence they would make one whole room and that is about $20 a month the owner doesn't get.

"Women have only two or three dresses at a time now with the changing styles, so the builders figure they can't use a very big closet. And now, and that the husband's winter overcoat is probably in pawn during the summer to pay his golf bills—so they grudgingly partition off a wee space that might comfortably contain a sheet of wrapping paper set upright.

"Use your brain! they tactly say to the housekeeper. 'Learn to condense, dispense with and refrain from buying anything that can't stay out in plain sight!' In a way it is a good thing for tenants simply to have to get rid of Aunt Jemima's blue vase, the back magazines that nobody ever again will look at, the broken umbrellas which they intend to have repaired and don't and the things that are going to be made over some day—you know!

"Still, when people have an apartment like this, with like-size bedroom closets, two closets in the hall, an upstairs trunkroom, a broom closet and a huge linen closet, the women seem to have just as much trouble! It is a complex which is a hangover from the days when your ancestors lived in 20-room houses with an attic over all and a basement as big as Mammoth cave. A house then was not just a place to light—it was the center of the universe where everybody was born, got married and died, and it was handed down to the next heir.

"It hoarded the winter's firewood, the butterfly and geology collection of Cousin Chester, the one who was consul to Oopinav Rocks; thirty-nine trunks with the laid-away clothes of other generations, Uncle John's wonderful workbench and tool chest that he left there when he went west, all the bound magazines back to 1830 and 10,000 mason jars to be filled with canned stuff each season.

"That was why spring and fall housecleaning was such a fiendish episode driving men wild and women broken-backed.

"You don't know your blessings, woman! Your furs go to cold storage, neither of us wears winter flannels to be guarded from moths, and any time the linen runs out you can have a fresh dozen towels sent out the same day from the stores. Get rid of your superfluous belongings—give them away to worthy charities and attain peace of mind! Have just enough of everything to get along with for the present day and phone for more when those went out! What is it you want to find a place for now?"

"Oh," said the neat housekeeper, brightly, "it was just your second-best golf bag you thought you might need some day if you had to have your good one repaired—and that box of old pipes and the suit you sometimes use for fishing—but now that you have explained I'll just chuck all of it into the ash can—"

"You just dare!" roared the sympathetic husband. "Don't be so literal—I was just speaking in a general way! Here, give me those pipes!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Jean Richepin, who has been awarded a prize of 100,000 francs by the French Institute in recognition of his position in the literary world, is one of the few living Frenchmen who possess genuine poetic gift. The son of a French army surgeon, the poet's early years were spent in the vagrant life of a wandering army Richepin began his career as a radical journalist. He was penniless but he wrote plays, poetry and novels, and success came to him. Soon he became recognized as one of the strongest of living French poets. During the whole of his long career—he is now seventy-five—Richepin has delighted in the Bohemian. In his youth he was in turn a sailor, a strolling singer, and even a member of a band of gypsies. He has a great love for the ocean, and lives in Britanny six months of the year.

Warburg, Clerk on the Docks.

Reared amid luxury and refinement, Paul M. Warburg acquired a good education, then started at the bottom, and after he had made his way to success he was the object of undeserved criticism.

In Hamburg, Germany, where he was born, his ancestors were prominent as bankers and his parents were rich. The boy was given exceptional advantages in his studies and he had a natural aptitude as a student.

At 18 he was graduated from the Real gymnasium and was made clerk for an exporting firm. He was naturally dilident and studious, and the work on the docks tried his mettle, but he remained in the position until sent to England to study banking there. Two years later he went to France, then to other countries to prepare himself to enter the family institution.

At 24 he was made a partner of the family firm. Two years later he was married to Nina, daughter of Solomon Loeb, of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, international bankers of New York. At 34, he became a partner in the firm and moved to New York.

Still a deep student of banking reform, he attracted attention with his views when the panic of 1907 aroused general interest in the subject. When the Federal Reserve Board was formed in 1914, President Wilson appointed him a member.

To give his full time to the government work, Warburg resigned from Kuhn, Loeb & Company and severed all connection with other financial, business and philanthropic institutions, giving up an income of nearly $500,000 a year for one of $12,000. But he was from "Wall Street" and certain politicians grilled him on the witness stand until he proved his sincerity. Taking an active part on committees at the beginning of the World war, he was criticized because of his German birth and insisted on retiring from the Federal Reserve Board at the end of his term in 1918.

Warburg, 55 is chairman of the board of the International Acceptance Bank, is vice-president of the Federal Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board and is interested in many business and philanthropic organizations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"There is a Remedy."

Mr. Editor: Inasmuch as my letter awakened the attention of one thoughtful person, there may be hope that the forthcoming of a remedy for correcting the wayward and downward trend of society. Come to think Miss Slattery did name a suggestive remedy, "thinking."

She said "people do not think, but leave their thinking to others, hence forming an occupation for me." Now society has done this and in thus leaving its thinking to appointed sources it is well that we look to these for efficient and well-worth thoughts for society to ponder on and apply.

The gentleman who introduced Miss Slattery told us that her engagements had to be made one and one-half years ahead.

Here, then, we have a young woman who not only has to do the public thinking, but prepare for it eighteen months ahead. I was wondering how many of our employed thinkers and speakers made preparation more than a week ahead, if even that much.

How often the "urge" to hear some thought spoken that will impell to virtuous earnest action is absent, even when the duty to be present is strong and the only "push" to the service is habit.

We speak of a means of grace, which is what a religious service, indeed, any service, should be. One, not a service thinking for us, but to create and induce thoughts in the heart. Isn't this really the spirit to be aimed at?

I know this may be forbidden ground to be tread upon by a novice, but because there are so many novices, and all this public thinking is for their good and benefit, we at the risk of giving offense draw the bow at a venture.

How often is it not the case, as when a public orator once held up in his address to ask the audience, "Do you see the thread of my discourse?" A man in his assembly had the temerity to stand up and reply: "I confess I do hear the humming of the wheel, but so far I have been unable to perceive the thread."

As Mr. Theo Moje, a very suggestive name, too, has well said, the remedy is not to be had in talking so much about Jesus and his precepts but by applying them to the individual life. Lord help us to do this!

ONE OF THE AUDIENCE.
Norwich, Nov. 20, 1924.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

MOLDAVIAN SOVIET

A hint of the extreme complexity of the present governmental system in Russia is contained in press reports of a petition to the Odessa soviet for the formation of an autonomous Moldavian soviet. What this proposal means is brought out in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The geographical entity Moldavia has nothing to do with the suggested formation of a 'Moldavian Soviet,'" says the bulletin. "Moldavia is, in fact, an integral part of Rumania—not a World war addition, but one of the two original units, Moldavia and Wallachia, the joining of which in 1861 created the new state of Rumania. Moldavia does not even touch the present border of Russian territory but is screened by Bessarabia, a strip of territory from fifty to a hundred miles or more in width.

"The key to the proposed 'Moldavian soviet lies in the significance of the term 'Soviet.' The word denotes a council, and is applied to little, local bodies as well as to large powerful ones. A roughly parallel situation would arise in the United States if the deliberative bodies ruling our states, counties, townships, cities and villages were all called 'Congress.' Soviets, too, are not always constructed on a strictly territorial basis. In a given area there may be more than one council, each composed of members of a different racial or national strain. The suggested Moldavian council, therefore, would be made up of residents of Moldavian blood in the vicinity of Odessa who prefer to consider their own welfare separately rather than in a council of aliens. It is much as if Mexicans residing in a border county of Texas should request permission, under the county machinery, to maintain a community government of their own.

"Odessa, Black Sea metropolis of old Russia, lies only about twenty miles from present Rumanian territory, marked out by the Dniester river. The Russians, however, are not willing to admit that the region south of the Dniester legitimately belongs to the neighboring kingdom. The territory is Bessarabia taken from Russia as a result of the World war and it exists as a sort of Russia Irredenta. A considerable population of Bessarabians resides in the vicinity of Odessa and it is not unlikely that the formation of a 'Bessarabian Soviet' may also be proposed in this region."

Stories That Recall Others

A Hint.

Uncle John's namesake was visiting him. And uncle usually entertained him very well. But this afternoon he was so sleepy he had to take a nap.

Later he came down to the supper table. His eight-year-old namesake eyed him hastily: "You surely don't care much about having company," he began his conversation to his uncle.

Thoroughly Asleep.

Four or five men were standing along the curbing in the sun. They appeared to be of the army of unemployed, begrimed and "down at the heel." They were talking and looking mostly at the sidewalk, perhaps figuring on where their next meal would come from.

A well dressed young man walked down the sidewalk, stopped suddenly in front of the group. He was also looking at the sidewalk. Then he took two steps, bent over and picked up a 50-cent piece not five feet from the bunch.

While the jobless group looked almost with open mouths, he pocketed the piece he had found under their very eyes and continued on his way.

Los Angeles Children Taught Use of Books

Every child in Los Angeles upon entering the third grade is taught how to borrow books from the library and how to take care of books. The children's librarian visits each third-grade room and explains to the pupils the use of the library. Her aim is to arouse an interest in reading and teach the children to care for the books. Following this a letter is written to the parents urging their cooperation in the correct use of the library. In addition a leaflet, entitled "How to Borrow Books," is distributed among the library's patrons.—School Life.

Nearly 1,000 requests for health publications have been received by the United States Bureau of Education during the past year, and more than 1,000 letters requesting specific information on school hygiene were answered by specialists in the division of physical education.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrchloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach, and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and it is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

HOW TO EASILY LOSE FAT
Paris Sends Us Simple Formula to Get Thin
Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommend New French Discovery to FAT PEOPLE

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can to-day easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better."

Mrs. Kester, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 30 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Poquerncy.

"SAN-GRI-NA is a great help to me. I have reduced 20 pounds since I first started to use it."—Mrs. Wm. Parker.

"I have used 2 boxes of SAN-GRI-NA and I have lost 20 lbs."—Mrs. Dell, Oklahoma.

POLI SEEKING TO GET BROADWAY THEATRE BACK

Sylvester Z. Poli, owner of the Broadway theatre property, which he leased to A. Davidson for a five year term from July 5, 1922, has taken the first steps to regain possession of the theatre in order to make delivery of it to the interests controlling the Palace theatre on Rose place, to which, according to an announcement made early this month, Mr. Poli has made a contract to sell the Broadway theatre property.

A summary process action has been brought against Mr. Davidson by Mr. Poli in which it is alleged that the defendant has failed to pay fire insurance premiums on the theatre to the amount of $3,017.03 and alleges breach of a bond given to the plaintiff by the defendants with Peter Sellas and V. P. A. Quinn as sureties for $7,500. The writ is returnable before John D. Hall, justice of the peace at 11 a. m. on Saturday, Nov. 29. Slade, Slade and Slade are attorneys for Mr. Poli with Arthur M. Brown and V. P. A. Quinn appearing for Mr. Davidson.

It was reported at the session that Mrs. Knox is likely to resign as president in February and that she will be succeeded by Mrs. Quan.

During the legislative session in the afternoon the 250 delegates voted to support the legislative bill for ratification of the child labor amendment, a bill recommending jury service for women if one should come before the legislature and any measure procuring a 48-hour week for women in industries.

Resolutions Adopted.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Urging immediate entrance of the United States into the world court and its participation in the world conference for the reduction of armament.

Urging that the people of the state support the state farm so as to assure its continuance and development in accordance with the statute that created it.

In favor of the equalization of educational opportunities throughout the state by means of more liberal apportionments and a more equitable distribution of state aid for schools.

Reaffirming the interest of the league in the care and protection of the children of the state and pledging the league's continued support to the bureau of welfare.

Earnestly calling upon the governor and the officials of the state and all others in authority to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States and to enforce the laws of the land, urging the local citizens and the league's individual members to do all that lies within their power to bring about the respect for law; both by cooperation with other agencies and by active work for the enforcement of the law.

Latin-Americans Fear U. S.

Dr. Samuel Inman addressed the delegates in the afternoon, discussing the pan-American situation. Dr. Inman cautioned the women against doing anything to antagonize the people of Latin-America, declaring that the latter were very sensitive over the economic progress by which Americans have acquired property valued at $1,300,000,000 in Cuba alone. He said the Latin-Americans were becoming alarmed over the control Americans are gaining over the countries to the south and declared that where once the United States was regarded as a great sister nation, it is now characterized as the "Yankee terror" and the "great octopus of the north."

Jury Service For Women.

One of the addresses which thrilled the women at the convention was that given by Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron's address on Jury Service for Women. Mrs. Barron, a Boston attorney, and former president of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, said in part:

"Justice to women and even to the community, demands that women should be eligible to sit as jurors, for if women are like men, they surely should serve; and if women are unlike men, then their point of view, different from that of the men, should be represented on our juries," declared Mrs. Barron in a comprehensive address on Jury Service for Women before the convention here last evening.

Continuing Mrs. Barron said:

"Jury service, whether a privilege or a duty is an incident of citizenship. Women certainly do not want to be denied if a privilege nor evade it, if a duty. Every advance in civilization means responsibility as well as privilege. Citizenship implies responsibility. Women are ready to assume the burdens as well as the benefits of citizenship.

"The most common objection to women jurors is that they will be subjected to decide cases of a disagreeable nature. The percentage of cases involving presentation of unsavory testimony is extremely small. The fact that some of these cases secure headlines in our newspapers leads people to think that they are frequent. One should not forget that only rare experiences secure headlines, and that the rational, sane conduct of the rank and file does not constitute news. The opportunity for women to read unsavory stories in the yellow journals is greater in one day than jury service would afford them in a life time. The contact of woman with life does not diminish her elevating and refining influence, but brings it to the jury. This will certainly be the effect, since only women of good character and sound judgment are allowed to serve on juries.

"We have women litigants, women court stenographers, women witnesses, and in some states, even women judges, and these have not suffered from contact with the court room. Women doctors, nurses and social workers are probably best acquainted with the evil social conditions, yet, this has in no way undermined. Yet some would call it indecent to have men and women who are selected for good mentality and morals, disccuss the weight of facts in halls of justice. Many of the disagreeable cases involve women, therefore, women should help decide them in order to reach just verdicts."

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT AGAINST TROLLEY CO.

The suit of Howard C. Cummings of this city against the Connecticut company, claiming $25,000 damages, which was assigned for trial in the superior court here this week, was settled without trial, but the terms of the settlement were not made known.

Cummings, who was a laborer earning $4.95 a day at the time of the accident, sued the trolley company for injuries he received when he was thrown off a car at 7 a. m., June 3, 1920, as it was rounding the curve north of the Ponemah Co. weave shed at Taftville. His skull was fractured and he sustained other injuries, and he claimed the accident was due to the dangerous way in which the car was operated.

The case had been assigned for jury trial but was withdrawn from the jury and tried to the court. Judge Hinman gave his verdict without hearing arguments in the case when the evidence had been concluded.

BULLETIN ADVS. BRING RESULTS FOR THEATRE

The success of the misspelled word and jumble word contest being conducted by the Palace theatre has exceeded the fondest hopes of Mr. McEvoy of the theatre management and over 3,100 cards, entitling the lucky ones to free entertainment have been sent out.

The number of people interested in the contests has been great and every mail has brought a large number of answers. Over 3,000 letters have been received to date and the power of advertising is illustrated in the more than 2,000 replies from Norwich Bulletin advertising.

The contest of twisters is still going on under the conditions that have been announced in the Palace theatre advertising. When the required four answers are ready and mailed in to the theatre prizes will be awarded. The first postmarked letter wins first prize, a $5 gold piece; the second, a pass for two, for a month; the third, a pass for two, for two weeks; the fourth, a pass for the entire family for one performance; the next fifty, a free ticket each, for one performance.

NOT CLOSING SCHOOL FOR WATER SHORTAGE

A report that was in circulation Thursday that the Elizabeth street school was to be closed because of the water shortage was found to be without foundation when inquiry was made Thursday night of School Superintendent E. J. Graham.

Superintendent Graham stated that water reaches the school building through the regular city pipes each night, although there is none in the daytime. All water for drinking has to be carried to the school. Water is brought to the building in watering carts, this having been the condition for the last ten days.

CAR FOUND ABANDONED IN MOHEGAN PARK

A Chevrolet touring car, N-7441, was parked and apparently abandoned in Mohegan park four days ago. Authorities at the park notified the local police Thursday that the car was in the park. Investigation showed that according to the number the car belongs to Onufry Toupass, No. 189 Howard street, New London. The local police notified the New London police and they in turn notified the owner to claim the car.

It is not known why the machine was left in the park.

Mullen Boy's Condition Little Changed

Up to an early hour this (Friday) morning there was but little change in the condition of Thomas Mullen, the 9 year old newsboy, who was hit by an automobile three weeks ago. He is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering from a fractured skull. He is now in a semi-conscious state.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mullen of Town street. The boy, while delivering his papers, was knocked down Nov. 4 by an automobile driven by James J. Way of No. 27 Myers avenue.

ACADEMY PLAYS LAST LEAGUE GAME AT STONINGTON THIS AFTERNOON

The Red and White eleven travels to Stonington today to engage with the Stonington High school team in its last league game this season. The game was scheduled to be played on Saturday, but in order that the coach and some of the players of the squad may be able to witness the Yale-Harvard game on that day, it was arranged to play the game on Friday.

In the first contest that these two teams played early in the season the Academy emerged victorious. Stonington has greatly improved since the game and it is the team that furnished the keenest opposition for the league leaders, Chapman Tech, to score.

In spite of the bitter cold, the Academy eleven has practiced hard to end their season in a whirlwind fashion. Coach Aitken gave the squad light practice on Tuesday, but on Wednesday he put the team through regular hard scrimmage. Every man is striving to do his best in the game and bring home the bacon.

The team this season has shown merit but has not had the right gen- ... and the coach has been working during the week to overcome this. Hagberg is definitely out of the game owing to his being injured in the Chapman Tech game. Stefano will take his place in the line ... Platt, who was missing in last ... lineup will be back to ... The rest of the lineup will be practically the same with the exception of right end. Carlins, who is also on the injured list, will not be able to play and who shall take his position is undecided.

The Academy after this contest has one more game which is with the alumni. As the Stonington contest is one of the last a large delegation of students and followers of the team are expected to attend.

The game starts at 2.30 and the lineup will probably be as follows: Hasiam c, Gilman or Polsky rg, Stefano lg, Scott rt Lukowski lt, (undecided) rf, Hollander le, Williams qb, Higgins lhb, MacGowan rhb, Hen... fb.

FEATHERWEIGHTS WILL GET INTO ACTION TONIGHT

New York, Nov. 20.—The featherweight contenders battling for the premier prize of the division, the world's featherweight championship, meet at Madison Square Garden tonight in the first round of the elimination tournament fostered by the state athletic commission.

The principals selected on the merits of past performances were matched in lot and all will be held to the weight limit of 126 pounds. Louis ... Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., ... Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., in the opening match. Danny Kramer of Philadelphia opposes Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., in the second contest while in the final bout of the evening Jose Lombardo of Panama faces Lou Paluso of Salt Lake City.

Under a ruling of the commission two extra rounds will be fought in each event the judges and referee decide that the match is a draw at the end of the tenth round.

All of the six boxers have been in the metropolitan district for the past week finishing up their training under the watchful eye of deputies of the boxing commission and except in two instances have easily made the weight limit. Paulso and Garcia had some difficulty reducing but both expect to be inside the limit. The boxers will be called to the office of the commissioner tomorrow afternoon to weigh in officially and any contestant over the 126-pound limit will be automatically eliminated and his place taken by one of the alternates named by the commission to provide for just such an emergency. These alternates are Billy Defoe of St. Paul, Minn., and Babe Herman of New York. The two alternates will be on hand to weigh in at the same time and have been ordered to be ready to take the place of any boxer unable to scale at the stipulated weight.

The semi-final round of the tournament with two of tomorrow night's winners as principals will be held at Madison Square Garden in three weeks.

YALE GOES THROUGH FINAL PACES FOR HARVARD

New Haven, Nov. 20.—A short dummy scrimmage was the heaviest work of the Yale varsity football squad at the bowl this afternoon in their final long preparation for the Harvard game on Saturday. The scrimmage was followed by a half hour of signal drill under lights at Pratt field.

The coaches made no announcement today regarding the lineup for the Harvard battle and it was indicated that the first team will not be decided upon until just before the team goes on the field Saturday. In the dummy scrimmage and signal practice today, Eddie Bench, who started the game against Princeton, was at quarterback. Bingham, who has been out of the game for ten days on account of a bad knee, was at left end and will be in shape for the game with the Crimson eleven. Luman was at right end, Joss and Butterworth were at their places at tackle, Root and Sturhahn held down the guard posts and Captain Lovejoy was at his regular place at center. The backs were Allen, Pond and Cottle.

While the varsity was having its workout, Bunnell ran the second team through a long signal drill. The workout tomorrow will be entirely of signal drills.

The Harvard squad is scheduled to arrive in New Haven at 1.43 tomorrow afternoon and the bowl will be given over to the visitors for the first part of the afternoon. After the practice, the Cambridge men will go to Derby where headquarters have been established.

BULKELEY READY FOR GAME WITH STAMFORD

New London, Nov. 20.—The final workout held by Bulkeley this afternoon consisted of purely signal drill. With a large part of the regulars out of the lineup due to injuries, Coach William R. Canty ordered the team through a drill that lasted well into the dark hours of the night. It is a problem which confronts the Bulkeley mentor, and that to have the majority of his men laid up with injuries almost on the eve of the biggest game on the schedule.

Among those to be missing from the lineup today, were Rice, Sheflott, Collins, Watterson and Brown. Neither Rice, Sheflott or Collins have reported for practice this week, and whether they will start the game on Saturday is a matter for speculation. The players who will make the trip are as follows: Dillon, Wilson, Brown, Schwartz, Booth, Davis, LeBlanc, Watterson, Gavitt, Donohue, Graves, Daniels, Henkle, Collins, Sheflott, Rice, Nocery, Gray, Falvey, Barry, Manager Fern and Coach Canty.

Stamford High with a 29 to 0 victory over the junior varsity eleven representing City College of New York is considered a favorite over Bulkeley in the annual game at the Lock City Saturday afternoon. All told the Lock City eleven has scored 147 points to its opponents 23. It is a record which is in every way impressive. When the two teams meet, two really great machines will battle against each other for top honor which goes to the victor of the fray.

Several decrepit Fords manned by Bulkeley students will form a fleet to make the trip. It will be an interesting delegation, carrying the best wishes of the New London fans for a victory.

CHAPMAN TECH PLAYS WESTERLY HIGH TODAY

New London, Nov. 20.—Inter-scholastic football centers about Chapman Tech and Westerly Friday afternoon at Rhode Island City. With a distinctive record this season, and with the Eastern league title safely stowed away. The Red and Black will journey on the final lap of their league and school schedule. The game will be a stubbornly fought affair, for the previous game will be a judge on this contest.

Champions of the Eastenr Connecticut league, and with a possibility of going through the league season without a defeat, Chapman Tech will strive to keep its record from being soiled as far as the league contests are concerned. Westerly showed that she could gain around Tech ends, and it will be her objective again, no doubt. The previous affair at New London between these teams showed each up as possessing about the same power to advance the ball and almost the same defense. It is true that this game went to Chapman Tech by a 9 to 0 score, but the game was as close as one would desire to see.

Every player who was out with injuries has returned to the lineup sufficiently to give the Tech mentor a chance to work out the formations with more effect. And when the Whalers line up Friday it will be the same team which gained a victory over Norwich Free Academy. Only the caller's position remains unsettled and as in previous games, Courbois will no doubt share the burden with Everts. The team will leave about noon from the school premises on an automobile truck for Westerly.

TAD JONES RETAINED AS COACH FOR 3 YEARS MORE

New Haven, Nov. 20.—T. A. D. Jones who has been head coach of the Yale football squad for several years, has been reappointed for another three years, it was announced by the board of control at Yale university tonight. Coach Jones, who was graduated from Yale in the class of '98 S, came to Yale as head coach in 1916, the year of Captain Black's championship team. At the end of the season he left New Haven because of business roasons but returned in 1920, again as head coach, and has held that position since then. His contract expired this year and now has been renewed.

Coach Jones is known to have changed his style of coaching two years ago and since then Yale has not lost a game. His motto is intensive, but light work, and officials who have watched his activities report that he gets much more out of his squad than in former days when football practice was considered a "grind." The squad now enjoys its work, these officials point out, and as to the success of the policy adopted two years ago they point to the record of the Yale eleven.

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—A slightly mixed foursome of several varieties of athletic talent ended at Rancho County club yesterday with the defeat of Duke Kahanamoku, Hawaiian swimmer, and Chief Soldani, wealthy Oklahoma Indian and former Princeton tackle, by Babe Ruth, heavyweight baseball player, and Scotty Chisholm, sports writer and golfer 2 and 1.

Babe Ruth shot what he admitted was the best golf game of his life, an 82; Duke Kahanamoku did the 18-hole course in 85; Soldani made it in 79, and Chisholm in 83.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 20.—Chip Dugas' good bowling failed to save the Taftville bowlers from losing two strings to the Lawrence five here this evening. The third and deciding string was won by the overwhelming margin of 67 pins and the Lawrence gained the honors for this evening.

WINDHAM LEAVES TODAY FOR GAME WITH DRURY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Nov. 20.—Friday noon the Crimson and Blue gridiron champions of Windham High school embark for a journey to North Adams, Mass., where they will engage with the Drury High school eleven of that town in a post-season game Saturday afternoon. The local squad was put through its finishing touches Thursday afternoon and sets forth today with an assured ambition of returning with the laurels and an unblemished record for 1923 and 1924. This is positively the last game of the season for the locals. Challenges were sent out in every direction to those who might care to contend the state championship and as there were no replies forthcoming an arrangement with Drury High was made. New Britain High now comes with a subterfuge that it will play Windham if the latter outfit first secures the consent of the superintendent of the schools in the Hardware City.

CINCINNATI TO STAND BY LANDIS AND HEYDLER

Cincinnati, Nov. 20. — President August Herrmann, announced today that the Cincinnati National league club would stand by K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, and John Heydler, president of the National league, at the election of officers in the coming league meeting.

"The Cincinnati club is for Landis and Heydler," said Herrmann. "Many eastern critics have had Cincinnati lined up as an adversary of Heydler in the coming league meeting. Others have taken it for granted that Cincinnati was against Judge Landis. All erroneous. We are for Heydler; we are for Judge Landis, who has done great things for the benefit of the game.

"We cannot understand how the idea spread that we were against either of them."

Madden-Fuente Bout Off.

FISHER SAYS HE WILL QUIT HARVARD IF HIS TEAM LOSES TO YALE SATURDAY

New York, Nov. 20.—Bob Fisher is leading his Crimson brigade to attack Yale in what may be the last great battle for the bespectacled mentor who succeeded the late Percy D. Haughton as football coach at Harvard.

Fisher, it is reported, will retire if the Cambridge eleven, which has been pummeled about in all its leading contests this year, fails to overcome the bulldog in the New Haven Bowl Saturday. He is leading a force wrecked by gridiron warfare and his front will comprise a number of untried recruits, but behind them will march thousands of valiant Harvard men who have taken their leaders' advice and "sold their shins" to reach the battle line.

Yale realizing that the fight of a cornered antagonist will come from Harvard in a last attempt to regain a lost prestige, has trained dutifully for the combat and will present its most powerful combination. Its only weakness appears to be in the outposts where the condition of Gill, schooled in major conflict, remains uncertain. Otherwise the Blue's phalanx is intact, threatening to crowd its ancient enemy into football oblivion.

Harvard highly tutored in the art of defense, has failed miserably in its efforts to advance the ball this season, and followers of football anticipate a departure fro mthe Haughton system of safe and sane play in the coming contest. The forward pass has worked miracles and havoc in the past. The lowliest eleven has won through to prominence by "opening up the game." And with nothing to lose and everything to gain it is whispered that Harvard at last may resort to football gambling.

An open game, however, will not find Yale wanting, as the Ells' lone touchdown against Princeton resulted from a forward pass which Joss gathered in. Yale's backfield contains adept ball-handlers and a field goal expert in Scott, a far better combination of scoring power than the Cambridge university has uncovered. moreover, the New Haven forwards are powerful protectors in the execution of the so-called open plays.

Tickets for the annual struggle have disappeared. Fourteen special trains, four chartered by the Harvard club and one by the Yale club, will leave New York Saturday morning. The mass meeting organizing the student forces, have been held with the usual enthusiasm and it remains only for the opposing forces to clash.

Bucknell's sturdy little team is ready to storm Philadelphia tomorrow. Saturday it will attempt to take the powerful Rutgers eleven out of the undefeated class. Reports from the campus insist that constant improvement has been shown throughout the week and that the entire first line, with the exception of Captain Mike Foster, will start the contest.

While the giant Homer Hazel, whose well drilled toe has made him an outstanding figure in the backfield stars of the year, will undoubtedly be able to play part of the game, Dave Bender, sterling tackle, probably has played college football for the last time. He will be replaced by the 200-pound Goldschmidt. Bender was injured in the New York university battle a week ago when someone walked along his spine.

UGLY RUMORS SURROUND FULTON-FUENTE FIGHT

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 20.—Rumors of a frame-up reports of bribery, stories of confessions and charges of crooked work, are flying about here in and out of boxing circles following the affair at Cluver City Monday night when Fred Fulton, Minnesota plasterer-fighter, fell on the canvass at the feet of Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, 35 seconds after the starting gong rang.

At the center of the maze stand Fulton, Fuente, Fred Winsor, manager for Fuente, and Jack Reddy, manager for Fulton, under $1,000 bail each, waiting to appear on charges of having violated California's boxing law which prohibits fighting for anything more valuable than a $35 medal. This law is the one that will die early next year to be succeeded by the 10 and 12 round statute approved at the last election.

Everybody connected, even remotely, with the match, and hundreds of ringsiders who saw the 35-round fight, have issued statements. The principals all deny knowledge of a frameup, but the district attorney's office says it has records of admissions made before the Fulton-Fuente meeting that indicated a shady deal.

Typewriters are busy in the district attorney's stenographers quarters grinding out subpoenas for ringsiders to appear at the hearing of the quartet already charged. The list looks like a vestpocket directory of ringdom. It includes Jim Jefferies, who once held the world's heavyweight championship and his brother, Jack; Tom Kennedy, erstwhile heavyweight boxer of note, later screen actor and now matchmaker for the Hollywood American Legion boxing stadium; Tom Jones, who managed Bill Papke, and Wolgast and Jess Willard, and who also was slated to referee the last Monday's show but did not; Leach Cross, once contender for the world heavyweight championship; Frank Keenan, stage and film actor; Lew Cody of the Cinema, and a score of others.

HARVARD HOLDS LAST SECRET PRACTICE

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—The Harvard varsity football team held its last practice of the season in the stadium today and trotted off with the cheers of more than a thousand undergraduates who had paraded to the field to give Captain Greenough and his teammates a final sendoff. Saturday the Crimson meets Yale at New Haven.

A secret session preceded the appearance of the undergraduates but no announcement of lineups or work done was made. Three teams ran through formations for the rooters. The first to go on the field was composed of Adie, center; Theopold and Dunker, guards; Greenough and Coady, tackles; Dean and Bealg, ends; Stafford, quarterback; Miller, Maher and Savles, backs.

Two seniors were promoted from the second team at the close of practice. They were Captain William T. Heagney of Worcester, a back, and Thomas D. Blake, 2nd, of Boston, a quarterback. On the sidelines and not in uniform were Philip Spalding, quarterback, hurt in the Brown game, who was using crutches. Gerhke, best punter on the squad, who carried a cane and limped badly, and Daley a powerful guard, who was hurt in the Princeton game.

The coaches and squad of 49 players leave here tomorrow morning for New Haven when an hour's practice will be held in the bowl. Friday night will be spent at Derby.

NURMI WILL NOT RUN HERE UNTIL JANUARY

New York, Nov. 20.—The invasion of the United States during the indoor track season by Paavo Nurmi, famous Olympic champion, has been delayed, according to latest advices. The great Finnish runner was said to have sailed from his native land a week ago but it now develops that he does not intend to depart until December 5, arriving here just before Christmas and competing for the first time here early in January under the auspices of the Finnish-American A. C.

An unprecedented demand for the entry of Nurmi in various indoor meets has been shown, not only throughout the metropolitan district but elsewhere in the United States and Canada. Joie Ray, the former American mile champion, and Willie Ritola Finnish-American star, are the most eagerly sought opponents for Nurmi, who is understood to intend engaging in as strenuous a campaign as he can physically carry out.

COLGATE READY TO CLASH WITH SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 20.—From behind closed gates at Syracuse and at Colgate there came word today that the traditional football rivals of central New York are in splendid condition for a gruelling contest Saturday.

The Colgate squad, accompanied by the entire student body and all Madison county folks who can get away, practically the entire population, will arrive Saturday morning. The 25th renewal of the up-state classic has aroused more interest this year than ever before, desoite the fact that Syracuse was defeated by West Virginia Wesleyan and Colgate was bowled over by Nebraska and West Virginia.

PEERLESS TAKES TWO FROM THE PALACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 3.—The Palace bowlers came near sending the Peerless out of the first place this evening, only a sensational finish by Smith in the first string gave the Whalers two strings out of three. After the Peerless bowlers won the first string by two pins, the Palace evened matters by winning the second. Coming back strong in the final the Peerless won the string and match. Ferrell of the Peerless hit high single with 122 and T. Simcox of the Palace hit 347 for three strings. The scores:

Harvard Hockey.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—The principal dates of Harvard's varsity hockey schedule were announced today as follows:

SLATER FUND AIDS SCHOOLS IN VIRGINIA

The current issue of The Outlook features a sketch of rural schools in Virginia which are supported in part by the Slater fund. The article, which is about 2,500 words in length, is entitled Mary and Maggie, and the author is George Marvin. The story deals largely with Mary Crosby's rural school at Edgemont, Va.

One-third of the cost of this school was taken care of by the Julius Rosenwald Fund from the North; the county raised another third, and the colored people themselves raised the remaining third. "Maggie," whose work is largely supported by the Jeanes fund, is called the "Jeanes teacher" for the county of Virginia in which Edgemont is situated. In Maggie's jurisdiction Mary's school is only one of 35 with which she keeps regularly in touch.

Maggie's rural schools are assisted by the Jeanes and Slater funds. The Rosenwald money goes co-operatively into buildings; the Slater fund helps chiefly in buildings and equipment for hte county schools. At request of Miss Anna T. Jeanes of the Society of Friends in Philadelphia the income from a million dollars go to helping the small negro rural scols.

A nine-hole course, laiout on the roof of a building in Atlta, Ga., is said to be of great aid practicing players.

"MODERN CONVENIENCES"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

"Modern Conveniences." To hear a certain sort of men and women talk, you'd think that the possession of "modern conveniences" was the chief aim of life and the summum bonum of existence.

I confess I don't know exactly what are included in "modern conveniences." Running hot and cold water, I presume and steam heat, and electric lights and flat-irons and toasters, and bath-tubs and gas ranges, and hard-wood floors, and expensive plumbing fixtures, and septic sewage disposal plants, and shutters,—not blinds!—for the windows painted white outside and green inside. And perhaps a good many other things of which I am bucolically unaware. In fact, I haven't yet happened to meet two house-mistresses whose ideas of "modern conveniences" exactly coincided. A cynic might, perhaps, say that they included everything which any of the neighbors have,—and a couple of extras, just to brag about. But we are not going to be cynical. On the contrary, we're going to be as solemn as owls and as optimistic as chickens on an angle worm diet.

There seem to be at least three cases for this desire for "modern conveniences." One is the desire to safeguard against insanitary makeshifts. Another is the craze to imitate and, if possible, out-do the other fellow. A third is the outgrowth of a very common hankering after easier ways to do things.

I think that this third motive, which is neither laudable like the first nor forgiveable like the second, is the main one, too.

It is just another phase of the nationwide chase after the "easy snap."

Once on a time, as the fairy stories usually begin,—only this isn't going to be any sort of fairy-tale,—there was a great and powerful republic. Of course, it wasn't anything to be compared with this republic of ours. It didn't have either telephones or automobiles, the two most effective allies of laziness which have ever been invented. But it was the biggest and most powerful thing of its sort on earth, was the Roman Republic of something over two thousand years ago.

You see its soil was rather thin and barren, its productions extremely limited, and its inhabitants had to scratch gravel all the time merely to live. Very often the weakest didn't do even that: they died by the way, unable to make the pace. But the survivors were a mighty husky race. The result was that whenever they got into a scrap with another nation, their brawnier muscles and sounder wind and ability to live and fight on black bread and raw onions invariably beat their opponents. As they quite as invariably annexed the territories thus conquered, and assimilated the few survivors, mostly as slaves, they gradually came into the possession and use of a good many luxuries and a considerable amount of loot. Also of better land to work and slave labor to work it. Their days of hardship passed, they grew soft as a result of easier living conditions, and lazy, as a result of having war-captives do their hard work for them.

Of course the bigger hogs got the most swill, as they have ever since and do today. The nabobs came to have a degree of luxury which would be thought pretty swell, even in these times. And the smaller fry took the leavings,—when there were any. Naturally they grumbled. Just as naturally they fell into the trains of demagogues who promised them almost anything or everything, whether it was wise or even possible.

Then came the emperors, some half-decent and some wholly bad. A long string of them. What had been a republic of sturdy citizens, fairly equal in standing and influence, became an empire with a gang of unprincipled tyrants at the top and a mob of half-starved ragamuffins at the bottom. But neither party ever thought of restoring the pristine glories of the republic by returning to the pristine virtues of its makers. The emperors made frequent wars and had numerous "triumphs" along the Appian and other ways. Whereat the mob threw up what Shakespeare described as its sweaty nicht-caps and uttered a deal of what he further styled stinking breath, and next day surged around the imperial palaces with howls for "panem et circences." "Food and circuses" that means. They wanted both, but they wanted them as gifts from the emperor, not as wages hardily earned.

Perhaps a fairly illustrative modern substitute for that cry would be "Free soup and free movies."

They got 'em, after a rather desultory and not very satisfying fashion. They also got highly unwelcome visits from the Huns, the Visigoths, et al., whom they could no longer resist, so soft and supine had their enervating manner of life left them. Their empire fell into ruins, their "topless towers" tumbled to the undermining of bloody barbarians, their power vanished, they sank to the level of lazzaroni and beggars.

So long as the Roman people lived the simple life of strenuous endeavor, of hard work and scant returns, of economy and thrift, of manhood-nurturing activity, so long they developed and grew into the seats of power.

When they acquired habits of ease-seeking and put the ends of the earth under tribute to satisfy their craving for luxury they began a degeneration which ended with the torch of Attila.

Now, there is nothing unprecedented or even unusual about this. The same thing happened to the one-time empires of Akkad and Chaldea and Assyria and Persia and Egypt and Carthage. First struggle and harship and virility; then power and riches and luxury and—catastrophe.

I remember a certain old farmer who lived, when I was a lad, on a neighboring farm. The house was almost primitive in its simplicity, without and within. He was himself almost primitive in his habits. He and his family practically lived on the products of his farm and the game from his woods. He got his fuel from those forests and his drinking water from a deep well, drawn up in a wooden bucket by a crude windlass. His bath-tub was the brook which he used regularly, even when he had to break the ice to get into the water.

Today his old house is represented only by a half-filled cellar-hole. The well is filled up. The present owner lives in a thoroughly up-to-date bungalow with all the "modern conveniences" unlimited capital can supply. It has tiled bath-rooms with no end of hot and cold water on tap, supplied by a pumping engine from a distant spring. It has terraces and gables and stained roofs and green-and-white shutters and a "landscaped" lawn and graveled drives. It has all sorts of electric fixtures, and garages for several cars. Its owner is a man, a well-disposed neighbor and altogether a most agreeable fellow. He is a vastly pleasanter chap to meet than his predecessor, the old farmer of my school-boy memories.

But that old farmer, with one hand tied, could have tossed him over a hay-rick and then looked around for something nearer his own size to tackle. In truth, that old farmer used to boast that he could "lick his own weight in wild-cats." I never saw him try it but, if he had, I should not have bet on the beasts. He was the sort who didn't know when he was beaten and therefore never was beaten. He could and did work like the very Old Scratch; he could and did fight like a lion when need arose; he lived like a Spartan of old and died without a whimper when he got too feeble to keep up the pace.

Now, it isn't by any means so sure a thing as the easy-slap hunters may think that the substitution of an up-to-date palace with all "modern conveniences" is a gain to the nation over the Puritanically severe simplicity of the old farm-house.

There is something to be said on both sides. I'll candidly admit I should unquestionably find the modern building much the more comfortable. I'd a great deal rather get up in a warm bed room of a winter morning and take my bath in a handy tub full of water at least tepid, than crawl out of the warm sheets into a below zero temperature and wade through snow to an ice-covered brook out in the meadow.

But what I'd prefer isn't always what is best for me. What other people like isn't necessarily what's best for them. "All play and no work" is the ideal of a great many boys. It makes shirks, allee-samee. "Modern conveniences" are the desiderata of thousands of men and women. But if their general adoption results in a general softening and flabbification of the race,—why, that's something different, isn't it?

I have no desire to pose as a second Mrs. Partington, setting my small broom against the inroads of an Atlantic tide. Nor can I assume any authority to imitate Joshua in forbidding the going down of the sun. The world has gone out after the "easy snap" and won't be diverted from its hunt either by exhortations or warnings or even sky-filling portents.

In the meantime, good judgment counsels us old farmers either to "sit tight" or "keep the middle of the road," whichever figure of speech suits us best. The same applies to young farmers, if any of them can be made to see it. Whenever invention or discovery shows us how to do better work we may well adopt it. But when some plausible fellow gets after us to buy his machine or accept his method, because it is easier and for no other reason, then is the time to turn a cold shoulder. There's small danger of the present generation doing hard work just for the sake of hard work. But there is omnipresent danger that it will get into the already too prevalent habit of doing poor work, because that kind is easier.

Fortunately for us farmers,—and I use that word "fortunately" on purpose,—hard work is a primary essential of our occupation. We can't dodge it, unless we deliberately take the road over the hill to the poor-house.

Did it ever occur to you, Mr. Cityman, that one reason why so many of the cities' most successful men were country-bred boys is that their country training was along lines of hard work, enforced thrift and daily struggle? It is only by the sternest of training that are nerved the thews of victory.

The true man never asks: "How easy is it?" nor "How quick can I do it?" but "Is it work doing?" and "How well can I do it?"

"Modern conveniences" which help to do good work still better are eminently desirable. "Modern conveniences" which make only for slothfulness and shiftlessness are not in the same class.

COMPLETING NEW ROADS IN TOWN OF GROTON

The state aid road construction program for the town of Groton will be brought to a close within the next week or two when the new Center Groton-Stonington road and the Groton Long Point road will be open to traffic.

The Groton Long Point road still lacks 420 feet of construction before it is finished. The highway is built of water bound macadam and upon completion will make a well paved, easy driving road to the point. The road begins at Prospect Hill, Noank, and continues east to Cox's corners where it branches. The pavement then extends easterly to Noank and southward to Groton Long Point.

There has been considerable discussion concerning the bridge which spans the creek several hundred feet north of the entrance of Groton Long Point. The trestle is constructed of wood; it is about 16 feet wide and has a load capacity of five tons. It has been suggested that the bridge be renovated by the town to increase its carrying capacity to 10 tons, but by so doing the town would have to stand the cost of maintenance and the bridge would remain practically the same. The state offered to take over the rebuilding and replace it by a concrete span of unlimited carrying strength. The state would pay three-quarters of the cost of rebuilding and would ever after provide for its upkeep.

With the exception of about 50 feet at the top of Candlewood hill and a 20-foot detour at Lily bridge, the Center Groton road is practically completed. Considerable difficulty was encountered in building the new road when the constructors struck the shale ledge at the top of Candlewood hill. Engineers estimated about 9,000 cubic yards of rock at this point but when actual excavation began it was found that 15,000 cubic yards of rock had to be removed.

About 12,000 tons of granite from a quarry at Candlewood hill, were crushed for use in building the highway. Besides a huge stone crusher, three steam rollers and two steam shovels were employed on the job.

The new highway, like the Groton Long Point road is of water bound macadam and when completed will be a short cut of nearly a mile to Mystic as well as eliminating the necessity of traversing Fort hill. It is believed that much of the through traffic now directed by way of Groton will be switched over to the new pike.

A love song dear to thousands in the English-speaking world for its quaint charm and age-old sentiment; and a love song of a different type—the crooning of a mammy of the old South to her little one.

La alegria del Batallón (The Joy of the Regiment) (Serrano) In Spanish / Tristes Amores (Love's Disillusion) (Iñiguerra) In Spanish	José Mardones / José Mardones	921	1.50

The Spanish zarzuela, or musical comedy, always has stirring music. Here is a jovial bass song from a famous one, rich, powerful, yet smooth, with wholesome laughter. The companion song, to the violin, flute and piano, is in graver mood.

Concert Songs

Punchinello (Weatherly-Molloy) / Shipmates o' Mine (Teschemacher-Sanderson)	Royal Dadmun / Royal Dadmun	45455	1.00

Light Vocal Selections

Drifting to You / At the End of the Sunset Trail	Marcia Freer-Lewis James	19483	.75

These artists team together agreeably in songs of youth and love-sentiment, of which these are two of the best recent ones. The first is in waltz time and has pleasant harmonies.

Everybody Loves My Baby / De Clouds Are Gwine to Roll Away with violin, guitar, harmonica, violin	Aileen Stanley Vernon Dalhart	19486	.75

A darkly mysterious baby-blues love-song, and a rain-song composed by Wendell Hall's chief partner. Both are catchy.

Dance Records

Go, Emmaline—Fox Trot / Words—Fox Trot	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19484	.75

Splendid "all-purpose" fox trots, not noisy but full of character notwithstanding. The first has odd moments here and there, and fine piano work. The second is light, cheerful and melodious.

Have a Little Fun—Fox Trot / Out of a Million You're the Only One —Fox Trot with vocal refrain	Waring's Pennsylvanians / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19471	.75

Vigorous and strong-toned fox trots. In the first the old "round" of childhood days, "Three Blind Mice," appears in the middle of a modern fox trot. The second ends like a brass-band number, with a specially powerful climax.

Until Tomorrow—Tango Fox Trot / Clovita—Tango Fox Trot with vocal refrain	International Novelty Orchestra	19485	.75

Interesting recent examples of the "Tango Fox Trot"—Northern derivations of the Mexican national style in this fascinating dance. They will dance to any fox trot steps.

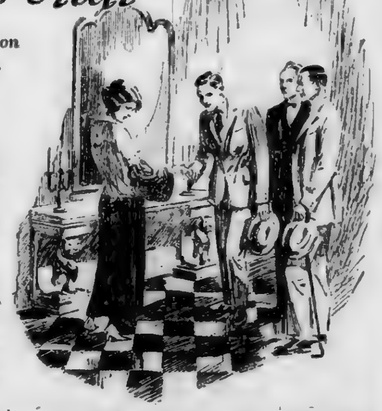
Modesty Is Charming
but health is vital

Growing girls should realize elimination is necessary; constipation dangerous. Mothers, urge use of Dr. Caldwell's Pepsin Syrup



THE world is broadening and there is less excuse for prudery today than ever before. Parents and school teachers are helping by telling their children the fundamental facts of life.

The growing girl, therefore, who neglects the important function of elimination is living in a past age. She should realize that when days go by and there is no passage the general health is impaired, the monthly function is interfered with and fatal illness may result.

Mothers would do well to watch adolescent daughters for they, more than young boys, are prudish in this regard. Elimination should occur once a day, and if it does not, a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be given. You will thus prevent intestinal poisoning and constipation and their train of disorders, sallow skin, pimples, lassitude, bad breath, headache and so forth.

Mrs. Jesse Maxey, 106 Third street, Aurora, Ind., and Mrs. Pat McCullough, Tampa, Fla., regularly use Syrup Pepsin in their households, and as a result their families are free from sickness.

It is not without reason that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is today the most widely used liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually. It is mild and gentle in action and free from griping, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics, a safe laxative from which opiates and narcotics are entirely absent.

After using Syrup Pepsin you will understand why people discard the harsher physics and cathartics, pills, powders and salt waters. Others, too, no longer give children "candy cathartics," as they contain a coal-tar drug called phenolphthalein, which may cause skin eruptions. They prefer a safe laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, made from plants and vegetables, the prescription of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine for forty-seven years. Buy a bottle. A dose costs you on an average of less than a cent.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

FAKE REPORTS OF NEW POISON GASES

Washington, Nov. 20.—(By The A. P.)—Published reports of the development of new poison gases with "super-natural powers" of destruction, "of the evolution of death dealing ... of terrible effectiveness, are both ...iculously erroneous" and "seriously misleading," Brigadier General Amos A. Fries, chief of the chemical ...rfare service, asserts in his annual report recounting the progress made during the last fiscal year by the army chemists.

"All known rays and power obey certain definite laws," General Fries said, adding that the same restrictions applied as well to gases. "Here and there advances are made in understanding those laws and directing them; but it is believed proper and safe to say that no real scientist can yet foresee the day when such control of these substances is possible that life and machinery can be destroyed at anything but short distances—distances too short for any considerable use in war."

General Fries emphasized his statement that it was the business of the chemical warfare service to "keep abreast of all these developments," and to instruct the army and navy in the handling of chemicals of all kinds. In obtaining information as to poisonous chemicals, he said the service was expert, adding: "It has more information on poisonous chemicals than exists in any other institution in America and possibly in the world."

Emphasizing the uses already found in peace times for this information, General Fries pointed to the development by the service of the theory and method of treating colds and other diseases of the nose, throat and lungs with chlorine gas which had already grown into the establishment of clinics throughout the nation and in the successful application of the method to curing influenza among horses and cattle.

"It is not a panacea," General Fries said, "but wherever the chlorine can reach the germs of the disease in sufficient concentrations it will kill them. The most startling side of this work has been its cure of whooping cough. Practically 100 percent of whooping cough cases have been completely cured, or the distressing symptoms nearly banished. It is a boon to childhood such as is not found once in a generation."

Another beneficient use found for war chemicals had been the applications of tear-gases to assist the police, General Fries said. "Like chlorine it is a boon to mankine and particularly to those who are charged with the thankless task of upholding the law in criminal cases."

General Fries also spoke of the research work in connection with using poisonous compounds to protect wooden structures from marine borers, and the efforts to control boll weevil depredations in cotton states, adding that the opportunities for such work as this through chemical research are boundless.

The continued case of Matthew Guastamachia charged with violation of the liquor law by actual sale at a place on Franklin St., came up again Thursday before the city court. A continuance was requested and granted until December 4th. The accused is out on bonds of $1,000. Guastamachia was arrested in the bowling alleys at the Thayer building by marked money, with which, it is claimed, the liquor was purchased from him.

Much is being crowded into the school week which ends today (Friday) because of the short week coming, which will be curtailed by the Thanksgiving holidays.

DOWN TO SLEEP

November woods are bare and still;
November days are clear and bright;
Each noon burns up the morning's chill;
The morning's snow is gone by night;
Each day my steps grow slow, grow light,
As through the woods I reverent creep,
Watching all things lie "down to sleep."

I never knew before what beds,
Fragrant to smell and soft to touch,
The forest shifts and shapes and spreads;
I never knew before how much
Of human sound there is in such
Low tones as through the forest sweep
When all wild things lie "down to sleep."

Each day I find more coverlids
Tucked in and more sweet eyes shut tight;
Sometimes the viewless mother bids
Her ferns kneel down, full in my sight;
I hear their chorus of "good night,"
And half I smile, and half I weep,
Listening while they lie "down to sleep."

November woods are bare and still;
November days are bright and good;
Life's noon burns up life's morning chill;
Life's night rests feet which long have stood;
Some warm, soft bed, in field or wood,
The mother will not fail to keep,
Where we can lay us "down to sleep."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Helping With the Invitations

Now just a minute, if you please,
And don't be peeved to wait
Till I recall where we left off
Last night at half past eight.

Dear me, little reader, was it so late when we finished last night's story? I must be careful to finish this one in time for bed. Boys and girls should be asleep before that late hour, —that is, if they expect to wake up with rosy cheeks and a good appetite for their breakfast cereal.

Oh yes, now I remember. The Big

"Here's a pencil for you."

Brown Bear had just brought a barrel of lollypops in his wheelbarrow. Yes that's what he had as sure as I'm one Uncle Dave and you're my little rabbit fan.

"Can you roll the barrel down the cellar steps?" again asked the dear old gentleman bunny, more anxiously this time, for the Big Brown Bear was peering into the darkness beyond the cellar entrance.

"Wait a minute till I get a rope," crowed the Old Red Rooster, strutting off to the barn. In a few minutes he returned, and as soon as the rope was looped around the barrel, they all carefully lowered it into the cellar.

"There," gasped the Big Brown Bear, who, of course had done most of the work, "I guess it's safe now. Lock the door so that Danny Fox or Mr. Wicked Wolf can't steal the lollypops tonight, or any night. Don't let either of those old robbers spoil the Lollypop Party," and doffing his red cap he bowed to Little Miss Mousie in the doorway and walked around the house and down Lettuce avenue till he came to his Cosy Cave House in the Shady Forest. After hanging up his cap on the wooden peg, he curled up on his bed of leaves and went to sleep.

Carefully locking the padlock on the cellar doors, dear Uncle Lucky hopped back into the kitchen, followed by Little Miss Mousie and his small bunny nephew, while the Old Red Rooster strutted out to the barn to take off his blue overalls and wash his bright red comb.

"I'm going to send out a hundred invitations to my Lollypop Party," said Uncle Lucky, sitting down in his old arm-chair. "But, goodness meebus, I never can write them all. Somebody, and maybe two bodies must help."

"We will," shouted the bunny boy and Little Miss Mousie at the same breath.

"Well, let's set to work," laughed the dear old gentleman rabbit, hopping over to his desk. "Here's a pencil for you bunny boy. But what will Little Miss Mousie use?"

"I have my pretty blue fountain pen," she answered with a toss of her head. In a few minutes not a sound was heard except the scratching of the pens and the tick tock of the old grandfather clock in the hall.

MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT OF MYSTIC SHRINE CEREMONIAL

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that 98 out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

He has been stationed at the customs house here under Division Chief James R. Maxson. Mr. McKay succeeds Joseph T. Harrington, who resigned.

The three-masted schooner Over-the-Top, which was seized recently by the coast guard cutter Tampa, was libeled this afternoon in behalf of the United States government, the papers being served by United States Deputy Marshal Joseph M. Park. The vessel when seized, carried 3,500 cases of assorted liquors. Two of the members of the crew were held under bond, charged with violation of the Anglo-American treaty. The filing of the libel means forfeiture of the vessel, unless protest is made when a hearing in the case is held in New Haven December 1.

The auction of the 17 Menhaden fishing steamers, scheduled for November 25, has been postponed, the owners of the craft, the Fisheries Products company, of New York having filed a bond. The steamers are tied up here, libeled by the Thames Towboat company, which claims the fisheries company owes it money for repairs. The boats are represented by a receiver.

William Cullum, about 75 and without near relatives, so far as is known, suffered a shock late last night when he was seated in a club room on Railroad avenue. He was given medical attention and then taken to Lawrence hospital, where late this afternoon it was stated that his condition was serious.

A chimney fire was discovered early this morning in the two-family dwelling, 8 Union street, owned by Meyer H. Hollandersky in the apartment occupied by Edward H. Cable. The blazing soot threatened to ignite the interior of the building and a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, Nameaug Engine company responding. The fire was extinguished with chemicals and without damage of consequence.

John Castanzo, of Grand street; Mrs. Joseph Bernstein and infant son, West Coit street and Walter Kozlicky, School House lane, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Submarine S-42, one of six under-sea craft built for the navy department and whose machinery was installed by the Electric Boat company, Groton, was delivered to the navy department this afternoon. Lieut. Commander Clark Withers representing the government received the craft and moored at a berth at the submarine base. Lieut. J. H. Brown will be the commanding officer of the new craft, which will be made ready for sea duty as she has officially been tested and all that is needed aboard the craft is her personnel of officers and crew and the necessary equipment for sea service. The remaining five submarines will be gotten ready for service as soon as possible.

An official of the Robertson paper mill, at Montville, has reported the theft of $300 to the state police. Groton barracks, and from appearances the theft was committed by an employe of the company, or someone having access to the office of the company and knowledge of the movements of the office force. The theft was committed late yesterday afternoon and the money was to have been distributed among the workers of the night shift. Two of the three shifts had been paid off and the money in a series of envelopes was placed on a desk in the office to await the arrival of the last force of workmen. Shortly after 5 o'clock the theft was discovered and a complaint was lodged at the Groton state police barracks. Officers Giles Watson and Henry J. Albright were assigned to the case.

A plank broken in the Montauk av-enue bridge was reported late this afternoon. The highway department was notified of the danger and asked to make repairs and till they were made to render the spot safe for pedestrians and vehicles.

A "home products" show in progress at the armory had an attendance this evening that taxed the capacity of the building to accommodate it. The band from Fort Wright gave a concert which attracted many to the exhibition.

It is declared by persons supposed to be on the inside that the city council has no intention of dropping the probe of the police department and the correction of alleged abuses that have gone on for a considerable time. It is said to be the plan of the council not to interfere with the city manager in the matter, rather to insist that he make a thorough investigation to determined whether gossip that is heard is based on fact. The plan is for the council members to inform the city manager of the reports that come to them as verified and to give the manager names of their informants, that he may call them before him and go into the particulars with a view of determining on whom the responsibility rests. When the city manager has gleaned what information he is able to attain he will place the facts before the council as a committe of the whole and a decision as to further proceedings will be commenced. The council has no intention of dropping the matter of a probe but is more determined than ever now.

Max Zimmer a driver for the Yellow Cab company in this city, reported to the police this afternoon that a sub base automobile, numbered 3937 and operated by Wilfred Vrochy, ran in to the yellow cab and damaged it to the extent of more than $10. He reported that the sub base car driver did not have a license in his possession at the time of the accident.

Frank Sbagh of 25 Tilley street went into the Coney Island lunch room this afternoon and while there he hung his coat on the wall. That was the last Sbagh saw of the coat for when he sought it the garment was missing. It was a navy blue coat and was valued at about $25.

Earl F. Fenn was ordered into court this evening by Officer Henry Hick for disobedience of the rules of the road while operating an automobile on Montauk avenue. Officer Hick said that Fenn drove past Willetta avenue, one of the most traveled thoroughfares in the city and where travel is very heavy, at a speed that was 30 miles or more an hour. Fenn did not sound his horn nor give any indication that he was passing. The officer yelled at him and then the driver went some 300 feet before he was able to bring his car to a stop.

J. R. Grecsky, the happiest drunk that comes before the police court, made his periodical visit today. He seems unable to make the simplest statement without laughing over it. He was that way today even when Judge Prince told him to pay a fine of $10. Joe couldn't do it, so he went to jail.

Frank Esuchniec, also drunk was fined $10. He was wealthy and paid.

The children of the public schools will contribute to the poor of the city for Thanksgiving. They will bring fruit and vegetables to their respective schools and then the Learned Mission will take charge of the distribution. All the charitable organizations in the city will supply the mission with the names of the worthy poor that there shall be no duplications in the food distribution. This practice has been followed in years past and has worked out most satisfactorily.

The trustees of the Learned Mis-sion will meet Saturday to consider whether they will enlarge their mission building on North Bank street or sell it and provide larger quarters elsewhere. The matter is one that is important. But there is no probability that the mission will abandon its calling in a field which it has done so much for humanity and has been so great a help for the city.

John Higgins of 141 Park avenue was in fighting mood tonight and drunk as might be expected. He smashed things at his home and abused his wife so that the police were called and he was given a berth in the police station, his visit being the twelfth he has made since his record was kept by the department.

Robert H. Jaeger, formerly of New London, son of Mrs. Augusta H. Jaeger, of 197 Shaw street, died at Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., late yesterday afternoon. Besides his mother, Mr. Jaeger is survived by a brother, Ernest Jaeger of this city. Mr. Jaeger has resided in Washington several years where he was employed by the government in the engineers' corps.

Mrs. Mabel Haggard, 1126 West 15th street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, has communicated with the New London police in an effort to locate her son, James Haggard, who was located in New London last September. At that time Haggard was employed on a boat hailing from this port. Haggard's name does not appear in the city directory and he is not known to the police.

An automobile operated by Florence T. Lake, 223 Montauk avenue, and a machine owned and operated by Charles Nott, 268 Broad street, were in collision this morning at the corner of Huntington and State street. Both cars were damaged and each operator placed the responsibility for the accident upon the other.

Patrolman Walter Rohn reported this afternoon that the high wind of the past day or two had demolished two windows of the cottage on Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, owned by George H. Miller of Ocean avenue.

Edward J. Doyle of Howard street, was taken into custody this forenoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith at the request of the Boston police, who held a warrant charging Doyle with non-support of his wife and children. When arrested at his employment Doyle denied his identity and declared that he was not the man wanted. He finally admitted that he had left his family and had come to this city where he obtained employment. An officer from Boston will come here tomorrow and escort Doyle back to that city for trial.

The police speed automobile, operated by Sergeant Nelson Smith was damaged this forenoon, when it was in collision with an automobile operated by William Canter, of Brooklyn, on North Bank street. The police car got a demolished mudguard. Canter assumed responsibility for the collision by paying $16.75, the price of a new mudguard.

William T. Feeley, of Waterford, and Miss Thelma K. Griffin, a registered nurse, this city; were married last evening by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons at the rectory of St. Josephs church. Mr. Feeley is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Feeley of Waterford and is employed as a railroad postal clerk.

Andrew Mickel, residing at the corn-er of Main and Federal street, who but yesterday finished a term in the county jail for violation of the liquor law and employing a minor female, reported to the police today that while he was in jail, his home was entered and $685 and a check for $35 was stolen from its place of hiding. Mickel, who received a 30 days' sentence in addition to a fine, stated that before he was arrested he placed the money and check in a phonograph and when he returned to his home last night he discovered the money and check missing, it being the belief of the police that acquaintances entered the house and attempted to operate the talking machine, which refused to operate because the money and check interfering with the mechanism. The visitors at the place then investigated the trouble with the machine and finding the money, stole it. Mickel operated a so-called restaurant at 137 Bank street, where he employed a 14 year old girl. The police raided the place while the girl was in charge and found a small quantity of hooch. It is the claim of the police that the restaurant was a blind for the conduct of the liquor business, for it is declared that when the raid was made there was not enough edibles in the place to provide a meal for a single person.

Fire of unknown origin, but which is believed to have started from a defective chimney, entirely destroyed one of the houses owned by the Robert Gair company, Montville, this afternoon, together with the household furnishings of the occupant of the place, R. Nelson, an employe of the Gair plant. So serious did the fire become that assistance was sent to the blaze from New London. The fire was discovered about 12.15 o'clock and at the time was burning fiercely. Employes of the Gair plant manned its firefighting apparatus, but when water was played upon the structure, it was burning with great rapidity. Because of a high wind and the nearness of other houses, a telephone message was sent to fire headquarters here asking for assistance. Chief Charles Rose and the Niagara pumper was dispatched to the fire. At the time of the arrival of the New London firemen the dwelling was doomed and all efforts of the firemen were devoted to saving adjoining dwellings, which had already become ignited from flying sparks. Several streams of water were emptied upon the threatened buildings, which resulted in saving those structures.

A special meeting of the city coun-cil is to take place Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock to devise ways and means to operate the ferry between New London and Groton the ensuing year. The present lease of the ferryboat Mohican to Groton borough for $1500 will expire Dec. 1st and in order to provide ferry accommodations between New London and Groton another year it is expected that the lease will be renewed at the same figure and that the city of New London will make an appropriation of $4500, the same as was done the past year, as a contributory part in defraying the expenses of the operation of the boat. The meeting will be attended by representatives of Groton.

There was some talk of substituting a smaller boat for the Mohican, which would reduce the expense of operation, but this plan has been abandoned for the present, owing to the fact that a sale now would not produce the profit desired and warranted by disposing of the Mohican. The craft recognized as a worthy ferry under normal market conditions and should sell for a price that would be satisfactory and pleasing to the taxpayers.

GALES FERRY

Miss Lillian White of the Savings Bank of New London, was a visitor at the Gales Ferry grammar school, Friday afternoon, and presented the school a fine picture of the American poets, framed, a gift from the bank. This prize is awarded the school, not on the basis of the greatest amount saved, but rather to the school, in which the largest percentage of pupils, deposit regularly this being considered of primary importance. This makes the third consecutive year, in which this school has received the thrift prize.

Something more than seven years ago Miss Hettie E. Way of Brooklyn, N. Y., donated a number of books to start a library in Gales Ferry, and they were placed in the store of Mrs. J. A. Birch through whose courtesy they were cared for. Five years ago Miss Grace E. Povey made a plan for a library which has attained considerable success. Miss Povey is assistant librarian in the New London public library, and with her knowledge and skill interested many friends outside the village, as well as within its boundaries. Both money and books were contributed, and with donated labor, an attractive building, was erected, on a site given by Charles H. Brown of Norwich. At the present time between two and three thousand books, properly catalogued, are upon the shelves, and twice a week, volunteer librarians, issue the volumes, to those who call. Many friends this week following the inspiration of Miss Way and Miss Caroline B. Freeman, upon the occasion of her birthday, presented Miss Povey, a white-gold bracelet, set with two topazes and a diamond as a token of appreciation.

The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Harmon L. Peters, roll call and minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop. The treasurer, Mrs. Colver read her report. It was voted to send a box or barrel of vegetables and fruit to the Deaconess' Home in Providence, before Thanksgiving. The second chapter, in the study book, Adventures in Brotherhood, was read in paragraphs by Mrs. Colver, Mrs. Molthrop Miss Sarah T. Latimer and Mrs. D. C. Perkins. Mrs. John Harold conducted the missionary enigmas, and gave the numbers on Thanksgiving cards. A social hour followed during which Mrs. Colver served sandwiches, cake, cookies and tea. External treatments seldom cure Piles.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE WEEK IN MUSIC

Hulda Lashanska's appealing soprano sings this week a love song dear to thousands in the English speaking world, The Sweetest Story Ever Told. It is a fortunate opportunity to hear her in a song that demands exceptional range and not a little emotional intensity. Its companion is Me Curly-headed Babby, a southern lullaby with crooning. Minor cadences.

It is not often that we hear anything of the Spanish zarzuela, or musical comedy, and this week Jose Mardones favors us with a jovial song from one. Its companion is somewhat graver. La Alegria del Batallon (The Joy of the Regiment) and Tristes Amores (Love's Disillusion) are very Spanish, sung by a great Spanish bass.

Those who heard Dadmun's record of a Round-up Lullaby will appreciate his latest recordings—Punchinello and Shipmates o' Mine. The one is the famous love-tragedy of Harlequin, the other the lament of an old sea-dog for departed shipmates—both fine baritone solos of manly emotion.

Marcia Freer and Lewis James hit it off well in songs of youth and love. Drifting to You and At the End of the Sunset Trail by them this week are melodies of familiar sentiment, feelingly sung.

Not in the same style, but in similar vein, perhaps Aileen Stanley sings Everybody Loves My Baby while Vernon Dalhart makes it two with De Clouds Are Gwine to Roll Away. The former is a darkly mysterious baby-blues melody, while the other is more cheerfully philosophical.

Whatever one's predictions in the dance line the program this week certainly ought to meet them. Unusual and appealing are two medleys of real, undiluted Irish jigs and reels by McConnell's Four Leaf Shamrocks. This is a thoroughly delightful record.

The Bensons contribute their usual quota of fine, melodious, to-the-mark tex-trots this week. Go Emmaline and Words will fulfill every expectation.

Waring's Pennsylvania make two vigorous and strong-toned foxtrots of Have a Little Fun and Out of a Million You're the Only One. The first includes a dash of Three Blind Mice, while the second boasts a vocal refrain.

A prevalence of strings marks two lovely tango fox-trots by International Novelty Orchestra, with castanets and other devices to heighten the Hispanic effects. Until Tomorrow and Clovita will be re-heard often, is our prediction.

Breed Theater

The current attraction at the Breed theater is a melodramatic novelty that has more human appeal than the usual melodrama. The picture is The Silent Accuser, produced and directed by Chester M. Franklin and released by Metro-Goldwyn.

It is an innovation in screen entertainment in that it makes use of a situation never done before.

A highly intelligent police dog, Peter the Great, is the only witness of the murder of the heroine's stepfather. Through the dog's almost human instinct, the hero escapes from prison after he has been accused falsely of the crime. Subsequently, in a story filled with adventure, romance, intrigue and thrills, the dog and the heroine, who dresses as a boy, assist the hero in catching the real criminal. The story was written by Jack Boyle and adapted to the screen by Mr. Franklin and Frank O'Connor, the assistant director.

The title role of The Silent Accuser is played by Peter the Great, who is making his screen debut, and who thus leaps into immediate popularity. A large cast is headed by Eleanor Boardman, Raymond McKee and Earl Metcalfe.

Other pictures on the bill include William Duncan in the last chapter of The Fast Express, Neva Gerber in the opening chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and the Armistice day parade.

Broadway Theatre Review

In reviewing the program that is playing the last half of this week at the Broadway theatre, nothing but praise can be forthcoming.

Buddy, Dot and Grace in Around the Town, offered a fine routine of songs and dances with a beautiful setting.

Sandy Shaw followed. He is the celebrated Scotch comedian who presents his own repertoire of real funny songs and stories.

Sure Cross fire comedy, the kind that brings forth roars of laughter was presented by Keene & Williams in "A Roadside Flirtation."

"The Masked Marvel," is one of the most unique performers seen in this city in some time. Besides being an all-around athlete he is a performer of exceptional ability. He has taken the leading role in "Peg o' the Pirates, Treasure Island," "The Village Blacksmith," and Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," well known photoplays, and played the part of Nero, in 'Rome in the Days of Nero.'" The unusual performer holds the world's record for hand nail driving and tearing apart three packs of cards with his hands. "The Masked Marvel" attained world distinction in 1904, when he balanced 511 pounds with his teeth. This feat has gone undefeated up to the present time.

WESTERLY

At the court house at West Kingston Thursday morning, before Judge Hugh B. Baker and a jury which was empannelled, Wednesday, was begun the murder trial of Richard Brady of the town of Richmond for the death of his 27-year old wife, Della LaFountaine Brady, as alleged, with a United States army rifle. The murder was committed May 31st at their shack on Wilbur Hill, off the Wyoming-Hope Valley road about 1 o'clock at night.

The first witness called by Assistant Attorney General John P. Harrigan for the state, was Mrs. John R. Wilcox, widow of High Sheriff John R. Wilcox of Washington, who was in charge of the prosecution of the case at the time of his death. Mrs. Wilcox testified to her husband's being called to the site of the crime by Brady's coming to the sheriff's home on Kingston hill and at his consultation with him.

Deputy Sheriff George Phillips, of Kingston, told of Brady's being taken to jail where he was locked up, also of his visit with the sheriff to the location of the murder, when Dr. Edwin J. Knerr of Hope Valley, medical examiner for the town of Hopkinton, was present. On cross examination by Attorney George West for the defendant, the deputy sheriff was not able to state whether Brady was placed under arrest at the time by the sheriff or merely detained. He detailed the finding of Mrs. Brady's body scantily clad, with some wearing apparel thrown over it, and the finding of a U. S. army Springfield 22-calibre rifle which was taken as evidence and marked exhibit 1. He said the body was found with the head toward the doorway and the feet toward a chopping block which was not moved by the authorities.

Dr. Edwin J. Knerr testified to accompanying the sheriffs and Undertaker S. R. Avery of Hope Valley to the site of the murder. He had known the deceased, Adelia May Lafountaine Brady for 15 or 20 years. At the time no shoes or stocking were on the body. Further examination showed blood stains on the chest and back, there being a wound large enough to insert the index finger in the left breast below the nipple between the eighth and ninth rib. An autopsy showed the bullet had shattered the lung and heart and passing through the body had come out on the right side of the back. He had directed the removal of the body. In his opinion death was caused by the bullet wound through the heart from a gun in the hands of a party other than the deceased. The doctor identified the gun shown in the court rooms as similar to one which was shown him when he visited the scene of the murder and which was handed him as it stood beside the partition in the room of the house. Unfamiliar with firearms, the doctor with the gun in hand described the way George Brady, a brother of Richard, showed him how the gun was held when it was discharged at the time, and with the gun over his shoulder the doctor walked down from the stand to be summoned as a witness by Attorney West for the defendant.

William LaFountain, father of the deceased, of Wyoming, with tears in his eyes, testified to visiting the shack and viewing the body of his daughter.

Fred F. LaFountain, brother of Mrs. Brady, told the court that he saw the body of his sister about 5 feet from the doorway. He testified to hearing his sister complain of abusive treatment by her husband; that her husband kicked her and her son out of bed and that they slept on the floor. The greater part of the year 1923 Mrs. Brady was employed in Bailey's woolen mill in Hope Valley and her husband worked but three weeks on the state road. Mrs. Brady's first husband's name was Bennett; they lived 3 or 4 years in East Greenwich and she had two sons, Donald Bennett, aged 5 years and Raymond Bennett, aged 7. Court gave the jury a short recess.

During the jury recess Attorney Harrigan presented Ernest Cox 22, and Henry Powell, 17, of Fall River, Mass., on a complaint of breaking and entering in the day time the candy store of Charles and Maurice McClay on the Hopkinton road. Pleas of nolo were entered by the young men. The state's attorney told the court that the boys were going to New York while out of work in Fall River and the amount of money taken by them as far as could be learned after they were seen leaving the store by a window was $1.50. He moved that a suspended sentence be given them telling the court the boys had been in jail 26 days now. Judge Baker questioned them and called Father Donovan, supervisor of charities of the Fall River diocese, who was in court to learn of their reputation in Fall River. Father Donovan told the judge that they had good reputations there, where working conditions had been very bad. The costs of the cases had been $22.85 and Father Donovan offered personally to pay the amount and have the boys pay him later. The judge imposed a suspended sentence and placed them under $500 bail each with surety to be arraigned as the boys were released with a warning that future misbehaviour meant two years in state prison.

The second day of the Red Cross drive by the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross Wednesday showed a total of 429 members enrolled with subscriptions totaling $558.55 with many of the country districts yet to be heard from. The total on the first day was 365 members and $500.50 subscriptions. This makes a grand total to date of 894 members and subscriptions of $1,509.05.

Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell, chairman of the women's teams, announced the personnel of the Hope Valley workers as follows: Mrs. Ethel Bailey, Mrs. Sarah Stanley, Mrs H. T. Lowe, Mrs. Frank Nichols, Mrs. Ethel Avery, Mrs. Carrie Green, Mrs. Julia Charnley, Miss Hilda Young, Miss Doris Boutelle. From Canonchet there is Mrs. Emeline Hoxie; from Rockville, Mrs. Carl Irish and from Woodville, Dr. Frances A. Kenyon, Mrs. Herbert Greenman has been added to the team of Mrs. Samuel H. Davis and Mrs. Archie Marr to that of Mrs. Henry L. Burdick.

Workers declare that they are being well received in all quarters, and that the town as a whole appears to be familiar with the ed Cross work and realize that the office maintained in town in charge of Miss Lucy Crowley is a decided asset to the community.

Chairman James M. Pendleton of the Westerly chapter stated Thursday that he was more than gratified with the response already made.

R. and it is a great boon to these women who are oftentimes held there for a considerable period of time, pending the settlement of their cases by the immigration authorities, to have this work with which to keep employed during the long, tedious hours. JEWETT CITY

There is considerable talk at this time among local automobile drivers and owners, relative to what it is best to do in the event of meeting men in the road, in the night, on lonely parts of the drive between here and Norwich, who stand out in the right of way, and make signs to the approaching driver to stop.

The highwaymen on Branch hill last Sunday night, evidently tried two machines before the man from Colchester appeared. He slowed down with the idea in his mind of giving aid to a fellow driver, who appeared to be in trouble.

What was the result? A man jumped on to the running board and he was robbed of his last cent, at the point of a pistol. Last Sunday night, no less than nine known automobile parties made the drive from Norwich to Jewett City between 10 and 12 o'clock. Every night in the year Jewett City visitors to Norwich in the evening, are obliged to return in their machines.

Not long ago a Norwich doctor, well known in Jewett City, saw three men in the road. As soon as his headlights showed upon them, a dimmed lantern was waved and the trio pointed to a car, pulled up beside the road. The place was a lonely one, no house was near, and the doctor knew it. As he approached, he appeared to slow down then, not liking the looks of the outfit in the road, he stepped on the accelerator and gave her all the gas he had going by in a whew, with exhaust open and horn shrieking.

That same night, in the same stretch of woods, a man was "easy" to the gang, he stopped, and escaped with his hat, trousers, shirt and shoes. Local drivers and owners, have pretty well decided that late in the night and in unfrequented stretches of road, it is not good judgment to stop every time a couple of men stand out, and wave their hands. One local man said "It may seem inhuman, but I don't believe in taking the chance in view of recent hold-ups in this section."

The driver, and the passengers in his care have no show. The moment the speed is sufficiently slackened, it is the pistol and robbery for them, and one may perhaps meet with death if he hesitates in complying with the highwayman's demands.

The dope is, in the night on lonely roads, keep going.

The two new flashlight beacons, in the state road at Tracy's corner and at Postoffice Square have been on trial almost a month. At the next annual meeting of the borough, a referendum ballot will decide as to their purchase. The satisfaction they have given is apparent. No proposed purchase of the borough was ever more needed, or was able to give a better account of itself, in performing the duty it is expected to discharge.

The voice of the traveling public and their friends will ratify the purchase which Warden Geary and the board of borough government, believes ought to be made.

The original idea which suggested itself to G. H. Prior when he was asked to paint a sign for the church supper Thursday evening, furnished his genius in that line, material, that to say the least was novel, for an ordinary hen's supper notice. A traffic sign [illegible] Stop and Go sort, was painted on the top of the bill with such evident care as to the angle of the word wings, that over one hundred passers-by, stopped and went.

Finn's tonight "Covered Wagon". Morey's Orch. -ady.

Jewett City firemen, during their hours of leisure in the engine house, never find better entertainment that that furnished by the stories told, and the reports repeated, about recent local or nearby fires. The methods of attacking are talked over and often criticized. In this line of things the recent disastrous Tillinghast fire in Plainfield has received a pretty thorough analysis. Local firemen have not been able to understand why the force pumps of the Lawton mills were not available, when, as judgment suggested, that night, their powerful streams would have saved some loss and much anxiety. A few days ago, two local people went to Plainfield to see, and hear, what it was possible to learn about the fire. Light is given to the Jewett City firemen, on things heretofore not quite understood, when it is learned, that streams from the mill pumps would only have been available, when carried through the pipes used to supply water for drinking and domestic purposes.

The medical authorities would listen to no such thing being done, because, the water supply then available for fire fighting would have to be pumped from a stream polluted by sewage, and the health of 1300 people would have been jeopardized.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church held a sale and served a supper in the church parlor and vestry, Thursday afternoon and evening. The fancy articles and domestic table was in charge of Mrs. Emma Raney, Mrs. J. H. Kennedy and Miss Ruby Thornton. A bargain sale table was a novelty in its variety of attractions. All the makings of a boiled dinner made the centerpiece, and fruit, eggs, jellies, nuts and food were among the bargains, Mrs. E. M. Swift, Mrs. A. D. Tripp and Mrs. Charles Anderson were at this table. Homemade candy was sold by Mrs. F. H. Gilbert and Mrs. A. M. Brown, at a table decorated in ground pine and red berries. A supper of baked beans, brown bread, potato and cabbage salads, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee, was served under the direction of Mrs. Augusta Lee, Mrs. Ida Benjamin and Mrs. Martin Davis, Mrs. C. F. Gardner was in charge of the dining room. The waitresses were Mrs. E. M. Gray and Misses Jessie Raney, Susie Morgan, Rose Crumb, Ellen Prior, Verna Tarbox, Doris Carpenter, Agnes Franklin, Alice Brown, Lillian Barber, Winifred Scates, Doris Bliven, Florence Quimby and Emma Dearnley.

Saturday afternoon at two o'clock the children of the Methodist church are to meet at the parsonage to organize a junior missionary society.

The men's class of the Methodist church which includes a few men from other churches is to meet at the home of Earle E. Gilbert this (Friday) evening.

Mrs. G. H. Prior went to New York Thursday to address the King's Daughters' New York district convention.

The women of the Methodist church held an all-day serving-bee in the vestry, Thursday serving dinner at noon.

The sale of Christmas seals, the proceeds of which are used for prevention of the spreading of tuberculosis or for help in any such case, begins the first of December. Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters has charge of the sale of these seals in this vicinity, including Lisbon, Griswold and Voluntown, being given this territory, by the State Tuberculosis Commission. Part of the receipts go to this commission and help support the state sanatoria.

These Christmas seals have nothing to do with the Red Cross, and should not be called by the name of that order. Other Christmas stickers or stamps are often sold about Christmas time and are sometimes confused with the tuberculosis seals. The Christmas seal this year is a bright dark blue with the figure of a woman in white carrying a light and a shield on which is the double barred red cross. In one corner are the words Health Christmas. A seal on a letter helps make someone better.

Says Dandruff Causes Baldness

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quick—it's positively dangerous and will surely destroy your hair if you don't.

Dandruffy heads mean faded, brittle, gray, scraggly hair that finally dies and falls out—new hair will not grow—then you are bald and nothing can help you.

The only sure way to abolish dandruff for good is to destroy the germ that causes it. To do this quickly, surely and safely, and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisian Sage, which you can get from Lee & Osgood Co. and good druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair, and stimulate new hair to grow or money refunded.

Parisian Sage is a scientific preparation that supplies all hair needs—an antiseptic liquid neither sticky or greasy, easy to apply, and delicately perfumed.

If you want beautiful soft, thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it by all means use Parisian Sage. Don't delay—begin tonight—a little attention now insures abundant hair for years to come.

STARTING SUNDAY

LEFFINGWELL

Last Friday evening the Ladies' Aid Society held a harvest supper in the vestry. It was in charge of Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell and Mrs. William White, assisted by Mrs. Henry Durr. The menu was: coffee, rolls, pie and mashed potato and turnip, arrots, pickles, fresh stuffed shoulder.

Friends in Leffingwell of C. Emile Geoffrey of East Great Plain were pleased to learn that he returned to his home Sunday. He recently underwent an operation at Backus hospital.

Wednesday afternoon the missionary circle held the November meeting with Mrs. N. E. Whitney, of Benjamin street, Norwich. Mrs. Carrie Park was in charge of the meeting and the subject was China. It was voted to send a barrel of clothing to the Mather School, at Beaufort, South Carolina, also to do overseas White Cross work. Nine were present and after an offering was taken refreshments were served by the hostess.

This (Friday) evening at 7.30 o'clock a meeting is to be held in the Leffingwell school for the purpose of organizing a Students-Community League.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RAILROADS FEATURED MARKET.

New York, Nov. 20.—An extraordinary demand for the low-priced railroad shares, most of which established new peak prices for the year, featured today's stock market. Total sales exceeded two and a half million shares for the first time since December 21, 1916, when the famous "lead" of President Wilson's peace note brought about frenzied trading with total sales in excess of 3,000,000 shares.

Sporadic profit-taking characterized the trading in industrial shares but the general list closed irregularly higher. Revival of speculative interest in the oil shares, several of which advanced one to nearly four points on rumors of an impending increase in crude prices, was one of the interesting developments of the session.

Chief interest in the railroad group centered in New Haven which advanced 3 3-8 points to 32, the highest price in two years, on reports that the company had successfully arranged its refunding programme for next year. Total transactions in this issue aggregated nearly 115,00 shares. Kansas City Southern made the most spectacular gain in the rail shares, climbing 4 3-4 points to 32 1-4 and then easing slightly on profit-taking.

Other outstanding strong spots in the rail group included Chesapeake & Ohio, the Erie and St. Paul issues, Great Northern preferred, "Katy" common and preferred, Missouri Pacific common, Northern Pacific, Reading, Frisco, Union Pacific, Wabash, Western Maryland, International Railways of Central America common and preferred, Nickel Plate, New York, Ontario and Western, Norfolk & Southern, St. Louis Southwestern and Seaboard Air Line issues, all of which closed 1 to 4 points higher.

General Asphalt was the leader in the oil group, closing 3 3-4 points higher at 53. Good buying also was noted in Pacific Oil, the Fan-American issues, Houston and California Petroleum, all of which closed a point or so higher.

United States Steel common duplicated yesterday's high of 116 7/8, fell back to 114 7-8 on realizing and then rallied within half a point of the top. American Can closed more than a point higher at 162 3-4 after selling three points below that figure. Baldwin and Studebaker showed small fractional gains.

United States Cast Iron Pipe broke nearly seven points to 135 and then recovered a little more than half its loss. Radio Corporation, Texas and Pacific, International Paper, Pullman and Punta and Punta Alegre Sugar also were conspicuously heavy. Call loans held at 2 1-2 per cent, all day. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges held firm in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.62 3-4 and French francs were quoted around 5 1-4 cents. The feature of the market was the trading in Dutch guilders which touched par—40.20 cents—for the first time in five years.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 20.—Semi-speculative railroad bonds worked into higher ground today under leadership of the New Haven issues, which responded to reports that plans had been completed for the road's refunding programme. Prices elsewhere in the list were shaded fractionally as profit-taking continued to crop out.

The brisk rally in rail shares stimulated more active buying of the carriers' bonds, price movements in many cases following the trend of stocks. Gains of one to two points by the New Haven were in line with a rise of more than 3 points in the road's common stock.

Buying orders embraced a wide variety of other low and medium priced issues, including the St. Paul issues, Katy" adjustment 6s, Peoria and Eastern Income 4s, Colorado and Southern refunding 4 1-2s, Rock Island refunding 4s and the Missouri Pacific obligations.

Continued reports of favorable progress in the Wilson and Company reorganization were reflected in further recovery of these bonds, the 7 1-2s rallying 2 1-2 points and the convertible 6s, three. Dominion Steels 5s were conspicuously weak, falling back almost 5 points to a new low at 58.

Liberty bonds worked irregularly lower.

CURB MARKET.

Oils picked up on predictions of an early increase in the crude prices, gains of 1 to 2 points being registered by Prairie Oil and Gas, Salt Creek Producers, Standard Oil of Ohio, Imperial of Canada, Buckeye Pipe and a few inactive issues.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates were the strongest feature of the industrial group, advancing more than 5-8 to 42 3-8 on total sales of nearly 27,000 shares.

United Bakeries broke nearly 6 points to 139 1-4 and then rallied to 147 where it was up 2 points on the day. Continental Baking B and Ward Baking B also showed slight gains. Radio issues held firm. Public utilities showed mixed changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Grain suffered an all-around decline in value today owing largely to wheat market depressions at Liverpool. Beneficial rains in Argentina were reported, and there were optimistic reports about the wheat yield in Australia. The wheat market here closed heavy, 3-8 to 2 1-2c net lower, December $1.49 3-8 to $1.549 5-8 and May $1.57 1-4 to $1.57 3-8, with corn 1-4 to 1 3-4c off, oats 3-8@1-2c to 1c down, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to 35 cents gain.

Both at the opening and the closing, the wheat market here showed pronounced weakness, with buying power for the time being plainly inadequate to absorb the volume of offerings. Aside from the effect of bearish news for Liverpool and from Argentina and Australia, another weight on the market was a crop estimate by Candian railroad officials suggesting that 50,000,000 bushels more wheat had been raised in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta than was indicated by the latest government forecast.

Rallies which took place at times in the wheat market were to some extent based on notice of immense exports of domestic wheat during October.

Country offerings of corn to arrive showed a moderate increase. This circumstance together with the fact that industrial buyers here withdrew from the market did a good deal of emphasize the downward trend of corn values. Oats sympathized with the weakness of corn and wheat.

Provisions were irregular as a result of lower prices for grain conflicting with an upward in hog values.

TILSON MANAGERS SEEK SUPPORT IN COUNTY

Manager of the campaign of Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven for the Republican nomination for United States senator at the state convention in Hartford next Monday and Tuesday have started a canvass of delegates to the convention from New London county in the interest of the congressman. Local delegates to the convention were in receipt Thursday of a letter signed by a number of prominent supporters of the candidacy of Mr. Tilson. Among the signers is Councilor Lucius E. Whiton, president of the D. E. Whiton Machine Co., of New London. Other signers include W. Perry Curtis, president Union and New Haven Trust Co., of New Haven; John H. Goss of the Scoville Mfg. Co., of Waterbury; H. Wales Lines, president of the contracting firm of that name, of Meriden; J. A. Hamilton of the W. F. Gilbert & Co., New Haven; Alfred E. Hammer, Branford; Arthur Fox, of Billings & Spencer, Hartford, and Attorney John Elliott of New Haven.
The letter reads as follows:
"Congressman John Q. Tilson has represented his district in the lower house of congress for 14 years, longer than any other representative, and is by reason of length of service, entitled to promotion.
"He has served his district and constituency with unfailing fidelity, devotion and industry. He has supported the principles of the Republican party and of the administration faithfully. His candid honesty, integrity and straightforwardness have so impressed his fellow members in congress and the administration, that his counsel and assistance are sought in all important matters, and he has become one of the most influential persons in Washington.
"He is a man of sound and responsible judgment who can be relied upon, he is needed by the administration in the senate more than in the house. His prestige will become immediately available to his constituency in the senate as would not be the case if a stranger to Washington were sent there.
"Connecticut needs him in the senate. The administration needs him there. He can be more useful to his state and nation in the senate than in the house, and aside from his deserts his usefulness is the prime consideration."

GAS TANK SUIT IS SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

The suit of Horace Dawley against William Fogarty, both of Griswold, which was brought in a dispute over a gasoline tank, was settled in the superior court here this week on the day it had been assigned for trial. Damages of $800 were claimed.

Dawley alleged that in March, 1920, he had a gasoline tank and fixtures and a small building on land of the defendant and that he had made arrangements to remove them and had instituted legal proceedings towards that end. However, on the promise of Fogarty to pay $500 if Dawley would let the tank remain and stop the legal proceedings, Dawley claims that he did as agreed but that Fogarty has refused to pay the $500 and has collected $15 per month rent of the gas tank, which he has refused to pay to Dawley, although Dawley has made demand for it.

TRYING GROTON WOMAN'S SUIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

Trial of the $10,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Concetta Cafaro of Groton against Lloyd Hall of this city with Joseph Hall & Sons, Inc., as co-defendants, was started in the superior court here Thursday afternoon before Judge G. E. Hinman and a jury and will be continued next Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Concetta alleges that she received severe injuries when struck on June 21, 1923, by an automobile driven by Lloyd Hall as she was crossing the street in front of her home in Groton, which is on the Boston Post road. In the plaintiff's complaint it is claimed that she was three feet off the traveled portion of the highway when the machine hit her and that it was traveling at a dangerous rate of speed and failed to give any warning of its approach. In addition to bodily injuries the plaintiff claims she suffered the loss of wages amounting to $500.

Attorneys G. C. Morgan and Abel Tanner appear for the plaintiff, who is a woman 70 years old, and Arthur M. Brown and Charles V. James appear for the defendant.

The first witness called was Mauno Haahti, of 170 Poquonoc road in Groton, a high school student, who lives on the opposite side of the street from the plaintiff and a short distance away. He testified that there is a down grade from his house to the Cafaro house, and while he was playing in a yard on the day of the accident he saw a car coming along at quick speed easterly and hit a woman who fell on the car tracks. She was in the middle between the two tracks, lying on her face. The people in the car picked her up, put her on the bank and took her into her house and called for the doctor. The right front wheel of the automobile was over the track and the car was nearly on top of the woman's feet. The witness said he heard no horn or bell sounded by the automobile.

On cross examination by Attorney Brown, the witness said that hearing the breaks of the automobile go on was what caused him to look out and see the accident. The right forward wheel hit the woman, when the automobile was nearly stopped. Some men carried Mrs. Cafaro to her house.

Mrs. Lillian Champion, of Groton, a nurse, who was called in to care for Mrs. Cafaro from the date of the accident to August 2, testified that Mrs. Cafaro had a laceration of the head, and was unable to use her right arm, her chest was crushed, she had pains in the abdomen, and her body was badly bruised. The nurse's bill was $200. Mrs. Champion was asked about the condition of the highway, which she said had been widened since the accident by laying cement between and beyond the trolley tracks.

John Cafaro of 22½ Poquonoc road, Groton, son of the plaintiff, an employe for 14 years of the New London Ship and Engine Co., testified that his mother, who is 70, lives with him and had always been in good health before the accident and had never had a doctor. She attended to the outside work, tending the garden, the cow, 200 chickens and two goats. In return for what she did outdoors, the witness said he furnished his mother with board and he said her services were worth $5 a week.

Mr. Cafaro described the injuries to his mother and said she still is suffering and is not able to use her right arm and dress herself.

Dr. Frank W. Hewes, of Groton, testified that Mrs. Cafaro had two fractured ribs, internal injuries, lacerations and bruises on the arms, legs, body and head. He called on her twice a day for two or three weeks and saw her until September. He has rendered a bill but has not been paid.

Asked about calling Dr. Sullivan for a consultation, the witness said the reason for it was that Mrs. Cafaro was not getting along very well and he was afraid she was going to die.

Ralph Divito of this city acted as Italian interpreter for the next witness. Mrs. Antonia Pisapia, 127 Poquonoc road, which is on the other side of the road from the Cafaro house. Mrs. Cafaro was calling upstairs in the Pisapia house, where the witness was. After Mrs. Cafaro left, the witness said she heard a noise. She saw the automobile on the tracks, facing towards the lots. Mrs. Cafaro was under the automobile and her face struck the rail nearest the bank. The two front wheels of the automobile were on the bank and the rear wheels on the south rail of the trolley track, the rail nearest the Cafaro house.

On cross examination, Mrs. Pisapia said that Vincenzo Caesar was sitting outside the Pisapia house and saw the accident. She and Vincenzo reached the scene together.

Attorney Morgan read the deposition of Vincenzo Caesar of 192 Poquonoc road, who told of seeing the automobile coming fast and hitting the woman. Caesar helped carry her home and one man from the automobile helped him. After the accident Mrs. Cafaro was in the middle of the tracks under the automobile.

The deposition was taken because the witness was about to sail for Italy.

USED STATION GLASS FOR VANITY MIRROR

When Station Agent John Rose of the New Haven road station, Baltic, installed a device which enables him to obtain a clear view of the incoming westbound trains, he did not think that he was erecting an innovation that would be used as a vanity mirror. But such was the case this week. This device consists of two mirrors. One placed at the left of Mr. Rose's desk and the other suspended from the roof of the station platform which also gives him a view of the freight station. This week two young women, one a fascinating blonde and her companion a charming brunette, were awaiting the arrival of the Providence train and were strolling up and down the platform engaged in conversation when "Miss Blonde" caught a flash at the mirror above her head. She immediately informed her friend of her discovery and instantly two vanity cases were produced and put into use. The girlies arranged their bobbed hair, adjusted their hats and added just a little more snow to their pretty faces and then glanced in all directions to see if they had been watched during the process of "dolling-up." The up-to-date damsels then started in with a line of compliments intended for Mr. Rose for being so thoughtful in erecting such a modern convenience. During the long term of years that Mr. Rose has been in charge of the Baltic station he has made many friends among the business men and the traveling public by the numerous courtesies that he has extended at all times, but he capped the climax when he installed the two-purpose mirror system and he has decided to let the system remain and thereby gain new friends among the young women of this period.

TO TRY NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL AT CORNER

An experiment is to be made with a new traffic signal at the corner of Broadway, Main and Shetucket streets which will be the most complete traffic guide and guardian of anything in use in the city.

The new signal will be electrically operated. It consists of a heavy circular base supporting a standard on which is set a large four-sided lantern. In each face of the lantern are a pair of red lenses. The electric current gives an alternating flash, showing on all four sides at once. The white glass around the lenses is lettered with "Keep Right" and the traffic directions in black letters. The arrows pointing the right way. The sides facing Broadway and Shetucket street read "New London, Providence" and the sides facing Main street show the way to Hartford and Willimantic.

A "Stop" and "Go" standard which sets in a socket in the street accompanies the traffic signal and will be used by the officer to direct traffic.

The new equipment arrived here Thursday and will be set up at once.

DR. GAGE WILL SPEAK AT COMMUNITY SERVICE

In connection with the observance of education week, a community service has been arranged to be held Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church at which Rev. Brownell Gage, Ph. D., the new headmaster of Suffield Academy, will be the speaker. Dr. Gage will speak upon The Place of the Spiritual in Education.

Invitations to the service have been extended to the Academy faculty and through the town school board to all the teachers of the public schools.

Dr. Gage, who is a graduate of Yale, has been at the head of Yale in China for a number of years, but this fall took up his duties as headmaster at Suffield.

Ill At Norwich

The Bulletin's Plainfield correspondent writes: Mrs. Annie Geary of the new village received a telephone call Thursday morning that her daughter was very ill in Norwich and would probably have to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

BUILDING NEW TEES AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB

President C. Royce Boss of the Norwich Golf club reports additional tees in process of construction on the new 18-hole course of the club, which will lengthen out the links to about 6300 yards.

Another tee has been laid out on the first hole, flanking the tennis court. This is 35 yards back of the regular tee, making the hole 340 yards. Both tees on this hole will be in use daily, it being optional with the player whether to play the front or back tee. All the other back tees will be used only on tournament days.

There will be back tees on the 10th, an increase of 45 yards, making the hole 340 yards; on the 14th, increase of 20 yards, making the hole 620 yards; on 15th, increase of 35 yards, making hole 100 yards; on 16th, increase of 30 yards, making hole 580 yards; on 17th, increase of 40 yards, making hole 265 yards. On the 12th hole the present fourth tee will be built up, giving an increase of 50 yards and making the hole 400 yards.

With the use of the regular tees the course will be about 6,000 yards. This will make a playable links for the average player. With the back tees in use more skill will be called into play to negotiate the different playing distance.

Rapid progress is being made in the building of the new lockers in the club house. The work is expected to be finished in another month. A dormer has been built and the roof raised. Contractor Archibald Torrance has the work in charge.

LIONS WILL GIVE THANKSGIVING DINNER

The Norwich Lions club met Thursday noon at dinner at the Wauregan House with President C. Edward Carpenter in the chair. Singing was led by Dr. Markoff and 35 members and guests were present.

Plans were made for the annual Thanksgiving dinner to which each Lion will bring a boy as his guest. It is believed that the dinner will be larger than that of last year, which was deemed a great success. The committee appointed to make arrangements for the dinner comprises Earle Taggart, George Madden and Benjamin Pullen. The club also voted to donate money to the United Workers, Red Cross and the Tuberculosis fund for Thanksgiving.

President Carpenter gave an interesting talk on the program of the Lions concerning welfare work, civic betterment, etc., and was assured the cooperation of the club members. Plans were discussed for attending the farewell banquet to District Governor Rev. J. W. Davis, to be given by the New Britain Lions club, about twelve members signifying their intentions of going to that city.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

FIRE DESTROYS SIX-ROOM HOUSE IN MONTVILLE

Fire shortly after noon Thursday completely destroyed a six-room cottage at Thames Heights, Montville, owned by the Robert Gair company. The house was valued at about $5,000 and the loss is entirely covered by insurance.

Neighbors discovered the fire about 12.20 o'clock and officials of the Robert Gair company were notified. A group of employes of the company formed a fire fighting brigade and word was sent to the New London fire department, from which the Nameaug company responded to the call. When they arrived it was too late to save the burning structure but adjoining property was protected, one house, also owned by the company being somewhat scorched. The burned cottage was occupied by Roy Nelson, his wife and two children, and all household effects were lost.

Word was also sent to this city but Chief Stanton deemed it advisable to hold all apparatus in the city owing to the need of all apparatus should a fire break out here since the department is handicapped by a lack of water supply.

SPRINGFIELD PASTOR FOR THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The union Thanksgiving service this year for the Protestant churches is to be held next Thursday evening at 7.30 at the Central Baptist church. The sermon will be by Rev. James Gordon Gilkey, D. D., of the Springfield Congregational church, one of the most brilliant pulpit speakers in New England and it is considered a great opportunity for a Norwich congregation to hear him on Thanksgiving day.

This is the first time in many years that a pastor outside of the city has been secured to speak at the union Thanksgiving service.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN SHOWN IN NEW ENGLAND PLANTS

Employment in New England manufacturing industries was greater during October than in September, the increase for the New England division tying with the Middle Atlantic for second largest increase throughout the country. This is the word from the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor, which states also, that manufacturing industri throughout the country showed an increase in employment during October, making the third successive month showing such a gain.

All but two of the ten textile industries included in the report gained considerably both in number and earnings of employes, says the report.

The boot and shoe industry, however, while showing a gain in employment, showed a slight decrease in employes' earnings.

The increase in employment in the manufacturing industries for the entire country was 1.7 per cent during October as compared with September, while the aggregate earnings of employes in October increased 3.7 per cent, and per capita earnings .2 per cent.

Comparing reports from identical establishments for October with the same month a year ago, there was a decrease of 10.8 per cent in employment, a decrease of 13.2 per cent in employes' earnings, and 2.8 per cent in per capita earnings, the New England industries being among those most affected, says the bureau.

STATE HIGHWAY TRUCK PLUNGED OVER WALL

A truck owned by the state highway department crashed through the fence and plunged over the wall at the foot of Beach's hill between stations 7 and 8, Waterford, Wednesday afternoon. The truck was coming down the hill toward New London and struck a stone on the road. The driver lost control of the machine and it headed straight for the fence that runs along the top of the wall at that spot. When the driver saw that the machine was going over the wall he jumped and was unhurt. The machine went through the fence, snapping off one of the posts and nose-dived over the 15-foot wall and landed on the ground below almost straight in the air.

BIG FOOTBALL BATTLE TESTS NEW HAVEN TROLLEYS

Hidden beneath the struggle for tickets and the onrush of 75,000 Yale and Harvard football lovers into Connecticut Saturday, lies the gigantic task of transferring the invading army of fans from the New Haven railroad station and from the center of the city to the Yale bowl where the annual battle of the two oldest universities in the country will be staged. This task must be accomplished for the greater part of the visitors by trolley car.

Weeks ago—weeks previous to the Army game—the officials of the trolley company were busily engaged in preparing untold numbers of typewritten sheets assigning employes to their special jobs for the day and instructing them as to their routes and what to do in case of the various emergencies which may arise.

One hundred and fifty extra cars will be used to bring the monstrous crowds to and from the game. The extra cars will start running to the bowl at 10 a. m. running at five-minute intervals. The intervals will gradually be cut down until during the last hour preceding the game there will be a car every 20 seconds along the route to the big enclosure.

This service has been conducted on the day of every big game since football first began and the Yale field stands held but 22,000 persons. Since the building of the bowl, the crowd has numbered 78,000 and nearly a third of this number has been carried to the bowl each year by trolley car. Yet since the bowl was built, never has there been an accident which tied up the trolley traffic or caused a loss of power.

The company, however, is always prepared on such occasions for any emergencies. Twenty-nine starters and inspectors are stationed at important points to direct traffic and to assist in emergencies. Wrecking crews, line crews, and trackmen are stationed in groups at all points along the way. Special telephones are installed within reach of the inspectors in order that they may summon aid in case of accidents. Regular cars are re-routed for the day in order to relieve traffic along the route.

THREE CARS DERAILED AT FORT POINT

A slight tie-up in freight traffic over the New Haven railroad line through this city occurred at 9.30 o'clock Thursday morning when freight train NW3 bound north, had three cars derailed at Fort Point. The wrecker from the Midway yards was dispatched to the scene and within a short time had traffic again moving under normal conditions.

Publicity of Income Tax Lists.

Due to the great amount of work envolved in the posting of payments to the lists, preparing bills, notices of demand for taxes, warrants of distraint, etc., it has been found necessary to restrict the time for permitting the public to inspect the income tax lists.

Under instructions from the internal revenue bureau at Washington, Colonel Robert O. Eaton, collector of internal revenue for the district of Connecticut, has given notice that in the Connecticut district the lists will be available two days of each week, viz; Tuesdays and Fridays of each week between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m.

It is believed that this will give the general public ample opportunity to call at the office or the collector, either early in the week or later if desired.

PAYROLL THEFT AT MONTVILLE PAPER MILL

Theft of $300 from the payroll of the Robertson paper mill, Montville, late Wednesday afternoon, was reported to the state police at the Groton barracks. State Policemen Giles Watson and Henry J. Albright were immediately assigned to investigate, but as yet have found no evidence to warrant an arrest.

The missing money was done up in envelopes, and represented the wages for the night shift. The paper works department is at present working three shifts. Two of the shifts had already been paid off and the $300 was laid on the desk of the superintendent, to be distributed when the night shift came on at 11 o'clock.

Later the entire bundle of filled envelopes was found missing and the state police were notified. No trace of the sneak thief has been found.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WOULD MAINTAIN RAILROAD WAGES

Chief Executive Does Not Feel That a Reduction in Freight Rates Should Be Passed to Employes—Says Present Conditions Do Not Warrant a Cut in Wages—President Coolidge Does Not Intend to Take Any Part in Selection of Leaders by Either Branch of Congress.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge feels that if a reduction in freight rates is made at this time it should be accomplished through reduction in operating costs rather than at the expense of wages of railroad employes.

Present conditions in the opinion of the president, do not warrant a reduction in railroad wages whereas he does believe sufficient economies can be made in operating expenses to permit a reduction in freight rates if such is found feasible.

The president's views on railroad wages were made known to visitors today but he did not discuss any plans he may have for railroad legislation at the short session of congress, nor did he go into detail in speaking of a possible reduction at this time in railroad freight rates.

COOLIDGE TO LET CONGRESS CHOOSE ITS OWN LEADERS

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge, it was stated officially at the White House today will take no part in the contests for republican leadership in congress, the senate end of which will come to a head at a party conference next Friday.

Mr. Coolidge feels, it was said, that it is not his part to dictate or to suggest in such decisions and that he believes such a choice as is made by the memberships will be satisfactory to the administration.

A formal call was sent out today by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican whip, for the party conference next Friday when a senate leader will be selected and other party organization problems will be settled. The notices were sent to all senators listed as republicans, including Senator La Follette of Wisconsin.

Meanwhile Senator Warren of Wyoming, who is in line to succeed the late Senator Lodge of Massachusetts as senate republican leader under the seniority rule, hitherto unbroken, maintained silence on his attitude toward accepting the post.

Many members have felt that Senator Warren would prefer to retain the chairmanship of the appropriations committee. He was enthusiastically indorsed for the leadership position, however today by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, known as an administration spokesman.

Should Senator Warren not desire the leadership position, Senator Curtis is mentioned as among the most likely to be selected. Others considered by various senators include Senator Wadsworth of New York and Senator Watson of Indiana.

The contest in the house over the speakership, made vacant by the election of Speaker Gillett to the senate from Massachusetts, will not come up for decision until the organization of the new congress.

As is the case of the senate, it was said today at the White House that Mr. Coolidge will not participate in this contest, in which eRpresentatives Madden of Illinois, and Longworth of Ohio, are now the principal candidates.

The president was represented as believing such decisions to be of a different character than those concerning legislation in which it was declared he would not hesitate to lend assistance or give advice when asked.

PHAFF TO SUE THE FRENCH OWNERS OF PIRATED LIQUOR

New York, Nov. 21.—Max Jerome Phaff, New York lawyer, who recently spent some time in jail at Brest, France, and some days in court on trial on charges of rum piracy, returned home on the steamship President Harding today. He announced he would file an action for damages against the French owners of the pirated liquor, which was aboard the French steamer Mulhouse. It was they, he said, who had caused his detention and trial.

Phaff, now at liberty on 5,000 francs bail pending further action asserted that his trial had been irregular, that newspaper men had been barred from what he termed the "star chamber sessions," and that garbled reports of the proceedings had been given out by French officials. Finally, he said, he was released on small bail and headed a passport in an obvious effort to put an end to the proceedings.

Phaff said it was his belief that the Paris firm of Maur Francaise, owners of the pirated liquor, had caused his arrest in the hope that those really responsible for the crime would come forward to exonerate him and thus incriminate themselves.

The lawyer was accused of having aided the hi-jackers who raided the Mulhouse off the New Jersey coast last July, 24 when her cargo of liquor and all money in her safe were stolen.

He asserted that the Brest authorities refused to let him produce witnesses who would have given him a perfect alibi and that he was not permitted to see his attorneys.

WAS DEAD BEFORE BODY WAS PLACED IN FURNACE

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 50, whose nearly cremated body was found in the furnace of the parsonage of Christ Lutheran church, in Bexley, a suburb, Monday was dead before her body was placed in the fire vault, it was indicated in a preliminary report submitted to County Prosecutor John R. King, by Chemist T. C. Long, here, shortly before midnight.

Mr. Long said that no trace of carbon monoxide poisoning was found in "three ounces of good blood" taken from the lungs of the victim. Practically all known tests were made in attempts to find trace or poisoning, he said. Intense congestion was noted in each of the lungs, he stated.

Had Mrs. Sheatsley breathed after she entered the furnace, her lungs immediately would have become filled with carbon monoxide gas which would have been absorbed at once by the blood, Mr. Long declared.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR MAJOR GENERAL STACK

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 21 (By the A. P.)—Orders for the funeral tomorrow of Major General Sir Lee Satck, governor-general of the Sudan and sirdar of the Egyptian army, who died Thursday night from wounds he received at the hands of assassins the previous day, have been issued by Lieutenant General Sir Richard Peking, in command of the British troops in Egypt.

There will be a great military display, troops of all arms lining the route of the funeral cortege, with battery firing salutes at minute intervals. The members of the Egyptian senate and chamber will stand in the public square as the funeral procession passes and the members of the cabinet will attend the services at All Saints' church.

Atlantic City, Nov. 21.—Emphatic opposition against the establishment of a national department of education with a representative in President Coolidge's cabinet was one of the outstanding actions take by the national grande in its closing session this afternoon. The vote was unanimous.

ANNUAL DINNER BAY STATE MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

Boston, Nov. 21.—Descendants of the Mayflower's passengers are in duty bound to stamp out radicalism, pacifism and other "isms" and should constitute themselves militant defenders of the Constitution against those who attack it, Addison P. Munroe, of Providence, governor general of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, said in an address tonight at the annual dinner of the Massachusetts society. It was doubtful, he said, whether any of the amendments to the Constitution since the fifteenth, which gave equal rights to negroes, was an improvement.

"Leave the Constitution alone; it has been tampered with enough," the speaker said, adding that "a national, trouble-maker has just made the run for president, attacking the supremacy of the Supreme Court. His overwhelming defeat is a credit to the American electorate."

The governor general, denying what he said was a popular belief, that the society was an organization of ancestor worshippers, said it held in grateful remembrance the memory and deeds of the Pilgrims because they did things. "While the Pilgrims were peaceful people, they believed in self-defense and they practiced it," he said. "Like our forefathers, the members of our society are not pacifists, but when occasion requires, will fight and fight hard."

The dinner marked the 304th anniversary of the signing in the cabin of the Mayflower off Cape Cod of the compact under which the Pilgrims governed themselves.

COOLIDGE COMMENDS THE SALVATION ARMY RECORD

New York, Nov. 21.—A letter from President Coolidge commending the record of the Salvation Army was read at the opening demonstration of the Salvation Army Congress tonight. The letter follows:

"I am very glad to take this opportunity of extending my greetings to the officers of the Salvation Army, gathered in convention. The record of the Salvation Army is one of self-sacrifice service, and it has become, through the loyal devotion of its members, one of the great agencies for good in this country. I trust that the meeting may prove an inspiration to continued and increasing effort."

LEONARD REID FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 21.—Leonard Reid, son of the late Sir William Reid, founder and one-time head of the Reid-Newfoundland railroad, was found guilty by a jury in the supreme court here today of manslaughter. He was sentenced to 12 months imprisonment.

The charge of manslaughter was based on the death of six men, two of them veteran officers of the World war and two of them officers of H. M. S. Constance, in an accident last September when the automobile which Reid was driving hit a group of veterans and then overturned in a ditch, killing four of the occupants.

Opium Conference Postponed.

Geneva, Nov. 21 (By the A. P.)—Today's session of the international opium conference was postponed until tomorrow because the business committee was unable to agree on a program for the conference. Seven projects are now before the delegates—one Dutch, one British, two French, two American and one elaborated by the League of Nations' permanent opium commission. One American plan was drawn up by Edwin Neville, one of the American delegates, and the other, which is the more official project, was presented by the American delegation.

MONUMENTS FOR AMERICAN SOLDIER DEAD IN FRANCE

Washington, Nov. 21.—Secretary Weeks today accepted recommendations made by the battle manuments commission, headed by General Pershing, for the erection of stone crosse over the graves of American soldiers dead in France.

The approved designs call for the expenditure of $548,559 for this work and specify that the new markers follow the design of the wooden crosses now being used. The graves of soldiers of the Jewish faith will be distinguished by a Star of David, the design of which had not yet been decided upon.

Regulations adopted by the commission provide that there shall be no variation in the types of headstones officially adopted for use in the American military cemeteries abroad.

It has been further decided by the commissino that a chapel or memorial hall "of a religious but non-sectarian character" should be erected at each of the eight American military cemeteries in Europe. In each of the chapels suitable markers will be placed commemorating services rendered by American troops buried in the respective cemeteries, and some type of memorial also will recall the services of those who "remain missing in action."

Decision also has been reached to erect commemorative monuments of major offensive actions by American troops at Montfaucon, Hattonchatel and Chateau Tierry. American participation in other localities will be commemorated by "historical monuments of modest design."

The program in addition includes the erection of a modest memorial at Nancy, and the placing of bronze tablets at Chamaunt Souilly and Toul, and a monument at Tours, commemorating, respectively, General Pershing's headquarters, headquarters of the First and Second armies, and the personnel of the service of supply.

Legislation will be asked when congress convenes to provide for the car eof monuments already erected or approved for future erection in France by the battle monuments commission.

In this connection the commission today approved memorials already placed in France by the states of Missouri and Tennessee, and by veterans' associations of the First, Third and Fourth divisions. At the same time the commission disapproved, or declined to accept responsibility for small monuments already erected in France by the First, Second, Fifth 27th and 37th divisions and the Fifth army corps organizations.

In the latter cases the commission's own plans call for the erection of monuments for the commemoration of the engagements.

TRAGEDY ENACTED WHILE HUSBAND WAS HUNTING

Massillon, Ohio, Nov. 21.—A note found on the dining table when he returned from a hunting trip early this afternoon directed Ronald Burkhart to th ebasement of his home, where he found hanging from a beam the lifeless bodies of his wife, Mrs. Ruth Burkhart, 32, and their two children Nellie May, 8, and Donald, Jr., 7. Mrs. Burkhart had been in ill health for some time.

Police Chief Edward Ertle expressed the opinion that the mother had strangled the children by tying ropes about their necks and hanging them in the callor.

"The two children have gone, and I am going with them," Mrs. Burkhart's note read.

Burkhart said his suspicions were aroused when he found all the doors and windows locked and the blinds drawn when he returned home and that while his wife had been in ill health she never had talked of suicide. Burkhart is employed as a yardmaster by the Central Steel corporation here.

DIVORCE GRANTED BY JUDGE ALLYN L. BROWN

New Haven, Nov. 21.—After testifying before Judge Allyn L. Brown in superior court today that her husband had left her 13 years ago, when he faced a charge of murder, and had not been heard of since, Mrs. Filomena Torello was granted a divorce decree by the court.

According to the woman's story, her husband, Raffaele Torello, a Highwood farmer, struck a boy named Kling over the head with a shovel after the lad had climbed a fence and entered the garden to get his ball. The injuries resulted in the boy's death, but before Torello could be placed under arrest he made his escape. Torello and his wife each had a half interest in the property on which they lived. The Kling family secured a judgment against Torello's share, and the matter was adjusted when Mrs. Torello paid the judgment.

A. F OF L. APPROVES THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The annual convention of the American Federation of Labor unanimously approved today the recommendation of its committee on education for "an intensive nation-wide campaign in the interest of ratification of child labor amendment to the federal constitution." Discussion of the programme consumed virtually the entire afternoon session.

Acting on a special report of the executive council, on political activity, went over for a future session, probably early next week. The report, presented at a short morning session today, recommended continued adherence to a non-partisan political policy executed through existing non-partisan political machinery. Recommendations for "increased and broadened activity" in political affairs formed a part of the report.

Mrs. Harding Was in Coma as Death Came

Next Monday Afternoon the Body Will Be Placed Beside That of Her Husband.

Marion, O., Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—A little stone tomb in Marion cemetery next Monday evening will mark the final earthly resting place of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Harding. Mrs. Harding is dead.

Mrs. Harding died early today at the home of Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, son of the late Dr. C. E. Sawyer, President Harding's physician. She had been critically ill for several weeks at White Oak farm, the Sawyer home, where she had been living. Next Monday her body will be placed in the tomb in Marion cemetery beside that of her husband.

The end come peacefully to the widow of the late president of the United States at 8.55 o'clock this morning, while a brother, and close friends stood by. She did not recognize them, however, as early in the evening before she had lapsed into the death coma.

MRS. FLORENCE KLING HARDING

Only fifteen months ago Mrs. Harding, leaning on the arm of George B. Christian, Jr., private secretary to President Harding followed the bier of her husband to the little tomb and saw it placed tenderly inside there to await her coming. Rows of soldiers stood at attention as their commander-in-chief had been consigned to a temporary resting place in the tomb.

Four weeks ago today, Mrs. Harding visited the tomb and talked personally with every member of the military guard which had been on duty there during the months of waiting for her final visit.

Next Monday afternoon that little handful of men will be drawn up at present arms by Lieutenant Walter Lee Sherfey, while the body of Mrs. Harding is placed beside that of her husband.

Taps then will be sounded and the little military band of twenty-three men of the Tenth United Staets Infantry, Fort Thomas, Kentucky, will assume the double duty of guarding the eternal sleep of a former president and his wife.

Rev. Jesse Swank, who conducted the funeral services for President Harding will conduct similar rites for Mrs. Harding at two o'clock Monday afternoon in the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church of which he is the pastor and in which Mrs. Harding held membership since girlhood. Assisting Rev. Swank will be Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist church of which Mr. Harding was a member and who also aided Rev. Swank in conducting the funeral services of the late president.

Mrs. Harding's death occurred at White Oaks Farm, sanitorium, where she had been making her home for several months with Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her personal physician and son of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, who was President Harding's personal physician. The body was immediately taken to the home of Mrs. Frank B. Longshore, a niece, in East Church street, where it will remain until the funeral services Monday afternoon.

Chronic nephritis, a form of kidney trouble, with myocarditis and hydronephritis as contributing factors was the chief cause of Mrs. Harding's death, a statement by Dr. Sawyer said. She suffered a severe attack which almost proved fatal while she was mistress of the White House.

SAYS TAMMANY GAVE FULL SUPPORT TO DAVIS

New York, Nov. 21—George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, today made public a letter which he said should quash reports widely circulated since the election, to the effect that Tammany failed to give full support to John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee.

The letter was received by Mr. Olvany from Thomas J. Spellacy, manager of the Davis eastern headquarters. It had been dictated several days after the election, when returns were quite complete.

"Mr. Davis, Mr. Shaver, the eastern bureau of the democratic national committee and myself desire to thank you and all your associates in the campaign just closed," the letter read.

"We realize that from you and your organization the national ticket received 100 per cent. of enthusiastic support."

FRENCH SENATE VOTES 290 TO 0 FOR AMERICAN LOAN

Paris, Nov. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The senate late tonight by a vote of 290 to 0 approved the $100,000,000 loan.

The Herriot government was able to rush the loan bill through both houses of parliament, in a few hours. The bill authorizes the borrowing of the $100,000,000 for a term of 25 years at 7 per cent. interest. The issue price of the loan will be 94.

There was much discussion of the measure, but opposition to it was confined to the finance committee of both chambers. The open debates on the bill on the floors of the senate and the chamber was tame and subdued. The twenty-nine votes cast against the bill in the chamber came from communist deputies.

The reasons given by the government for urgent need for prompt action on the bill were an effort to prevent speculation and a cable dispatch received from the Morgan interests saying the loan could be floated next Monday if parliament ratified the agreement today.

Gore to be Appointed Sec'y of Agriculture

Washington, Nov. 21—President Coolidge expects to appoint Howard M. Gore at present acting secretary, as secretary of agriculture to serve until he becomes governor of West Virginia on March 4, it was stated officially today at the White House.

Mr. Gore's term as acting secretary, to which he was appointed after the death of Secretary Wallace, will under the law expire by limitation at the close of this month.

Such an appointment will give the president ample opportunity also to survey the field of candidates for the office after March 4, for which many recommendations have been submitted by farm leaders at the request of Mr. Coolidge.

It is understood that the president is giving serious consideration to the recommendations of William M. Jardine, president of aKnsas Agricultural college; Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, Columbia, Ohio; G. I. Christie, of Purdue University, Indiana, a former assistant secretray of agriculture, and C. W. Pugsley, president of South Dakota Agricultural College, also a former assistant secretary of agriculture.

Endorsement of the selection of Mr Gore has been evident at the white house from some farm leaders. As assistant to Mr. Wallace, he was well acquainted with the office and when the latter died carried forward the policies of the former head of the department. He is now engaged in the work revolving about the compilation of estimates for next year's appropriations and an immediate change is considered by the administration as unwise.

It also was stated today at the white house that the president expected the agricultural commission which instituted its work this week, to bring in a report in January for such legislation as it deems necessary and in time to permit its enactment by the present congress. A similar view was expressed recently by Robert D. Carey, chairman of the farm commission, which has adjourned for several weeks.

TO END DEADLOCK IN RHODE ISLAND GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At a Lengthy Conference in Providence, Leaders in the Senate and House Drafted a Tentative Agreement——State Party Leaders Are to Pass Upon the Matter Next Tuesday—If Approved the Republican Senators Now in Exile Will Return—Deadlock Has Prevented Passage of Appropriation Measures and Many State Employes Have Gone Without Pay Because of Lack of Quorum.

Providence, Nov. 21—A tentative agreement to end the long deadlock in the Rhode Island general assembly was drawn up today at a lengthy conference of republican and democratic leaders in the state senate and house, and will be passed upon next Tuesday by state party leaders. If adopted then the plan will result in the return from Rutland, Mass., of republican senators who left the state after gas was released in the senate chamber last June, and in the early adjournment of the legislature, now unable to transact business for lack of a quorum.

The tentative agreement, which was submitted to Governor Flynn when the conference adjourned is based on matters to be considered by the general court before adjournment. The republican conferees proposed that nothing but appropriation measures be taken up and that the legislative adjourn at once after assing appropriation bills totalling about $2,000,000. The democratic conferees asked that in addition to the money matters, the legislature pass the Strayer school bill, affecting the city of Providence and providing for a reduction of the school board from sixty to seven.

This bill already had been agreed upon by the political parties.

The only objection made to the Strayer bill by republican conferees was that it might be regarded as a political measure and thus pave the way for the introduction of other political bills. It was understood, however, that it will form part of the basis of agreement to be presented to party leaders Tuesday.

Lieutenant Governor Felix A. Toupin was invited to state his views at the conference and did so. He said he would not stand in the way of an early winding up of the session but "reserved all his rights as presiding officer of the senate."

Those attending the conference were Representative Frederick S. Peck of Barrington; republican, chairman of the house finance committee, Representative Harold B. Andrews, republican house leader; Senator Harry A. Sanderson, republican; Representative William E. Reddy, democrat; Representative Francis B. Condon, democratic house leader; and Senator John L. Barry, democratic floor leader.

The deadlock which grew out of a democratic filibuster in the senate resulted in failure to pass any appropriation measures so far this year. Many state employes went without pay or received their salaries from funds advanced by business organizations, banks, and individuals.

BRITAIN NOT TO RATIFY TREATIES WITH RUSSIA

London, Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—The new government has shown its hand as regards its policy toward Russia by publishing communications addressed to M. Rakovsky, soviet representative in London, in continuance of the correspondence of the famous Zinovieff letter, so suddenly interrupted by the downfall of the Macdonald administration.

Most important is the somewhat curt notification that the British government does not intend to ratify the treaties concluded with the soviet government by the Macdonald ministry.

A suggestion was made in Russian quarters for the renewal or reopening of the negotiations, but apparently, from the tone of the correspondence, this is a closed chapter so far as the Baldwin government is concerned, and any further intiative in this direction must come from the soviet government. It is assumed, however that there is no idea of going back on the recognition of the soviet, accorded by the Macdonald administration.

Concerning the Zinvieff affair, the government stands on the authenticity of the Zinovieff letter, and in comparatively mild terms reiterates the strictures against soviet propaganda made by former Premier Macdonald.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON TO BE RE-ARRESTED UPON RELEASE

New York, Nov. 21.—Officials of the district attorney's office announced tonight that William H. Anderson, former superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in New York, will be re-arrested on one of the four unfiled indictments still pending against him as he leaves Sing Sing on parole. Following the customary procedure in cases where indictments are still untried, bench warrants have been sent to the prison and, according to the present plans of the district attorney, will be served on Anderson immediately upon his release.

The other four indictments charge that Anderson extorted $2,500 on one occasion and $1,357 on another from O. Burtsall Phillips, former chief field collector for the league, and that he once took $4,573.14 from the league and $1,750 again.

COAST GUARD RUM CHASERS FIRED ON YACHT COCOON

Miami, Fla., Nov. 21.—The yacht Cocoon, owned by M. M. Belding, wealthy New York silk manufacturer was fired on by United States coast guard rum chasers two miles off Miami tonight and boarded, according to advices here.

Shots from two one-pounders were fired on the Cocoon as the craft, with a party of Mr. Belding's friends returning from a fishing trip, headed toward the government cut and Biscayne bay, Mr. Belding said.

After boarding the Cocoon, guns drawn, and making a search of the vessel, coast guard officers expressed regret at the incident, he said.

The first shot heard by the party on the yacht was not recognized as such, but a second shot which followed was answered by blasts from the Cocoon's whistle to come alongside. When the patrol boat drew near the Cocoon threw its searchlights on the government craft and was greeted with violent language, according to those on the yacht.

The Cocoon, guarded by patrol boats, steamed into the government cut, where it was stopped and was boarded, the manufacturer said.

Mr. Belding said tonight that he was convinced that the coast guard boats knew the identity of the Cocoon. The yacht was lighted from stem to stern, the manufacturer said.

Mr. Belding will protest to Washington, he said, and demand that a complete investigation be made of the incident. The silk man said that he believed that one shot struck the yacht, but cannot be certain until morning. He and his friends, who included W. H. Stillhammer, his secretary; Dr. George M. Smith, Mt. Clemens, Mich., and Miami, and Capt. E. T. Zimmerman and crew of three said tonight they feel they barely escaped being sunk.

St. Paul's second annual fair, held in the town hall for the past two afternoons and evenings (Friday and Saturday) has been very well attended not only by people from Willimantic but from surrounding towns as well. One of the interesting features of the fair was the ten-cent currency. Dime tickets were placed on sale around town for several days before its opening and each prospective attendant was given opportunity to purchase as many as he thought fit. Then, upon attending the fair, whether one bargained for the delightful embroidered pieces, aprons or preserved fruit offered by the Woman's guild, dangled in the fish pond for fishes with strange and knobby brown paper outsides, or had his fortune told in the darkened tent by Zara the gypsy, the dime tickets were the only accepted exchange. The only thing that varied was the number of tickets asked for the article. Subscriptions for all the popular magazines were to be had at the booth presided over by Mrs. F. C. Williams. Nutted fudge and home-made candy were on sale by the Girls' Friendly society and the representatives from Storrs. Mrs. B. C. Hallock, as Rebecca at the Well, dispensed punch and ice cream. By climbing the steps to the stage one could be served with tea in a Japanese garden. This booth was in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Burke, who is also general chariman. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theater

Theatergoers will recall The Virgin of Stamboul, The Wildcat of Paris. Outside the Law and other memorable Priscilla Dean triumphs of a season or so ago will welcome the announcement that this dynamic star will be seen at the Bread theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in The Siren of Seville. The first of her own productions and a picture that is said to reveal the fiery Priscilla Dean of old.

The Siren of Seville was written especially for the star by H. H. Van Loan, author of The Virgin of Stamboul and countless other screen successes, and offers Miss Dean the most vivid and colorful role of her brilliant career. Against the picturesque background of modern Spain a tale of adventure, thrills and romance is woven so skillfully that interest is held in a vice-like grip from the novel and humorous opening to the great climax—one of the most nerve-tingling thrills the screen has offered in many months.

Aside from its purely entertainment features, the careful reproduction of the manners and customs of modern Seville and the authentically constructed background of unusual lavishness lend additional interest to the production.

As played by Priscilla Dean, The Siren of Seville is no ordinary screen vamp, but a dashing, ardent impetuous senorita, who intends to be sure, but who fights with the spirit of her race to protect the man she loves.

Allan Forrest as Gallito, the young toreador, duplicates his success in Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, while Stuart Holmes, Claire de Lorez, Bert Woodruff and Mathew Betz contribute effective portrayals.

Today's bill consists of The Silent Accuser, the opening chapter of The Fast Express, the opening chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and the Armistice day parade.

Broadway Theatre.

Glorious Gloria—

Gloria as the pride of the French Foreign Legion—

It's an Allan Dwan production for Paramount, adapted by Forrest Halsey from the popular novel of the same name by Capt. Percival Christopher Wren. Ben Lyon, Norman Trevor, Ivan Linow, Joe Moore, youngest of the four "Movie Moores," and others appear in the cast.

"Wages of Virtue" is a tale of romance and adventure of the French Foreign Legion. It opens with the star, as Carmelita, being rescued from drowning by Luigi (Linow), strong man with a third-rate traveling circus. He trains the girl to become a member of the troupe, later killing his young violinist, in a moment of jealousy over love for Carmelita.

Luigi flees the country to escape justice for his crime and enlists in the Foreign Legion in Algeria. Full of gratitude for his having saved her life and believing in him implicitly, Carmelita flees with him to the little North African town of Sidi-bel-Abbes, where she opens a wine shop.

So much for the story—and let it suffice to say that, as regards acting, it brings Gloria to the screen at her very best.

Convince yourself! But come early.

Orchestra, comedy and Kinograms are the remaining subjects on this fine programme.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The following from a Bridgeport paper is about a New London girl and a Dayville young man who is very well known here:

New London has a real prize winner in Miss Hazel B. Hadley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hadley of Lincoln avenue, and there's a fine big silver loving cup in the window of a jewelry store on State street for visible proof of the fact. It happened this way. They had a big military ball down in Bridgeport on Armistice night, given by Raymond W. Harris post, No. 145, of the Vetegrans of Foreign Wars, and Miss Hadley, accompanied by Leon N. Blanchard of Killingly decided to go down for a jolly evening and perhaps to compete in the prize competition waltzes.

When they got there they found that 35 couples were in competition, but they agreed to do their best to win the beautiful silver loving cup, all lined with gold. One by one the couples were eliminated until only three remained. The trio danced several solo numbers before the bewildered judges until finally Miss Hadley and Mr. Blanchard emerged the happy winners. It was a big night for them, as there were more than 1,000 present who witnessed the New London dancers capture the handsome prize. There was loud cheering in the crowded ball room as the judges awarded them the cup and gave them hearty congratulations.

Both Miss Hadley and Mr. Blanchard are connected with the local division of the New Haven road. Mr. Blanchard is the son of Mrs. Myrtice E. Blanchard of Killingly.

Promoter Frank Barber announced Friday afternoon that he has signed Georgs Robinson to appear here at a December show against Battling Thomas, who so easily defeated Baltimore Joe Gans of Norwich at the show at the Casino last week. Robinson needs no introduction to the followers of boxing events. He is a top-notcher who has beaten Johnny Wilson and others of that class and is rated of championship calibre. Being a colored boxes. Robinson does not get the opportunities for the championship plums that otherwise would be the case. Battling Thomas will not find Robinson easy picking.

Four men of the old-timer type were in the town court, Friday morning, to answer to charges of having been intoxicated. Each received a sentence of 30 days and was ordered to pay costs. They told Judge W. Fenner Woodward that they had come into this territory looking for work. They did not find any, but did locate something to drink. So they are at the county jail in Brooklyn for the holiday season and will at least have a comfortable place and regular meals.

An owner of woodland not distant from Danielson suggested Friday that he and other owners should be afforded some protection from the raids that will be made on their holdings for Christmas trees during the coming month. Looting for these trees has increased amazingly since fine state highways opened up this territory to the swarms of motorists who drive out of Providence. And what they take is only a fraction of what will go when all who raid for trees have had their pick. Of course, it is against the law to do such looting; but the problem that the farmer is up against is that of catching the looters.

A commendable spirit is being shown by Killingly High school students in their persistent efforts to raise fund for a school gymnasium. It is the spirit that will make the gym a reality some day.

The Larkin Rood company, which recently enlarged its plant in order to provide space for a machine shop, is to install electric power to drive all the machinery of the plant.

Many a radio set will be tuned in to get in this territory the results of the Yale-Harvard game this afternoon. The listeners will be of, but not in, the crowds at the bowl.

Daniel C. Merlin of Providence is spending the week end with friends in Danielson.

The town school committee has received from Supt. William E. Parker a suggestion that another teacher be employed at the Danielson graded school to relieve congestion existing there.

A thousand dollars would not cover the damage done by cold weather this week to automobiles owned in this town. It was the worst experience of the kind that motorists have known hereabouts.

Trappers have reported considerable success for their efforts in surrounding territory this fall. Local trappers are reported to have included mink and otter in their take of the season, not to mention coon and many muskrats. One hears of a youthful trapper who got an otter and practically ruined the pelt by cutting off the head and feet.

Mrs. A. E. Darling of Dayville has gone to Plymouth, N. H., to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Roy H. Spalding.

BOY DROWNED, TWO SAVED, WHEN ICE GIVES WAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Nov. 20.—One of a trio of little brothers was drowned in the first skating tragedy of the season, Friday afternoon, when all went through the ice of the stream just above the Bankan mill at Elmville. Bryant Pearl, 7, lost his life and his brothers, Edward and William, both younger than he, owe their lives to Thomas Weaver, an employe of the Connecticut company, who plunged into the icy water at the risk of his own life and managed to save the pair before he himself became so exhausted that he had to abandon his efforts to save them all. The boys had only one pair of skates between them, but all were on the ice when it broke. The accident happened just before 4 o'clock, it was not until about an hour and a half later that State Officer Ross V. Urquhart and Julius Rainville, using grappling irons, recovered the body, which later was viewed by Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner, and permission given for its removal to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Pearl, at Elmville. Mr. Weaver, who did such an outstanding piece of rescue work, was taken direct to the state police barracks here and put to bed, to protect him against a possible attack of pneumonia as the result of his brave deed.

QUIAMBAUG-WAUREGAN MILLS TO START FULL TIME MONDAY

Danielson, Nov. 20.—J. Arthur Atwood, representing the Quinebaug Mills, of Danielson, and the Wauregan Mills of Wauregan authorized from Providence Friday night the statement that these big manufacturing plants will return to a full time schedule of operation next Monday morning. About 100 operatives are employed in these plants which have been running only every other week since early last summer, the operatives having had 14 weeks of idleness. The mills will resume a full-time schedule with a wage reduction of approximately 11 per cent, putting the wage scale back on about the same basis that prevailed before the last advance in wages. Mr. Atwood said that what is to be done here and at Wauregan is in line with what already has been done at various textile centers in Maine, and other northern New England points. Conditions are not such in the cotton textile trade, Mr. Atwood said, as to guarantee that the full-time schedule can be maintained but the companies he represents are going to try it. Practically all recent sales of goods from these mills have been made at a loss, but it is hoped with forecasted general improvement in business the mills can be kept going steadily under the plan to put into effect on Monday.

Asked as to the Ponemah Mills at Taftville in which he is also heavily interested, Mr. Atwood said there would be no change for the present as to working schedule there. He pointed out that the Ponemah manufactures a finer grade of goods than is made at either the Quinebaug or the Wauregan Mills.

PUTNAM

Ensign W. J. F. Rafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rafferty, said Thursday on his ship, the Utah, which has been stationed at the Charlestown navy yard, Boston, on a trip to Peru. At New York Gen. John J. Pershing went aboard as head of a mission from the United States to Peru, to take part in the centennial celebration of the end of Spanish rule in that country.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corey of North Sterling have been guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chesley at East Putnam.

The Athletic Association of Putnam High school plans to put on a minstrel show in the school auditorium, Mr. Robinson, the principal, is chairman of the committee. Miss Bernier and Miss Haight have charge of the musical program, Miss Tackaberry has charge of the dancing, and Miss Keith and Ryeburn Lynch will supervise speaking parts. There will be ten solos and the opening and closing choruses. The member of the chorus number 25. There are six end men and an interlocutor, who is Ryeburn Lynch. The end men are Ellis Pritchard, Leo Reaves, George Gilpatric, Gordon Winslow, Rudolph Metty and John Cartier.

The superior court has handed down a decision to the effect that the selectmen of the town of Thompson were not acting illegally, in paying members of the school committee for their services. The suit was brought by Edward J. Keegan, a member of the school committee and sought to enjoin the selectmen from the payment of such bills and to recover money that has been paid out in this way. The decision, which was handed down by Judge Maltbie has a far reaching effect as it is said that half of the towns in the state have followed the same practice.

In Thompson for the past six years certain members of the school committee have drawn pay, not a large amount in any one year, for services that were somewhat out of the ordinary.

Mr. Keegan, the plaintiff, claimed that it was incumbent upon the members of the town school committee to render service without compensation and that none of the bills paid in the past six years were legal. E. H. Cortis, chairman of the committee was named as one of the deendants. The plaintiff alleged that he had requested the selectmen to bring the action in the name and on behalf of the town, but that the selectmen had refused to do this, whereupon he brought it as a citizen and taxpayer. The defendant Cortis, admitted that he had received money from the town on bills submitted and approved by the selectmen. His defense was that the selectmen had a legal right to pay such bills.

Perkins, Wells and Davis of Hartford represented the plaintiff, Torrey and Geissler the defendant, Cortis, and Searls, Russell and Bradford for the town of Thompson.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Maltbie goes back to the political organization of the state and quotes the Fundamental Orders adopted in 1638-39 by the inhabitants and residents of Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield. He says:

"At a session of the General Court held in October, 1639, certain orders concerning towns, which certain members had previously been intreated to ripen,' were adopted, and chief of these were the following: The townsh of Hartford, Windsore and Wethersfield, or any of the other townes within this jurisdiction, shall each of them have power to dispose of their owne lands undisposed of, and all other commodityes undisposed of arysing out of their owne lynits bounded out by the court, the libertyes of the Great River excepted, as also to chose their owne officers and make such orders as maybe for the well ordering of their townes, being not repugnant to any law here established, as also to impose penaltyes for the breach of the same, and to estreat and levy the same, and for nonpayment to distrayne, and if there be no personal estate, to sue to the court to sell his or their house or the land, for making satisfaction."

"Its terms are vague, in that, instead of fixing the amount and manner of payment it provides that compensation shall be made as heretofore, but "id certum est quid certum riddi protest," and it would appear that a certainty of meaning sufficient in a vote merely regulatory of the affairs of the town may be easily attained. There is here, however, a lapse in the fact elements before us, for I cannot find any allegation, nor do I recall any stipulation, as to the practice in compensating members of the town school committee of the town prior to 1915. As I think it highly probable tha the bills in question followed the custom then in effect I do not think I ought to give judgment in the absence of allegation and either proof or agreement upon this issue. Hence I will continue the case for further proceedings to Friday, Nov. 21, 1924, at Willimantic."

While the final decision is withheld on account of a legal technicality the court makes his opinion of the law very plain, that the town has the right to make such payment as the plaintiff protested.

Another scheme to get automobile drivers to stop at night was tried recently. At least the automobilists thought so, and did not stop. As the car came toward two men, one on one side, and the other on the other side of the road, one of the men ran across the road and began "beating up" the other fellow. The latter, yelled and screamed as if he was being terribly hurt, but it did not work. This happened about eight o'clock, within two weeks, on the River road to Norwich.

FURTHER DISARMAMENT.

In the interest of international peace there is a strong feeling that no greater contribution could be made to it than by reducing armaments. It was urged before the Washington conference which resulted in the naval agreement, and it has been maintained since that time. It is believed that there should be a limitation placed on the armies as well as on the navies in order to get away from militarism.

It was made clear at the Washington conference that all the nations were not in accord concerning certain branches of the navy, and it was likewise clear that there was direct opposition to the reduction of armies, but regardless of that the desire of reaching such a goal has not existed.

When the assembly of the league of nations recently adopted a disarmament protocol it was regarded as action in advance of a step that this government was contemplating, similar in nature to what was done before and in keeping with the known policy of the administration. League action would of course make it unnecessary for any such attempt by this government, but now that there appears to be a disposition among certain European countries to delay discussion of the protocol, or to abandon the idea Senator Borah is taking the lead in urging President Coolidge to act.

It may be that the league programme will be given up, that it will be squelched before it is formulated, but there appears to be no ground for entering competition in regard to the conference. If the league is not going to act then there certainly is a chance for this government to issue a call for a conference, or at least to sound the nations upon such a matter.

Further disarmament is a matter that is of great importance to Europe, if Europe can be brought to see it in the right light. The disinterested position which this government holds makes it the ideal leader for such a policy, but it is quite evident that Europe isn't going to enter or be forced into a conference against its will. Our moves will be made in full recognition of that fact.

THE ASSASSIN IN EGYPT.

Where assassinations take place it is indicative of unfortunate conditions to say the least. Fanaticism, anarchy and mob rule may be responsible for such deplorable demonstrations, but assassinations accomplish no more than do lynchings.

In the latest instance in Egypt where Major General Sir Lee Stack, the British sidar in that country, has succumbed to the wounds received when he was fired upon apparently from different directions after a bomb had been hurled at his automobile, it is possible to regard it as a further outbreak against the British influence in that country, and it of course calls for the running down of the guilty parties if such is possible. But whatever may have been the purpose of the assassins it is more likely to result to the detriment rather than the benefit of Egypt. The bullet of the assassin will only establish the conviction that conditions in Egypt are such that such protection as the British are maintaining over the Suez canal is entirely justified. Whatever possibility there may have been for the removal of British protection of this character has now been eliminated, and Egypt has been placed in an unenviable position.

Egypt may point to the fact that it has been too long under British domination and that it should have been permitted self government a long time ago. Whether there is a disposition to rush to the defense of British methods in regard to Egypt, every such demonstration as that given by the assassins, which will be attributed to those who have opposed the British until it has been proved to the contrary, serves to furnish a justification for the way in which British control has been prolonged. Likewise if these manifestations of ill will are going to be staged at a time when Egypt is being given a chance to work out its salvation there certainly is going to be stronger belief than ever that the British policy has not been adopted without a reason and that it is due to be continued much longer than might otherwise have been believed. The assassin has not helped Egypt.

THE CASTLETON CUTOFF.

Perhaps the expenditure of $35,000,000 by a railroad may be looked upon as an outlay for its own benefit, but it is to be realized that when it means the overcoming of delay, the speeding up of the delivery of goods and the elimination of congestion which has caused no end of exasperation it must be regarded as a big public contribution.

That is the sum that was spent for the construction of the so called Castleton cutoff over the Hudson by the New York Central. Heretofore the great volume of freight moving from the west into New England has been obliged to go through Albany. It required but little study to show that the facilities were overloaded, that the volume of business could not be handled expeditiously and that improvement was needed. Alert to the situation the New York Central fought for a long time to get permission to bridge the Hudson that a double track line, with a huge yard, might be constructed below Albany and speed up the handling of the traffic in both directions. The project has been completed and not only are there offered increased facilities but bad grades are circumvented and improved service made possible. It is development in keeping with the expansion of business and increased demands upon railroad facilities. It is not in the immediate locality where this large outlay has been made that the benefit of it is to be felt but at Albany where congestion has prevailed and at those points along the entire system where goods will be more speedily delivered.

Such an expenditure gave evidence of the confidence in the future. It is by no means a record breaking outlay for the betterment of facilities, but it is one of the many evidences of the demands that are made upon the railroads of the country and the manner in which they are meeting them.

The Castleton cutoff promises to be of such great advantage that the wonder is that it was never resorted to before.

TIMBER RESOURCES.

President Coolidge lends his influence to a cause that cannot get too much attention when he points out to the national conference on utilization of forest products that the nation faces timber exhaustion and urges the reduction of consumption and the spanning of the gap that now exists between the amount that is consumed and that which is produced for restoration purposes.

This problem of forest conservation is an old one, but the president endeavors to impress upon the conference and the country that while we have large resources they are only in trust and consideration must be given to provision for the future and not solely to the matter of hastening the depletion.

Well does the president say that "We have abundant soil to produce it. We have the energy and intelligence to learn to use our forests without waste." Much is to be expected from legislation looking to forest protection and restoration, but there's the crying need of eliminating waste and the equally important question of reforestation.

It is quite evident that joint efforts in all directions are required. We need to make better use of our present resources, to arrange better protection and to grow more timber.

THE SENSIBLE COURSE.

Gratification will be felt far beyond the territory affected over the agreement which has been reached between representatives of Los Angeles and those of the ranchmen. The result has been to permit the flow of water through the aqueduct to the city and the removal of the court injunction.

This means of course that there is going to be a permanent understanding reached along sound and sensible lines. Instead of indulging in bloodshed which seemed for a time to be threatened, common sense promises to prevail. At least there appears to be a determination to adjust matters according to the facts and conditions.

There was little or no justification for the manner in which the ranchmen set out to get what they believed belonged to them. It was in fact the wrong course inasmuch as the usual method of obtaining justice had been ignored. Apparently they have been made to see the error of their course before it was too late. What should have been done in the first place is now to be adopted. It is well that good judgment has prevailed in time.

MRS. WARREN G. HARDING.

Though the death of President Harding reduced by half the period that she would have served as first lady of the land, Mrs. Harding endeared herself to the country during that period. She was in every respect a true helpmate and one upon whom the president relied heavily, before as well as after going to the white house.

In many ways did she display her ability and tact, and the manner in which she interpreted and assumed the responsibilities as a wife of a president made a most favorably impression upon the nation. There was an ease and gracefulness about her manner that pleased and her devotion to her husband from their early days, as well as during the years of residence in Washington while senator and later as president, was indicative of her character.

In view of her previous serious illness, and known physical condition, it was one of the great surprises that she outlived the president. The nation which has had come to know her so well will sincerely mourn her death.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Once more it's Yale or Harvard.

This is manifestly the wrong season of the year for an empty coal bin.

If we could have a thaw now and the spring rains everyone would be happy.

We have had just enough cold weather to create a very serious danger from thin ice.

Even in Education week the youngsters are likely to claim that Saturday is the most popular day.

This would be an appropriate time of the year for a reunion of some of the old time barrel gangs. Did you belong?

Now and then there is a bit of evidence that the Thanksgiving barrel burning is not going to be entirely neglected.

It is gratifying that General Dawes is making such good recovery from his operation. He is getting into fine fettle to handle the next senate.

The man on the corner says: What has become of those days when one could say with a fair degree of certainty if think it's going to rain?"

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The impression generally prevails that the present age is the very apex of civilization, and along scientific lines and possibly along some other lines it is. But in some respects we have been surpassed by earlier nations. Sir John Lubbock, one of the most cultivated of Englishmen, has remarked in his Pleasures of Life, and most of those who have written on the condition of ancient Athens, seem to agree with him, "that the population of Athens, taken as a whole was as superior to us as we are to Australian savages." As artisans many of the ancients reached a very high degree of skill. The writer remembers to have heard Wendell Phillips in his college days deliver his famous lecture on the Lost Arts. Among other amazing things he said that in ancient times they could give such an edge to common brass that it would cut floating gauze in the air. What would we think if they were able in this age to give such an edge to our razors that are made of cast steel?

While we are putting a crown of glory on the head of science for the wonderful things she is doing today and we must admit that science is doing many things that border closely upon the miraculous—yet many things were done in the province of mechanics in the age of the Ptolomy's that arouse our wonder and admiration. For instance, how did they build the Pyramids of Egypt that are marvels of mathematical accuracy? The science of architecture had far outgrown its infancy in those days. What instruments did they have that could transport from a long distance and put in shape such massive blocks of stone? Could such fine work have been wholly done by ignorant slaves? To construct the Pyramids required as much technical skill as putting up the Woolworth building.

Among the many good things that have been said about Armistice day (and it merits them all), one thing, and that of very great importance so far as the writer has heard, has not been referred to, and that is its unifying effect upon the community. That parade was made up of all the conceivable elements of our society; therefore, marching side by side, the rich and the poor, the educated and the illiterate, the good and the bad, the black and the white, the prominent and the obscure, the native-born and the foreign-born. They were one in aim and spirit. For the time being all artificial differences which unfortunately have been set up between one human being and another were forgotten. What a pity it is that such forgetting cannot be continuous! It made us feel that human society, after all is homogeneous; that we all fit into some niche for which we were intended by nature. If for no other reason the community feeling produced justified Armistice day.

To the writer's mind that parade and the whole celebration was the finest possible illustration of the actual working of prohibition. We have been told that there were 7000 persons marching, and that 50,000 watched the parade. It may be accurate in regard to the number marching, but very likely speculation as to the number looking on. It was at least a mighty throng such as Norwich has rarely ever had in the past. Among that mighty host not one arrest for drunkenness has been reported. There may have been, and probably was more or less drinking on the quiet. It would be strange if not when we consider the great crowd that had a holiday. The remark was generally made how well-behaved the crowd was. And this could have been unlikely with such numbers before the Volstead act went into effect. It is things like these that show what prohibition is really doing.

For a keen, epigramatic sentence that is not a mere juggling of words and one that really fits a mouthful, the following is worth passing along: "One way to keep a body from becoming a busy-body is to keep a body busy." A "busy-body" is really a person who is intensely active, but the activity is entirely in the wrong direction. One who spends most of his or, in a few isolated instances her, time in prying into other people's affairs and giving them undue publicity is rightly called a "busy-body," and hence the compound word comes to have a bad odor. Now the antidote for this "busy-body" business is not inactivity or laziness, for this is the cultural ground in which the "busy- body" germinates and grows. But it is on the other hand an activity along other and higher directions. If a person is really kept busy in doing useful things he (or sometimes she) will not be inclined to do the opposite.)

Probably Malcolm MacDonald, son of the ex-British prime minister, may have his defects, simply because the lad is human, but unquestionably confident in himself and his ability is not among them. To put the matter mildly it took no little amount of nerve for the young Oxonian to make the round of certain American colleges, debating this question with a party of fellow students: Resolved that prohibition in the United States is not effective. This may not be an instance where the desire is the father of the thought. But it does seem a bit rash for a raw student in a university more than three thousand miles away, surrounded by an environment hostile to national prohibition and fed up on editorials from papers controlled by the great brewery interests, to speak against a law that has become part of the constitution of a great nation.

One of the very many favorable things said of the Armistice day observance was the amazing fact that no automobile accidents were reported. This, of course, is very easily explained. Very likely the circumstances under which machines had to be operated had much to do with this favorable report. All drivers had to exercise the utmost care, and where care is observed accidents are reduced to a minimum. Most conclusively does this prove that the vast majority of accidents is due to reckless driving. More than this is shows that liquor is responsible for recklessness. If we put these two facts together, first, there was no careless driving, and secondly, there were no arrests for drunkenness, it is quite obvious that we get at the root of most of these accidents. Another thing would contribute to this end: stiffer fines for carelessness and inbxoication, and more jail sentences.

Sixty-one years ago last Wednesday, on November 19, 1863, Lincoln delivered his memorable Gettysburg address. It was given on the battlefield where the awful conflict was fought during the early days of July of the same year. This address that long since has won a place among the classics of all time was virtually an impromptu speech. According to authorities it was sketched on the back of an envelope while the president was en route from Washington. Of course it is well known that Mr. Lincoln was not the main speaker of the day. That high honor had been assigned to Edward Everett, one of the most distinguished orators of the day, and his speech was nearly two hours in delivery. But rarely do we find any references made to this great effort. It has been entirely forgotten in the few well chosen words of the martyr president. Those few words will never die.

Mary Antin, Sickly and Poor.

In the "Pale of Settlement" in Polotzk, Russia, where Mary Antin was born, the Russians ruled ruthlessly, and the police and pogroms were everpresent causes of fear.

The child's father had studied to be a rabbi, but after her grandfather died, took over the old man's retail business. Placing little Maryashe, as she then was known, in the care of a cook and maid, the mother helped in the store.

So sickly that she could do little, the girl sat at the window in winter and saw her hardy sister enjoy the cold weather sports. On a business trip, her father learned that the Polotzk custom of teaching girls nothing but housework was wrong, and sent his daughters to learn from a rabbi.

Soon afterward he was taken sick, and had no funds for their schooling. Next the mother fell ill, an older sister and grandmother took the place of servants; then the sister broke down in health and the grandmother was injured.

Through the aid of a charitable organization, the father came to America, leaving his family with one small room for a home. While her mother peddled groceries, Maryashe, at 11, worked for a milliner but her clothing was so thin that she frequently caught cold, and she was discharged.

Borrowing money, her father sent for the family, and she was 13 when she arrived in America and became Mary Antin, living with the family in a dark little tenement in Boston. The language spoken was strange and the ways new to her, but she was happy in America's freedom.

Entering school the next fall, she learned rapidly and at the end of four months wrote a composition entitled "Snow" that was published in a magazine. She was graduated from grammar school the highest in her class.

While attending the Girls' Latin School at 20, she helped with the housework and studied after others of the noisy tenement had retired for the night. Soon afterward she married Amadius Grabau, a university professor, but continued her studies at the Teachers' College of Columbia University and Barnard College.

Telling the story of her life in a book "The Promised Land," she won national fame at 31. Two years later, "Those Who Knock At Our Gates" added to her reputation.

PRIZE WINNING PAPER ON GOOD CITIZENSHIP

During the spring term of 1924, Miss Sarah L. Hadley of Canterbury, superintendent of good citizenship for that town under the W. C. T. U., offered a prize of a five dollar gold piece to the boy or girl in the schools of that town who submitted the best essay on the subject of Good Citizenship and evidence of the writer as a good citizen, that is her or his achievements in that direction. The contest was open to all, and the teacher and two appointed pupils, selected the best essay from those in each school. These essays went to the committee for the town, which was composed of Judge Prior of Moosup, Principal Cecil L. Butler and his assistant of Plainfield, who gave unstinted time and thought to this work and whose kind public spirited offices were deeply appreciated by all concerned.

The committee awarded the prize to Miss Olga Larsen of the North Society school, Miss Ruth Davis teacher. They stated that the essays submitted from the shools were all excellent and made their selection very difficult.

Miss Hadley, as W. C. T. U. superintendent of good citizenship, proposes to repeat her prize-winning contest to pupils of the town next year also.

Miss Larsen and her teacher were greatly surprised when she received the golden reward for her essay and list of accomplishments.

Good Citizenship

Citizenship is having a pride and interest in the welfare of the town, state or nation. It is taking part in all community affairs and standing staunchly by our lawmakers. It is accepting the responsibilities as well as the rights which fall upon every citizen of the United States. The good citizen not only reveres and obeys the laws of the country, but does his best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. Citizenship should include thrift patriotism, honesty, fairness and cleanliness. To be a good citizen one must have a healthful body, cultured mind and clean soul.

Good citizens are the source of the community spirit and the center of the community activity. The good citizens are the ones who uphold the church and the grange and aid the schools. They are the life of the community and keep people interested in community affairs. If the community is careless and shiftless, it is the business of each citizen to change it. The success of the whole community rests upon the work of each citizen. If the people stand together and work together, the community life will be strong and vigorous. On the other hand, if the people lose interest and hang back community life suffers. Citizenship in the state or nation is just as important, because the citizen is responsible for the support and direction of government.

The first essential to good citizenship is to adhere to the plan of Jesus Christ. Next to loyalty to God, it is the duty of every citizen to be loyal to the government. The citizen should feel it his duty to assist the policeman in upholding the law by his personal influence, and by active cooperation if necessary. Good health, education and character are essential if one is to be useful to the community. It is to the interest of every citizen to care for the health, education and character of others. Every community needs citizens who possess a large measure of social initiative and the power of leadership. The right kind of education prepares one for ungelish service. It brings an ideal way in which one person can contribute to his community. It makes it possible for a person to realize that often personal interests must be secondary to community interests. Education gives to them the social vision that means the building up of a real community.

Home education is the first factor in the development of good citizenship. One of the most important services performed for the community by the home is that of training its members for good citizenship. In the home are taught thoughtfulness, obedience, faithfulness, kindness and respect for others. The child should form ideals of honesty, loyalty and personal honor.

The work of the public school in training for citizenship is very important. The good citizen must be willing to acknowledge mistakes and to respect the opinion of another person. A citizen must be trained to see the importance and significance of the elements of community welfare in their relations to himself and the community. He must be trained to weigh facts and judge relative values.

Good health and civic beauty in the community are important evidences of citizenship. Each citizen is responsible for the health of the community as a whole. The citizen may cooperate with the health department by reporting contagious diseases.

The beauty of a community as a whole depends upon the care which the individual householder and his family take with regard to the appearance of their own premises. The good citizen keeps himself and all his belongings clean and neat and uses his influence on others in this respect. A good citizen does not trespass or destroy property, deface buildings or throw paper and other waste matter on the streets. Other evidences of citizenship are obedience, regard for others, politeness, fair play and self-denial. In a community where good citizenship exists each person will be anxious to participate in the affairs of community life. Every citizen has an opportunity to be kind to those who have recently come to our country. If the citizens of the United States show respect for their ways it will make them well disposed toward us and our institutions. A good citizen will be careful to take the right attitude toward those who are accused of having broken the law, and try to do away with the evil and corruption in our country.

The ideal citizen is the man who believes that all men are brothers, and that the nation is merely an extension to his family to be loved, respected and cared for accordingly. I think the most important thing we can do for our country is to follow the plan of Jesus Christ and love our fellowmen. We should try with all our might to love our neighbors as ourselves and practice doing as we would be done by.

Children have been a large factor in the community in the work of the school and home gardening. Cooperation with the teacher and school authorities is public service as well as regular attendance at school. I must choose my vocation wisely, and it is necessary that I prepare adequately for it. I should contribute all in my power to the removal of causes of injustice, and uphold the government in every way that I can.

The list of accomplishments follows:

Filled the wood box, washed dishes, wiped dishes, swept the floor, scrubbed the floor, washed clothes, ironed clothes, mended clothes, made the beds, dusted, kept the yard clean, went after the cows, fed chickens, fed pigs, worked in the garden, washed the windows, ran errands, set the table, made hay, milked cows watered the cows, helped the teacher, (a) swept the floor, (b) dusted (c) washed windows, (d) piled wood in the shed, (e) built the fire, (f) put work on the board, (g) washed board, (h) corrected papers, (i) taught grade III reading, (j) made a bean bar, (k) made flash cards, perfect attendance, have not been tardy, taken part in agricultural demonstration, taken part in 4-H day, carried a petition to be signed by people in my district, taken part in Christmas entertainment at church, memorized Bible verses.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE TRUE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING

Have you found the true spirit of Thanksgiving? If you have no fixed plan for the activities of the day you have at least some conception of how you will spend it.

You will go with your family to the old home and the welcome that awaits from father and mother. After greeting brothers and sisters, and various nieces and nephews and after the general exodus of the younger set to the old mill pond below the orchard, you will settle down to a renewal of old times chat.

This will be followed by a walk about the farm and a discussion of improvements which father contemplates. Then the gathering around the bountifully spread table. The after dinner talk of friends, politics and individual interests. The evening rids homeward in the cool bracing air.

You have caught some of the spirit of Thanksgiving: its love, its good fellowship, its contented happiness. But the true spirit still awaits you.

Or the life of the city will claim your interest: morning with friends at home; the late dinner; matinee; a walk in the park, home again, a game of bridge and time to rest before the dance; and finally, the spirit of gaiety and laughter prevailing far into the night.

You feel you have entered into the spirit of Thanksgiving. But there is yet time and ere you retire the true spirit of the day will come to you.

Again, you plan for the day is definite though simple. Ten long hours in the shop make any holiday welcome. It will be a day of quiet rest at home with the wife and children.

Surely, it would seem you have approached very near to the true spirit of Thanksgiving. But you shall approach still nearer ere the day is gone.

But you are one of those who live in a wilderness, that wilderness where one becomes lost so easily. A wilderness, the isles of whose forest are innumerable streets and whose trees are mighty buildings that overshadow the depths below.

Your idea of how you will spend the day are vague. Father and mother have passed away and the old nestling among the hills of a distant state is now inhabited by strangers. Even the memory of the little sister and of that day when like a bird she fluttered and floated away on the balmy breeze that wafted her to a sunnier clime are almost forgotten in the work of the day.

Yet somehow on this day she will seem nearer than the casual acquaintances to whom you nod as you wander through the deserted lobby of the hotel or stroll along the quiet streets of the city.

Have you found the true spirit of Thanksgiving? I think not. Even a beautiful memory may be depressing. But if memories of the past like dreams of the present can become real the joy of the future shall be yours. The spirit of Thanksgiving—the spirit of reality, though it come gently shall surely come to you for naught can stay its power.

It may be you are a stranger here. You have but recently left the land of your birth and in this land of new customs and new festival days it may be difficult for you to feel the spirit of Thanksgiving as you will in the years to come. But there shall be aboard throughout this land the true spirit of Thanksgiving. Though it come to you as a "song without words" yet shall you feel the presence of that spirit "which exalteth a nation."

"How and in what manner shall the true spirit of Thanksgiving come?" you ask. I am not as sure that you will find this spirit as I am that it will find you. The activities of the day will have ceased and the time of rest be at hand. The joys, or possibly the sorrows of the day (for there can be sorrows on such a day, as this) are still vibrating on memory's cell when you hear a more beautiful melody. You are as one who walks the city's streets midst a multitude of sounds and hears through an open window a melody played by a master hand, low, sweet yet arresting. The theme unfolds itself. Though still played softly by that master of music, its irresistible beauty so crams the ear, that other sounds become vague, distant. It's revealing glimpse of fairer scenes entrances the eye.

A celestial wave length not to be caught by any material mechanism has pervaded your soul. The true spirit has proclaimed His goodness and mercy and a host of receptive hearts who have caught the good news have broadcast it even to the "dark places of the land." At this time a divine telepathy has gathered force and the beauty of the thought in the mercy and goodness of God will impress itself upon your mind.

How strange you think, I have thought of God. And that thought, fleeting though it was, has filled your soul with an indescribable gratitude.

There is much to be grateful for, life, health, friends, fortune, the opportunity to attain.

But the gratitude which fills your soul is not so much for the blessings of life as for Him who blesses. You have felt the eternal spirit of love without whose presence all blessings are as nothing for the acts of love bring joy while the presence of love brings peace.

Though to you the burdens of life may seem greater than its blessings, the joy of this presence will make the burdens light and the heart glad. This presence which the inspired writer calls "a song in the night" will also come to you. I doubt not, and you will have found the true spirit of Thanksgiving. If you would keep this song, more beautiful than all the rest, you have but to attune yourself according to the directions of the master musician, the divine announcer who proclaims "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Working for Armenian Children.

Mr. Editor: Arthur Ouimet, writing to The Bulletin of November 4th replies to my letter which The Bulletin so courteously published. Mr. Ouimet says that I "have done my best, my very best, to create the impression that the purpose of the proposed child labor amendment is solely to give power to congress to regulate."

I am very sorry if I have done so, for I believe that congress ought to prohibit the labor of children under fourteen in industrial and commercial occupations, and also to prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen in a few specified dangerous occupations. I believe, also that the hours of children under sixteen should be limited to eight a day and forty-eight a week.

Mr. Ouimet suggests that reformers center their activities in those states where abuse exists instead of tinkering with our Constitution. Perhaps he would be interested to know that for the past 20 years this committee has been working to improve state laws. Naturally we believe that a certain amount of success has attended our efforts. However there are some recalcitrants which we believe will not come into line for years and years. We believe the time has come for the national government to step in and protect the children in those states. The fears of Mr. Ouimet that the amendment would evidently reduce most parents to pauperism seem to me to be wild and chimerical. To my mind the real danger lies in the fact that every day thousands of children are set forth to work inadequately trained for responsibilities of life. They are being permitted to work ten or eleven hours a day. They are being permitted to enter occupations in which they may become maimed or even killed. Every year a new group enters industry. Every year the postponement of the amendment increases this great wrong being done to American children.

Yours very truly,
NATIONAL CHILD LABOR COMMITTEE,
JEAN MACALPINE HEER,
Department of Public Information.

19-YEAR OLD GIRL HAS SUFFERED MEMORY LAPSE

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The identity of the 19 years old girl suffering a lapse of memory at the county hospital came nearer to becoming established today than at any previous time, when a man called at the hospital and said his were the initials found in a notebook carried by the girl when she was found unconscious in the Union station a few days ago.

The man withheld his identity, but said his first name was Edward and that the girl's first name was Ethel. The initials were E. S.

When a nurse called her Ethel the girl responded as if to answer but set her lips tightly and was silent.

The girl's sub-conscious mind was said by hospital attendants to be responsible for an unknown fear that is controlling her consciousness and keeping her from disclosing her name. The doctors are seeking to deader her consciousness in order to allow them to hear directly from the sub-conscious influences and were prepared to administer ether to accomplish this end if their present methods fail. The patient's physical condition is normal.

SHOT MAN AND THEN BROUGHT BODY TO TOWN

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Joseph Kelly, 21, of 31 Glen street, Williamstown, Mass., was shot and killed in the Troy-Williamstown state highway near here tonight. William Thiessen, of Troy, one of a party which brought Kelly's body to this city told state troopers he did the shooting.

Thiessen with William Timothy, of Adams, Mass., Thomas Graney, of Brooklyn, a coffee salesman and Thomas and Katherine Smith, both of Troy, were being held at the state trooper barracks tonight pending inquiry into the shooting.

According to the story pieced together by police and troopers, Kelly and Timothy met Graney at Hoosk Falls, and after drinking in a hotel started for Troy by automobile. On the way Graney alleged Kelly and Timothy robbed him of $70, which he said was taken from an inside pocket, and during the ensuing discussion the car went into a ditch and overturned. The men crawled out from under and waited beside the highway for another car, seeking to ride to this city.

BANKERS FAVOR TWO EXAMINATIONS EACH YEAR

The Connecticut association of state banks and trust companies at its annual meeting in New Haven on Thursday voted approval of the request by the state banking department for an increased appropriation which would permit semi-annual instead of annual examination of all state banks.

The vote of the bankers followed an address by Lester Shippe, deputy bank commissioner, who referred to shortages found in the accounts of certain bank employes during the past year. He strongly asserted that if the department was able to make more frequent examinations, the possibility of such shortages would be greatly reduced. The case of Treasurer George A. Finn, of the Bankers' Trust company of Norwich, a defaulter, was undoubtedly foremost in his mind during his talk.

Mr. Shippe told the association that an increase of $25,000, making the annual appropriation of the state bank department $100,000, would enable Commissioner Byrne's force to make semi-annual examinations. Of the total cost of the examinations the banks pay 40per cent.

A poll of the trust companies represented showed that fully two-thirds of them have annual audits made by outside accountants in addition to the state examination.

At the business session preceding the annual luncheon, the following officers were elected: President, C. S. Boles, Seymour Trust company; vice president, Harry H. Howard, New Britain Trust company; secretary, W. H. Way, Watertown Trust company; treasurer, Walter E. Goddard, Stratford Trust company.

LEGION POST AFTER 100 PER CENT. INCREASE

William Anderson, New London County Commander of the American Legion, urged the members of Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, at their regular meeting Friday evening in the post rooms to go out for a hundred per cent. increase in membership between now and the date of the next state convention. The meeting, which had a good sized attendance, was presided over by Commander A. Bruckner. The usual reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard and accepted.

The county commander then spoke of the excellent work which State Commander E. P. Armstrong is doing throughout the state and of the great interest he takes in the welfare of the legion. Mr. Anderson said that Fletcher Post, as well as the posts throughout New London county, should get squarely behind the state commander and boost the membership double before the next state convention which is to be held in New London. He called attention to the fact that New London county at present holds the handsome silver cup for showing the largest gain in membership last year figured on a per centage basis. He expressed the hope that the cup will remain in New London county next year.

Commander Anderson announced that the Florida state department of the American Legion has issued a challenge to Connecticut for a membership drive, the losing state to entertain the winning state's delegation at the national convention in Omaha next year at a banquet.

There were also brief talks for the good of the order by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church and a member of the post, Samuel Jennes and William M. Skelly.

The meeting adjourned about 10 o'clock.

STATE IS EXPERIENCING AN UNPARALLELED DROUGHT

During these sunshiny days Mother Nature must have been smiling ironically at the optimism of her children of all ages and sexes who have been humming and whistling the refrain of a popular ditty. Certainly to many it does not sound as humorous now as it did three months ago.

Since the last day of September, except for 23-100 of an inch on October 7 and 8 and 1-100 of an inch on November 12, there has been a period of dry weather without parallel in the records of the state. The month of October showed a deficiency of 3 and 69-100 inches with a deficiency for the year of about 7 inches to date. Were it not for heavy rains the last of September, the situation would be critical by now. As it is, while most of the large water companies have from a month to six weeks' supply on hand, some of the smaller ones are already preparing to use emergency supplies.

Coincident with periods of drought, complaints of bad color, odor and tastes in the water grow in number, and calls for assistance and advice increase correspondingly. This change in the character of the water is due mainly to concentration of vegetable organic matter in the reservoirs as the level of the water becomes gradually lower. While not in itself dangerous to health, this organic matter does make the water unpalatable and gives a warning sign that every precaution must be exercised to maintain the water in a safe condition.

CHARGED WITH FORGING THREE GOVERNMENT CHECKS

Charged with forging a disbursing officer's name to three government checks which he cashed, Jasper Fulton, 23, of Portland, Me., a deserter from the U. S. S. Jouett, which is a converted destroyer of the prohibition navy, was locked up here at police headquarters Friday night after he had been presented before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson. The man was arrested in Boston and was brought here by James E. Fitzpatrick, United States secret service operator.

It is claimed that Fulton, who was a yeoman, stole from the boat on Nov. 9 on a sheet containing five disbursing officers' checks, three of which he forged and cashed for $65, $59.90 and $35.

GAVE FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS HELEN FLYNN

A farewell party for Miss Helen Flynn, night supervisor at the telephone exchange, was given Friday evening by a few of her friends at the home of Miss Frieda Blinderman on Thames street. Musical numbers, which included piano solos by Miss Anna Spicer and songs by the girls, made a pleasant feature of the evening, and dainty refreshments were served.

Comforts for ex-Service Patients.

There are now 70 ex-service men at Norwich state hospital and to them Friday John P. Corcoran carried down, for the Knights of Columbus welfare department, the usual reading matter, candy, cigarettes, gum, chocolate bars, et al.

Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle placed her car at the disposal of Mr. Corcoran for the trip, also helping him distribute the comforts to the afflicted young soldiers.

Under a new Brazilian law every hospital in that country having more than 100 beds must be equipped with a research laboratory.

HARVEST FESTIVAL WILL REALIZE OVER $1,000

Under the direction of Henry LaFontaine, the Minstrel Revue given by the children of St. Mary's Memorial church, Friday evening at Pulaski hall, as the feature entertainment of the harvest festival, scored a decided hit with its snappy up-to-date musical comedy offerings. The cast comprised forty picked voices from the school.

The stage was most attractively decorated in yellow and black, Joseph Farrell being in charge of the settings, the stage itself being loaned through the courtesy of the Slosberg company, with floral effects arranged by Hawkins the Florist.

The ladies of the chorus were gowned in white and yellow costumes; the Toy Soldiers in the blue and red "chauve souris" manner and the end men in white Pierrot suits. Catherine Brennan, interlocutress, was dressed in a creation of red, white and blue. The danseuse, Miss Lucille Bowen, was dressed in the conventional male evening attire and danced in professional manner.

Every number was well rendered and with an enthusiasm that is unusual in juvenile entertainment, much credit being due to all committees directly concerned and to Aime Penin for his piano accompaniment.

The programme follows: Interlocutress, Catherine Brennan; opening chorus, ensemble and Miss Ryan; Old Familiar Faces, Miss Doris LeBlanc; American clog specialty, Miss Lucille Bowen; Why Did I Kiss That Girl, Robert Stone; Wonderful Mother of Mine, Miss Charlotte Tracey, Francis Tracey; novelty dance, Miss Lucille Bowen; I'll Be Happy and Go-Lucky, John Cotter, assisted by Messrs. Marshall, Stone, McLaughlin, Demers, Reid, Tracey; Memory Lane, Miss Catherine Brennan; parade of the wooden soldiers, Messrs. Downes, McClafferty, Longo, Johnstone, Hartle, Caron; closing chorus, entire company.

Premier end men: John Marshall, Andrew McLaughlin, Robert Stone, John Cotter, Robert Reid, Armand Demers, Francis Tracey.

Toy Soldiers: John Caron, Raymond Downes, William Hartle, James Johnstone, Gregorio Longo, William McClafferty.

Accompanist: Aime Pepin.

An audience of over 1,000 enjoyed the entertainment and Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of the parish, announced that over $1,000 would be realized. He also voiced his appreciation of the liberal patronage, the fine work of the various committees and for the labors of Mr. LaFontaine, the success of the enterprise being due to their efforts and to those of Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, curate, who assisted the several committees.

Those who served on the various committees were: ticket office, John T. Sullivan; door, Patrick J. Sullivan; hat room, Edward J. McNerney, Thomas Riley, John Lynch, Jr., Joseph A. Donnelly; program, John Barry Theodore LaFreniere, Francis Humphrey; activities, Horace F. Corning, M. Frank Leonard, John Morrison, William H. Bowen, Napoleon A. Kerouack, Joseph Urian; table committee, Mrs. Lucian Bissonette, Miss Lucy Woods, Miss Agnes Casey, Miss Helen Drescher, Mrs. Mary Harrington, Mrs. Bernard Breen, Miss May O'Leonin, Mrs. Simon J. Fahey, Mrs. Lawrence E. Milles, Mrs. James J. Brady, Mrs. William Sharkey, Mrs. James Ward, Mrs. Chester Ryan, Mrs. Herbert Keeley, Miss Catherine Redden, Miss Julia Gallagher, Miss Mary Maher, Mrs. Thomas P. Connelly.

These committees were assisted by other women of the parish who contributed the Thanksgiving baskets which found a ready sale and Spellman's orchestra with its nine music for the dancing added to the entertainment feature which closed at midnight. Appreciation for the work of Mercier Assembly, Ladies of Columbus, was also voiced, this organization assisting by donating costumes and assisting in the dressing rooms prior to the entertainment.

Harvard Flivver Passed Through.

Automobile Ran Into Train.

An automobile operated by John Schwartzenturber ran into a train that was standing on the Versailles crossing Friday night, according to a report that was received at police headquarters. The machine was damaged but nobody was hurt, it was understood.

HEARD EDWARD MARKHAM READ HIS OWN POEMS

An evening that was unusual but thoroughly enjoyable for the good sized audience present was furnished Friday at the Community house when Edward Markham, the well known author of The Man with the Hoe, gave readings from his own poems as the first number in a series of three entertainments under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the United Congregational church.

Mr. Markham prefaced his readings with a talk upon poets and poetry in which he quoted the definition of Aristotle that the function of the poet is to complete the incomplete designs of nature. Every work of art, whether painting, sculpture or poetry is nature plus a man's temperament. Shakespeare made the most remarkable statement about poets who, he said, are of imagination all compact, giving to airy nothing a local habitation and a name, and Edgar Allen Poe said that the origin of poetry lies in a thirst for a wilder beauty than earth supplies. Of the three romantic figures of the middle ages, the hermit, the pilgrim and the poet, only the last named remains now and he still has just as large a place as ever in revealing the deeper meanings of existence and finding the spirituality that lies behind the husks of things.

Mr. Markham's readings from more than a dozen of his own works vividly impressed upon his audience his own spiritual insight, his joy of life and his right to a place in the company of poets included in his readings as his splendid poem upon Lincoln, written for the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial at Washington in 1922 and chosen among 255 poems written for this occasion, by request he also read The Man with The Hoe, which he explained was a protest against brutalizing drudgery and an appeal for the brotherhood of man.

Mr. Markham was frequently given appreciative applause for his readings. He was introduced by Walter F. Lester, president of the Brotherhood.

TWO BANDITS IN HARTFORD FLED UNDER PISTOL FIRE

Hartford, Nov. 21.—Three shots were fired tonight when two masked men, said to be negroes, attempted to hold up the office of the North End Coal company in the East Side section. Harris I. ACADEMY AND STONINGTON BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE IN LAST LEAGUE GAME

While Westerly was defeating the league leaders, Chapman Tech, the Stonington team sprung a surprise by holding the Academy to scoreless tie in an uneventful contest. Throughout the game, the Red and White showed a superiority over their rivals, but as usual lacked the final punch to put the ball over for a score. Lack of generalship in the pinches lost the game for the local team.

Stonington, on the other hand entered the contest determined to make up for their earlier defeat at the hands of the Academy and fairly succeeded in accomplishing their aim. Their fight throughout the game when the Academy threatened was enough to keep their opponents from scoring. For three or four times the Academy had the ball on the five yard line, but the unusual pluck of the Brown and White eleven prevented them.

In the first quarter, the ball went up and down the field in an exchange of punts in which the Academy had the advantage. The N. F. A. team threatened to score in this period, but lost the ball on downs.

In the second quarter it was a replica of the first period. In this quarter the Academy threatened to score after a forward pass, one of the longest of the game, Hinrichs to Scott was completed, netting 53 yards. Stonington, however, held and the Academy was forced to punt.

The third quarter found both teams working up and down the field with neither having an advantage.

In the fourth quarter, both teams used an aerial attack, Stonington completing two of their attempted five passes, with the Academy having the advantage of completing three of their five.

The game ended with the Academy making a desperate attempt to score and it seemed as if they would succeed when the final whistle blew.

For Stonington McCaffery and Levanti were the shining lights. Cowan on the line, played a great game on the defense.

For the Academy, Captain Haslam broke through the opposing line and stopped runners for large losses. His defensive work all season has been a feature of the local team. Scott played a brilliant game at end, as did Hollander, on the other wing. Hinrichs and Higgins offensive work puzzled the Stonington eleven.

HEYDLER HAS NO OPPOSITION FOR PRESIDENT'S BERTH

New York, Nov. 21.—If there is any other candidate for the National league presidency than John A. Heydler, whose three year term expires this year, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, declared today he had not heard of it.

Taking cognisance of reports that at least one club owner in the senior circuit was preparing to support a move to replace the present executive, Mr. Stoneham said:

"Mr. Heydler will be a candidate to succeed himself at the annual meeting here December 9. I have heard of no other candidate and feel sure there will be none at this late date."

Asked to state his own position, Stoneham said he had not discussed the matter with his associates in the club ownership, including Manager McGraw, but indicated the National league champions would support Heydler.

Stoneham's statement marked the second instance of outspoken support for Heydler, August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club, announced yesterday he would back Heydler and also stand by Commissioner Landis on any issues involving the latter.

BIG TEN FOOTBALL WILL DRAW CAPACITY CROWDS

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Capacity crowds will witness the closing games of the western conference football season tomorrow. The Big Ten fields have sold tickets for 318,000 spectators.

The 83,000 tickets for the Chicago-Wisconsin game were exhausted three weeks ago. The 40,000 seats for the Notre Dame-Northwestern game were sold in one day. Michigan has sold all the 45,000 tickets available at Ferry field for the Iowa game. Illinois may not fill the new stadium seating 67,000 for the bitter struggle anticipated with Ohio, but at least 40,000 are expected. Indiana and Purdue should easily sell twice their tickets capacity at Lafayette for their annual classic. The Vanderbilt intersectional clash at Minnesota wil be played before 35,000.

Clear and cold weather is forecast for the Big Ten region tomorrow, except in Michigan where snow or rain is likely.

MANY IMPORTANT BATTLES IN EAST THIS AFTERNOON

New York, Nov. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Harvard and Yale will come to gripe tomorrow in the Bowl at New Haven with the Blue a top-heavy favorite among critics to capture the forty-third battle between these ancient rivals.

But while the Elis are overwhelmingly favored to win the "Big Three" title by downing the Crimson and finish their second straight season undefeated, the vast and colorful crowd of 80,000 that will fill the big amphitheatre to its outer fringes expects a typically hard-fought struggle. Past performances favor Yale, but it takes only a glance at the 1924 record to show how little they have frequently meant, and Harvard followers, mindful of the upsets that have marked both "Big Three" games so far, are confident that the Crimson will complete the cycle by overthrowing the Blue.

Tomorrow unfolds a wealth of gridiron tradition, for besides the Harvard-Yale encounter, the only other outstanding eastern games involve long rivalries. At Syracuse, Chick Meehan's Orange eleven, toppled recently by West Virginia Wesleyan, from its undefeated perch, faces Colgate, beaten by Nebraska and West Virginia in the Maroon's biggest games, but prospect of a closely-waged battle for up state gridiron supremacy.

At Easton, Pa., Lafayette and Lehigh renew a struggle inaugurated forty years ago with the Leopards striving to come-back while Lehigh battles to keep her place among the five major unbeaten teams in the east.

Only three of these teams fighting for eastern title honors will be seen in action. Besides Yale and Lehigh the powerful Rutgers outfit, with one of the best records of all, will close its season at Philadelphia with "Uncle Charley" Moran's Bucknell eleven, which conquered the Navy a week ago. Of the other unbeaten outfits, Pennsylvania has no game scheduled in order to concentrate on preparations for the annual game with Cornell on Thanksgiving day, while Dartmouth has rested her case with a record of seven victories and a tie with Yale.

In the most spectacular of tomorrow's games, Yale seems to have marked advantage over Harvard in both offensive and defensive skill. While considerably below the standard of its great 1923 array, the Blue completely stopped Princeton onslaught that overwhelmed Harvard. The Elis have greater strength on the ends and possess more abundant and capable backfield strength.

Harvard, on the other hand, despite one of the most disappointing seasons in years, has been shaping its whole course for the Yale game. Beaten by Dartmouth, Princeton and Brown, the Crimson has an added incentive to win its final game, for not since 1899 has the Cambridge eleven lost the same year to both the Bulldog and Tiger. Defeat not only would break this 25-year spell but it would send the 1924 Harvard team down into history with another dismal record—that of scoring fewer points over an entire season than its combined opponents. The records to date show Harvard has tallied only 55 points to 59 for its opposition.

Harvard has some excellent line material, two of the finest kicking backs in the east in Gehrke and Hammond and other potentialities. If the Crimson has found itself in its final drive of preparations, another startling upset may be added to the list. Conceded even less chance than this year in the past, Harvard has come through to overturn the Blue.

Norwich at Army, no game.
New Hampshire at Brown, 0-6.
Colgate at Syracuse, 16-7.
Lehigh at Lafayette, 3-13.
Bucknell-Rutgers at Philadelphia, no game.
Vermont at Boston College, 0-0.
Georgetown at Navy, no game.

AETNA FIVE DROPS TWO GAMES TO MOOSUP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Nov. 21.—The Aetna five of Norwich were unable to take second position in the Eastern Connecticut Bowling League against Moosup here tonight. A three string victory would have given the visitors second place and a two string victory would have tied them with the locals. However, Moosup increased her hold on second place by beating the visitors two out of three strings. The first string was a tie game and the teams agreed to have the two first boxes in the next string out. The Aetna won on the roll-off but Moosup won the next two strings. Chartier was high man with 149 for high single and 349 for high total. The scores:

STAGG HAS HOPES OF WINNING WESTERN TITLE

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—A big ten conference football championship is almost within the grasp tonight of 62-62-4-old Amos Alonzo Stagg, dean of football coaches in America, for the first time in 11 years.

Tomorrow the Maroons meet Wisconsin, with a clear title in sight for Chicago if they defeat or tie Wisconsin.

Stagg has completed 32-years as coach at Chicago but since 1913 one defeat or one tie has kept the Maroons just back of the leaders.

This year, Stagg upset "Red" Grange, and Illinois by starting the game with an offensive of his own that swept Illinois off their feet, and tied the Illinois, who had been regarded as sure conference champions.

Chicago has another tie this season on the record, with Ohio States, but thus far is the only undefeated team in the conference. For the first time this year, Stagg has kept practice this week, secret from everyone, and a new line of plays has been developed to take advantage of the strength of the Maroon line acknowledged the best in the conference.

COMMISSION ADVISES ANOTHER SILVANI-FERRARA BOUT

New York, Nov. 21.—The state athletic commission today recommended to Promoter Tex Rickard that he rematch Joe Silvani of New York and Miguel Ferrara of Argentine, heavyweights, following the unsatisfactory ending of the match between them at the Madison Square Garden last Wednesday night.

Ferrara was the victor in the match, knocking out Silvani in the fourt round. The commission's doctor, upon examining Silvani, determined that he had been hit low by Ferrara, but the referee refused to declare the blow illegal. Opinion differed, however, as to whether the alleged low blow figured in the knockout or occurred in the third round. The commission refused to set aside the referee's verdict of a knockout but recommended that they be rematched following a visit from Silvani's manager.

KAPLAN, KRAMER AND LOMBARDO SURVIVE BOUTS

New York, Nov. 21—Lou (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., Danny Kramer, of Philadelphia and Jose Lombardo, of Panama, were the survivors tonight in the preliminaries at Madison Square Garden to determine the bearer of the featherweight boxing crown. All of the victories were by decision and the vote in favor of Kramer caused a near riot.

Dick Hurley, manager of Mike Dundee, was barred from boxing in New York state forever, following an attack on Referee Patsy Haley after the decision put his boxer out of the tournament. Hurley kicked over a stool in the corner when he climbed from the ring as the crowd rose to its feet. Police rushed from all sides and finally escorted the irate manager from the hall. A majority of the newspapermen at the ringside appeared to favor Dundee. Action against Hurley was taken by the state commissioner during the Lombardo-Paluso bout.

Kaplan and Bobby Garcia, of Camp Holabird, Md., fought the feature battle of the evening in comparison with which all those that followed seemed slow. Garcia adapted a crouching defense from which he sprung a vicious left that jarred the Meriden boxer on several occasions. Kaplan's trip-hammer attack with both right and left scored repeatedly although apparently doing little damage.

The men went into the ninth round on about even terms, but the Connecticut man released an overpowering onslaught which drove his opponent to cover and had him bewildered at the bell.

Kramer and Dundee kept far apart throughout their clash, the Philadelphian being unable to pierce the Italian's guard to any appreciable extent. Slashing rights and lefts brought blood to Kramer's eye in the ninth. At this time most of the experts had conceded the westerner a long lead. Kramer rallied to capture the tenth, but his victory was booted by a standing crowd.

Lombardo had little difficulty in defeating Lou Paluso of Salt Lake City, who fought a game battle against a faster adversary. The Panaman reached Paluso's head with frequency and had him bleeding throughout. In the final round Paluso was dazed.

Twice during the fight Lombardo slipped to one knee but was up without a count. Paluso also suffered from an evident lack of resin for he narrowing escaped slipping into the Panaman's left on three occasions. Five men, instead of the three winners tonight will appear in the semi-finals three weeks hence, according to an announcement from the ring. Babe Herman of New York and Billy Defoe, of St. Paul, originally scheduled as alternates, have been added to the list of contenders.

Kaplan, 135 1-2; Garcia 126 1-4; Dundee 124 1-4; Paluso 126 and Lombardo 124.

HARVARD BEATS YALE AT SOCCER FOOTBALL

New Haven, Nov. 21.—Harvard defeated Yale at soccer, 2 to 1 this afternoon in the opening of a series of athletic events that will terminate with the football game tomorrow afternoon. Harvard showed its superiority on the offensive throughout the contest but a strong defense on the part of Yale kept the Harvard score down to one goal for each period.

Gans started the scoring for Harvard in the first period, in a kick from scrimmage from in front of the Yale cage. Crooks added another for Harvard in the second period after a brilliant dash the entire length of the field. Captain Gilman scored Yale's only goal late in the second period. Several of Yale's best players were out of the lineup because of injuries.

Raincoats For Yale Game

New Haven, Nov. 21.—Hoping perhaps that the Yale-Harvard game will bring to an end the long dry spell that has hovered over Connecticut for the past two months, a Springfield, Mass., concern, it became known tonight, has shipped 6,000 raincoats to this city for sale at Yale Bowl tomorrow afternoon in the event of rain. If it doesn't rain it was said that the raincoats would be sent back to Springfield.

Physical Education Day Tests

Physical Education Day as observed by the local Y. M. C. A. yesterday, proved itself to be one of the busiest days the physical department has seen in many a day. The athletic contest, which was conducted in the afternoon and which was open to all boys of the city proved the feature of the day and over a hundred lads worked with great interest to qualify for the certificates. Those successful in passing the tests were as follows: Test 3—James Falcone. Test 2—Alec Brauman, William Hollender, William Krohn, Ernest Stevens. Test 1—Austin Covey, Jos. Falcone, J. Angelico, Leonard Bogue Sam Barile John Murphy, Peter Yeitz, T. Vulgares, Joe Parcheski, J. Pierson Harry Yalen, Sam Sechter, Robert Burke. T. Villiano William Epps, A Wernsing, J. Babbitt. Robert Wonacott, Paul Grieco, T. Riley, Cox, Cecil Henschel Chas. Taber, Geo. Lambert John Green, George Ranger, Anthony Serefin, W. Mathews Sanders. Owing to darkness many of the boys were prevented from trying the outdoor events that were necessary to qualify and these boys will be given an opportunity to take them next week.

The Night program consisted of various groups, including scout troops and Sunday school groups using the swimming pool while the gymnasium was given over to the employed boys who participated in athletic events followed by the senior class "Olympic" meet work.

CLIMAX OF WESTERN FOOTBALL REACHED TODAY

Chicago, Nov. 22—(By the A. P.)—A sensational football season will reach its climax in the western conference tomorrow when Chicago, undefeated in the championship race, meets Wisconsin on Stagg field in the most important contest of the day. In other games, either of which may scramble the championship, Michigan will face Iowa, at Ann Arbor, while Illinois will battle Ohio state at Champaign.

Northwestern, definitely out of the championship, will furnish the opposition for Notre Dame. At Chicago, with Minnesota meeting Vanderbilt, at Minneapolis, Purdue and Indiana will battle for the Indiana championship at Lafayette.

The Chicago-Wisconsin conflict probably will result in one of the greatest battles of the season. Even though Notre Dame rolled over Wisconsin by a lop-sided score, and the Badgers have failed to win a conference game, this season, there is plenty of apprehension in the maroon camp. The Wisconsin eleven always seems to put up a harder fight against Chicago than it does against any other team and the showing of Chicago against Northwestern a week ago may mean that the Badger-Maroon struggle will be the battle of the year, with Chicago striving with all its might to shove across the winning score and cinch the 1924 conference championship for Amos Alonzo Stagg's warriors.

Both teams are powerful and use smashing plays. Whether Chicago, with its husky line and plunging backfield can plow through the strong Badger eleven is a question that cannot be decided until after the starting whistle tomorrow afternoon.

Michigan has not lost a game since the disastrous defeat by Illinois, and with Illinois beaten and Chicago having a tough barrier to hurdle, Coach Yost of the Wolverines plans to turn his warriors loose on the Hawkeyes with instructions to win at all costs. If Wisconsin should upset Chicago, Michigan will have a chance at the championship honors, in spite of the Illinois defeat. Iowa has displayed plenty of power recently and figures on giving the Wolverines a desperate battle.

Illinois runs up against its jinx team, Ohio State. The Illinois forced out of the big ten championship lead as a result of the Minnesota upset, will meet a formidable opponent in the Buckeye eleven, which displayed surprising strength against Michigan. With "Red" Grange viewing the proceedings from the side-lines, the game promised to be a nip-and-tuck affair, with Ohio likely to gallup through to victory. With Grange out of the contest, Coach Zuppke, as Ohio State, although beaten by Michigan and Indiana, boasts a powerful aggregation which always gives Illinois a struggle.

Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame players, will descend upon Chicago in their first invasion in four years, meeting Northwestern in the new Grant Park stadium on Chicago's lake front. Northwestern is not conceded much chance to win but expects to make the game interesting especially if the purple players display the stiff game they showed against Chicago a week ago in forcing the Maroons to win by the narrow margin of a field goal.

The Indiana-Purdue game will open the stadium at Lafayette. Indiana rushed into prominence with victories over Ohio State and Wabash, but Purdue had the advantage of a rest in which to prepare for the contest rated as the hardest on the Purdue schedule.

Minnesota in the limelight since the upset of Illinois last Saturday, will face strong opposition in meeting Vanderbilt at Minneapolis. The eleven from Tennessee is rated as one of the strongest aggressions of the south, but the Gophers are favorites to win.

Walter P. Chrysler Announces

25 Miles to the Gallon
58 Miles per Hour
5 to 25 Miles in 8 Seconds

With a full sense of the seriousness of the statement—carefully weighing the meaning of every word—Chrysler-Maxwell engineers, without reservation, promise you, in this new Maxwell, performance surpassing in every essential any four-cylinder car in the world today.

To make that sweeping assurance more definite and specific—we promise you in speed, in power, in pliability of power, in swift response, and even more particularly in riding steadiness and comfort, results no four-cylinder car has yet been able to attain.

To go still further into details, the new Maxwell has speed capacities far beyond any car of its type and class, and in the rare instances in which they may have to be used, will register them with an absence of vibration without precedent in four-cylinder construction.

Chrysler-Maxwell engineers have been actuated by the conviction that in addition to its inherent and natural economies, the four-cylinder principle possessed possibilities of power and speed capable of being translated into ease and steadiness which have never been fully developed.

They set out to overcome what have all too readily been accepted in the past as limitations in the four-cylinder engine and to convert these limitations into positive advantages.

No one can doubt that success has crowned their efforts, after even so short an experience as a half hour's driving demonstration of the car.

Judged by the unusual and extraordinary character of its performance, this Maxwell is literally a new and immeasurably better type of four-cylinder motor car.

YALE AND HARVARD READY FOR ANNUAL FOOTBALL CLASSIC THIS AFTERNOON

New Haven, Nov. 21.—With the chant "We'll beat Yale," as sung by 2,000 under-graduates, still ringing in their ears, nearly 80 Harvard gridiron warriors and their coaches and trainers arrived here today for the annual Yale-Harvard football classic at Yale Bowl tomorrow. Following a poor season with defeats by Dartmouth, Brown and Princeton chalked up against them, the Crimson squad showed little signs of a shattered morale and it is felt that a victory over the Bulldog will more than make up for the reverses suffered during the year.

Immediately after its arrival, the Harvard squad went to the Bowl for two hours' practice in the big saucer. The practice consisted of a snappy signal drill, followed by considerable kicking to get accustomed to the shadows and wind currents of the huge field. Leaving the Bowl at 4 o'clock, the Harvard men were taken to a hotel in Derby where they will remain until game time tomorrow. A special orchestra has been engaged for their benefit and they will get music at every meal even at breakfast tomorrow morning.

While Yale will enter the contest a top-heavy favorite following its undefeated record for the year, Coach Tad Jones impressed upon his charges today that a victory will only follow a hard fought battle. "Don't think you will have an easy victory over Harvard," he told the members of his squad. "Just remember that Harvard always plays at top form against Yale and that the Crimson team is never whipped until the game is over."

A light signal drill featured the last day of practice for the Yale squad. Coach Jones gave out no lineup today for the battle tomorrow, but from the way the men lined up this afternoon, it was apparent that Bench will probably start the game at quarterback, and Bingham at left end. These were the only two positions that were in doubt. Bingham has been out of the game with a bad knee for nearly two weeks but has rounded into shape in time for the final game of the year. Both Hart and Gill will be ready to take his place if he is taken out. While Bench will start the game as field general, it is expected that Bunnell will have a try at quarterback before the game is over. The balance of the lineup probably will be Joss and Butterworth, tackles; Root and Sturhahn, guards; Captain Lovejoy, center; Allen, Pond and Cottle, backs.

The game tomorrow will be the last contest for Captain Lovejoy, Dick Luman, Bench and "Duckie" Pond. These are the only men who start the game who will not return next year. There are a great many of the second string men who graduate. Eckhart, Hart and Scott all were "Y" men previous to this year.

That 80,000 persons will see the battle tomorrow was evident from the rush and search for tickets here today. The pasteboards are almost impossible to find, the Yale ticket office reporting that it has not a single one left. The Harvard allotment was quickly disposed of by the Harvard A. A. The few tickets that have found their way into the hands of speculators are bringing a handsome price.

All indications tha. the game will be played on a turf that is perfectly conditioned for fast and furious play. A year ago, the Harvard Stadium was soaked by a heavy rain and the teams battled in a sea of mud. The weather forecast tomorrow promises a cold, but fair day.

The advance guard of the spectators began arriving in this city tonight, the railroads reporting a heavy traffic towards New Haven. Thousands will be on the road tomorrow morning and extra precautions have been taken in this city to handle the huge crowd of autoists expected.

Throughout the examining of witnesses for the defense in the superior court in Kingston Friday in the trial of the case of State vs. Richard Brady of Richmond, charged with the shooting and killing of his wife, Delia Brady, at their shack on the Wyoming-Richmond road, May 31, Attorney George J. West attempted to break down the testimony of the state's witnesses by introducing evidence of the quarrelsome and vindictive character of the deceased.

The fight to save Brady is being made on the ground of self-defense. Attorney West having stated in opening his case before the jury Thursday that Brady honestly believed that his wife was about to perpetrate a felony and he reasonably believed his life was in imminent danger as there was no retreat, Mrs. Brady guarding the exit at the shack on the night of the alleged crime, and that Brady is a cripple.

Brady was on the stand when the court took a recess at 1.30 o'clock for an hour.

The following praise from Hartford is in the current issue of The Catholic Transcript: In the Armistice Day celebration in Norwich which was featured by the largest parade ever held there, in which more than 7,000 participated, St. Michael's Boy and Girl Scouts of Westerly occupied an important place. The Girl Scout Bugle and Drum Corps of 20 members furnished music for the second division of the parade, and their efforts were rewarded by continuous applause all along the line of march. The Boy Scout fife and drum corps of 30 members had the honor of heading the contingent of more than 200 Scouts of the Norwich Council, and their appearance and playing caused much favorable comment. The committee in charge of the celebration expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the efforts of the Westerly boys and girls and thankd Father Keane, their director, for having loaned them to Norwich for the day. As a token of their appreciation, the committee furnished a luncheon at the Wauregan House both before and after the parade for the Scouts and needless to say, this part of the program was entirely satisfactory to the boys and girls, who voiced their feelings by prolonged cheers for Norwich and its officials from Mayor Milo R. Waters down.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Many items of interest appeared in the columns of The Bulletin a half century ago. Park church was dedicated with appropriate services and the death of James Monroe Huntington, one of the leading business men of Norwich occurred on the 17th.

In brief the items of the week selected for the columns of Fifty Years ago for this week, are as follows:

Monday, November 16, 1874—Speaking of the Park church windows we desire to state that in addition to what appeared in Saturday's article on that subject that Mr. Edmond was the designer of the admired memorial windows to Miss Sarah Colt and her sister, Mrs. Barker; not only furnishing the drawings, but selection and supervising the coloring. It is but fair to credit to him a work which is a fine example of his designing skill and taste.

The little settlement of Central Village has seldom had so much excitement within its borders equal to that caused by the shooting of a little boy and girl by their brother. The first story regarding the double shooting, which resulted in the death of the baby boy was erroneous in some particulars and the boy who fired the fatal shot has been exonerated by the jury. It seems that he fired the shot just to hear the noise evidently not believing that it was likely to cause the death of the baby. The charge, almost in full struck the throat of the baby causing instant death, while his little sister was badly wounded. The parents learned of the shooting when they returned home and found the baby dead and the girl painfully wounded and at first their son denied firing the shot. The jury found that the child had been shot, but exonerated the boy from any malicious intent.

Some of the young people who enjoy skating are planning to petition the common council to allow Rockwell's pond to be flowed this year as usual.

Charles W. Denison, formerly of this city, announces that he will begin the publication of a democratic daily paper in Washington, to be called the Evening Mail.

Tuesday, November 17, 1874—The water motor at Christ church gave out last evening and the choir accordingly led the singing without the assistance of Prof. DeProsse's fine accompaniments on the organ.

Ice formed on the coye of the Yantic river Sat. night, therefore causing the coal dealers of the city to smile broadly.

In accordance with the law, reports were recently sent to the Massachusetts railroad commissioners by the Norwich & Worcester and New London Northern railroads, showing the business done by these roads for the year ending Sept. 30th. Employees numbered 390, dividends paid totalled $256,000; income over expenditures was $361,280.03; passengers carried, 72,295 and tons of freight carried, 269,819. Two bridges were built by the company during the year, at Central Village and at Griswold.

The New London Northern reported receipts of $503,255.56; expenditures of $142,457.22, income over expenditures $160,818.34. The actual receipts this year were about $109,000 more than last, but the sum of $75,000 paid on the report may be counted as profit.

Wednesday, November 18, 1874—[illegible] a couple more stones in the crest [illegible] the Shetucket [illegible] Broadway, one stone, four feet long was knocked [illegible] over and [illegible] it.

The [illegible] conference of the New York, Wilmantic and Norwich [illegible] evening. The Rev. Mr. Adams of New York, president of the Union Theological Seminary will preside [illegible] session. The [illegible] sermon is to be offered by the Rev. Mr. Dana, [illegible] Rev. Mr. Dana. The [illegible] will be distributed by the Rev. Messrs. Davies, Pippitt, Merriman and Drs. Bond and Arms. The music is under the charge of Mr. Learned. Hon. David Young will have charge of seating the audience.

The city was inexpressibly shocked and grieved yesterday at the announcement at an early hour, of the death of James Monroe Huntington, senior partner of the well-known firm of J. M. Huntington and Co. Mr. Huntington for years was a leading business man of Norwich, his firm at times being engaged in shipbuilding, interested in the West Indies having a wharf and bonding house in New London, one of their steamers, The Whirlwind being the first American merchant steamer ever in Porto Rico. He was [illegible] engaged in the cotton and grocery business in the infancy of that business in Eastern Connecticut and also in the coal business holding the contract for all coal business over the Norwich and Worcester road for many years. Later he entered the passenger and freight business and was director of the Uncas bank. In his death Norwich loses one of its most loyal citizens.

Thursday, November 19, 1874—George W. Fuller, the sub-marine diver of this city brings away with him from Toronto a beautiful souvenir in the shape of a music box. Mr. Fuller recently completed the laying of the flexible iron pipe across the bay in the city of Toronto, for the new water works.

The catch of seals at Greeneville dam this year had nearly reached five tons. If there should be a heavy rain it might run over to a count, as the season is hanging on unusually late. The whole catch is taken by Mr. Bushnell of Market street. The fishermen get 4 1-2 and 5 cents a pound for their catch and Mr. Bushnell says he has never seen business equal to this years in the 20 years he has been in business.

Parder, judges of the supreme court of errors and arbitrators have fixed the assessments for the new court house as follows; town's share $215,919; city, $221,365. The costs of the arbitration is to be paid equally by the town and city. The building contains 437,884 cubic feet and the assessment was based on these figures.

The Thames river oysters are in good condition this year and are much sought after. These oysters are very fat and yield seven quarts and a half to the bushel, opened. The Virginia oysters yield 5 and under to the bushel.

The sale of seats in the new Park church is to take place Friday evening and there is likely to be some spirited bidding.

Recommendation is to be made for the abandonment of the navy yard at New London and Washington.

Saturday, November 21, 1874—An event of no little interest to billiard players will take place on Monday evening at Foster's billiard parlors. Maurice Vignaux is coming here with Francois Uhassy and will he an exhibition of French carom and fancy playing. Those who watched the play in New York recently remember that Vignaux won the championship of the world there, also some valuable prizes.

In Carter's jewelry store is a quaint, fat gold watch made by Graham, a celebrated clockmaker of London, England at least as far back as 1726. G. L. Norcross, whose grandfather bought it in England, is the owner of the watch. HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont.—"I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains. I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity."—Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial."—MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Turkey Tim Appears

It took a long time for the two little bunnies and Little Miss Mouse to write the invitations and address the envelopes for the lollypop party. But, by and by, after a while, the last one was written and folded away in the envelope.

"Whew!" gasped the tired bunny gentleman, "I've got a cramp in my thumb. Never wrote so many invitations since my wedding day. And that was long, oh long ago, before Old Rheumatiz pinched my toe," and the dear, old gentleman rabbit got up and, walking over to the piano, sat down on the little three legged stool. Then running his paws over the keys, he commenced to sing:

"Dear Long Ago, when I was spry,
And blue as violets smiled the sky,
I loved a pretty bunny girl,
With teeth as white as any pearl,
And hair as dandelion yellow,—
Ah me, I was a lucky fellow."

"Dear, dear," sighed Little Miss Mousie, "Uncle Lucky has the blues. Maybe I'd better bake an angel cake for supper," and his anxious little mouse housekeeper set to work while the bunny boy tied up the envelopes in three neat packages.

Just then, all of a sudden, a loud knocking came at the front door. "Who's that, I wonder," whispered Uncle Lucky wheeling around on the piano stool. "Hope it isn't anyone who doesn't like me, because if that's the case I shan't like him."

"It's Turkey Tim," suddenly shouted the little rabbit, who had tiptoed up to the front door to peek through the side curtains.

"Let him in," called out Uncle Lucky. "Well, well, I didn't expect you," he added a minute later as Turkey Tim shuffled into the hall. "My, but you look dejected." (Which means, little reader, cast down or more than sorrowful.)

"I had to run again this year," replied the poor old turkey. "Thanksgiving coming by and by makes Turkey people very shy."

Pretty soon as they all sat around the loud speaker, the Jack Rabbit Man commenced.

"Ha, ha," shouted the bunny boy, "now I'll hear what I did last week. I wrote a long letter to Uncle Dave. —wrote it all myself, only mother helped he now and then and filled up two my fountain pen.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

The Burglar

A story I'll tell of a burglar bold
Who started to rob a house.
He opened the window, and then crept in
As quiet as a mouse.

He looked around for a place to hide
Till the folks were all asleep.
And then, said he, "With their money
I'll take a quiet sneak."

So under the bed the burglar crept.
He crept up close to the wall;
He didn't know it was an old maid's room
Or he wouldn't have had the gall.

He thought of the money that he would steal
As under the bed he lay.
But at nine o'clock he saw a sight
That made his hair turn gray.

At nine o'clock the old maid came in;
"I am so tired," she said.
She thought that all was well that night
So she didn't look under the bed.

And the hair all off her head;
The burglar, he had forty fits
As he watched from under the bed.

From under the bed the burglar crept.
He was a total wreck:
The old maid wasn't asleep at all
And she grabbed him by the neck.

She didn't holler, or shout, or call,
She was as cool as a clam;
She only said, "The Saints be praised!
At last I've got a man."

From under the pillow a gun she drew
And to the burglar she said.
"Young man, if you don't marry me,
I'll blow off the top of your head."

She held him firmly by the neck,
He hadn't a chance to scoot;
He looked at the teeth and the big glass eye
And said, "Madam, for Pete's sake, shoot!"

Chief Cause of Human Troubles

Things wusn't goin' right a-tall,
An' I wuz feelin' blue.
Although I didn't owe a cent;
An' there wus work to do.
The home wus jest the same old home
The wife and kids wuz well,
The stock wus looking fat and slick
An' there wus crops to sell.
But yit I wusn't satisfied.
Ner nothin' I could see.
Er feel, or hear, or talk about
Seemed like it used to be.
I didn't like the things I et.
My liver felt like clay.
An' apple pie might just as well
Been filled in with hay.
Er there wus sunshine on the flowers
An bees wus on the buzz,
An' birds wus singin' in the trees.
I didn't know there wuz.
Ef I had friends they didn't seem
To be like friends no more.
An' I quit goin' down to loaf
At Grimes old grocery store.
Doc. Simpson said he couldn't tell
What ailed me, an' I tried
So many things, the wonder is
I hadn't up and died;
Till Susan, she's my wife, one day,
She said she couldn't see
What ailed me everywhere like that,
Unless it must be me.
That set me thinking, an' by heck,
I say it now with shame,
Twus last myself, my derned old self,
An' nothin' else to blame.

THANKSGIVING IN OTHER DAYS

Dear Corner Friends: I was just reading the Social Corner page about Thanksgiving, and it made me think of olden days.

We used to go up to my uncle's and we looked forward to it all the year. We used to start about ten o'clock in the morning, my father used to get the horses and hitch, with a string of bells clear around it, into the old jumper with its buffalo robes and lots of straw in the bottom, and ah, such snow! we didn't care.

We cuddled down in the blankets and we hardly ever tipped over.

We had to drive five miles and when we got up there they would have a nice fire in the old fireplace with huge great logs on.

My aunt would have made three or four kinds of pies and there was always a chicken pie baked in the old brick oven and a large turkey and two or three other kinds of meat besides all the different vegetables. Then the older folks would sit down about 20 of them, at the large table and we children at a smaller table which held seven or eight. Then after dinner we would go into the parlor and visit. About five o'clock we would have supper with all kinds of cake and preserves. By this time the snow would be getting deep and we would get into the sleigh and start for home. We don't have snowstorms like that now. The snow was even with the walls. Now most of these dear old folks are gone.

I want to say present to my name in the roll call.

LIGHTNING CAKE AND SOME COOKING DONT'S

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: As the saying goes, "We are never too old to learn," so in regard to the subject of cooking or baking, we will consider a few hits on cake making. It is through experience we learn many things, and best ant to remember them. Recently I tried a new cake recipe which has proved more satisfactory than any other I have ever used. I believe it is not so much the ingredients as the method of mixing. Being so simple yet quickly put together it was named

Lightning Cake: Put into your sifter 1 cup of sugar, 1 1-2 cup of flour, a pinch of salt, 2 level teaspoons of baking powder. Sift and mix thoroughly together. A tablespoon of butter or lard, melted in a cup, add a little cold milk to chill it, then break an egg into this and beat well, and fill up the remainder of the cup with milk and add a scant teaspoon of vanilla or lemon. Turn this cup of liquid into the sifted ingredients and beat well together. Bake in moderate oven.

Just a few don't that are helpful on this subject. Don't have the oven too hot to start off with, it will cause the cake to rise too fast and crust over, and it is liable not to bake well in the center. Don't open the oven door for 15 minutes after the cake is put in; it is liable to make it fall. Also don't close the oven door harshly the jar will have the same effect of flattening the cake. Don't use a broom splinter to test the cake, but a good long steel hat pin. Don't pierce the cake from the center on top when testing, but thrust in sideways from the edge of the pan. Don't add raisins, currants, or nut meats to the cake mixture, till first they are dredged in flour, as this prevents them sinking to the bottom. Don't neglect to sift a little flour into the bottom of the cake tin, after it has been greased, as this prevents scorching of the cake and is a better substitute than the old method of paper lining. After removing cake from the oven, allow it to cool gradually, and place it in a position where it may cool from the under side. For instance on the grate shelf, on back of stove. Don't cut the cake to serve till thoroughly cold.

Presumably most of the Corner sisters are familiar with all of these suggestions, but to those young house keepers, who are on the alert for helpful ideas I hope this may bring good results.

I was pleased to attend the Social Corner meeting at Norwich, Nov. 5, where a large gathering of sisters was present.

Best wishes and success to the Corner.

JENNIE.

NEW YORK STATE HEARD FROM

Dear Social Corner: Greetings to all. Thanksgiving is almost here, and besides the many other things to be thankful for, is the number of real friends I have among the Social Corner sisters. I would love to meet with you often, but it is not possible Dear Hoxanna. Wince tells me that many inquire about me. Thank you. Also that a long time ago my name was called. I surely wanted to answer but you know how one thinks "I'll get time tomorrow" and tomorrow never comes. Perhaps you would like to hear about my work this summer. I had to coax some before my husband and family consented but they finally gave in gracefully and agreed to help out with the housework and I can go. I went back among old friends (for I had worked there before), in a large photo and kodak studio. There are probably at least 50 places in Syracuse where amateur photography and snap shots are developed and printed, but Doust's is the largest. They have agencies in 60 places of business. There were four of us all the time and extra help on Tuesdays. Most every one knows the routine of the work. A girl, developed all the rolls, packs and plans. She and I cut them up, and two did nothing but print. My work was inspecting, matching and putting up orders, after putting the prints through the washing machine and gas drier. We got out 2200 pictures on some Tuesdays, and averaged 30,000 prints a month through the summer months. I inspected many beautiful views, a great many comic ones, but the average were souvenirs of trips taken by auto and showed enjoyment and happiness.

Although the summer was late getting here few have had cause to complain about their gardens. We brought in cucumbers Nov. 1 and crisp tender lettuce as late as the 13th. Syracuse covers a radius of six miles. We live two and one-half miles from center and for several years have rented two building lots across the street for a garden. It cost us $5 to have it plowed and harrowed (80x160 feet) and $2 for fertilizer, lots of hard work, (for my husband makes it a picture) and best of all, we have everything in season for our table, fresh, with plenty to can.

As I read the letters from so many different towns it reminds me of the three years of teaching in Canterbury, North Franklin and Lebanon and the semi monthly dances in Lebanon Grange hall.

Some one speaks of a Social Corner register. Do you have both the real and the penname of people? If so, please some one ask Santa Claus to bring me one.

How many of the sisters are fond of playing cards? Now, now! Don't look so horrified. My eyes will not allow me to read or sew at night, so my husband and I play cribbage, the loser to pay for tickets to our weekly trip to the movies. Its lots of fun. No, it does not all come out of the same pocket-book, for we each have our personal money every payday.

Almost Christmas! The crowds in the stores will not bother me for I have most of my shopping done, and ready for sending.

Best wishes to the Norwich Bulletin and our Social Corner.

A GOOD FIGHTER.

GETTING DINNER ON SHORT NOTICE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Circumstances alter cases so I hear. Six relatives wrote me they would be here for dinner on the 9th, so I made a big beef and vegetable soup, alas! They came Armistice day, and I had not much on hand. The broth was all gone. I ground up some bread and mixed with the vegetables added sage, salt and pepper and fried it in bacon fat, browning all over. I had shaped it like sausages. I made some Rhode Island johnny cakes, boiled a few sweet potatoes, steeped the tea and rang the dinner bell.

I heard no complaint. Hubby said don't cook my old shoes, I need them. High prices don't knock at my door.

Come to dinner John and Mary Gusta. It's an invite to Social Corner pals.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCES

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is nice to be remembered in such a pleasant way, by receiving birthday postal cards from friends near and far away. Sisters of the Social Corner, I wish to thank one and all who so kindly sent me cards on my birthday, Nov. 8th. We received cards from the following members, Potlatch, Joan, Hepatica, Crimson Rambler, Balsam Fir, Delish Deal, Anna Mell, Peggy Alder and Whirlwind.

Rural Aunty: The day you saw me and spoke of patch work my mind was taken up by the election and in seeing the ladies vote for the first time.

Nessie Grey: I was glad to see your letter in the Corner page and learn that you are now a member of the one big family. The only regret you will have is you will wish you had come in long ago. You have a nice family of girls. Let us hope they will all join the Corner sometime in the near future.

Crimson Rambler: We did smile when we read your letter in the Corner page in regard to the radio, saying you have been informed it can only be used nights with good results. This is a mistake as the radio can be used at all times the same as the telephone. The radio can be used more in the winter months then in summer as there are more or less thunder showers which makes it unpleasant as they can be plainly heard for many miles away which makes a snapping and cracking noise. At the same time the radio is one grand comfort in any home.

As the winter is drawing near and vacations and picnics must be over for some time the writers can find ample time to fill the Corner page with letters of interest and profit to all. Please remember you could not please the editor any better than to fill the Corner page with anything the mind will suggest that will make a drawing card for the paper. With all kinds of good wishes to our patient editor and the whole Corner family, I remain the same.

RURAL DELIVERY.

SEASONABLE SALAD RECIPES.

Dear Corner Sisters: A salad may undisputably be made one of the most palatable dishes served at a meal if the right combination is hit upon and a sufficient amount of dressing well oiled, is added to make it wholesome. The greatest asset of the salad, however, is its seasonableness, for no matter what the month is, whatever vegetable then in market may be served cold in salad form. The following simple recipes are especially suitable to a fall menu:

Celery and Potato Salad: Mix an equal amount of cold boiled potatoes and celery, chopped fine, and one grated button-onion. Stir in a French dressing an hour before serving.

Celery and Apple Salad: Add to an equal amount of celery and apples, finely minced, one-fourth cup of chopped English walnuts, and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Celery, Asparagus and Fruit Salad: To one can of asparagus tips add equal parts, cut fine, of celery, oranges, and white grapes (stoned). Arrange asparagus in the center of a flat dish. Place other ingredients around it and pour over all a stiff mayonnaise.

Oysterettes: I made oysterettes by mixing one cup of chopped beef with one cup of chopped potato, one egg beaten light, salt and pepper to taste. Drop them by the spoonful in hot fat and fry a golden brown.

Hot Ham Loaf: Boil a three-pound ham shank until tender, cut from bone and mince it fine. Add one cup of cracker crumbs, one beaten egg, one cup sweet milk, one tablespoon butter and a dash of pepper. Shape into loaf. Pour one cup hot water around it and bake in hot oven 35 minutes, basting with melted bacon grease or hot butter. Serve with cream sauce.

Lemon Filling for Layer Cake: Beat one egg in a bowl. In a granite sauce pan bring to a boil one cup of sugar, one tablespoon of butter and the juice and outer rind of one lemon; add beaten egg and stir constantly until thick.

Boiled Chocolate Icing: Mix together two tablespoons of cocoa, three tablespoons of sugar and one-third glass of water and let thicken over a gentle flame, stirring constantly. Continue beating while it cools; then spread on the cakes and dry in the oven.

SOME RECIPES WANTED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If this weather keeps on my lead pencil will freeze so hard I can't write.

Enjoyed the last meeting at Franklin hall very much. Selinda made an excellent hostess even if Filinda did get the credit in the Chronicle.

Eliza Jane: Can't you send us in the recipe for that lovely salad? What kind of dressing do you use?

Wish the maker of that crab salad would send in the recipe for the salad and dressing also.

Olga: I had a piece of the cake you brought and it was delicious. If you will send in the recipe for the cake and also the frosting, I'd like to try it.

THE THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Dear Corner Members: When planning the Thanksgiving dinner, the first things to be decided are necessarily the number of people to be served, and the amount of money to be expended. American housewives are still inclined to adhere to the old-fashioned menu of our grandmothers. But the change in marketing and prices makes it seem more practical to follow only the general character of this time-honored menu. Because of the memories and traditions centered around this day, it has become, above all others, the home festival of the year, the dinner being a tangible proof of nature's bounty and the housewife's skill, each vying with the other.

Of late years, with the advancement of household science, much more thought has been put into the serving of the Thanksgiving dinner, both from the standpoint of food combination and the order of courses. Now it is generally acknowledged among housewives of repute that the first course of a dinner should be a light one, merely to stimulate the appetite. If one wishes to start the dinner with oysters, as was the old-time custom, oyster canapes will be a pleasant change from oysters on the half shell or oyster soup, or if the housewife has planned to serve them with the turkey the first course can be a vegetable canape or fruit cocktail. When the cost of the menu is limited, the turkey, usually the crowning glory of the dinner, should be selected first, then the other courses made to conform to the amount one wishes to spend.

The turkey may be served with simple but well seasoned bread stuffing and a sauce made of the giblets and drippings in the roasting pan. If not too expensive, however, the stuffing may be made with either oysters or chestnuts. Mushrooms can be sautered in the pan where the turkey was roasted and combined with the giblet sauce, or they may be sautered, rolled in chopped parsley and used as a garnish. Little red glace apples make a pretty garnish, and baked bananas also go well with turkey. Another appetising garnish is tiny balls of fresh country sausage baked and rolled in chopped parsley and paprika.

Serving chicken pie with the turkey, as is done in some parts of the country, is neither necessary nor advisable. If chicken be served at all with turkey, it would be better to serve it with an entree in timbale cases with mushrooms, or made into cutlets. When two meats are desired, thin slices of baked ham or little balls of fresh sausage will be a pretty garnish and very appetizing with the turkey. Relishes may be olives, celery, mangoes, or some favorite home-made pickle.

Cranberries, which of course is absolutely necessary to the Thanksgiving menu, may be served in the old-fashioned sauce or strained jelly, or if glace apples are used with the turkey they can be made the day before, chilled, and filled with cranberry jelly. Two vegetables are usually served with this course. The starchy one either sweet or white potato, and the other some green vegetable in season. If one wishes, boiled rice can be substituted for potatoes, but it never should be served with them. Baked squash, scalloped onions, cream salsify, stuffed eggplant, creamed turnips or cauliflower may be chosen for the fresh vegetable, and as they are in season, will add but little to the cost of the menu.

MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Thanksgiving season is with us again and I am sure we all have many things to be very thankful for and in reality we are not thankful enough to Him who spares our lives from year to year and gives us so much beauty in nature to enjoy and many wonderful things: for sunshine and rain, summer and winter. We are also thankful for peace that prevails throughout our country, for the security of home and home ties and all the blessings and pleasures that come to us from one day to another.

It is interesting to find some of the treasures in nature's storehouse and such was my luck at one time, when I was at the seashore. On evening a number of us were fishing and as the fish poles hit the water or were moved swiftly through it there was a veritable Fourth of July fireworks that were sparkling in every direction. There were atoms of light in the water that might have been taken for lightning bugs or fire-flies, but when the water was agitated the effect was something unusual and wonderful to those that live inland and know not the secrets of the sea. But I learned that the phosphorescent light and these minutes sparks were one of the Noctilucidae, a protozoan or low form of life. They are very tiny but travel in such great numbers that the phosphorescence which is in a layer just under the skin, gives the light appearance to the water and make the sparks when disturbed as they live near the surface of the water. They are said to be a sort of minute jelly fish but can create marine fireworks that are interesting. Now I suppose you will wonder about the fish. Did we get any? Yes, bushels. It was one exciting time. I had a market basket nearly full to my credit and the largest one measured thirteen inches. A Japanese wizard with fishing tackle was heard to say that eel, mackeral ro scallops were the best bait, for those fish and his skill proved it beyond a doubt.

Nannie Lu and Student: Why so silent and why do we never see you?

WOULD WELCOME CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

Dear Members of the Social Corner: The roll call was a splendid idea. Each week I've meant to send in a few words of greeting, but extra duties, etc., kept me busy here. The recipes, ideas and the interesting accounts of meetings and the trips taken on by the writers, are all of great interest to me.

One of the sisters wrote of using flour, sugar and fine grain bars. I have made a luncheon set of some of the oblong ones for each plate also tray cloths. Each one is bagged with narrow blue and white checked gingham. They make very dainty table sets. The small sugar bags are about the right size, but those I mean are ten pound bags. You may have the bands narrow on smaller pieces and wider on table cloths. They can be used for bed quilt linings and for piecing. I have made napkins of the finer ones hemstitching or fringing them.

Brown Sugar Cake: 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup white sugar, 1 1-2 large tablespoons shortening, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 1-2 cup coffee (left from breakfast), 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, flour to make right consistency. I use 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and a handful of raisins.

You can add dates, figs, and nuts for richer cake. It also can be made with 1 cup of butter milk leaving out the coffee. Use shortening if butter milk is rich.

I was glad to read of Mavis' visit to Bald Hill in Union or Mt. Ochepetuk. One gets very close to nature in all its wonder and beauty. God's in his Heaven, all's right with the world" one feels to be true here.

It is one of my greatest pleasures to visit the mountain home. I feel each time what a wonderful place has been opened to the public and how grateful we should be for the privileges to enter the private home filled with the curiosities from all over the world gathered by the wonderfully cultured hostess who is so willing to share its beauty with all who are interested. On a clear morning I've seen Mt. Monadnock, Northampshire, 100 miles away.

One feels anew in the vast space and quiet the verse Peace Be Still. The visit always rests and gives one Peace from all trials.

The fringed gentians grow abundantly here in spots. I wonder if it can be rooted or transplanted. I've seen as many as 200 blossoms picked in a small place in the meadow. It does not spread out but keeps just the one place.

Here some one send in some ideas for Christmas gifts. We who are far from the town would all be glad I am sure.

Success to the Corner.

DELIGHTED WITH MEMBERS AND MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I attended my second meeting at the Buckingham Memorial and had a lovely time. I also want to see your dear friends, you want to be at the club meetings.

Chrysanthemum: I hope I will see you in December. Will you love me the same as you did in April?

I would like to hear from Lucy Acorn. It is a long time since we have heard from her. I met a good many sisters, Nellie Bly, Chocolate, Nec, and True Blue and hope to meet more next meeting. Such friendly people! I wish I could attend them so much. The speaking was fine also the music. With best wishes from

THANKS TO HELPERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am writing just a few lines which I should have done before to thank the sisters for helping me at our last meeting at the Buckingham as I had so little ambition that day if it had not been I had such good helpers I think that the sisters would have had to help themselves. With good help they had all that they wanted to eat and drink. If there was anyone that did not get enough to eat it was their own fault, as we had plenty of everything except salad. Am feeling some better now but not very well yet. It is such lovely weather I think I will try and go for a little ride this afternoon. Again I want to thank all of the sisters that helped me. With best wishes to you all from a Social Corner sister.

PICNIC AT EAST KILLINGLY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have just returned from the picnic held at the East Killingly Baptist church. We had a beautiful day and enjoyed the early ride from Putnam. We were right on time one of the sisters had just opened the door. We enjoyed the dinner very much which consisted of salads, pies, cakes, cheese, pickles, beans, jello, doughnuts, tea, coffee. The tables were decorated with Hallowe'en trimmings. The sisters with orange caps made it appear more gay than ever. After we had done justice to all the good things, a social time and an entertainment followed. Esmaralda, Lilac Lady and Caro certainly deserve credit for what they did. I can truly say I had the best time of any I have ever attended.

THE POWER TO PICK MEN.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Having read the story in Woman's Home Companion written by Bruce Barton, "The Man Who Nobody Knows," everyone who has that magazine I know will thoroughly enjoy it. What interested me so much was how differently Jesus looked at people than the majority of people do. Jesus had that wonderful power to pick men and to recognise hidden capacities in them. It must have amazed Nicodemus when he learned the names of the twelve whom the young teacher had chosen to be His associates.

What a list! Not a single well known person in it; nobody who had ever made a success of anything. A haphazard collection of fishermen and small town business men, and later one tax collector, Matthew, a member of the most hated community. What a crowd! There was the rich man, Zaccharus, who had gotten himself distrusted and disliked. He climbed the tree to see this distinguished visitor and imagine his surprise when Jesus stopped under the tree and commanded him to come down, saying "Today I intend to eat at your house," and how some of the crowd who had a bolder spirit took it upon themselves to tell Jesus of his social blunder. He couldn't afford to make this mistake of visiting Zaccheaus, merely a dishonest little Jew. Jesus saw in him a man of unusual generosity and a fine sense of justice, who needed only to have these qualities revealed by someone who understood. So with Matthew. The crowd only saw a despised tax collector. Jesus saw in him the ability to write a book that would stand forever. Then there was the centurion who was one of anonymous character in history that every business man would like to meet. The disciples brought him to Jesus with some misgivings and apology. Of course, this man is a Roman employe and you may reprove us for introducing him. Jesus and the centurion looked at each other, found an immediate bond of union and responded to the other's strength. Said the centurion: "Master, my daughter is ill but it is unnecessary for you to visit my house. I understand how such things are done, for I, too, am an executive. I say to a man go and he goeth, to another come and he cometh; to a third do this and it is accomplished. Therefore, speak one word and I know my daughter will be healed." Jesus face kindled with admiration. "I have not found anywhere such faith as this." He exclaimed.

And all disciples, Simon Peter was most aggressive and noisy. If was he who was always volunteering advice and always proclaiming the staunchness of his own courage and faith. One day Jesus said to him: "Before the cock crows tomorrow you will deny me thrice." Though they killed him, he cried, he would never deny. Jesus smiled. That night it happened.

A lesser leader would have dropped Peter. Jesus had the rare understanding. The same man will not usually make the same mistake twice.

Having gathered His organization together, there remained for Jesus the tremendous task of training it, and herein the third great element of His success—His vast unending patience. The church attached to each disciple the title saint and thereby did much to destroy the conviction of their reality. They were very far from sainthood when He picked them up. For three years He had them with Him day and night. His whole energy and resources poured out in an effort to create an understanding in them. Yet through it all they never fully understood. The Bible presents an interesting collection of contrasts in this matter of executive ability. Samson had all the attributes of leadership, yet he failed miserably. He could not organize. John the Baptist had the same weakness. He drew crowds who were willing to repent at his command, but he had no program after their repentance, so his followers drifted away and his movements gradually collapsed.

Jesus started with much less reputation than John and a much smaller group of followers. Yet because of the fire of His personal conviction, because of His marvelous instinct for discovering their latent powers, and because of His unwavering faith and patience, He molded them into an organization which carried on victoriously.

Jesus believed the way to get faith out of men is to show you have faith in them.

FRUIT PASTILLES

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: I have been napping a long while since the roll call roused me by while doing and dreaming about other things but hasten to reply here—but we forget our duty while travelling through this busy world of ours. The Social Corner is rightly named. We are all one family, each of us reading our weekly letters, while wishing the Social Corner may live long and flourish.

Fruit Pastilles: One pound dates stoned and chopped. 1 pound raisins seeded and chopped. 1 cup Enellsh walnuts and chopped.

Chop all together again roll in little balls, roll in granulated sugar, press flat and put 1-2 walnut meat on top. Keep a week before eating.

Hope you will like them: we did.

I will take for my pen name

RUG MAKING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is so long since I have written that I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know what I am doing.

I have been making rugs again, only I have started earlier this winter. I have two all made. Have any of you sisters ever tried to make a rug on a frame? I take four boards one inch thick, two five feet long and two three feet long for the width, nut them together at the corners with bolts, and then put little screws on the inside of the side boards an inch apart so as to hook the string. Get some good strong string and hook the string from one hook to another until you get to the end then tie it tight. You then tie two steel rods at the ends of the screws on the inside of the top board, so the rug will be straight when done. Take a rag put it over the rod and one string and knot, cutting it over the other rod and under the next string and under the next rag this way you have no sewing to do and it is very easily. If any of the sisters nearby would like to learn to make one of these rugs I will be willing to show them how if they will step in and see me.

Rural Aunty: You say you would like to get better acquainted with me. Well you see my address. Write to me and send me yours. I will write to you.

Balsam Fir: I see by your letter you have had quite a husking bee. I would have liked to have been there and had some of your feed.

Delish Deal: I like your idea of the Social Corner pin for street wear. Hope to hear more from you soon.

Daisy Dean: How are you? I would like to drop in and have a cup of tea with you.

Lonesome: I received your letter allright. Will answer soon, but I did not go the 20th. There was no one around me that was going in a machin. Hope you are well and got over that cold.

Here is a recipe for Thanksgiving candy

Potato Fudge: Cook one medium sized potato and mash good, then add frosting sugar until thick, a little vanilla extract and all the cocoanut you want. Have the candy good and hard and spread on a wax paper to cool. Then melt two squares of chocolate and pour on the top. We like it very much and it is quickly made.

I will now close, wishing all the sisters and editor a happy Thanksgiving.

ROSY POSY.

WHATS THE SECRET ABOUT COFFEE

Dear Social Corner: I have been trying some of the recipes I find on the Social page and came out o. k. with cakes. I tried to follow the candy recipe for making fondant and the fondant refused to become hard enough to handle. It will have to dry and harden some time but I can not wait and I guess I will chicken it with confectioners sugar and proceed with my candy making. I have made cream candy a number of times in small quantities and trusted in my practice for making the fondant. Lack of the candy thermometer and being out of practice are the reasons, I guess, for my failure to boil the sugar and water solution up to the right temperature. I will have a candy thermometer as soon as I know how to use it. I find they are $1.50 and $2.00 each. What puzzles me about them and the clerk could not tell me is how to submerge the glass covered mercury bulb under the surface of the steaming hot liquid without cracking the glass. And what keeps the thermometer from sliding down to the bottom of the sauce pan. I guess there is some feature that keeps it where you want it to stay. Seems as though the mercury would not find enough outlet through the small tube for its sudden expansion from say 75 degrees to 150 degrees or more. I guess I could put the bulb into warm water until that water began to steam and then transfer it to the steaming candy liquid without risking a break in the bulb and may be it will not break anyway. To anyone who uses the thermometer I guess its use is simple and I can see how it would help in candy making.

Uncle Sam's Daughter: Will you further explain the candy thermometer to Aunt Mary's daughter. Making candy is interesting work and I think I would like it if I knew more about the thermometer. Also can you send in a recipe for marshmallows using the white of eggs instead of the commercial way of using gum arabic.

Was not the sale of Sunday night terrific! I see by the New York newspaper and our own Norwich Bulletin, it was the cause of some deaths and property destruction. Our house rocked some and a few of our blinds slammed. We slept before morning and woke up to find daylight and every thing intact.

Maybe the breakfast coffe tasted unusually good. Why is it some people can make coffe that will send its aroma way up to your bed room and taste so good, while others can not make it to either taste or smell as good? Any secret about it? I use the same coffee and follow the same directions that my neighbor does and I do not have the same success with it that she does. What can be the matter with mine?

Nat and Jane Any one in the farm: Why do we not hear more about your farm, about the fruit, the vegetable, the live stock, the chickens and eggs, and the turkeys? I can almost hear them gobble. As it is so near the holidays, I think I will close my letter by wishing you all a happy Thanksgiving, a merry Christmas and a wonderfully good new year.

ALOISE JANET.

COOKING PUMPKIN AND QUINCE

Dear Editor and Members of the Corner: As the store has not been very full for several weeks I thought I would write a few lines to help fill it up. I am glad to see so many new members and hope they will write often. The letters are so nice. I wish I could meet all and hope to some time.

Delish Deal: We are waiting to hear your super cake for a pin.

Black Pansy: Where are you?

Aunty No. 1: Used to live in Lebanon and often go there for my vacation. I wish I knew who you are. I have not seen any thing from Theoda or Peggy Anne of late.

I was sorry to read of Salome's death.

Carg: Please send in the poem you read.

Did any of the sisters ever preserve pumpkin with quinces? I use an equal quantity of each, peel cut in pieces and cook separately in water to cover until tender but not soft enough to break. Drain off the water from each and use three quarter pound of sugar to one pint of liquid. Put in kettle boil up and add fruit, cook slowly on back of range until soft and the color is dark red. I boil the seeds in a little water and add to the syrup when cooking. We like it very much. Seal in glass jars while hot. Be sure and get the real sugar pumpkin as that is of better flavor.

Alpha Z: We must be neighbors; not far distant any way. Let's try to keep the page full. Perhaps we can start a Social Corner club up this way some time as was suggested by Peggy Anne last fall. Will say good bye and best wishes to all members of the Corner.

MAVIS.

HOW LITTLE DO WE APPRECIATE OUR BLESSINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As the Thanksgiving season draws near most of us are real busy making preparations for it. It is one of the most delightful days of all the year. How many things we all have to be thankful for! I have just been reading an article in one of our popular magazines entitled Nothing To Be Thankful For. The story is about two young girls, one brought up in the richest of homes having every tiful father and mother but made the sad mistake of yielding to her various wishes, when she could have absolutely everything she wished for, simply for the asking, beautiful clothes, a new automobile, all the good times she could possibly take in, in fact there seemed to be nothing left out of her life that could add to her happiness, and yet when a little disappointment came to her on Thanksgiving day, she declared she had nothing to be thankful for. The other girl had not near as many pennies in a year as this one had dollars in a month and yet she always had something to be glad about. O, she says I have so much to be thankful for. I thought, as I read that story, how true it is in so many cases. How little we do appreciate the many blessings bestowed upon us. We cannot all possess fine riches, or enjoy expensive luxuries, but we can all be thankful, and show our appreciation by being kind and forgiving to one another.

"Let me today do something that shall live
A little sadness from the world's store
And may I be so favored as to make
Of joy's too scanty sum a little more

However measure be my worldly wealth,
Let me give something that shall aid my kind,
A word of courage, or a thought of health,
Dropped as I passed for troubled hearts to find.

Let me tonight look back upon the span
'Twixt dawn and dark, and to my conscience say
Because of some good act to beast or man,
The world is better that I lived to day."

True Blue: What a nice time we did have, didn't we? Am still reading the book. It is real interesting.

Chelsea: Hope you had good luck with that recipe I gave you. How did they all like it?

For the benefit of myself and others who have chosen a name so nearly like mine, I am going to ask our editor if he will allow me to change my pen name from Blue Bell to the name of a white Dawn and with his permission will sign myself as such.

FINE TIME AT BOTH MEETINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Good morning all. I want to thank all the sisters who sent me cards on my birthday: True Blue, Rosy Posy, Till We Meet Again, Kentucky Wonder, Wrinkle, Lilac Lady, Nema, Remeber Me, Mary France, Olive, Foxglove, Foxglove's Mother, Katy Did, Joan, Black Eyed Susie, Necia, Marigold, Rose Lee, Scottie, Airy, Anastasia, Wiltwyck, Elisa Jane, White Clover, and Neighbor Eyeready, and any names I have failed to mention. Did not realize so many remembered me like that. I had the good fortune to attend the greetings of both club No. 1 and No. 2. There was a good attendance at both meetings with the usual good things to eat and a very good programme at both places.

Mr. Whirlwind went with me to the Willimantic meeting and enjoyed it very much although he was not feeling very good. Said he felt like a cat in a strange garret among so many women.

Betty T: I enjoyed your song of Katy Lee and Willie Grey. I used to know it once upon a time but had forgotten it.

Black Eyed Susie: Enjoyed your solo very much. Hope to hear you again.

Guess: Was sorry not to see you at either meeting. Stopped to see Elmer a few minutes. You missed a good time and Mayme is still looking for your visit. Baby is fine.

Balsam Fir: Glad to see a letter from you.

Diana: Did you get my letter? Have just sent you a card also.

Keziah Doolittle: You do yourself proud, do so some more. Did not see you at the Buckingham. Where were you?

Don Pedro: Sorry I did not see you at the meeting, but glad you are able to be about and enjoy the meetings once more. I was away on my vacation. Will write you soon.

Catnip: So glad to have met you and hope to have the pleasure to meet you often. How do you like the Corner as far as you have gone?

Twice Twenty: Are you real cross with me 'cause I disappointed you? It was unavoidable and I was more sorry than any one else. Have you had your phone taken out? Could not get you any way and you owe me a letter. Trust you are both well.

In closing will wish the editor as well as the sisters all a very pleasant Thanksgiving. Do not eat too much turkey.

OVER 60 YEARS OF SUCCESS

UNCLE JOHN GOES TO NEW YORK

When I got ready to go to Babylon, L. I., my friends there wrote and told me that when I got to the Grand Central I better take a taxi to the Penn. station as I might get lost if I took a trolley. It seemed foolish to me to pay so much for a taxi and besides I was tired of riding so I decided to hoof it. I asked a policeman the way and he advised me to take a taxi too. When I insisted on walking he acted as if he thought I was crazy and I thought he was going to arrest me. But finally he told me which direction to go and I started.

Everything went along all right for a while, then when I went to cross a street a policeman held up his hand and everyone stopped short. I said to the man next to me, "Where is the fire Mr?" He said there was not any fire. I said, "What are we all standing here for then?" He said it was to let the people and cars from the cross town streets go by. It seems they let the people on some of the streets go a little way and then they have to stop and let the people on the cross streets go. That avoids accidents.

I thought it was a great scheme and when I got home and wanted to put the sheep in one pasture and the cows in another I tried it on them, but when I raised my hand it scared the sheep and they went lickety split over the wall and through the clothes yard where Sarah was hanging out clothes. The old ram went head first into the clothes basket but not until he had upset Sarah and she went down ker thump. By the time she had picked herself up the ram had got out of the basket and went sailing around the house with my pajama's caught on his horns and flapping around his head. Sarah has always thought I did it a purpose.

But I started to tell you about my trip to New York. I walked and walked but did not see anything of a railroad station. After a while I stopped a man on the sidewalk and asked him where I was and how I got there. He said, "Hmph, cgr, ik, oof." I thought he must be an escaped lunatic so I said "thank you" and walked on. I told Sarah about it and she said probably he was tongue tied or didn't have any palate. Well, maybe so, but I think I had a narrow

NEW LONDON COUNCIL TO KEEP MOHICAN FERRY ON GROTON ROUTE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 21.—A special meeting of the city council was held at 5 o'clock this evening, when it was voted to give the city manager authority to advertise for bids to operate the ferryboat between New London and Groton during the year ensuing from Dec. 1 next. The city manager communicated to the council that the suggestion had been made to dispose of the double-end ferryboat Mohican and procure a smaller boat that would accommodate passengers only. That course was not regarded as one the city should take at this time, as it was represented that to lay up the Mohican would be a questionable procedure, although no offer had been made for the Mohican, the time was not such as would bring people into the market for a boat. In the winter months when there were automobile travel the city manager believed there would be a demand for a boat and then the city's steamer would be disposed of, if such a course was deemed the proper one to pursue. The selectmen of the town of Groton were present and they presented a petition signed by 285 residents of the town of Groton asking for the continuance of the service as it had been managed the past year. Groton to pay 65 per cent. of any deficit occasioned and New London to pay 75 per cent., the ratio during the year to date. Selectman Clark S. Wiley, speaking for Groton, declared that while the town had not held a special meeting to authorize the selectmen to make the arrangement that was in force during the 12 months to date, he was confident such authority would be given and that the arrangement to be made would be such as would be to the satisfaction of New London. He said the people of Groton had only praise for the way the ferry had been operated and declared that the relations between the officials of the two towns had been such that a renewal of them was devoutly desired. He said the town had received a statement each month of the ferry's business and Groton wanted nothing but a continuance of the relations. The suggestion was made that in the event of seeking bids that the lowest bidder's offer, if from a responsible party, must be accepted. Councilor Fox asked if there was no way by which the present lease could be extended. He was told that there was no such way, but that bids must be asked for anew. It was decided to ask for them and the city manager was directed to so proceed. The bids will be sought and obtained by Wednesday next, so that a lease can be consummated.

William Decker, a sailor aboard U. S. S. Red Wing, one of the many craft that is stationed at this port in the revenue service, and more particularly the chasing of rum runners, is a prisoner at the police station, being held for the naval authorities. Decker went to the ship, which is moored at the state pier, this afternoon, intoxicated. When he was about to be taken into custody by the ship's crew, Decker showed fight, and plenty of it. He overpowered his would-be captors and, when an attempt was made to shackle him, he seized the shackles and hurled them into the Thames river. Decker was finally overpowered and held until Sergt. Nelson Smith and Patrolman Howard Sloan responded to a call from the executive officer of the ship for assistance. The officers took Decker into custody and tomorrow he will be taken to the submarine base for a summary court-martial.

Elwood W. Bailey and Miss Alice L. Parker, both of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Funeral services for George Ratcliffe were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at 46 Shanley street, Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. The body was forwarded to Middletown for burial tomorrow.

An enclosure was constructed today at the corner of State and Bank streets, from where the new traffic signal will be operated. The traffic officers will be housed to protect them from the elements during the severe weather that is approaching and as the corner is one of the coldest in the city when winter weather prevails, the "house" will afford the operating officers much comfort.

Frank Delmore, clerk at the Groton branch of the New London postoffice, has resumed his duties, having been confined to his home on Spring street several days by illness.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Barney Zaslow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Zaslow, 34 Wall street, to Miss Nettie Levine, New York.

Wilbur Cooper of Pequot avenue is spending the week-end with relatives in Springfield, Mass.

William Cullom, who was stricken with a shock earlier in the week, is reported at Lawrence hospital to be resting comfortably.

T. R. Kryskowski was charged in the police court this morning with having practiced a game of swindling upon Antoninio Robicky, a mill girl. Miss Robicky is of an impulsive turn of mind and has secured patents on articles that she expects to be of general use. This fact was known to the man she accuses so he, by schemes and plans proposed that she sell the patent rights for a sum of something like $8,000. By his blandishments and false representations, it is alleged that he secured from Miss Robicky some $30 in cash and by other means got $300 in total. Then he went to the suburbs of Camden, N. J., where he was located through information that came to New London. A warrant for his arrest was sent to Camden and he was located, but it was found that though he waived extradition he could not be taken from Jersey without the consent of the Governor of that state at the request of the governor of Connecticut. It was easy to obtain such a request and Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh was sent after the man accused. He returned with him today. There are so many facts yet to be learned about the transaction on which Kryskowski is said to have participated in that continuance of the case was necessary and it went over till next week Saturday. A bond to hold the accused was ordered in $1,000. This was not supplied so Kryzkowski went to jail for a stay of about ten days. The fellow had $117 in his possession when arrested in Jersey.

George Wilson, 19, of Station 8, Waterford, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court this forenoon, charged with reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs and took an appeal. A bond of $400 for Wilson's appearance in the court of common pleas was ordered and Richard Smith, Waterford, qualified as surety.

Wilson, in company with Hugh Casey, 20, of Station 6, Waterford, and John Bauer, 20, of 198 Ledyard street, this city, riding in Wilson's car along the state highway on Mallory Hill, Waterford, late last night while the machine was speeding toward New London the automobile, owned and operated by William Powers, 140 Crystal avenue, this city and headed toward New London, was overtaken. Wilson attempted to pass Powers' car and had almost succeeded in doing so when the Wilson car side-swipped Powers' machine. The speed of Wilson's car was so great that it careened from Powers' car and plunging along the side of the highway a distance of approximately 50 feet, crashed against a telephone pole and overturned, the Buick sedan landing upon its enclosure, which was crushed to a pulp. Wilson and Bayer escaped injury, but Casey got a lacerated neck. The state police barracks at Groton, were notified of the accident and Officers Giles F. Watson and Stanley Bangs, who were assigned to investigate the crash, ordered Wilson into court. Both machines were damaged, Wilson's car being a total wreck. On the witness stand Wilson admitted the speed of his car at the time of the accident to have been 30 miles an hour.

Mrs. Reuben Shaw, of Providence, Mrs. Walter Miner, Ashaway, R. I., and Dorothy and James Beard, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Patrolman Walter Rohn discovered a water-pipe burst in the unoccupied cottage at 43 Dyke street and water deluging the interior of the place. The officer caused the supply of water to be shut off. Officer Rohn also reported that the wind of the past few days had demolished a window in the unoccupied George C. Preston cottage, 20 Mott avenue, Neptune park.

Andrew J. Bradley, 48, caretaker of the estate of the late Senator Frank Bosworth Brandegee for about fourteen years, died in his home on the estate early this morning suddenly, death resulting from a heart attack. He is survived by his wife. He had been under treatment for heart affection for several weeks and last night suffered a recurrence of the trouble. He was attended by a physician, but expired a few hours later. He was well known among the colored residents of this city.

The Norwich police yesterday requested the New London authorities to instruct Onofre Toupass, 149 Howard street, to raise his automobile, which had been parked on the streets of Norwich four days to be removed to a garage or driven to New London. This forenoon when Patrolman John Sullivan went to the Toupass house he was informed that Toupass had not been home since last Saturday.

Several New Londoners, including Captain of Police Charles A. Finney, Patrolman William Manice and Detective Isadore Hendle, Alfred Labenski and Charles Kaufmann, left here this afternoon at 4 o'clock and will witness the featherweight elimination bouts to take place in Madison Square Garden tonight. The New Londoners are interested principally in the bout between Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, and Bobby Garcia, of Camp Hoblard, Maryland.

Frederick Maynard, who has lost his all know that he was going by and that it would be safe to keep on the sidewalk. Fenn declared that his speed was not 30 miles an hour and said there was no traffic in the street at the particular point where he was apprehended by the officer. "They all hit a speed as fast as I was going," he told Judge Prince. With a word of caution the court allowed Fenn to go unpunished this time, because no one was menaced and no damage resulted from the fast driving.

rowboat twice by theft recently, recovered his craft today and in doing so the thief was also apprehended for Sergeant Nelson Smith arrested Leo Democh, 17, charged with the theft. Maynard did not desire to cause the prosecution of the youth, but insisted that the boat be returned to him in the same condition as it was when stolen. Democh promised to do this.

Mrs. Nellie Tatro, 5 Pearl street, complained to the police this morning that last Saturday her home was entered and that a diamond ring and a fur neck-piece valued at $25.50, was stolen. Mrs. Tatro stated that she suspected a youth of having committed the theft.

Mrs. Tatro's story is given little, if any credence by the police, as she appeared to be eccentric and related having observed a woman on Bank street Thursday wearing the neck-piece and rings. Mrs. Tatro also declared that there was a police officer near at hand and that she refrained from having the wearer of her property arrested as she did not want to bother the officer.

The 74th annual roll call and banquet of Niagara Engine company, No. 1, is to take place Thanksgiving eve. Because of the large attendance of members and guests, the affair, which is generally held in the company's fire house, will take place in the banquet hall in Odd Fellows' building.

Attorneys Thomas F. Dorsey and Max Boyer were appointed by Judge Arthur P. Calkins appraisers of the estate of Thomas C. Brennan at a hearing in the probate court this morning.

John Higgins, a young man who made his twelfth appearance under arrest in the police court this morning, didn't get away with the leniency with which he has generally been treated. His wife was the complainant against him today whereas she has generally solicited leniency for him. She told the court that her husband came home with a chum named Allen last evening and that he had a load of liquor aboard that made him ugly and undurable. John at once proposed that the kitchen stove should be removed to a different room and insisted that he was competent to do the job. Mrs. Higgins held a varying opinion and shied a dishpan of water at John, telling him and Allen to get out while the going was good. The husband was in the mood for argument so Mrs. Higgins called the police and Higgins was locked up over night. In court today Higgins was sent to jail for ten days and ordered to pay $10 into the court treasury. Higgins has been mighty fortunate in the past that he didn't receive his mail at the jail.

Earl Fenn was presented for violation of the motor law that seeks to prevent accidents by insisting upon caution in the operation of automobiles. Policeman Harry Hick saw Fenn driving down Montauk avenue last evening at a pace the officer said was 30 miles an hour. As Fenn passed Willetts avenue he did slow up a bit and did not toot his horn to let Artificial lighting may be used as a means of increasing food consumption and thereby increasing egg production during the season when the days are shortest and egg prices highest. Low-producing stock need lights more than high-producing stock. Light-weight breeds need lights more than heavy breeds with greater food capacity. Artificial lighting enables the commercial poultryman to vary production almost regardless of season, getting high production from both hens and pullets during the fall.

HOW TO USE LIGHT TO HELP POULTRY

Electric lights are best. Use one 40-watt light for each 50 to 75 hens or 200 to 300 square feet of floor space —varying with the size and shape of the pen. Use more lights and smaller lights if necessary to avoid shadows from posts or partitions. Suspend the lights high enough to clear a man's head. Where the ceiling is low, whitewash or white paint will provide sufficient reflection. Where the ceiling is high or not whitened, use reflectors. Five hundred hens are enough to warrant a home-lighting plant. Gas lights, gasoline lanterns, or barn lanterns ay be used where electric lights are not available.

The three most popular systems of lighting are (1) Night lunch; (9 p. m. to 10 p. m.); (2 morning light; (6 a. m. to daylight); and (3) Morning and night light, (6 a. m. to daylight and dusk to 6 p. m.)

The "Night Lunch" system is best for the commercial poultryman who has most at stake and who is willing to look after night feeding. The feeder can check up on birds out of condition at once as they do not leave the roosts. The "Night Lunch" plan provides for the maximum food consumption with the least loss of sleep—which enables the birds to stand up under production longer. A minimum amount of current or light is required but a dinner system is necessary.

"Morning Light" is the dairyman's system and is preferred by those who have to get up early for other duties. Some poultrymen prefer "Morning Light" for heavy breeds.

"Morning and Night Light" is the hired man's system and is preferred by some who have to depend upon hired help.

Early-hatched pullets that get into good production during August of September should be fed very heavily on grain so as to keep production down to 50 per cent. With such treatment, the pullets should lay for two or three months —or until late in October—before starting to molt. The lights should be turned on at the first evidence of molt, as shown by loss of feathers and a drop in the egg production. The process of lighting should delay the molt until January and perhaps entirely avoid it. If such pullets are used for breeding, it is well for them to go through a partial molt during December or January.

Late-hatched pullets should be lighted November 1 whether they are laying or not. If very late, the lights will hurry them to maturity.

For high fall egg production, old hens should be lighted September 1 and continued under lights until sold or until spring, if carried over. Hens that have not started to molt before lighting, will hold up to 50 per cent. production well into November. Hens used for breeding should not be lighted in the fall; or if lighted, the lights should be discontinued early in October. Fall lighting does no apparent harm except that it delays the molt and consequently delays production until the hatching season is well advanced.

Breeding Hens should be lighted January 1, or about three weeks before hatching eggs are required.

The total amount of grain fed should be increased from two to four pounds when lights are used. An increase of four pounds is desirable if the birds will take it and not decrease the amount of mash consumed. It is easy to increase the amount of grain with the "night-lunch" plan because the nine o'clock feeding is almost entirely extra. The four o'clock feeding should be decreased only enough to make the birds hungry for the nine o'clock feeding.

Whatever the system, it is desirable that the feeding be done by hand at the time the lights are turned on. Feeding while the hens are on the perches may be necessary occasionally, but it is not satisfactory as a steady practice.

Water is necessary whenever the birds are lighted, whether it be night or morning.

Time clocks used for turning the electric lights on and off vary all the way from an alarm clock attachment to a special two-circuit time clock. The clock is valuable because it is more regular than a man can possibly be.—R. F. Jones, Connecticut Agricultural College.

STORAGE OF VEGETABLES DURING THE WINTER

"Store surplus vegetables," say table men. The principles of vegetable storage, they say are simple. One must remember that the stored products are alive and must be protected from wilting, freezing and from disease.

They should be carefully handled to avoid bruising and should be given protection from freezing and drying according to their various needs. Over-maturity is another cause of loss in vegetables—particularly with celery, cabbage, and similar crops. Overripe products first lose in quality and then break down and rot.

Four groups of vegetables may be made on a basis of their storage requirements for moisture and temperature. Group one includes the root crops, such as carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips, salsify, winter radishes, celery and kohlrabi. They should have a temperature around 35 degrees and a moist atmosphere to prevent wilting. While these crops will keep well in pits, it is often more convenient to store them in a moist root cellar or to cover them with moist sand or moss and place them in a cool corner of the basement.

Irish potatoes or untrimmed cabbage heads, the second group may be stored in pits, they should be kept moderately dry. Commercially, potatoes are stored in fairly dry, well-ventilated cellars or houses. They should be kept from the light. Cabbage is best kept on shelves, in crates or in small, well ventilated bins.

A third group includes onions, which are covered with relatively impervious skins, so that they are not endangered by wilting, but are very susceptible to rot. A cool dry place is best for them. In the last places are such warm season crops as squash pumpkins and sweet potatoes. If these vegetables are kept at low temperatures, their normal activity is stopped and they soon break down and rot. They are not affected by wilting, as they have either a hard shell, as pumpkins and squash, or a rubber-like gum beneath the surface as the the case with sweet potatoes. Consequently, they keep best in a very dry air at moderate temperatures—between 50 and 60 degrees.

THE BALLAD OF IMITATION.

If they but knit, O Musician, the place
That you played
In naught but a copy of Chopin or Spohr;
That the ballad you sing is but merely "conveyed"
From the stock of the Arnas and the Purcells of yore;
That there's nothing, in short, in the words or the score,
That is not as outworn as the "Whistling Jew;"
Make answer—Beethoven could skilfully do more—
That the man who plants cabbages imitates, too!

If they tell you, Sir Artist, your light and your shade
Are simply "adapted" from other men's love;
That—plainly to speak of a "spade" as a "spade"—
You've "stolen" your grouping from three or from four;
That (however the writer the truth may deplore),
'Twas Gainsborough's painted your "Little Boy Blue;"
Smile only serenely—though cut to the core—

And you, too, my Poet, be never dismayed
If they whisper your Epic—"Sir Eperon d'Or"—
Is nothing but Tennyson thinly arrayed
In a tissue that's taken from Morris' store;
That no one, in fact, but a child could ignore
That you "flit" or "accommodate" all that you do;
Take heart—though your Pegasus' withers be sore—

Postscriptum—And you, whom we all so adore,
Dear Critics, whose verdicts are always so new!
One word in your ear: There were Critics before . . .
And the man who plants cabbages imitates, too!

—Austin Dobson.

A SONG ABOUT LOVE.

Is love like this to you—
Cool and wide and white
Like a window through
Dark, to let in light?

I hardly knew you came,
Yet after you were there
Love was no arrowy flame,
But space and light and air.

Such radiance finds me now,
Compelling me to see,
You must have broken off a bough
Of stars and moons for me!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CONTINUES ACTIVE.

New York, Nov. 21.—Vigorous bullish demonstrations in the low-priced railroad shares, most of which attained new peak prices for the year, featured today's stock market, total sales crossing the 2,000,000 share mark for the ninth time since election day. Sixty-one stocks, 29 of them rails, broke through their previous 1924 maximums.

Prices began to move upward from the start, but the industrial list encountered an enormous volume of profit taking, which it was unable to absorb except at concessions in quoted values. Sporadic rallies took place throughout the session, presumably in response to short covering by large traders.

United States Steel common crossed 117 for the first time since 1918, but later fell back to 115 1-2 where it was off about a point on the day. American Can dropped more than a points to 159 1-2 and Baldwin closed 1 1-4 lower at 124 1-4, total transactions in those issues, however, being relatively small.

Rock Island common was the outstanding feature of the railroad group climbing more than 2 points to 46 3-8, or within four points of the highest price recorded since the reorganization of the company. Western Pacific advanced four points to 33 3-4, sagging to 33 at the close. New Haven, Kansas City Southern, St. Louis Southwestern and Frisco common were among the many other low and medium priced issues to sell at the year's best prices, although the first two cancelled their gains and closed lower on the day. Atchison, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific were among the most active dividend payers, all closing below last night's final quotations after having touched new high levels.

Maxwell Motor issues responded favorably to the announcement that the 7 per cent debenture bonds would be redeemed before maturity in January, both stocks closing about a point higher. Other strong spots in the industrial group were Fisher Body, Goodyear Tire preferred, International Cement, Mathieson Alkali, Pierce Arrow issues, Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United Alloy Steel, Union Bag and Paper and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred, the grains ranging from one to four points.

General Electric, Radio Corporation, American Woolen, American Beet Sugar, American Ice, Associated Dry Goods, International Harvester, Sears-Roebuck and United States Cast Iron Pipe were supplied rather freely throughout the day, closing two to four points lower.

Call money held steady at 2 1-2; time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled about half a cent higher above $4.63 and francs were moderatively active around 5.28 cents. Dutch guilders sold at slight premium during the morning and then slipped back just under par.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 21.—Bond prices bounded upward in the early part of today's active trading session and then crumbled before a heavy onslaught of profit taking. A marked expansion took place in the volume of sales, which exceeded $22,000,000, with foreign obligations and railroad bonds leading in activity.

A solution of the New Haven railroad's refunding problem, indicating that the carriers were assured of strong support in re-financing operations, had a tonic effect on the bonds of other roads which face heavy maturities next year. St. Paul obligations were in great demand, while the New Haven liens responded to the announcement with gains of two points or more, which carried them to 1924 peak prices.

Additional progress made in settling the affairs of the Denver and Rio Grande Western influenced further accumulation of the road's bonds. Many other issues, however, after displaying early strength succumbed to profit taking. These included New York Central 6s, Atchison General 4s, Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s, Erie General 4s, Missouri Pacific 6s and Chicago Great Western 4s.

The reported improvement in the outlook for Wilson and company brought fresh rallies in the corporation's bonds, the 7 1-2s moving up four points and the convertible 6s 1 1-4. Virginia-Carolina 7s and 7 1-2s recovered more than two points.

The recent lull in new financing will be broken next week when offering of the long awaited $100,000,000 French loan is scheduled to be made. Several railroad issues have been placed privately, including $12,945,000 Illinois Central 4 1-2 per cent equipment notes and an issue of about $4,000,000 for the Delaware and Hudson.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 21.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower today's curb market, due to an unusually heavy volume of weak and profit taking.

Oil shares were mixed. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped seven points to 327 while Prairie Oil and Gas dropped four points to 209, most of the other issues moving irregularly but within narrow limits.

Most of the active industrials improved, gains of one to two points were recorded in United Bakeries, Ward B., Pittsburgh Terminal Coal, Childs Company and Glen Alden Coal.

Thermiodyne Radio touched a new record high at 12 1-2 or 1 1-2 points above the recent subscription prices, but most of the other issues in that group lost ground.

Trading in the public utilities was rather quiet, National Power and Light advanced nine points to 169 on a few odd lot sales and Alabama Traction and Power and United Light and Power each moved up about two points while Lehigh Power securities dropped two points.

The curb market admitted to trading today 20,000 shares of no par common stock of the Knox Hat company, Inc., 15,000 shares of the $7 cumulative prior preferred stock and 12,500 shares of non-cumulative 7 per cent second preferred stock.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Corn suffered a sharp setback in price today as a result of enlarged offerings from the new crop. Other grain was unsettled as a consequence, but held within relatively narrow limits. The corn market closed heavy, 2 1-8 to 4 cents net lower, May 119 1-8 to 1.19 1-4, with wheat nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2c higher, December 149 3-4 to 149 7-8 and May 157 5-8 to 157 3-4. Oats 3-8 to 5-8 off, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Weakness in the corn market became acute near the end of the day, and the final transactions were at almost the bottom poin reached. Many holders had apparently become discouraged by the increased amount of new corn arriving here and by an evident lack of any immediate urgent demand.

Assertions that hog feeding promised to be unprofitable counted also as a depressing factor and it was current gossip that farmers were largely getting rid of their livestock so as to curtail feeding.

December delivery of corn underwent the most pronounced decline in price. This circumstance was associated with reports that the country had shown a disposition to sell more freely corn which would be shipped to arrive in Chicago during the last half of December. Another source of weakness in the nearby delivery was that industries were reducing their bids for some of the corn already on track here.

Wheat was upheld by fairly liberal export business, about 1,000,000 bushels. Besides, rain was reported in Northern Argentina, where harvesting is going on and dry weather is wanted.

Most provisions were lower, influenced both by corn and hogs.

FIVE WIVES AND ONE HUSBAND SECURE DIVORCES THEY SOUGHT

Six divorces that were uncontested were granted by Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court here Friday morning, in five of which the petitioners were the wives.

Elizabeth Heydecker of Stonington secured divorce from Frank A. Heydecker of Groton, whom she married Feb. 24, 1913. The ground was intolerable cruelty since Nov. 1, 1920. She was given the custody of an eleven year old daughter.

Anna M. Carbray of this city was granted divorce from John A. Carbray on the ground of habitual intemperance for more than a year past and intolerable cruelty since April 29, 1920, which was the date of their marriage. The wife was granted change of name to Anna M. Barrett.

Josephine Chabotte Crouch of this city was granted divorce from Clive D. Crouch of Lynbrook, L. I., on the ground of habitual intemperance since Jan. 1, 1923. They were married Sept. 23, 1919. The court granted her change of name to Josephine Chabotte.

Mattie Taylor Barnard Bell of New London secured divorce from Carter A. Bell, now of parts unknown, on the ground of desertion since March 30, 1919. They were married June 6, 1905.

Elton R. Downs of New London was successful in securing divorce from Juanita Joel Downs of New Orleans, Louisiana, on the ground of desertion since March 15, 1921. They were married Sept. 17, 1910 and have two daughters. No action as to custody was taken in the case.

Josephine S. Arnold of Groton was granted divorce from Walter Arnold of parts unknown to whom she was married on March 12, 1919. She alleged desertion in November of the same year. She was given the custody of a five year old daughter.

NEW OFFICES FOR GAS AND ELECTRIC

Unable to secure a new lease on their present quarters in the Selden building on Shetucket street at the corner of Water street, the officers of the gas and electrical commission have secured temporary quarters in the old Thames Loan and Trust Co. building on Shetucket street. The use of the first floor and basement has been secured and carpenters are already at work making the necessary changes.

General Manager Charles W. Taggart intends to have the bookkeeping and general offices on the main floor with the other offices in the basement. The new quarters are more commodious than the present quarters and there are better facilities for carrying on the work of the department's business office. The old lobby formerly used by the bank will be used for the convenience of the patrons of the gas and electrical department. The cashier will be located at a counter easily accessible by the patrons of the department. The gas and electrical department's present lease in the Selden building expires December 1st.

The removal of the department to the old Thames Loan and Trust building will mean a change in location for the office of the Norwich chamber of commerce which occupies the office at the present time. Officials of the chamber are making a careful study of available locations. There are available locations upstairs in the building they occupy at present and there are also available offices in the Disco building.

HAD LIVELY FIGHT WITH GRASS FIRE

The fire department was called out by telephone at 2.03 o'clock Friday afternoon to extinguish a fire of burning leaves on the Col. Charles Gale estate on Washington street. In order to conserve water the firemen extinguished the blaze with brooms. A line of garden hose was laid in case of another outbreak. Leaves were being burned in Yantic street and the fire jumped the wall around the estate, setting fire to leaves on the bank.

At 2.25 o'clock another telephone call was answered for a large brush fire on Laurel Hill and shortly afterward a third call was received for a brush fire on Russell road in Greeneville.

Chief Howard L. Stanton cautions the people of Norwich to be especially careful of fires at this time. The city water supply is so low that there is barely enough water to supply the homes and industries and a large blaze where the firemen would be forced to use water would result in a serious drain on the reservoir.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH PLANS ATTENDANCE SUNDAY

The Central Baptist church is planning for a great attendance Sunday on December 7th, when it is hoped that the largest proportion of resident members ever seen in the church on any one Sunday may be present. A goal of 85 per cent. of the resident members present at some service on that day has been set by the church. Following the suggestion of Dr. F. A. Agar of New York city when he was here in Norwich for Church Efficiency Week this fall, the church has been divided into thirty groups and these groups are working most effectively in the effort to call upon every member of the church before Attendance Sunday. An automobile committee consisting of Harold Burt, Carl Brown and Charles Chapman has been appointed so that the shut-ins may all be present on that day. Mrs. C. E. Smith will be in charge of the nursery.

FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING IN GREENEVILLE

In the city court Friday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby, the case against Perikles Papadopelos, 26 of Greeneville, charged with breach of the peace, was continued until today (Saturday) the accused now being out on bonds of $50.

Armand Forand, 20, of this city was fined $25 and costs for reckless driving. He was arrested early Friday morning in Greeneville when he was driving his motorcycle at a speed estimated to be about 30 miles an hour. Conductor Crary of the Connecticut company testified that Forand drove recklessly and when he stopped the trolley car Forand narrowly escaped hitting two women passengers who had just stepped off the car. Forand was handed a card to report at police headquarters which he did.

A teachers' meeting was held in the Voluntown Center school this week by Edwin B. Floyd, supervisor. Teachers from the towns of Sterling and Voluntown attended. The meeting opened with a selection by the orchestra of Wylie school, Voluntown, under the direction of Miss Margaret Tanner. A demonstration lesson in penmanship and spelling was taught by Miss Margaret Tanner. Oral English lessons were taught by Mrs. John Peckham and Miss Sara Walsh, after which followed a discussion of next month's work. Immediately after the meeting refreshments were served and a pleasing entertainment was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. John Peckham, the principal of the Voluntown Center school.

GUARD AGAINST ACCIDENTS IN FOOTBALL TRAFFIC

Every precaution will be taken by the state and local police today (Saturday) to prevent accidents in the heavy traffic occasioned by the movement of automobiles to and from the Yale-Harvard football game in the Yale Bowl at New Haven. A motorcycle squad of over fifty state policemen will be on duty on the main arteries of traffic, working hand in hand with local police to keep traffic moving in well-ordered, regular lines unimpeded by cars moving at unreasonably slow speeds. The purpose of this precaution is to reduce the cutting-in practice to a minimum, as experience with traffic incident to the Yale-Army game three weeks ago showed that most of the accidents occurring then were due to this offense.

In an effort to thin down the traffic pouring into New Haven in the last hour before the kickoff, choking the regular avenues of approach to the bowl, the state motor vehicle police and highway departments are co-operating with the New Haven Automobile club to encourage people who make the trip to the field by automobile to plan to arrive early. Howard D. Baldwin of the automobile club, which has laid out the traffic lanes within the city of New Haven, announced Friday that the gates of the Bowl will be thrown open at 12.30 o'clock, giving people who desire to do so an opportunity to get their cars parked and have their lunch inside the gates in ample time for the game, which is to begin at 2 o'clock. Mr. Baldwin pointed out that 78,000 people must get into the bowl and that much confusion would be avoided if as many of them as could conveniently do so would enter early.

Traffic regulations will be strictly enforced to avoid congestion, confusion and accidents. The state police will distribute to automobile parties on the highways cards urging extreme caution.

"By maintaining a reasonable average speed, having regard to the width of the highway, volume of traffic and weather conditions.

"By refraining from passing or cutting-in on the vehicle ahead. Passing on a curve, at the top of a hill, or where sight line is obstructed is illegal and will be prosecuted.

"By having your brakes, headlights and other equipment in good order.

"By giving the proper and distinct signal when stopping or changing direction.

"By parking your car completely off the traveled portion of the highway whenever it is necessary to stop.

"By obeying the officer's signals and directions.

"By following arrow signs to the Bowl upon reaching the city of New Haven."

All parking spaces near the Bowl have been divided into sections for the occasion, each section being lettered, to assist automobile parties to find their cars after the game.

CHARMING PROGRAMME FOR PARISH HOUSE MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Parish house department of the Women's Federation of Park church, was held in the Osgood Memorial parish house on Friday afternoon. After a short devotional service, a business meeting of the federation was held, the president, Mrs. Frederic W. Cary, presiding.

Miss Louise E. Howe, chairman of the parish house department, was in charge of the programme for the afternoon and introduced Charles C. Dyer, who sang two groups of songs, assisted by Henry Lafontaine at the piano. The first group was composed of three songs by Tosti, Matterabs, When the Leaves Fall and Goodbye, Summer. Mr. Dyer was in fine voice and sang with discrimination and taste, his perfect diction was a delight to all those who had the opportunity of hearing him.

Mr. Lafontaine added much to the pleasure of the afternoon by the beauty of his accompaniments.

A monologue in costume followed, given by Mrs. Robert W. Perkins. It represented three women lunching in a restaurant and Mrs. Perkins was inimitable in her representation of the three characters of mother, sister and daughter.

Mr. Dyer then sang another group of three songs. The Ballad of Johnny Sands, another old ballad whose charm never fails, Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes, closing with the Arthur Sullivan's beautiful arrangement of The Lost Chord.

Mrs. Perkins closed the program by a delightful reading of a charming story, The New Leaf, by Lisa Ysaye.

Tea was served by Mrs. James M. Morton, assisted by Mrs. Beatrice Eastwood Peterson, Mrs. Manley Eastwood and Mrs. Kenneth Church. Mrs. R. F. Smith and Mrs. William M. Eastwood poured at the tea table.

Eastern Connecticut Health.

Two cases of diphtheria and one case of scarlet fever were reported from Norwich during the week ending November 17th according to the weekly morbidity reports issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week follow;

Diphtheria—New London, 1; North Stonington, 1; Norwich, 2; Mansfield, 1.

Scarlet fever—Groton, 1; New London, 2; Norwich, 1; Preston, 1; Mansfield, 1; Putnam, 2; Thompson, 2; Windham, 1; Woodstock 1.

Whooping cough—Groton, 7; New London, 8; Canterbury, 1; Chaplin 2.

ASKING VETERANS TO MAKE BONUS APPLICATIONS

"To carry out the provisions of the world war adjusted compensation act (commonly known as the bonus bill), the adjutant general's office of the war department has set up the machinery for putting the act into effect. To date only about 1,500,000 of the 4,500,000 entitled to the bonus have applied, and the machinery will not be working at its full efficiency as it is able to handle 25,000 applications daily and will accept them as rapidly as they may be received. As soon as an application is checked and approved it is certified to the Veterans' Bureau for payment in cash or issue of adjusted compensation certificate, as the case requires.

Delay in making application works a hardship on those entitled to the bonus and on the government. Those entitled to cash payments (benefits of $50 or less) are due to receive same by March 1, 1925, if applications are received in time to get the amounts due certified to the Veterans' Bureau before that date. In case of death the insurance benefits due the beneficiary named by the veteran will be paid in a lump sum to such beneficiary of his choice if application is made by him, but if application is made by dependent heirs only the adjustive service credit will be distributed according to law in installments and not perhaps as he would wish. Such cases are already of record. It is more difficult for dependent heirs to establish their claim than for the veteran to establish his, since his service is a matter of record and identification necessitates only a comparison of his claim and his record. If the amount due is over $50 the Veterans' Bureau will issue an adjusted service certificate of face value equal to the amount in dollars of 20-year endowment insurance, that the amount of his adjusted service credit, increased by 25 per cent., would purchase at his age on birthday nearest the date of the certificate. Therefore, the earlier the application is made, the greater will be the amount of such benefit. The expense to the government of administering the act is increased with no attendant benefits if veterans delay making their applications. The moral is "Do it now."

Experience indicates that the following omissions or errors in making application are the cause of most of the delay in certifying the accounts to the Veterans' Bureau, which is charged with the actual payment or issue of adjusted compensation certificates. Already some 140,000 applications have been returned for additional data or corrections:

1. Signature omitted from application. Don't forget to sign your application.
2. Signature not identical. Signature required in two places on the application, items 10 and 19. They must be identical.
3. More than one beneficiary named. Only one beneficiary should be named in the application.
4. Death certificate (in case of application of dependent heir) does not accompany application of dependent when veteran died out of service.

Unless the veteran died in service, the Adjutant General's Office has no record of his decease and the fact of death must be established by certificate of death as issued by coroner.

5. Evidence of appointment of guardian missing in cases when it is necessary for a guardian to make the application.

When guardian makes application for the veteran or his dependent heirs, an attested copy of the order or other document issued by the court appointing such guardian must be furnished with the application.

6. Failure of dependent to execute affidavit.

In case of dependent making application the affidavit (Item No. 26) of dependent must be executed.

7. Finger prints omitted.

This necessitates return of application. Finger prints as called for on application blank (Item No. 11) must be furnished. In case of dependent, finger prints must be furnished in separate space provided therefor (Item No. 25).

8. Finger prints not legible.

Usually too much ink is used and the record is blurred and illegible. What is wanted is a clear impression of the ridges of the skin, of the ball of the fingers from the first joint to the tips of the fingers.

With each application blank is issued a sheet of instruction relative to applying for adjusted compensation. These instructions and those on the application blank must be followed explicitly and all information called for given.

If any veteran or dependent of any veteran entitled to benefits of the act has failed to make application, he should do one of two things at once, namely:

(a). Secure application blanks, make out and forward same to the adjusted compensation branch, adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C., or

(b) Notify the adjusted compensation branch, adjutant general office, in writing that he does not wish to make application for such benefits, as this will aid in reducing the overhead cost in administering the bonus bill.

Blank forms for both (a) and (b) can be secured on application in person or by letter to any army post or recruiting station, or to headquarters first corps area, army base, Boston, Mass. In case of (b) no form is required, simply a letter to the adjusted compensation branch, adjutant general's office, stating the fact, is sufficient, but for convenience of veterans such letter has been prepared in proper form requiring only signature to make it official.

Veterans whose last service was in and who were discharged from the navy or coast guard, address applications to adjusted compensation branch, bureau of navigation, Washington, D. C., those discharged from the marine corps, address adjusted compensation Branch, U. S. Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

Blanks, advice and help may be obtained from any of the world war veteran organizations the American Legion, national guard armories, stations of the navy and marine corps, or from post offices. In addition to the various army activities mentioned above.

You will act—eventually—why not now?"

REGISTRARS OF VOTERS PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED

Registrar of Voters Cornelius J. Downes and the assistant registrars of voters were entertained Friday evening by Registrar of Voters Tyler D. Guy and Mrs. Guy at their home, 214 Broadway, the occasion showing their appreciation of the gift of a handsome dining table, colonial design, which was given them by these gentlemen last July. To the surprise of Mr. and Mrs. Guy they were presented a very fine electric toaster Friday evening.

Refreshments were served and the occasion was enjoyed by all.

A French expert says that when emeralds are reduced to powder they have a pleasant scent, while diamonds give a disagreeable odor.

ADDRESSED WOMAN'S GUILD ON MENTAL HYGIENE

With the president, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, in the chair, the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church held its regular monthly business meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community House, Church street. There was a large attendance at the meeting. The usual reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard and accepted and routine business was transacted.

At the close of the business meeting there was a very interesting talk on mental hygiene by Mrs. Helen M. Ireland, executive secretary of the Connecticut Society of Mental Hygiene. Mrs. Ireland's topic was Mental Hygiene Adjustment of Adolescents—To—For—By.

Two groups of piano solos were given by Miss Edith Boynton. The first group was A Spring Morning (Smith) and The Secret (Chaminade) and the second group was Spanish Love Song and Spanish Dance, both by Doreno.

At the close of the programme tea was served, for which Miss Anna Brown and Miss Beatrice Sharp poured.

Britain's So-Called Bootlegging Baronet

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Sir Brodrick Cecil Denham Arkwright Hartwell, (4th) Baronet, of Dale Hall, Essex. The newspapers dubbed Sir Brodrick "The Bootlegger Baronet," when it became known a year ago that he was financing big liquor deals. He denies that he breaks the law in any way and is now selling stock, both in England and the United States, in a corporation to engage in the liquor business. Sir Brodrick recently won a victory in the English courts, which decided the titled rum seller had a right to give the name of his bank, Barclay's, as a reference in writing his prospective stock buyers.

NORWICH BOYS ELECTED AT GODDARD SEMINARY

The annual election of the junior class of Goddard Seminary at Barre, Vt., took place November 13, 1924. The results were as follows:

President, Richard D. Seed, Norwich; Vice President, Henry J. Harriman, Norwich; Secretary Gordon Still, Providence, R. I.; Treasurer, Miss Beverly Colton, Thetford Vt.

President Seed of this city acted as manager of the varsity football team which has just concluded a very successful season.

The word "fiasco" meaning a failure, is an Italian word, and originally meant a flask. Venetian glassblowers were keen craftsmen and if one of them detected the smallest flaw in his handiwork, he turned it into a fiasco or common flask, and so the word came to be applied to any kind of failure

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING IN CAIRO BY STUDENTS

They Were Small Affairs—Afterwards British Troops Marched Through the City—The Egyptian Government Has Agreed to Great Britain's Demands for an Apology, Punishment of the Assassins of Governor General Stock and an Indemnity of 500,000 Pounds Sterling.

Cairo, Nov. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Small anti-British demonstrations were renewed in Cairo today by students. Afterwards British troops marched through the city.

Two airplanes from Cairo flew over Tantan, where some restlessness among the natives had been observed.

The publication of the British notes caused a sensation in Cairo. Special editions of the European vernacular newspapers were exhausted early in the day.

Russell Pasha, chief of Cairo's police force, at the head of 150 mounted policemen wearing steel helmets, made a demonstration in the streets of the city. While the thoroughfares were crowded the populace remained tranquil.

EGYPTIAN GOVERNMENT MEETS DEMANDS OF GREAT BRITAIN

Cairo, Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—The Egyptian government's reply to the British note in connection with the assassination of Major General Sir Lee Oliver Stack, governor general of the Sudan and sirdar of the Egyptian army, agrees to Great Britain's demand for an apology, punishment of the assassins, and an indemnity of 500,000 pounds. It is also promised to prevent any disturbance of the peace by demonstrations.

The reply says the British demand regarding the Sudan breaks the status quo and is contrary to the constitution under which King Fuad is the commander-in-chief of the Egyptian army. It considers the demand regarding the Geriza irrigation project premature.

The communication further says the position of foreign officials is regulated by diplomatic agreement and cannot be modified without the consent of parliament.

Field Marshall Viscount Allenby, the British high commissioner, promptly replied to the Egyptian note, which was signed by Zagloul Pasha, the Egyptian premier.

General Allenby said that in view of the refusal of the Egyptians of the British requirements Nos. 5 and 6, instructions were being sent to the Sudan government to effect the withdrawal from the Sudan of Egyptian officers and units with the specified changes resulting from these measures and that the Sudan government was at liberty to increase the area of irrigation in the Gezira district to an unlimited extent.

General Allenby's reply to Zagloul requests the payment of the indemnity of 500,000 pounds by noon Monday and adds:

"Your excellency will learn in due course what action is being taken in view of your refusal of requirements No. 7 regarding the protection of foreign interests."

EGYPTIAN CABINET CONSIDER RESIGNING

Cairo, Nov. 23 (By the A. P.).—The Egyptian cabinet was still deliberating at 11.15 tonight. It is understood that the ministers are divided on the question of resignation.

It has been arranged that British troops, with 500 bluejackets from H. M. S. Valient, will parade in Alexandria tomorrow.

It is reported that another accomplice in the assassination of the sirdar has been arrested.

PLAN FOR CITIES TO AVOID COAL FAMINES

New York, Nov. 23.—A report of the coal storage committee of the American Engineering council, made public today by James Hartness, president of the organization, outlines a series of community plans by which the principal cities of the country may, through a system of uniform monthly shipments, avoid coal famines. Mr. Hartness said that survey on which the report is based has revealed that storage is the remedy for the nation's coal troubles.

The committee recommends, according to the report, that all consumers purchase their coal on an annual contract for yearly requirements, with a provision that the coal be delivered monthly in equal allotments. Consumers are urged to provide storage facilities to meet the terms of such a contract.

The recommendations are based on the finding that the purchase of coal on a monthly delivery basis will enable coal mines to inaugurate and maintain a regular production schedule and make it possible for carriers to plan definitely both schedules and equipment for a uniform movement of coal.

"A reduction in the price of coal will be made possible," the report states. "By more regular schedules of production and transportation and by elimination of peak demands in the winter months, when the costs of both production and transportation are the highest."

INDIANS AT CHURCH OF ST. MARK'S IN THE BOUWRIE

New York, Nov. 23—With blue incense smoke spiralling from censers on either side of the pulpit of the Episcopal church of St. Mark's in the Bouwerie, two American Indians in native costumes intoned songs, prayers, dirges and other tribal rituals at an "Indian service" today.

Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector, at the close of the service said he had received no word from Bishop Manning in regard to today's ceremony and that even if he had received word expressing disapproval of the service, the program would have gone on just the same." He added that his program would "not be modified during the coming year."

troversy with Bishop Manning," he

"I am not attempting to start a controversy with Bishop Manning," he explained, "but this is my parish and I shall be guided by the dictates of my own conscience as to what I shall do here. I am creating beauty. There are some who do not want to see beauty or to have beauty created."

Early this year Bishop Manning had requested Dr. Guthrie to discontinue many forms of worship composed in whole or in part of American aboriginal material, Buddhist literature, or any non-Christian forms of worship." Last April, Dr. Guthrie announced that the so-called "pagan rites" would not be repeated in his church.

P.)—Charlie Chaplin was expected to arrive in Guaymas today and marry his leading woman, Lita Grey, in the nearby town of Empalme, according to dispatches received from Guaymas early today. FUNERAL SUNDAY, OF MRS. FRANCIS LOUISE MORGAN

Hartford Nov. 23.—Under a lowering autumn sky the body of Mrs. Frances Louise Morgan, was laid to rest this afternoon beside the grave of her husband, J. Pierpont Morgan, the late financier, in Cedar Hill cemetery here.

The special train carrying the body of Mrs. Morgan arrived here shortly before 2 o'clock. Soon after the funeral procession of more than twenty automobiles carrying relatives and intimate friends of Mrs. Morgan and the Morgan family left the station for the Morgan plot in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The burial service, simple and brief took place in a huge tent that covered the newly dug grave of Mrs. Morgan and that of her husband. Here surrounded by hundreds of flowers and wreaths the walnut casket containing the body of the widow of the late financier was lowered into its concrete-sided grave. J. Pierpont Morgan, son of the dead woman, and his two sons, Junius and Spencer remained beside the grave following the burial service which consisted of a short reading of the scripture by Rev. Karl Reiland, of St. George's church, New York.

The funeral train returned to New York at 3.30.

SAYS PROHIBITION HAS CAUSED DECREASE IN CRIME

New York, Nov. 23.—Crime in the United States, in proportion to the population, has decreased rather than increased since prohibition went into effect, according to a report made public today by the World League Against Alcoholism. Savings to the states as a result of the decrease in crime exceed the amount formerly paid as revenue by the liquor interests, the report sets forth, the savings being "conservatively estimated" at approximately $200,000,000 annually.

The survey, which the league declares is the most extensive ever made of the subject, is based on figures from the police departments of 300 of the country's leading cities and the District of Columbia, every state except North Carolina and Oklahoma being represented. It covers the total number of arrests for all causes in the last four years prior to prohibition and the first four years of prohibition.

"It is true that the number of arrests of the 'dry' period in the 300 cities is greater than the number for the 'wet'," it is stated in the report, "but when analyzed in connection with the increase in population, which is 5,000,000, the findings are contrary to the accepted belief that we are growing more criminal.

"The actual decrease in arrests for drunkenness since the Volstead act went into effect is 42.3 per cent. for the 300 cities, or a million less cases of drunkenness each year than there were in the 'wet' period for the nation. Where formerly drunk cases made up 32.5 per cent. of the total arrests of the country, they have now been cut to 18.8 per cent.

"From 1913 to 1916 there was a yearly average of 58,946 people arrested for all causes out of every million of population. The total for 300 cities was 1,756,078. During the first four years of prohibition arrests for all causes were 2,000,700, or 58,859 per million population. The population in these cities had increased 5,000,000 during the first four years. Applying this ratio of increase to the entire population, we have a yearly total of nearly 10,000 less arrests during the 'dry' period than during the 'wet'."

THOUSANDS PAY HOMAGE TO MRS. FLORENCE K. HARDING

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Thousands of neighbors and friends today passed the bier of Mrs. Florence Kling Harding to pay their last respects. Since early morning, when a line formed at the Long Shore home here where the body of the former first lady of the land reposes, a steady stream of people passed in and out. It was a silent, reverent crowd, mostly people who had known the Hardings when they were struggling newspaper folks and who had watched their political fortunes rise, until on a March day in 1921 they bade them farewell as they left for the presidential inauguration ceremonies in Washington.

The public was permitted to view the remains only after repeated requests had been made to the family. Decision was not reached until it was suggested that "Mrs. Harding never denied the public a privilege that she thought belonged to them."

One of the first to pass the bier was "Uncle Cherley," Pattos, until recently White House ground keeper.

Dr. G. T. Harding, aged father of the late president also visited the Long Shore home for the first time today. "She was a splendid woman," Dr. Harding said.

Delegations of the Ohio Association of Newspaper Women, in session here, went to the Long Shore home in a body this afternoon and as they passed the casket each laid a pink carnation at the feet of Mrs. Harding, who was a member of the association.

Mrs. Harding reclines slightly on her right side. She is dressed in white. Her hair is almost snow white. She wears her customary nose glasses, and a band of white tullet is around her neck.

Flowers sent by President Coolidge rest at the foot of the casket. So many floral pieces have arrived that it has been necessary to place scores on the front porch of her home.

It became known today that one of Mrs. Harding's last acts was the gift of $125 to the soldiers on guard at Mr. Harding's tomb to provide them with a Thanksgiving dinner.

The funeral cortege, following services at Epworth Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock will move from the church to the cemetery over the same route as that taken when President Harding was entombed.

The services will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank of Epworth church, assisted by the Rev. George W. Landes, pastor of Trinity Baptist church.

REP. STATE CONVENTION TO OPEN IN HARTFORD TONIGHT

Hartford, Nov. 23.—The republican state convention to nominate for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee will be called to order in Foot Guard hall here tomorrow night by J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the republican state central committee. He will introduce U. S. Senator George P. McLean, whose address will be the chief event of the opening session. After Senator McLean's address the convention will adjourn until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, it is expected.

The republican state central committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to pass on the temporary roll of delegates, which will later go to the credentials committee. So far as is known, there are no contests for seats in the convention.

Committee sessions are expected to be held following Senator McLean's address, but little business is expected to come before them. Up to tonight no resolutions were known to have been prepared to be offered to the resolutions committee.

Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven is a candidate for the nomination and Congressman Schuyler Merritt of Stamford has expressed a willingness to accept the nomination if it is offered to him. Prof. Charles M. Bakewell of Yale, a member of the state senate in 1921 and 1923, has been mentioned as a candidate and of late there has been talk of Governor-elect Hiram Bingham as a candidate. Colonel Bingham has declared that he is not a candidate, but his supporters believe he can be drafted. It appears certain that his name will be presented, as well as those of Congressmen Tilson and Merritt.

Floods in Vermont and New Hampshire

Woodsville, N. H., Nov. 23.—Reports of washouts on railroads and highways, of towns isolated, of meadowlands inundated and streams, already at flood levels, rising rapidly were received here tonight from many parts of New England.

The government weather report stated that 3 inches of rain had fallen here, but north of here and through the White mountains much more descended in the 24-hour period ending at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

On the Boston and Maine, washouts were reported on the Pemigewasset branch between Plymouth and North Woodstock, between Whitefield and Berlin, and at Barton, Vt. Automobiles were marooned on many roads. Automobile traffic between Fabyan, Whitefield and Littleton and between Woodsville and Lisbon was completely suspended.

The Connecticut river was reported seven feet above normal at 5 o'clock tonight at this point, with the waters still mounting. Floodgates have been opened at the big dam at the Connecticut lakes, source of the stream, which has added to the flood.

NOTORIOUS GAMBLER WAS SHOT DEAD IN GUN FIGHT

Chicago, Nov. 23.—One notorious gambling house and saloon keeper was killed and two other men probably fatally wounded, and a fourth less seriously hurt following a gun fight in Cicero today.

Eddie Tancl, known to the police as a power in gambling circles, was slain in his saloon and gambling place in Cicero during a revolver fight. Myles (Klondike) O'Donnell, and Leo Climax, were probably fatally wounded and Martin Sinset, a waiter in Tancl's saloon, was slightly wounded by a stray bullet from the gangster's weapons.

Chicago officials immediately acted to prevent further bloodshed in the city proper, fearing that the lull which followed the murder a week ago of Dion O'Banion, prominent underworld figure, and another alleged gangster yesterday would be broken by new trouble. Police spread a dragnet through the "badlands" of Chicago, determined, they said, to forestall any influx of Cicero gunmen. Squads were sent to Cicero to cooperate with the suburban authorities.

Sinet and Mrs. Tancl, wife of the slain man said that O'Donnell, and a James Daugherty, who escaped, had done the shooting, after an argument over their bill.

Detectives saw in the affair revenge for the O'Banion killing or a fight for control of the traffic in beer-running. Cicero authorities recently announced their city was "closed tight" and gaming could not be found there.

HOT TRAIL STRUCK IN THE SHEATSLEY DEATH MYSTERY

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—County Prosecutor John R. King tonight announced that he had "struck a hot trail" in the Sheatsley case today. He was unwilling to discuss the nature of his discovery, declaring that it would be premature to make it public at this time. He was manifestly encouraged, he said, by today's developments.

Mr. King's efforts during the next few days will center on what transpired the day of the tragedy in the Sheatsley home during the half hour after Clarence, the 16 year old son, left at 1.30 p. m., and 2.15 p. m., when C. O. Strader, delivery man for a local bakery, attempted to arouse someone at the house. Forty-five minutes later E. E. Bridewieser, a student at Capital university, went to the house to return a book, he told Prosecutor King. He was unable, he said, to arouse anyone, but declared he heard someone at the furnace when he went from the front door to the rear. The body was found by Rev. Mr. Sheatsley shortly before 5 o'clock when he returned from a trip to the city.

NEW YORK POLICE OFFICIAL INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Nov. 23—Henry W. Dearborn, secretary to Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright of New York, sustained a badly strained right arm when an automobile driven by R. A. C. Smith of Greenwich, Conn., millionaire honorary police commissioner of New York, in which Mr. Dearborn was riding collided here today with a car operated by Jacob Aarons of New York. Mr. Dearnborn declined medical aid until he reached Mr. Smith's home in Greenwich.

Other passengers in the Smith machine were Beniamiano Gigli, Metropolitan opera tenor, his wife, two children and their governess. Although all were shaken up, none was injured. The chauffeurs of both cars were arrested but later were released when no charges were preferred against them.

DEM. STATE CONVENTION IN NEW HAVEN TODAY

New Haven, Nov. 23.—The democratic delegates from throughout the state will assemble here tomorrow for the democratic state convention to nominate a candidate for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee. The convention, which will be called to order at 3 o'clock tomorrow night in Music hall, will be preceded by a meeting of the state central committee at 3 o'clock. Master of Schooner Killed in Collision

The Perry Setzler Was Rammed and Practically Cut in Two Off Cape Hatteras.

New York, Nov. 23.—Captain A. J. Wilson, of Fairhaven, Mass., master of the Schooner Perry Setzler was instantly killed at 2 a. m. Saturday morning when his vessel was rammed and virtually cut in two by an unidentified steamer in a fog thirty miles south of Cape Hatteras, according to information brought here tonight by the United Fruit liner Calamares from Cuba.

The eight members of the crew of the Perry Setzer, after hanging to the rigging of the almost submerged schooner, were rescued by the oil tanker Solona 15 miles north of Cape Hatteras at 2 p. m., 12 hours after the collision, it was reported.

Captain Harry Spencer reported tonight that when his vessel was 15 miles north of Cape Hatteras he encountered the schooner with decks awash, her main mast broken, and the crew clinging to the rigging of the virtually submerged craft, which was a four master.

He said there was a deep gash in the starboard side which almost divided the schooner. He expressed the opinion that the vessel would have sunk almost immediately after the collision if it were not for the fact that she was loaded with a cargo of lumber.

When he approached the vessel he observed that life boats were being launched from the tanker Solona which was bound from Tampico, Mexico to Philadelphia.

Troops have been dispatched in pursuit of the outlaws. It is believed the bandits had intended to capture a passenger train which preceded the freight but failed in their plans.

SERIES OF LIQUOR RAIDS WERE MADE IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Nov. 23.—In a series of liquor raids here today, the police arrested four men and a woman and seized alleged liquor valued at $20,000. It was one of the largest dry act crusades launched here since the adoption of the prohibition amendment. The raids came after a conference between City Attorney Sheridan T. Whitaker and Chief of Police Philip T. Smith. Search warrants were issued by the city attorney. Although it was announced that a large number of federal agents had arrived here last week, none of the government men took part in the raids today, the entire campaign being carried out by the police.

The most important raid was at 22 Prince street, where Joseph Losego, who said he was a farmer of Clintonville, was placed under arrest charged with violation of the liquor law. Here the police found 21 60-gallon kegs of alleged alcohol and a large amount of alcohol in bottles. The kegs, which had not been opened, were shipped, according to stenciling on them, from the New York Grape Juice company, 133 Wooster street, New York, to the French-Italian Grocery company, 447 Chapel street, this city. Bottles, labels and considerable apparatus also were seized.

The alleged liquor was found in a garage and in the cellar. According to the police, the garage was connected with a room on the third floor of the house by a wire and buzzer. This room was said to have been occupied by Losego. Beside the window the police found a shotgun and a rifle, fully loaded. The doorway to the cellar was guarded by a large dog.

DEPARTMENT STORE TRADE BELOW THAT OF LAST YEAR

Sales of Various Types of Women's Apparel in October Averaged 5 to 10 Per Cent. Less Than the Corresponding Month in 1923—Wholesale Trade Conditions Are Reported Better Than Retail—Jewelry and Silverware Have Sold Well.

Boston, Nov. 23.—Retail trade conditions in New England have not yet shown any noticeable improvement over the previous months of this fall, according to a report compiled by the federal reserve bank of Boston and released for publication in papers of Monday, Nov. 24. A 1 per cent decrease in the volume of sales in terms of dollars was shown in a special report of the first 15 working days of November as compared with a similar period a year ago.

Wholesale trade conditions were reported relatively better than retail. A distinct improvement was shown in the sale of shoes. Wholesale grocers reported on the average an unchanged volume of business.

According to the report on department store sales throughout October and the first part of November, sales of various types of clothing in New England department stores were reduced markedly by the extreme warm, dry weather. According to the records of the local weather bureau, there were only two days during the entire month of October when there was any trace of rain. The result of this is clearly shown in the sales of umbrellas in the Boston department stores, which were 44 per cent. less than in October, 1923.

"The clear and fairly warm weather has also had its effect on the sales of several apparel lines, both men's and women's. The total sales of a group of Boston women's apparel shops during October were nearly 8 per cent. Less than in October 1923 and no improvement was reported for the first half of November.

In the department stores during October, the sales of men's clothing were nearly 12 per cent less than in October, 1923, and sales of various types of women's apparel averaged from 5 to 10 per cent less than during the corresponding month in the previous year."

The report indicated that the largest volume of sales of jewelry and silver of any month this year, so far, were made in October, the per cent increase over the same month of 1923 being larger than that of any month since last February.

"In department stores outside of Boston," the report stated, "sales were uniformly less than a year ago, with the exception of several cities in southern New England. Among these an outstanding example was Providence where the sales for October were 6 per cent greater than in October 1923. Credit conditions in the Providence department stores were as satisfactory as a year ago and the rate of collections on installment and all charge accounts was practically the same as in October 1923."

Relatively better wholesale trade conditions were reported, as compared with retail selling. "The average New England wholesale grocery firm reporting had about the same volume of business as a year ago," the bank's review stated. "During October this year, the Boston wholesale grocers on the average reported increases over their sales of October, 1923, while those concerns in the larger New England cities outside of Boston, on the average, reported a smaller volume of sales.

"Approximately the usual seasonal increase was made in the sales of shoes a wholesale in both Boston and other New England cities, and trade conditions in this branch of the wholesale trade are probably much better at the present time than they have been at any other time this year."

MATTER TALKED OF IN POLTIALC CIRCLES IN ITALY

Rome, Nov. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Although the vote of confidence given by the chamber of deputies yesterday to the Mussolini government surprised nobody, politiacl circles are discussing hether the conciliatory note struck in the lengthy debate, particularly by Mussolini and Deputy Delcroix will serve as an inducement to the Avenline opposition to come back and take part in the work of the parliament.

Premier Mussolini's abandonment of his attitude of defiance has made a good impression on many who have been wavering and undecided as to whether to prolong heir confidence in the fascisti for past brave deeds or condemn them for recent errors. This is freely acknowledged now, even by Mussolini himself whether this conciliatory, almost chastened, attitude will make an appreciable impression on the striking deputies nobody seems will to predict. But some of the opposition factions are left rather cold by the pdemier's reasoning that, although the facisti are not perfect, they are the best of the country can hope for, and certainly preferable to a government of communists or socialists, which, he warned, would be the outcome of his downfall.

It is feared by some observers that Mussolini's conciliatory attitude may stir up dissention among the more aggressive elements of his own party, such as that led by Farinacci, who has been ceaselessly preaching in favor of more drastice methods to subdue the opposition.

$100,000,000 FRENCH LOAN TO BE OFFERED IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 23.—J. P. Morgan & Company and their associates will launch the new $100,000,000 loan to the French republic here tomorrow. The loan will be offered in a single issue of twenty-five year, seven per cent. gold bonds at 94. The effect of the loan is to absorb the recent series of short term credits and convert the funding into a 25 year operation.

J. P. Morgan & Company today issued the following statement:

"J. P. Morgan & Company announce that they, in association with the First National Bank of New York, National City Company and Messers. Brown Brothers & Co., are leading a syndicate to offer on Monday $100,000,000 government of French Republic 25 year 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, at 94 and accrued interest, to yield approximately 7.53 per cent. without giving consideration to the operation of the sinking fund, which amounts to $4,200,000 per annum, payable in equal monthly installments beginning January 1, 1925 and being sufficient to retire annually one-twenty-fifth of the entire issue at 105 per cent.

Finance Minister Clemtel of France announced in a communication received here:

"The proceeds of the loan are to be applied to the reduction of the government's indebtedness to the Bank of France, which will hold and use the proceeds as it may deem wise for the protection and stabilization of the franc."

"The budget position," the minister observed," has been materially aided by the return to productivity of the devastated regions of France, the fiscal receipts from which have increased steadily from 964,000,000 francs in the year 1919 to 3,372,000,000 francs for the first six months of 1924."

MATTERS TO COME BEFORE A. F. OF L. CONVENTION

El Paso, Tex. Nov. 23.—(By the A. P.)—The opening session of the second week will bring before the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor tomorrow the heaviest quota of important business considered in any session to date.

Under a special order of business voted Saturday, the report of the resolutions committee will go before the gathering immediately after the opening formalities of the morning session. Should that report embracing recommendations on some thirty resolutions, dealing with almost as many subjects, be disposed of Monday, the committee on the executive council's report will be ready to present to the delegates its recommendations on the activities of the officers of the federation since the last convention.

In both reports there are several subjects likely to provoke debate on the floor.

Two resolutions before the resolutions committee outlining political programs at variance with that recommended to the convention in a special report of the executive council last week may open the way to a general debate on a political policy, but development of serious opposition to the position recommended by the council is regarded by those in charge of the report as having been forestalled by the broad field for new activities in political affairs opened to affiliated organizations in the recommendations of the council.

A short meeting of the executive council today named a delegation of six to officially represent the American federation in the Pan-American Federation of Labor, opening at Mexico December 3.

HEAVY RAINFALL BROKE DROUGHT IN MANY SECTIONS

Boston, Nov. 23.—Rain which fell yesterday and today throughout New England brought relief from drought conditions which had become acute in many sections as a result of a period of 45 consecutive rainless days, unprecedented in the annals of the weather bureau here. Tonight the weather bureau reported that more than an inch of rain had fallen since yesterday. The forest fire hazard was ended by the general rainfall.

Although the ground was well watered by the downpour, it was said that the precipitation was far from enough to refill properly wells, springs and streams, drained nearly dry by the long drought.

Old fashioned grocers here deny statements made recently that the modern chain system stores were fast crowding out the old time grocery establishments. Among facts brought out by them are: That 85 per cent. of the grocery business in the country is still being done in the old-fashioned grocery store; that 85 per cent. of the people in the country realize that they can buy as cheaply in these stores as in the so-called modern stores, that the old-fashioned grocer has a telephone, delivery service and a large stock of bulk household necessities; that the old fashioned grocer is the farmer's best friend; that the farmer gets cash for his produce at these stores and then spends it in the same town for his various needs; that the up-to-date stores purchase from way out west. In addition to this the grocer of yesterday owns his home, automobile, etc., pays large taxes in the town, supports organizations, buys stock in local industries and in every way puts his profits back into the town.

ASHES OF JEAN JAURES LAID TO REST IN PANTHEON

Paris, Nov. 23.—(By The A. P.)—The ashes of Jean Jaures, the famous French socialist, were lai dto rest today in the Pantheon to the strains of "La Carmagnole" the old anthem of the French revolution.

Tonight the ashes, great socialist and pacifist orator lie alongside those of the Chevalier De La Tour, D'Auvergne, Napoleon's "first grenadier of France."

The procession to the pantheon from the chamber of deputies, where Jaures achieved international fame by his oratory, was one of the most impressive seen in Paris since President Wilson's triumphal welcome in 1918.

As the mammoth float bearing the coffin, pushed by miners of Jaures' home department of the Tarn, passed through the heart of the Lain quarter, the intellectual center of Paris, men, women and children broke through the lines of police and troops to throw flowers on the bier—mainly red carnations. In the procession were socialist and communist delegations carrying red flags.

Inside the pantheon and in the presence of President Doumergue and a notable gathering, Premier Herriot delivered the oration. He traced the career of M. Jaures, "assassinated because he loved peace only too well." He called him a poet, philosopher and educator and compared the dead man to Demosthenes. Laying stress on whatever were Jaures' doctrines he "always inscribed them within the frame of the republican institution," M. Herriot concluded:

"Maternal France receives him lovingly in her pantheon because he represented several of the highest qualities of her genius; because it was in being an profoundly French that he showed himself so widely human."

The strains of "The Marseillaise" played at the conclusion of the ceremony, gave the only nationalistic touch to a great international demonstration. A German delegation marched in the funeral procession.

After the regular official demonstrations had passed by the pantheon, a communist column estimated at 60,000 with a forest of bright red flags, all topped with the bronze soviet emblem—the crossed hammer and scythe—came on. The marchers sang "The Internationl" and send up shouts of "down with war," and "long live the soviet." The police and troops stood by impassively.

The communists carried many placards with inscriptions such as "rather the revolution than war." These provoked counter demonstrations on the part of spectators and there were several fairs at fisticuffs.

Tonight the city resumed its usual calm.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

How to Cruise.

To anyone contemplating a winter cruise or short vacation in temperate climes, these trips should appeal to strongly and after seeing the wonderful Travel Film now being shown at the Breed theatre describing these tours, the selection of a date and route to follow should become a simple matter.

Sailing lists, rate sheets and other information relating to these cruises will be furnished by James H. Dunn, local representative, 50 Main street.

The duration of the cruise will be 123 days.

The cruise of the Belgenland is to be followed by several of the other magnificent steamers of The International Mercantile Marine company's fleet, namely the Adriatic on Jan. 7 and The Lapland on Jan. 17th. These steamers will call at Maderia, Gibraltar, Algiers, Monaco, Naples, Athens, Constantinople, with side trips to The Holy Land and Egypt as part of the itinerary.

The Red Star line has announced that their mammoth steamer "Belgenland" will be dispatched on a cruise around the world. The "Belgenland," a new steamer of 27,000 tons, is the largest ever sent on a round-the-world trip. She will start from New York early in December proceeding westward through the Panama Canal, calling at Los Angeles and San Francisco, thence to the far east, returning to New York through the Suez canal and the Mediterranean sea.

Broadway Theatre.

From all indications the programme that opens at the Broadway theatre today is going to jam the theatre matinees and nights. That is why the management continues to say "Come early." You'd better if you expect to get a seat. Never before, in Norwich's theatrical history has any theatre delivered the shows such as have been at the Broadway theatre this season at such ridiculously low prices.

The feature B. F. Keith vaudeville act is the "Revue Caprice." It consists of a company of six, featuring Iris Greene. Beautiful settings, and a bouquet of dance, song and musical oddities are featured.

The other four acts are all features in themselves.

You must go down to see Gloria Swanson at the Broadway today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

You must!

It'll simply tickle you pink. What will? Why "Wages of Virtue," of course. It's Gloria's very latest for Paramount, directed by Allan Dwan who made "Robin Hood," "Manhandled" "Her Love Story," and other such hits.

Novelty, appeal—and Gloria Swanson! They don't make 'em any better than that!

Breed Theater

All the glamour of old Spain, all the romance of love-mad nights, all the passion that throbs in Latin breasts have been injected into The Siren of Seville, Priscilla Dean's first Hunt Stromberg production for Producers' Distributing Corporation, which is the special attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow.

To see The Siren of Seville is to be transported from this hum-drum eternally busy world to a country of eternal love.

One of the outstanding features of The Siren of Seville is the bullfight. For the first time in the history of the screen authentic scenes of Spain's national sport are shown. This is not faked action, but the genuine thing, especially staged for the camera by a retinue of professional matadors from Mexico City and Seville. Moreover, these skilled performers were able to enact such a thrilling sequence without bloodshed either to the animals or themselves.

Ham Hamilton in Jonah Jones and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

SHIPPING LOSSES CAUSED BY S. E. GALE SATURDAY

Belfast, Me., Nov. 23.—A southeast gale with a heavy rainfall, one of the severest storms recorded here for many years, caused heavy property and shipping losses today. Two barges, tied up at a dock, sank, and piers were awash. High seas pounded over the seawall along the shore of Penobscot bay and river, sweeping up two rows of summer cottages and flooding cellars and storage places.

Two barges belonging to the Penobscot Pulp and Paper company were lost when "No. 5" broke up and sank at her berth and "No. 7" pounded over her hull and foundered in the river channel. The Belfast and Northport wharf of the Eastern Steamship company were well under water for the greater part of the day, but damage was not heavy as the storage houses were empty.

The man who courts an heiress usually figures on drawing a capital

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A man who has heard much in the past few years of new waterway systems, including the Mahan canal that was to have run from New London to North Grosvenordale, thought that all of them had been turned on simultaneously Saturday afternoon, and that from then on until Sunday forenoon the wrench to the shut-off had been lost.

In the first real rainstorm that this section has experienced a real allotment of water was turned loose. The storm was very much like the one of September 30, the last real one that preceded it in that it came driving out of the southeast on the wings of a gale that set trees to swaying and buildings to quivering, if they found themselves in its unobstructed path.

The storm was something of a business killer, though it did boots the sale of rubber goods and umbrellas.

No accurate estimate of the amount of rainfall was available here Sunday, but it must have been close to two inches. The effects of it were shown by Sunday afternoon in both rivers flowing through Danielson and in lakes and ponds all through the territory. It was a big boost toward breaking the drought.

The storm was accountable for several motoring accidents in this vicinity, the bad hills hereabouts figuring in these events. Many drivers found it expedient to abandon trips to destinations and with their parties remained here over night.

Wire service companies experienced some difficulty on account of the storm, but nothing of serious moment.

In view of the changes made in the wage scales at the plants of the Quinebaug and Wauregan company, which is in line with a reduction made by the Grosvenordale company some time since, and with lowered wage scales in other New England textile centers, it is anticipated that there will be further adjustments of pay in other cotton mills hereabouts.

Herman M. Coulter, assistant treasurer of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., left Sunday for New Bedford, where the Goodyear and Fisk rubber interests recently and jointly purchased the plant of the Pagsaic Mills company. Mr. Coulter will be in conference at New Bedford today with officials of the new interests. This plant, among other things, will make some of the yarn used at the Goodyear plant in this town.

Sunday afternoon the funeral service for Bryant Pearl, drowned at Elmville, Friday afternoon, was read at St. James' church by Rev. Joseph Desghaux, M. S. Burial was in the sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The bearers were Edward Nash, Albert Nash, Theodore White and Fred White. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

An alarm from box 24 called out the fire department shortly after 7 o'clock Saturday evening for a chimney fire in a small building on the Lavin property on Furnace street. It was pouring at the time, so the firemen had an extra difficulty to contend with in handling the fire, which was promptly subdued and with no material damage.

Upwards of 1,000 operatives of the Quinebaug mills here and the Wauregan mills at Wauregan will go to work this (Monday) morning on a full time schedule, after a skip-week system of operation that has been followed for 28 weeks. The every-other-week plan has been equivalent to a reduction of 50 per cent. in the earning power of the employes. Though the operatives accept a reduction under the change effective today, they will be earning over a given period of weeks from 35 to 37 1-2 per cent more than they have been getting since last spring.

Cars owned by Arthur Aubin and Exithopa Traban were in collision Sunday morning at the junction of Morin avenue and North Main street. As the result of the affair Aubin was ordered to appear in the town court this (Monday) afternoon to answer to a charge of reckless driving. No one was injured in the crash.

Killingly High school's football team lost to Plainfield High school, 26 to 7, on the Carpet grounds at Moosup Saturday afternon, continuing its season without a victory. The Killingly team has only one more game to play—that scheduled with Putnam High school here Thanksgiving day.

It was as though the Weather Man was exulting over the hunters, when he spoiled a good part of the last day of the open season with a deluge of rain on Saturday. The season just closed on game birds has been one of the most profitless in years.

FUNERAL OF MARCEL JETTE AT MOOSUP SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Nov. 23.—Priests, nuns, acolytes, censer bearer and members of the choir, at the funeral services for Marcel Jette, at All Hallows' church in Moosup, Saturday morning, were, in greater number, relatives of the deceased, one of the best known residents of the town of Plainfield, where for years he was a member of the board of selectmen.

The officers of the solemn mass of requiem were Rev. Donn Jette, of Waterbury, celebrant, grandson of Mr. Jette; Rev. Alpheris Chartier, M. S., Fitchburg, a relative, deacon, and Rev. J. B. Lamothe, of West Warren, Mass., sub-deacon. The music of the mass was by Sister Joseph Elizabeth, organist, of the Sacred Heart convent at Wauregan, and the soloists were Sister Ives Rudolph and Sister Joseph Marcel, members of the order of the Holy Ghost, granddaughters of Mr. Jette and stationed respectively at Chicopee and Holyoke. The acolytes were Romain Goyette, of Assumption college, at Worcester and Gerard Chartier of LaSalette college at Hartford, grandsons of Mr. Jette. The censer bearer was Leopold Moreau of Assumption college.

In the sanctuary during the mass were Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy and Rev. Oscar Normand, respectively pastor and assistant at All Hallows' church in Moosup, where Mr. Jette had lived for some time past; Rev. J. C. Mathieu of Wauregan, of which parish Mr. Jette was a resident over half a century, and Rev. Edward Mathieu.

The service was attended by a large congregation of relatives and friends, representative of many of the towns and cities in this section of the state as well as from other states. There was a particularly large delegation from Danielson and from Wauregan.

AT ALL DRUGGISTS

PUTNAM

Beginning Wednesday evening, Nov. 26, a special trolley car is to leave Bugbee's Corner at 9.45 o'clock for points north. This will greatly accommodate passengers for North Grosvenordale and points between, as for several months past there has been no car from 7.45 until 9.45. This ca is to run Wednesday evening only. A notice of the running of the extra trolley has been posted in the Beachmont Worsted Mills for the benefit of residents of Mechanicsville. Samuel Anderson, of Norwich, superintendent of the division, was in Putnam Friday and after a consultation with some of the merchants readily agreed to their wish for this extra car, for Wednesday evenings only.

For more than three months Putnam had no commercial bank. For the past ten days the city has had two, one national, one state bank. The officials of both institutions express themselves as well satisfied with the business they have transacted and say that the outlook is very encouraging.

Friendly relations exist between them and opening and closing hours have been made to correspond, from 9 a. m. until 3 p. m. Saturdays they close at noon. An innovation is the opening for two hours on Saturday evening for the accommodation of retail merchants who wish to deposit the receipts at the end of the busiest half day of the week. The Cargill Trust Company is open from 6.30 p. m. to 8.30 p. m., and the Citizens National from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

There is also a local clearing house, which facilitates the work of each bank.

Henry H. Davenport has gone to Harrisburg, Va., to join Mrs. Davenport and his daughter, Hazel, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives. Mrs. Anna Brown of Church street will leave next week for Little Rock, Ark., to spend the winter and possibly make her home with her son, Dr. Louis Brown, who is the head of a large sanatorium there. Mrs. Brown has been a resident of Putnam nearly all her life. She was an active member of the Second Congregational church.

Andrew Lincoln Lyon and the brush hut, Oakledge, in Woodstock, in which he makes his home for the greater part of the year, are well known to Woodstock people as well as to most of the residents of Putnam. WESTERLY

Mrs. Hannah E. Wood of New York is making a visit with her sister, Mrs. Amanda E. Chappel, in Pawcatuck.

"One hundred per cent." is the way local railroad men speak of the handling of the heavy traffic and special train service on the New Haven railroad, in so far as it concerns the Shore Line division, of which Westerly is about the midway station between New London and Auburn, R. I. Saturday morning the first football special "S 1" scheduled to pass Westerly at 9.15 was reported a few minutes late but left New London on schedule time. Following the first special train were seven others "S 1"-"S-7", which came through Westerly at a mile a minute clip, under a ten minute headway. To maintain the schedule, elaborate plans had been made and Traffic Manager Thomas Rawley of the Worcester division was at the Westerly tower morning and evening. An extra locomotive stood in readiness on the tower siding, in case of any mishap to the locomotive equipment of the special trains. A plumber was on hand at the water stand pipe should there be any necessity for locomotives to take water. Two car knockers with necessary equipment were on hand for the purpose of caring for defective rolling stock, but their services were uncalled for.

An American Railway Express baggage car with general express for New York, was sidetracked at the Westerly station, early Saturday morning on account of trouble with one of the trucks. The defect was remedied and the car was taken to New London by the switching engine Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Edward Peabody and children, Thelma Ruth and Donald Emory, of Pawcatuck were week end visitors in Wakefield, where Mrs. Peabody was called by reason of her mother being injured, she having been struck by an automobile last week.

The big Bradford bus, "Capt." Lamphear got stuck in the mud Saturday night about nine o'clock on Railroad avenue, near the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad. Workmen in the employ of the Westerly Gas and Electric Light company had excavated a trench in the gutter for the laying of the gas main to Bradford. In refilling the trench the cobblestones, which were a part of the gutter were carted away, so that when the rain came Saturday, the ground softened and the rear left wheel sank to the axel. Passengers disembarked and with the air of a tow rope of F. D. Sisson in tow of the Watch Hill bus and the combined pushing of the men passengers the big bus was landed on terra firma. The hole churned out in the gutter was marked with a police lantern for the remainder of the night.

A section of the sidewalk in front of the A. & P. store fell through Saturday afternoon as a result of the rainy weather. Recently a sewer pipe connection had been laid across the sidewalk and when the filling was replaced it was not tamped down; as a result the concrete sidewalk had a considerably lower level at that place and was barricaded to prevent accidents.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk November 21st was a lease of Albert H. Langworthy to Max Lahn of Pawcatuck, fo a term of ten years of the store at 43 High street November 22 Magaretta John conveyed to Luigi Siciliano and wife a certain parcel of land on the north side of John street.

John Shea, Edward Keegan, Daniel Sullivan and Frederick Schultz are members of a committee of P. S. Barber Hose company, of Pawcatuck, to arrange for a fair.

Frank E. Payne of Chicago, a former roommate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology of Ralph L. Segar of Westerly, arrived in town from New York city to be his week end guest. Mr. Payne, who has business offices in Boston has just returned to this country from a visit of several months abroad.

Thomas Garrity of Stonington, engineer of the Sound steamer Mohawk, was a Westerly visitor Saturday afternoon en route for Providence. Mr. Garrity plans seven weeks' vacation from his duties, to begin the fifteenth of next month, during which vacation he will tour the southern states, including a trip up the west coast of Florida.

Henry S. Hughes of Westerly is booked for St Augustine, Fla., on the new Clde Line steamer, George Washington, which made its maiden trip from New York Saturday. On his reservation Mr. Hughes will sail from New York on December 2nd touching at Charleston, S. C., his ultimate destination being St. Petersburg, Fla., to pass the winter months as he did last year.

Mrs. Jane Conklin, for several years housekeeper for the late John W. Conant, of Westerly, left town the first of the week to make her home with his sister, Mrs. George B. Taylor, who resides in Framingham, Mass. Mrs. Conklin has been recovering from a broken ankle sustained in a fall down stairs at the Conant house a number of weeks ago.

Among Westerly people in attendance at the Yale-Harvard game in New Haven Saturday were Dr. John Champlin, Dr. John Champlin, Jr., Dr. M. H. Scanlon and son, John, Thomas Perry and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. William F. Williams, all leaving Westerly on the Shore Line Express.

On Saturday morning while turning into Main street, Wakefield, from High street, a light touring car driven by William Daley of Westerly was struck by a heavy machine operated by Chas. L. Sheehan of Dorchester, Mass., who was on his way to the Harvard-Yale game at New Haven. Sheehan it is alleged, failed to stop and was pursued and overtaken by Constable Thomas E. Wilson, who was passing at the time. Sheehan told the officer that he did not realize that he had hit the lighter car, but made a settlement for damages incurred, and was allowed to proceed to New Haven.

While in the Pierce street section of Westerly Saturday, Robert Hall of Ashaway, a worsted carrier in the employ of the Ashaway Woolen Company was assaulted, receiving two severe blows on his head, back of his left ear. His assailant, reported to be an Italian is unknown. Hall stated that while he was watching some pigs in a pen a man came up to him and claimed that he had insulted his daughter. Protesting his innocence the blow on the head was received without warning and was of such violence as to nearly drop him to the ground. It is strange to conceive such an attack, for the Ashaway man had but one arm.

A Maxwell sport model touring car 35-595 R. I., collided with a Nash touring car, 25-595 R. I. Saturday night, about seven o'clock on High street while the Nash car was parked in front of the New Park hotel. The accident happened when it was raining the hardest and Police Officers Fred T. Mitchell and Robert Kesson, were called. A woman occupant of the Nash car received an injury to her arm and went to the office of Dr. John Ruisi for treatment. The fender jam was considerable in the narrow pass way, which was the condition similar when a Groton-Stonington trolley car and an automobile came together on the Pawcatuck River bridge a short time later.

A marriage was solemnized Saturday morning at the Immaculate Conception, when Miss Josephine Donato and Samuel Selvidio, were wedded by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. Father Bruno also celebrated the nuptial mass. The marches were by Mrs. Frank Ahern. The bride was attended by Miss Susie Pirillo. Michael DeBartolo was best man. The flower girls were Misses Catherine and Mary Pellegrini, and the ring bearer was Frank Sposato. Miss Adeline Ligouri was the bridal veil bearer.

Following the ceremony at the church a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's uncle, John Gencarelli on 48 Pierce street. In the afternoon a large number of relatives and friends attended a reception held in the town hall. Music for dancing was furnished by Greely's orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Selvidio will make their home at 49 Pierce street.

Soon after 1 o'clock Sunday morning occurred a peculiar mishap when the Cadillac limousine of Mr. Nelson of Mystic with seven passengers, went off the road and landed in the cellar of the old Moss farm barn, a drop of about 12 feet. The car turned over on its side and it was remarkable that no one was injured. It is claimed the machine was crowded off the highway by another car. The limousine was headed toward Stonington. The car bore Connecticut registration number 5888.

A crew from a Granite street garage went to work on the job of removing the car from the cellar bottom soon after the accident happened, and it was 8.30 o'clock Sunday morning before it was in the garage. The car which weighs 4700 pounds, had to be jacked up on its wheels before it could be towed up to the top of the 12 foot stone basement to the road.

As a result of the intensive campaign for Red Cross members and funds last week 1683 members are now enrolled with the Westerly chapter, and the cash received to date amounts to $2,249.25. Saturday from 9 a .m. to 6 p. m. Girl Scouts conducted a membership table in the lobby of the post office. The were supervised by Mrs. H. A. Dunning. Mrs. William Chapmanu, Mrs. Charles D. THE CONVENTION AT HARTFORD

For a session that should be short, but nevertheless of much importance, the republican delegates from the towns and senatorial districts of the state will assemble tonight and tomorrow at Hartford for the purpose of nominating a candidate for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee. It will be the first gun in behalf of the special election December 16.

The overwhelming victory of the republicans in the election of November 4 carries its own significance. From that it may be inferred that the selection to be made on Tuesday will be but the forerunner of the verdict to be rendered at the polls on the 16th. But whether it is or not there are responsibilities resting upon the convention that call for serious attention.

Connecticut has had a most able representative in the upper house of congress for many years in the late Senator Brandegee. He has been a staunch republican and a vigorous defender of state and national issues. Connecticut has not only insisted upon backing the president but it has voted for a solid republican delegation in the next congress, or one more than in the present congress. What it has done in the lower house it should do in the upper house, and in no better way can that be assured than by the selection of the right man for this important place. That indicates the duty of the convention and it cannot fail to be one to which the convention will respond.

While the republicans are in session the democrats will be engaged in a similar undertaking. Whether they regard it as a forlorn hope or not, it must be clearly fixed in the minds of the voters of Connecticut that this is no time to weaken the position of Connecticut in the senate or to lessen the president's support in the upper house. The need of Connecticut is for the best man that can be selected for United States senator who will work with and in behalf of the administration at Washington. With the republican convention keeping that in mind there's reason for an optimistic outlook on election day.

HANDLING THE INSURGENTS.

If any programme has been mapped out for dealing with the republican insurgents who have been so thoroughly repudiated at the polls, it has not as yet been disclosed. There are those who have advocated reading them out of the party and there are those who have urged reading them in. Possibly there are those who see a middle course that can be followed by putting them in positions where they can do no harm and giving them a chance to show whether they are disposed to profit from the message from the people which they cannot fail to have received as the result of the election.

Perhaps it will not be long before something more definite will be disclosed. It is to be noted that invitations have been sent to the republican members of the senate for a conference concerning floor leader and the filling of vacancies in committees caused by deaths, and that to that conference all members designated as republicans have been invited. This will give the insurgents a chance to disclose their attitude. If they are disposed to be republicans they'll probably get a chance to say so. If they are as mulish as ever, or if they are non-committal the time for ceasing to handle them firmly will have expired. It is true that none of them was elected this month, barring Brookhart, whose plurality was such as to be little better than a defeat, but when the people they represent stand so enthusiastically for Coolidge support it is impossible for them to figure that it does not apply to them, or that it does not apply now. The verdict of the people is in direct contradiction to their independent course. Are they going to abide by the will of the people or follow their own obstructive tactics?

Already democratic leaders are admitting their error in following the lead of the insurgents. They recognise the effect of it upon the country. Apparently the radicals are going to be given a chance to reform and be republicans. If they display no interest then the course of action is clear.

TURNING DOWN RUSSIA.

In the recent British election the attitude of the Macdonald ministry to the soviet government of Russia figured conspicuously. It was evident that there was no burst of approval over the course that had been followed in dealing with that government. It figured in the overturn that took place there.

Now when the Baldwin government fails to give its endorsement to the treaties which were entered into with the soviet government by Premier Macdonald, it is disclosed that Great Britain is not disposed to follow the mistake of the Macdonald government. It is remembered that the communists have been unbendable in their determination to bring about revolution in all parts of the world. It is not forgotten what was only recently involved in the Zinovieff letter, and there is no disposition to accept the denial. It is recalled that there have been promises that soviet propaganda in British territory would be stopped, but that has not taken place, and the conclusion has been reached that until there is something more responsible in the way of a government in Russia no more treaties, including these just negotiated, will be entered into.

Russia is not only anxious for recognition but it wants to enter into trade treaties. It wants to do business with other countries. But while it is endeavoring to maintain that it has a stable government and is able to meet the requirements of other countries, it is actually failing to do so when put to the test.

The soviet government of Russia cannot expect that others will tolerate duplicity. Trade treaties with Russia have resulted in countries entering into them declaring them failures and Russia an economic bubble, and now the experience of the British is in keeping with that opinion when Russia has been put to the test in other directions. Russia may fool some of them but it cannot fool all of them all the time. Its weakness, like all its troubles, is to be found right at home.

STILL NO WATER TO WASTE.

After a month and a half of drought it was a welcomed relief that was received Saturday from the southeaster. The ground drank it up like a desert and it was only after hours that puddles could be discerned in the streets.

The chief concern felt was over the water supplies of country as well as city. Wells and brooks had dried up and reservoirs were steadily being emptied, but while some relief has come it is not sufficient to meet the situation, and it does not overcome the necessity of saving water at every possible opportunity.

Rain, rain and more rain is called for by the conditions. It is the season of the year when much more should fall, when ponds, streams and reservoirs should fill up as a normal process, but when we realise that our water supply is at its low point partially, at least, through the wastage that has taken place during the past months and the failure to conserve it, it must not be overlooked that the sooner we adopt the policy of no-wastage the quicker will our municipal supply reach and remain at a point of safety.

There's a serious lesson in each one of the water shortages. We cannot be said to be out of the woods yet, but we ought to have reached that point where we can clearly understand that leaky pipes and the wasting of water simply means the inviting of trouble. A strict and careful policy of prevention will do much in helping to tide over the present situation and to forestall others that might be threatened by prolonged dry spells.

It is far preferable to save, even when it isn't actually necessary, than to be forced to skimp because of waste and circumstances beyond control.

SEEING A LIGHT.

In the last session of congress there was a disposition among a certain element to cause all the trouble possible. The balance of power rested in a small group and because of the effect that it was believed it would have upon the republican party there were many of the democrats, not actually insurgents, who lent their support to certain legislation and plans for nothing more than the embarrassment that would follow.

This is interestingly disclosed by the admission of Senator Harrison of Mississippi who was the keynoter of the democratic national convention after having given much aid and comfort to the effort at government by blocs. He has not ignored the result as disclosed by the election. He reads aright the sentiment of the people and he understands that the course of those who participated in the insurgent activities and those who gave support to it have been properly denounced by those who have witnessed the demonstration and felt the effect of it.

One of the things which Harrison gave his support to was the passage of the law requiring publicity for the income tax payments. He heard what objections were raised against it but he paid little attention to them. He was more disposed to encourage the embarrassment that was indicated than he was to block such a law. He has seen it in operation and he comes forward with a denunciation of the law. He is able to see defects now that he looks at the situation through other than biased political glasses. He has gotten his eyes open. The law itself and the action of the people at the polls have had a powerful effect upon this democratic legislator. It was a situation into which he walked without blinders, however.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

One cup of unsifted flour makes almost 1 1-2 cups of sifted flour.

Cool food before putting it in the refrigerator and keep down the ice bill.

A slice of bread in the box with the doughnuts will keep them soft and light.

If you pare apples and acid fruits with a silver knife there will be no discolorations—on you or the fruit.

To remove a fish bone from the throat cut a lemon in halves and suck the juice slowly. This will dissolve the fish bone and give almost instant relief.

To remove the smell of paint from a room leave in it for 24 hours a bucket of water containing a few sliced onions.

A cake will remain fresh much longer if you keep an apple in the cake box.

When cooking fruits, add the sugar when they are nearly cooked. If you cook sugar along with fruit it loses much of its sweetness.

Scorch marks such as occur during ironing will yield to a vigorous rubbing with a clean cloth and cold water.

Scrape and stack your dishes in good order before you attempt to wash them. You will save time and the task will seem less arduous.

Water in which onions have been boiled will remove dirt from white paint and will leave the surface as glossy as it was before.

Pine tar bags are a good preventive of moths if the garments put in have been well cleaned so no moth eggs lurk in them.

Shoe polish that has become hard and dry can be put into good shape by adding a little turpentine.

A delicious luncheon dish is made by cutting tomatoes in one-third inch slices and sprinkling with salt, pepper and flour, and sauteing in butter. Then served, a buttered poached egg on top of each.

THE USEFUL LEMON

A mixture of lemon juice and glycerine is splendid for removing summer freckles. Let it stay on for about half an hour, then wipe off and rub in a little complexion cream.

To blacken brown shoes mix half an ounce of ivory black, the juice of a lemon, and enough vinegar to make a liquid about as thick as ink. After brushing the shoes thoroughly, apply the dye with a stiff brush; when dry, a second coat. Leave for a day, then use a good black cream and polish in the ordinary way.

To remove stains from marble mantelpieces or washstand tops, sift together two parts of soda, one of powdered pumice stone, and one of finely powdered chalk, mixing to a paste with a little lemon juice. Rub well over the marble, then wash with soap and water and the marks will disappear.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Scalds or burns can be relieved almost immediately by applying a poultice made of oatmeal and cold water. The meal has both soothing and healing qualities.

Infants' feeding bottles should be placed in a saucepan of cold water once a day and allowed to remain on the stove until the water has boiled two or three minutes. By attention to this simple direction many baby ailments may be avoided.

People who bite their nails are often declared to be ill-tempered, but this is much more frequently a sign of a nervy temperament, rather overactive mentally.

The owner of nails which are fluted or furrowed should take good care of the general health, for this is invariably a sign of rather a run-down physical condition. For this reason it is found for a time immediately after severe illness or when the possessor is overdone.

IN THE SICK ROOM

When making a bed for a sick person, first take the bottom sheet and tuck it under the mattress. Don't bother about the foot. Then just let the top sheet come to the head of the bed, tucking under the extra length at the foot. The most restless person can hardly uncover the mattress, which always gives such an untidy appearance to a bed.

For a refreshing sickroom disinfectant, put a little freshly ground coffee in a saucer and in the center place a small piece of camphor gum. Light with a match and as the gum burns allow the coffee to be consumed with it. It is pleasant healthful and cheap.

A wheel chair for an invalid can be made by buying four casters attached to rubber sockets, into which the legs of an ordinary chair can be slipped.

WILLOW SERVING TRAYS

At card parties the smaller willow trays are used in serving refreshments. This is quite an idea, for otherwise, when the call comes just before a hand is finished, one must leave the game and attempt to gram several dishes with no place to set them but in the midst of the cards, which is most disturbing. On the other hand, the little laden trays are readily disposed of until a convenient season without fuss or inconvenience. One hostess chose a brightly colored all paper service for her tray. They were not only fresh and crisp in appearance, but were easily disposed of when the silver was removed from the tray. To save labor means usually a saving of expense and this holds true in individual service.

ECONOMY IN ENVELOPES

If you seal your letter and find you have left out the enclosure, take the small end of a wooden penholder and insert under the right-hand end of the flap of the envelope. Then start to roll the penholder carefully across until you reach the other end. It will usually work splendidly.

TO CLEAN THE WHITE HAT

The white felt hat that has become soiled may be cleaned with a mixture of one quart of cornmeal, one cup of salt and one cup of flour. Cover the hat with mixture and let remain for 24 hours. Then brush off. Repeat if necessary. Of course, this will only clean soil, not dirt and spots.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Smart new girdles and belts are brilliant colors flares back from a long tight sleeve.

Crystal beads and bead fringes are used very successfully on pastel colored evening gowns.

Velvet in very bright shades is liked for evening gowns and wraps and needs nothing in the way of trimming or adornment.

The scarf this season is wound closely about the throat and the streamers usually hang down in the back rather than in front.

Double hemstitching trims many frocks of crepe de chine at the hemline and around the sleeves and it is often seen on crepe de chine underslips and lingerie accessories.

Parisian lamb is combined with black satin to make lovely coats and dresses, the fur being so supple that it may be used almost like cloth to form revers, ruffles and overskirts.

The most popular plaids are those made by the incrustation of one fabric on another, satins or velvets on kasha or wools on silk.

The cravat fastening on coats and suits is new and very smart. It gives the close collar effect without adding to the bulk as the large shawl collars do, and it keeps that youthful line that must not be sacrificed.

Circular skirts are very interesting, particularly those of velvet or wool fabrics, and they are shown with straightline blouses that fit over the skirt without a break.

Japanese mink or squirrel are very much liked for banding coats because they blend so harmoniously with the new soft finished coat materials.

NEW STOCK COLLARS

The new stock collars are well worth noting. They appear with the new tailored frocks, and some of them are entirely separate, being worn with a frock that shows a plain rounded neck line. A very striking model of this type was seen on a smart Parisienne. Her cloth dress was finished with a V neckline and tailored lapels. Close about her neck was a three-inch black velvet band outlined in a stiff white organdie ruffle. This collarette fastened on the side with a jeweled pin and made a striking finish to the blue cloth dress. The costume was completed by a little black satin turban.

SPANISH FLOUNCE

The Spanish flounce is again with us and is a fashion note of more than passing interest. There is also the use of a single flower placed on the shoulder or hip, after the manner of a Spanish dancer. One lovely frock of white satin is straight and narrow to a point well below the knees. Attached to this is a gathered flounce of satin bordered on the right shoulder and another on the left hip. The dress is sleeveless and has a shallow rounded decolletage.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Cottons with red or pink as the basic tone may be permanently set by dipping them in turpentine.

In ironing silks, woolens and colored materials, use medium hot irons. Iron all these materials on the wrong side, except aprons and children's dresses that will keep clean longer if they have a smooth surface. Silks and woolens may be ironed on the right side if covered with dampened muslin.

Soak delicate fabrics in borax water and they will come out clean without injury to the cloth or color.

If washing soda is not thoroughly dissolved before the clothes are put in the water, they are liable to have spots of iron mould on them when the washing is finished.

Iodine and most medicine stains are readily dissolved in alcohol by having alcohol adulterated with benzene. It may be obtained at any drug store.

WASHING RAG RUGS

One housewife finds that her rag rugs look much better rinsed if they are given a "hose bath" while hanging on the line. She has an electric washing machine so no energy need be spent in removing the soil from them and they are rinsed through several waters before leaving the tub, but then the last rinsing is given to make sure that every bit of soap has been removed. This also helps to take out any wrinkles that may have been left in and the rug will hang perfectly straight and even on the line if the full force of the water is turned on while rinsing them.

MUFFS RETURNING

With coats buttoned again, rather than held in place with the familiar gesture of past seasons, there is every indication that muffs will return to favor as part of the ensemble. The small, melon-shaped muff is the best bet, as shown in red fox. Red fox, by the way, is notably voguish when bordering leonard fur coats, but on cloth coats too it appears in similar manner.

Speaking of furs, Alaska seal redeems its lost place at leading furriers with added interest, for it is dyed a new golden chestnut—a color as youthful as it is smart in a season of golden browns and which makes the skins softer and more supple.—Dry Goods Economist.

THE REFRIGERATOR

Monday morning is a splendid time to clean the refrigerator, as it usually contains less ice at that time. Place the ice on the drain board and remove all trays, racks and drain pipes. Wash them in hot water containing soda or soapsuds and wipe dry. Wash the entire inside of the refrigerator with the same solution before returning the various articles. If cleaned every Monday without fail no great amount of dirt will accumulate.

KEEPS BETTER

The joy of so many of the better grades of coffee nowadays is the tin container in which it comes. Then even if we are careless and do not remove the coffee to our glass jar, it will stay as fresh as when bought in its tin box.

RIBBONS IN GARMENTS

When removing ribbon from garments preparatory to sending them to the wash, fasten a piece of tape to one end of the ribbon and pull it through in place of ribbon. Then when the garment comes back all you have to do is to tie the ribbon on the end again, and it is easily pulled back into place.

CONCERNING WOMEN

With the object of settling questions of salary and hours of labor, girl typists in Paris have formed themselves into a trade union.

After waiting 41 years for her husband to return, Mrs. Charlotte M. Rodotte of New Bedford, Mass., has just applied for a divorce.

Miss V. P. Porter, professor of the United States Bureau of Standards is making tests to determine how thin celluloid can be made.

By wearing a pedometer, an Iowa farm woman found that she usually walked five miles each day in preparing meals for her family of three.

The Indiana State Police Association is presided over by a woman, Mrs. Lucille Myers of Hammond, who was recently elected president of the organization.

The privilege of wearing knickerbockers on the street has been granted to the women of Ready, W. Va., a referendum vote showing a majority of one in favor of the women.

TO REMOVE RUST

If your pet knife becomes badly rusted, cover it with thick sour milk and let it remain over night. It will clean quite easily by morning.

UNPAINTED WICKER

Scrub your unpainted wicker with a stiff brush and white soapsuds, then rinse, dry quickly and brush over with turpentine, sweet oil and alcohol, in equal parts. Coat well and when dry rub over with a thick, soft cloth.

RECIPES

Crumpets: One scant pint of flour, one pint of lukewarm water with 1-8 of a yeast cake dissolved in it; one level teaspoon each of salt and sugar. Put the salt, sugar and flour in a bowl, add yeast and water, and beat hard. Cover and set to rise overnight in a warm place. In the morning add two tablespoons of melted butter and let rise again one hour. Then heat a griddle and muffin rings very hot, grease them, pour in the batter — two-thirds of the ring full—and cook on top of the stove—turning once when risen. The griddle must not be quite as hot as for cakes. Split, toast on the inner side, butter, put together and serve hot.

If you want to bake them, measure the pint of flour and pour into greased hot gem pans. If the butter is very salty use 1-2 of a level teaspoon of salt.

Old-Fashioned Gingerbread: One pound of flour, one pound of golden syrup, four ounces of brown sugar, one ounce of powdered ginger, a small teaspoonful of baking powder, two eggs. Whisk the eggs and golden syrup together. In another basin, cream the butter and sugar; gradually add the egg and treacle mixture, alternately with spoonfuls of flour, beating the mixture thoroughly. Lastly add the powdered ginger and baking powder stir well in. Pour the butter and bake in a moderate oven about an hour, until a bright-bladed knife will come out clean on testing the gingerbread. A couple of ounces of candied peel cut small is a great improvement. In cold weather, warm the golden syrup before use.

Kellogg, the Country Lawyer

Although Frank B. Kellogg wanted to get into public life, he was not considered a "good mixer." He was from the farm, he desired to be a lawyer, but he did not seem to have the faculty of getting around and making himself a "good fellow" with the people in general.

But it was conceded that he knew how to work. On his father's farm near Potsdam, N. Y., where he was born, and on the one in Wabasha county, Minnesota, to which the family moved before he entered his teens, he helped in the fields during his school days.

While attending the country school, he heard a political speech when he was nine, and became fired with the ambition to be a lawyer and a public man. At 18, he went to Rochester, then a prairie town, to study law in an attorney's office.

Admitted to the bar at 21, he soon married, quiet, studious and devoted to his home, he was declared to be the poorest politician in the state, but was chosen city attorney of Rochester and county attorney of Olmstead county.

As counsel for the towns of Elgin and Plainview in their effort to recover bonds issued to pay a bonus on the Winona & St. Peter Railroad, he argued the cases alone before the state and the United States Supreme Courts, and won, his fee being estimated to have been $200,000. His practice grew and he was invited by Cushman K. Davis, prominent Minneapolis attorney, to form a partnership.

Business for the new firm rapidly grew and the organization became one of the most important in that part of the country. Wisely investing his money, he became rich, and his generosity was acclaimed by many.

During the Roosevelt administration he was chief counsel for the government in its anti-trust suit against the Standard Oil Company, and in contesting the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific merger, as well as handling other important matters for the government.

At 58 he was elected president of the American Bar Association. Four years later he was chosen United States senator, but was defeated for re-election. And now he is serving as ambassador to Great Britain, where his tact and suavity have attracted attention.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without An Operation.

Kansas City, Mo., (Special) — A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrews, 606-H Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard grouping pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Bulletin, who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Huge Noses Promised for Us

Scientists have worked out some theories that will amuse, if not startle the lay readers. One is that as the planet earth gets older the air around it will disappear, the sense of smell dying with it, with the result that humans will have enormous noses not unlike the trunk of an elephant. As sound and smell diminish as the air gets thinner, humans will also have great bat-like ears, these scientists say. Added to this worry, humans may look forward to a completely frozen world, even at the equator—in 3,000,000 years.

NORWICH WHITE WAY WENT INTO ECLIPSE

On the twelfth night of its service to the city, the Norwich White Way went into an eclipse that was almost total, due, according to General Manager C. W. Taggart, to a "ground" in the underground wiring on North Main street where the wires leave a pole and run in a conduit along the curb to the first of the White Way lights.

The eclipse came early Saturday evening in the midst of the heavy rain storm that broke the long drought, but Manager Taggart said he did not think the storm had anything to do with it. He explained that in pulling the cable through the pipe at the curb some of the insulation had probably been worn off, resulting in the ground.

The "ground" put the whole circuit out of commission for a while and burned out many of the lights in the White Way, but the repair men of the gas and electric department were able to get one circuit back into working order and restore a few of the lights along the White Way.

Sunday afternoon they located the "ground" and ran an overhead wire that put one circuit back into working order and restored the lights on it to service.

Trouble at Norwich Town.

A Washington street resident notified police headquarters about 2 o'clock Sunday morning that two live wires were down in front of the Rock Nook home on Norwich Town. Captain D. J. Twomey notified the gas and electrical department and they had a repair man on the job within a short time. A police officer was detailed to guard the fallen wires until the repair man arrived.

An arc and a primary wire became crossed and burned the wires off. The street lights in Norwich Town and in the Falls and Washington street north of Chelsea parade were off for the remainder of the night.

HEBREW YOUNG MEN HEARD RABBI GROSSMAN

Sunday evening the members of the Hebrew Young Men's association heard an instructive talk at their hall in the Olympic building on Water street by Rabbi Jacob Grossman of New York, educational director of the United Synagogue of America, who spoke of the physical and spiritual re-birth of the Hebrew nation in Palestine, which he had visited last summer. A significant development had been the firm hold taken by the Jewish language as a living tongue and the splendid educational system, which had reached a climax in the establishment of the Hebrew institute, which has attracted leading figures in the educational world to its staff.

Rabbi Grossman spoke in Ellington Friday and in Chestnut Hill Sunday afternoon. He will be in Montville today (Monday) in connection with the programme of the educational alliance, part of which is to organize schools for Jewish rural groups. Samuel Kostelofsky of the Jewish agricultural society secured Rabbi Grossman for the Norwich meeting at which M. I. Silverman presided.

MISSING NEW LONDON MAN IS FOUND SUICIDE IN MOHEGAN PARK

The body of Onufry Toupasz, 32, who boarded at 188 Howard street, New London, was found hanging from a tree in Mohegan park Sunday morning by his brother-in-law, Paul Sankow, of Chesterfield, who came here to make a search for the man, whose abandoned automobile had been found in the park several days ago.

No motive is known for the man's suicide, but this may be disclosed when a letter in the Ukrainian language, which was found in his pocket, has been translated. Coroner J. J. Desmond and County Detective William Lewis will take steps to have the translation made at once. The letter is addressed "Dearest Sister."

The deserted car, which had been left near the lake at the park, was first reported to the police on Thursday by Park Superintendent Krohn, who learned from one of his helpers that the car had been there four days. Chief Linton notified the New London police, through whom it was learned that Toupasz had not been seen at his boarding place since he left there a week ago Friday.

The abandoned car was placed in a Norwich garage and Sunday morning the brother-in-law and his son came here to make a search. They went to the park with the garage man who had taken charge of the car and when they had been shown where the machine had been left they scoured the region around the lake without finding anything and then went along the road leading to Washington street. At some distance from the lake and a considerable distance off the road they found the body of Toupasz hanging from a tree. He had used a new piece of sash cord which was just long enough to allow his feet to touch the ground.

Police headquarters and Medical Examiner C. C. Glidersleeve were notified and the body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Cummings & Ring.

According to what the brother-in-law told the medical examiner, he had been to the New London address last Monday and again on Wednesday to inquire about Toupasz and was told both times that he had not been seen since he left there a week ago Friday.

Toupasz was a native of Ukrainia, was unmarried and leaves a sister in New York and one in Chesterfield.

WESTMINSTER PARSONAGE BURNED TO THE GROUND

About 9.30 Saturday evening, as Florence and Herbert Newton arrived in Westminster from Plainfield, they suddenly discovered that the ancient parsonage was ablaze in its ell. They at once began to shout and arouse the neighborhood, which responded promptly to the alarm. The pastor and his wife had gone to their rooms for the night, the former being already in bed. Mrs. Davies, hearing the alarm, opened the door and saw in flames the room opposite, where was stored the household linen, winter underwear and best clothes. Closing the door quickly, she informed her husband of the fire and urged him to dress and leave the house for safety. Meanwhile friends were moving the furniture from the front parlor, but were unable to save more because of the dense smoke. Heavy rain was falling, in spite of which the fire had to be carefully watched. In a surprisingly short time the building fell. Soon after the fire was discovered news was broadcasted by telephone and the church bell was rung. A number responded from different parts of the town, but most of them could not arrive in time to render aid. Mr. and Mrs. Davies were invited to several homes and are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hubbard. Their loss was heavy and they have no insurance. The cause of the fire cannot be determined, as there had been no kitchen fire for some hours before the fire started in the shed. The loss of the historic parsonage is greatly lamented. It was a fine example of old colonial architecture and was a tavern in the time of the daily four or eight-horse stage on the old toll gate line between Hartford and Providence. Many a stately minuet and other square dances has taken place in its ballroom, with its ornamental domed ceiling.

THREE IN COLLISION IN SATURDAY RAIN

In the heavy rainstorm of Saturday afternoon a wagon and two automobiles were involved in an accident about 5 o'clock on the Norwich-New London highway just south of the entrance to the tuberculosis sanatorium, with damage to both machines but no injury to the occupants.

A small coupe, registration N-8017, driven by Charles Podgewski of 114 High street, struck a wagon driven by a Montville man who, according to the claim of Podgewski, had no light on his team. While the Norwich man's car was standing in the road, after the accident, it was struck by a sedan, N-2888, which was driven by Edward P. Sullivan of 42 Potter street, New London. After the crash the Sullivan car left the road, crossed the trolley tracks and plunged down a bank into a ditch.

The Norwich car had its headlights broken and right forward mudguard dented. The New London machine had steering rods and an axle bent.

AUTOMOBILE HIT MAN AND SPEEDED AWAY

Edward Jarvis of Plainfield, who works in a Jewett City mill, was brought to the office of Dr. Harry McLaughlin in Jewett City Sunday night for treatment for severe injuries said to have been received when he was struck by an automobile as he was in the highway on the Newent road, near the Ames cemetery. The machine that hit him was said to have been traveling at 50 to 60 miles an hour and did not stop.

Mr. Jarvis had alighted from a machine in which he had been riding with his brother-in-law and others of the party were in the road with him, it was reported, but he was the only one who was struck. He had a broken collar bone, three teeth knocked out and a cut in his head in which the doctor put five stitches to close it.

REPORTED POSSIBLE ATTEMPT AT HOLDUP

About 10 o'clock Sunday night Robert Culver of 123 Thames street reported at the local police station that while he was driving his machine toward Norwich on the Jewett City road, near Round Hill, Sunday evening, two men stepped into the road and tried to stop him. He saw the lights of a parked machine facing him. Instead of stopping, he stepped on the gas and shot by the men.

Mr. Culver made the report thinking it possible that it was an attempted holdup. He said all the men did was to attempt to stop him. The Jewett City authorities were notified at once by the local police and an officer patrolled the road all the way from Jewett City to Norwich but did not see any signs of the machine or the men.

FLOODED MANHOLE MADE TROUBLE FOR TELEPHONES

Trouble calls that began to come into the telephone exchange about 3.30 Sunday afternoon resulted in Henry A. Lord, wire chief, finding a flooded manhole in Main street near the Chelsea bank. The rain of Saturday night had filled the manhole and the soaked cable began to fail Sunday afternoon. The repair force got to work to remedy the trouble.

The Saturday night wind and rain storm made plenty of trouble on lines in all parts of the city, caused by falling branches of trees and electric light wires.

Acknowledged Telegram of Sympathy

SPEAKS ON RELATION OF RELIGION AND EDUCATION

Education as a Primary Function of the Spiritual Life was the topic of the sermon given at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening by Rev. Brownell Gage, Ph. D., headmaster of Suffield school. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, led the service which had a fair sized attendance. Schools in many places have been celebrating the past week as Education Week, said Dr. Gage. There has come a new realization that the hope of our country depends on education. We are here as members of the church. We are interested primarily in the religious life. The question I want to ask is, What is the relation of the religious spirit to the problem of education?

The relation between education and religion has not always been most friendly. The religious spirit has been thought of as making changes in human nature in one way and education has been thought of as making changes in human nature in another way. The religious spirit has made some very valuable contributions to education throughout the country. No longer is there opposition to schools and colleges. The real trouble is in bringing religion and education together. Religion is one sector of the sphere of life. It may be a large sector or a small sector. Education is not one of these sectors. It is more like a zone going all around the sphere of life. It crosses religion and there is religious education. What are these sectors? They are different parts of the whole round of life.

Dr. Gage went on to speak of the evolution of life from its earliest forms and explained how education is simply the intelligent use of that power of animal life from the early stages to make changes to meet new conditions. What is religious education? he asked. The religious spirit is always conservative. There is nothing in the world so precious as what religion gives us. It is therefore natural for the religious spirit to be conservative and to question all changes.

One trouble with our life today is the fact that the religious sector has been made so small, been narrowed down. Man has conquered the land and the sea. He is at home everywhere. But one thing he has not accomplished and that is the conquest of himself. Man has conquered the world but he has not yet conquered his own soul.

What is the educational system of the American public school aiming at? One of the first responsibilities is health, the producing of sound bodies. Second there comes vocational training. With these we must teach the necessary tools, to read, to write, etc. In the fourth place we must teach how to make a home, how to run a home successfully. The home, as it exists today is not competent to teach that important function of life, how to make a home. Education, today, recognizes its duty to make citizens, to make good neighbors. Finally we recognize wholesome recreation as another aim.

Many of our colleges grew out of the religious impulse. So with the secondary school and the academy for they prepare for the university. The church has very little of the boy's time; very little of the girl's time, compared with ages gone by. The whole problem of education has never been thoroughly worked out. The church still has a vital contribution to make to education. We are all bound together, seeking to do the same thing. The public schools are seeking to preserve life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. To make a good citizen we must do something more than teach the laws of the land and the constitution. To make a happy home we must teach something more than we find in the domestic science class. There is the necessity of knowing God.

NORWICH C. E. UNION MET AT BOZRAH CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Norwich Christian Endeavor Union was held Saturday afternoon and evening at the Bozrah Center Congregational church. The meeting opened at 3 o'clock with a devotional service by Rev. N. E. Webb, pastor of the church. This was followed by an address of welcome by Orrin Banning, president of the Bozrah Congregational C. E. Union, and the response by Miss Gertrude Ladd. The Fitchville Intermediate society entertained with a special programme after which the meeting proceeded to hear the annual reports of the officers as follows:

Secretary, Dorothy Lee, Hanover; treasurer, Eugnie A. Dean, Central Baptist, Norwich; lookout committee, Miss Jessie Hyde, chairman, First Congregational, Norwich Town; stewardship superintendent, Rev. E. C. Dunbar, First Baptist, Norwich; nominating committee's report, by Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., Central Baptist, Norwich, as follows: For president, Gertrude Ladd, Hanover; vice president, Ralph Marsh, First Congregational, Norwich Town, secretary, Dorothy Lee; treasurer, Leroy Miner, First Congregational, Norwich Town. All reports were accepted as presented.

Orrin S. Maples declined renomination after serving six years as president and Miss Eugenie Dean, Norwich, declined re-election as treasurer after serving in that capacity for two years. The following were named a committee on resolutions: Rev. C. S. Bailey, Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., and Robert Avery.

Field Secretary H. W. Hicks of Hartford spoke about happenings in various parts of the state. He said he liked individuals to unite in traffic on a great concourse. We must watch our every action, he said. What we do as individuals in our societies and churches is what counts.

Charles Bailey of New London, chairman of the state finance committee made a plea for pledges to state work. Most of the societies represented made definite pledges and many individuals made pledges also. The state budget is $7,500. Norwich Union has a quota of $450.

Following Mr. Bailey's address there was a roll call of the societies, the collection was taken up and the session closed with music by the Intermediates of Fitchville. From 5 to 6 o'clock there was a social period during which the annual banquet was held. The banquet arrangements were in charge of the entertaining societies.

The evening session opened at 6.30 o'clock with a praise service led by Rev. Mr. W. J. Tate. A summary of the resolutions committee's report follows:

Appreciation extended to Mr. Maples for the six years of service. To Miss Dean for her services as treasurer; to the officers of the Union for the way they have conducted the work of the union; to Wm. Park of Hanover for the financial aid rendered the union this year; thanks extended to members of the Bozrah Congregational church and C. E. society for their cordial reception.

The address of evening was by Rev. Russell S. Linton of Hartford.

Mr. Linton said each one was carrying a dead man around with him. We are several people in one skin, he said. Unless we can get all these interested in the same thing and going in the same direction we are carrying dead men. If all our forces are pulling in the same direction we may be irresistible.

He mentioned as dead men, indecision, laziness and lack of knowledge.

We have to learn how to communicate with God and we should search and make attempts to know God. You will then see best in others and the best that is on you will come out.

Worship together is an inspiration. We must get the help of God, who can get the best of the dead men we are carrying with us We will become an irresistable force for good.

The one thing that can get all the different forces in us orking together is communion with God.

Adjournment followed Rev. Mr. Linton's address.

SWEDISH LOCOMOTIVE SAVES HALF ON COAL

A Swedish engineer named Ljungstrom has invented a new type of rail way engine. He has named it a "turbine locomotive," and it promises to revolutionize railway running costs. In to Stockholm it did the run in record a recent trial trip from Gothenburg time, the result being a triumph for economy of coal and water used, with ordinary locomotives. The trip of over 400 miles was accomplished without changing engines (twice being the usual number on this run), or any fresh supplies of coal or water being needed, while there was a supply left for the return journey on arrival at Stockholm.

The economy of coal is reckoned at 50 per cent., while that of the water used is two cubic meters to the 45 usually required by engines of the ordinary type, which have been used on this particular run.

NOTRE DAME STANDS OUT AS MOST PROMINENT TEAM IN THE MID WEST

Chicago, Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—The Big Ten conference championship went to Chicago, but midwest honors went to Notre Dame.

East, west and south, Notre Dame won everything in a season when the south and southwest were on a par with midwest leaders. South and southwestern conference teams invading the Big Ten, won one, tied two and lost no games.

Chicago's claim to the Big Ten championship rested on tie games, which included those three of the Big Ten competitors regarded as strongest. This season, at least, tie games, sometimes disregarded in scoring, cannot be tossed aside, because out of 24 Big Ten games played five were tied. These tie games were a true gauge of the closely matched strength of Big Ten elevens.

The season brought fulfillment of a fact that has long been in development in western football circles, namely, its rise to a truly national college sport, instead of being a game limited to a few large universities and sections. Boys everywhere now receive expert football coaching, beginning in grade schools, with the result that no team can be sure of winning every important game.

So closely matched were this year's teams that it was morale before the game, rather than ability of stars, that decided crucial games. Yesterday Northwestern was within striking distance of Notre Dame's goal until the end of the game. Wisconsin, rated as the weaker, had three chances to score to the Maroons' one. Iowa, considered the under dog at Michigan, stopped the Wolverines better than any other team this fall, holding them to two points.

Grange was not the only star to suffer temporary eclipse. Schutte of Minnesota, "Red's" conqueror, could do nothing against Vanderbilt. "Five Yards" McCarthy of Chicago was scarcely "five feet" against Wisconsin. Steger, Michigan's captain, who Coach Zuppke of Illinois complimented after the Illinois-Michigan game, was powerless against Iowa, while Parkin, Iowa captain, again justified his soubriquet "a bullet on legs." Baker of Northwestern, squelched in some midseason games, rose to his greatest brilliance against Notre Dame. The secret was that all these, and numerous other backs, were so nearly matched that breaks in any game might determine their rating for the day.

The forward pass, the break in so many games this fall, had no important part in the contests yesterday involving the five Big Ten leaders.

Even the passing of Notre Dame's four horsemen was largely stopped. Purdue, defeating Indiana for the Big Ten honors of Hoosierdom, made the only effective Big Ten use of forward passing. Vanderbilt used passes to defeat Minnesota. Passing was attempted in other games, but straight football smothered it.

Illinois' 7 to 0 victory over Ohio State was the first triumph the Illini scored over the Buckeyes on the Illinois field in six years. The game bucked in thrills because of the absence of Grange.

The defense of the Illini was superb but only once during the entire battle were they in danger.

SENKERT HOLDS LEAD AS HIGH POINT SCORER

New York, Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—Benkert of Rutgers carried his season's scoring total to three figures in his eleventh tuckle battle against title Bucknell Saturday and leads all eastern football performers. A touchdown, gave him 100 points, a mark which appears safe for the season.

McBride of Syracuse added 7 points and progressed to third place. He has one more game, that against Columbia at the Polo Grounds Thanksgiving day, but overtaking the New Jersey backfield star appears to be beyond hope. Koppisch, fleet Columbia halfback, now in sixth place, also will have another opportunity to increase his total.

Tryon of Colgate was kept in second place with 89 points when he failed to tally at Syracuse and Hazel of Rutgers gained but a single point on a goal after touchdown against Bucknell.

Chicknowski of Lafayette climbed two notches by the week end play and Prevost of Penn State advanced four. Two touchdowns by A. Wilsbach of Bucknell brought him well up in the list.

Records of eastern players who have scored more than 30 points follow:

STAGG TURNS IN HIS SEVENTH CONFERENCE TITLE

Chicago, Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—The victor of Chicago in the 1924 western conference football title race brings to Amos Alonzo Stagg, dean of American football coaches, his seventh conference championship in 32 years of coaching at Chicago. And to Stagg, alone, the Maroon followers award the honor.

Getting the most out of his material through his gridiron strategy, although lacking talent in several important departments, has won for the Old Man, as he is known on the campus, the major share of the Maroons' glory for this championship their first since 1912.

Although 62 years old, Stagg carries the football coaching burden at Chicago almost single handed, and the credit for the spectacular tie with Illinois, which started the Maroons on the championship road, is given to the "Old Man" for his method of attack. Instead of trying to stop "Red" Grange, the Maroons alternated "Five Yards" McCarthy, Kernwein and Harry Thomas in hammering across two touchdowns before the Illini woke up. This year the team lacked a good punter, but Bob Curley, at critical moments, drop kicked victory over Northwestern and a tie with Ohio State.

Prior to 1913, the Maroons were frequent conference leaders, but the title which is said to have brought the "Old Man" the greatest satisfaction is the one taken in 1924 by defeating Michigan 2 to 0 in one of the classic struggles in conference history.

The late President Harper of Chicago is said to have induced Stagg to come to Chicago in 1892. Stagg was just out of Yale, where he had been selected All-American end, but was better known as one of the greatest pitchers ever seen at Yale. This has been Stagg's only coaching position, and he has been Chicago's only coach, not only in football but in all other athletic departments, although he has several assistants.

The "Old Man's" dictatorship of athletics extends even into the football ticket scramble, where the pressure for favors, because of the limited seating capacity of the Chicago stadium, is tremendous. Stagg field, named for the "Old Man," will be enlarged next year to seat about 67,000 instead of 32,000 as it present.

As full of energy on the practice field as the most eager scrub, Stagg never even approaches profanity in his distribution of satire among the football candidates. It is campus gossip that he kept "Five Yards" McCarthy off the varsity last year because of a cuss word. The acme of disgust in Stagg's vocabulary is to brand some unfortunate a "jackass," and once, when thoroughly aroused, he termed a player "two jackasses."

DEAL FOR OAKLAND CLUB FALLS THROUGH

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 23—Because of their failure to make their second payment of $25,000, plans of Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington American League baseball club and George M. Weiss, owner of the New Haven Eastern League club, to purchase the Oakland Coast League club, have been abandoned, it was announced here.

Johnson and Weiss failed to make their second payment of $25,000 on the club, which was due yesterday, and the deal was called off. They paid $5,000 as an initial payment last Monday but stockholders of the Oakland club last night voted to return this sum to Johnson and Weiss.

The two eastern baseball men, who were to have paid a total of $350,000 for the Oakland club, intimated that men upon whom they had counted for backing had failed to support them and they were unable to finance the deal.

Johnson and Weiss had been so sure of the success of their venture that they had made plans for rebuilding the local park and for obtaining players from major league clubs.

Johnson left Friday night for his home in Reno, Nevada, it was learned yesterday, and Weiss who is still here, expects to leave for his home in New Haven within a day or two.

At the meeting of Oakland stockholders, Cal Ewing and Del Hoard were selected as the club's representatives to attend a meeting of club owners in Hartford, Conn., December 2. They will leave here next Tuesday night and are reported to have plans for several deals which they will try to negotiate at the meeting.

DANIELSON BASKETBALL OPENS OPENS SEASON NEXT FRIDAY

The basket ball season will open in Danielson Friday evening when the Service Battery will entertain the West Ends of Willimantic at the State Armory.

The military championship five of last year is practically intact, the only loss being Williams, who is now a student at Connecticut Aggie and fullback on the freshman football team. Captain Keech is temporarily out of the line-up with a broken finger and will not be able to participate in the opener, but there are available four veterans, Armington, Gale, L. Poirer and Godreau, and two newcomers of ability, Joe and Bill Eaton of Central Village.

The Jolly Five of Danielson has reorganized and will meet the Battery Seconds in a preliminary contest.

IRELAND FIRST TO FILE CHALLENGE FOR DAVIS CUP

New York, Nov. 23.—Ireland, twice defeated by a powerful French quartet in previous tournaments, is the first to enter the lists for the 1925 Davis cup tennis competition. A challenge has been received by the United States Lawn Tennis association from Secretary H. R. Maunsell of the Irish body.

The American association has also received reports that the clever Australian method, Pat O'Hara Wood, is planning a tour of Europe where he will engage in doubles matches with his wife as a partner during the coming summer, and that the pair undoubtedly will appear at American clubs.

Bulkeley-Stamford Game Postponed.

Owing to the heavy downpour Saturday which made the playing field at Stamford High school a veritable marsh, the game between Stamford and Bulkeley for the state high school football title was called off. No announcement was made relative to playing the game at a later date but it is possible that the two teams will meet on Thanksgiving day.

WINDHAM BEATEN BY NORTH ADAMS TEAM

Windham High's clean slate for the past two seasons was badly besmeared Saturday at North Adams when Drury High school downed the Thread City huskies 6 to 0. The game was played on a muddy field with the rain falling continually, making the ball hard to handle. Windham, however is still persistent in her claims for the state high school title despite the fact that all her victories were over teams of secondary caliber.

Drury got the jump on the Nutmeg visitors, registering a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. Receiving a Windham punt on the forty yard line, Drury went down the field for the only score of the game. End runs by Scully featured the advance. Coughlin going through the line for the final four yards. Windham never threatened the Drury goal line. Frequent fumbling marked the meeting.

For Drury, Scully, Bouchard, Belouin, Crozier and N. Roach featured, while Meikle was Windham's best man. The summary:

Drury	Windham

37E7,000 See Football Game

Chicago, Nov. 23.—More than 377,000 gridiron fans witnessed the ten major games in the United States yesterday. Figures compiled tonight revealed. The Stanford-California game at Berkeley, California, drew 90,000, the largest attendance of the day.

Rain out the Harvard-Yale attendance to 75,000. In the mid west the Iowa-Michigan clash drew 42,000; Chicago-Wisconsin 33,000 and Notre Dame-Northwestern 35,000 the seating capacity of the field.

Wildcats Win

Sunday afternoon the Jail Hill Wildcats defeated the Greeneville Rovers in a fast and interesting game. The Jail Hill line proved a stonewall for their opponents. The score was 20 to 6. Gillis, Brock, Krohn, featured for Jail Hill. Garders made the only touchdown for Greeneville.

YALE ENDS FOOTBALL SEASON WITH DECISIVE VICTORY OVER HARVARD

Mud-caked, reeking sons of old Eli staggered out of the be-puddled bowl in darkness Saturday afternoon undefeated for the year and victorious over the ancient enemy from Cambridge by plowing through ankle-deep mire for three touchdowns after the cause had seemed lost in the first half of the battle.

Ducky Pond, Yale halfback, who splashed through a submerged Harvard stadium in 1923 to cross the Crimson goal line for Yale's first touchdown in many seasons, repeated his performance in New Haven waters for the score that gave his team the lead, never to be relinquished. Two teammates later followed his example.

One here was developed by Harvard in the most crushing football season the men of Fisher have ever undergone. Gehrke, injured in previous battles, returned to offer his last effort against an overpowering enemy and for a time it seemed that the brilliant Crimson backfield man would win the day by sheer gameness. When the second period ended Gehrke had thrown such a scare into the Yale camp as the bowl had seldom witnessed. Favorite from all angles, the Jones eleven was struggling against 6 to 0 odds, the result of two field goals by the Cambridge cripple.

Gehrke fought a winning game while his strength remained and appeared to give heart to his comrades. A diving figure splintered the Yale line. It was Gehrke. Yale backs plunged through the Harvard forwards only to be borne to earth by a second defense man—Gehrke, in that first half the ball sailed between the Elis' posts twice kicked by Gehrke.

But this powerful Fisherman could not catch all the punts and carry the ball in every drive, although in the first period he smashed Yale time after time without relief. He played his part and the fumbles and failures of his comrades gave Yale opportunities that meant victory. Yale took advantage of them and won, 19 to 6.

With the victory went a high pitch in eastern football, by the side of Dartmouth, mighty team out of New Hampshire, and for the second year the Jones-coached squad has failed to taste defeat. It has been tied this season by Dartmouth and Army. Harvard plunged into the lowest depths it has known, scoring but 61 points throughout its eight games to 78 for its opponents.

Rutgers failed to realize its hope for football greatness when it fell before Bucknell in a sea of mud at Philadelphia.

Twice Wilsback of the Lewisburg eleven plunged across the Jerseymen's line for touchdowns, while the speedy Benkart, high scorer of the east, could gather but six points for his college. Hazel added a point with a placement goal after the score. Bill Blaisdell, from Hawaii, was one of the deciding factors in the battle.

Lafayette returned to power and hammered down formidable Lehigh in an opening spurt in which Chicknoski crossed the line for six points deciding the issue. The South Bethlehem backs found the big Lafayette linemen well grounded despite the fact that their shoes oozed mud. It was Lehigh's first defeat of the year.

"Syracuse's victory over Colgate, 7 to 3, met with pre-game calculations. Rain and mud hampered the players, McBride of Syracuse scoring the only touchdown of the game. Tryon, speedy Hamilton back who is almost the leading scorer in the east, was closely watched throughout the contest, and failed to escape the Syracuse forwards in his attempts to add long sprints for touchdowns on his enviable records."

Holy Cross roll up the highest total of the day, scoring 53 points to Canisius' 11. Boston college buried Vermont, 33 to 7. Penn State defeated Marietta, 28 to 0. Brown conquered New Hampshire state by 21 to 0 and the Massachusetts Aggies and Tufts fought to a 7-7 deadlock.

GRANGE HOLDS LEAD AS HIGH PONT MAN

Chicago, Nov. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Illinois finished the 1924 conference football steason with three men among the first ten scorers of the big ten, "Red Grange, the touchdown king leading all the rest. Gallivan was fourth and Britton, conference champion point kicker, ninth.

Grange won the individual scoring leadership despite his inability to get into Saturday's game with Ohio. He was injured a week ago in the Minnesota contest. He played throughout the four periods only twice this season.

Rockwell of Michigan finished one point behind Grange. Hockwell made more than half his team's points during the season.

Ralph Baker of Northwestern displayed the greatest versatility of the point leaders in winning third place, scoring seven field goals and nine point kicks besides his five touchdowns.

Michigan and Purdue each had ten men in the big ten point scoring list, while Wisconsin's season was divided among four. Chicago, conference champion, had one player in a tie for tenth place, their highest ranking player for the year. Neither Wisconsin or Ohio State had a player among the first ten.

U. OF F. ONE OF THE UNDEFEATED TEAMS IN SOUTH

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—The Alligators of the University of Florida, by defeating the Mississippi Aggies 27 to 0 yesterday moved into the ranks of Southern Conference elevens undefeated. Other teams with clean conference slates include Georgia, Alabama, Washington & Lee and Florida.

The Vanderbilt Commodores became Admirals in an afternoon by defeating the great Minnesota team, 16 to 0, one week after the Gophers had toppled Illipois.

Wake Forest won a clear title to the North Carolina State championship by defeating North Carolina State 12 to 0.

The heavy Georgetown team defeated Loyola in New Orleans, 25 to 0.

Hampden-Sidney and Randolph-Macon were unable to score.

Roanoke and Maryville also played a draw game, 3-3, and Chattanooga and Louisville finished all square with ten points each. Still another tie was registered in Birmingham, where the score of the Birmingham Southern-Howard game was 0 to 0. Emory and Henry defeated Lincoln Memorial 6 to 0.

SUB BASE BEATS NEWPORT TORPEDO STATION 12 TO 0

The Sub Base team drove through a sea of mud and water to a 12 to 0 victory over the Newport Torpedo Station team Saturday afternoon at the Sub Base field.

The Base took advantage of every misplay and fumble by the Newport eleven while the latter weakened under the insistent hammering of its line. Immediately following the kickoff the Torpedo Station got under way and scored two first downs but the tars from the Base soon made connections and from then on held the upper hand. Although the victors made substantial gains, carrying the ball and Murphy got off some booming punts, they lost a deal of ground through penalties.

After Kelley tore through the Torpedo defense for a 30-yard run that carried the ball to the very goal line, Locke plunged off right tackle for the first touchdown. The try for the extra point was issued. In the third period the Base gained 55 yards on straight football and again Locke rammed over for the touchdown and the try for the point was missed.

The summary:

MISSOURI VALLEY TITLE GOES TO MISSOURI

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 23 (By the A. P.)—The Iowa Aggies proved the bitter pill for Drake University Saturday and the Drake Bull Dogs, with a clear record for the season, dropped their final 1924 conference game 10 to 0 and with it first title. Missouri now leads in the conference.

It was a terrific onslaught that Nebraska turned on the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan and the Cornhuskers won their third and final conference game, 24 to 0.

Oklahoma chalked up its second conference victory at St. Louis by defeating Washington University 7 to 0.

Whether Missouri will emerge the 1924 winner depends upon the Turkey day fray with Kansas at Columbia. Should the Tigers lose, Nebraska would claim the title on a record of three victories and one defeat. Drake won three games, lost one and tied one. Missouri has won four conference games and lost one.

NORTHWESTERN WANTS GAME WITH SOME EASTERN COLLEGE

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Northwestern University is anxious to meet some eastern eleven next year, Head Football Coach Clem Thistlewaite said today, before leaving Philadelphia where, on Thursday, he will witness the Pennsylvania-Cornell game. Next Saturday he will witness the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame game at Pittsburgh.

Home and home will be the object of the coach. Several eastern mentors have been approached, but so far no definite arrangements have been made, he said. Playing dates will be arranged to suit the eastern team, it was said.

ARTIFICIAL TIMBER

No less than 60 per cent. of a tree is wasted in its conversion into lumber. At present the twigs, branches, bark, roots, sawdust and plank and log trimmings are entirely lost. A new process for the utilization of these waste products and the production of synthetic lumber is being tried out in the United States. The process is a conversion of the waste into a cellulose compound of a plastic nature that can be pressed or moulded into all conceivable shapes and bulks from boards to rafters.

The development of the process has passed beyond the initial experimental stages and has been taken in hand by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. If it is commercially practicable it may be extremely valuable as a step to the conservation of the world timber supplies.

Baseball Player Who Refused Bribe

Heinie Sand, short-stop of the Philadelphia Nationals, who started the recent baseball scandal when he reported that Jimmy O'Connell, outfielder, and Coach Dolan of the Giants, attempted to bribe him to throw the game of September 27th last.

George Spangler found his neighbor's pig in his cornfield each morning at Gilboa, O. The pig was rounded up daily and returned to his owner. The two farmers examined every foot of a finely woven wire fence and not a hole could they find. The mystery was solved when they watched the pig start on his journey. He had a subway, a tile drain leading from on farm to the other. He was forced to wade and swim through water for seventy-five feet to reach his goal.

Always in the Lead!

Because all important improvements in basketball footwear have always been pioneered by Converse, coaches and players look to Converse basketball shoes each year for the very latest developments.

This season it's the new Converse "Peg-Top" upper, found by test to eliminate all possibility of cutting, chafing or discomfort from the top of the upper across the Achilles tendon. It's an ingenious device, solving an old problem in a way you can't appreciate until you try on a Converse Shoe, lace it up tight, way to the top hole, and feel the faultless comfort of the upper at every point.

Insist on the Converse "Peg-Top" shoe this year—If your regular dealer doesn't have it, write us for the name of one who does.

The "Pickett" is the new Crepe Sole shoe worn by many 1923-24 champions. The All-Star (brown uppers) and Non-Skid (white uppers), both with the famous "Traction" sole, are continuing to make Converse basketball history.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Rebecca's Hymn

When Israel, of the Lord beloved,
Out from the land of bondage came,
Her father's God before her moved,
An awful guide, in smoke and flame.
By day, along the astonished lands
The cloudy pillar glided slow;
By night, Arabia's crimsoned sands
Returned the fiery column's glow.

There rose the choral hymn of praise,
And trump and timbrel answered keen;
And Zion's daughters poured their lays,
With priest's and warrior's voice between.
No portents now our foes amaze:
Forsaken Israel wanders lone;
Our fathers would not know Thy ways,
And Thou has left them to their own.

But, present still, though now unseen,
When brightly shines the prosperous day,
Be thoughts of Thee a cloudy screen
To temper the deceitful ray.
And, O! when stoops on Judah's path,
In shade and storm the frequent night,
Thou long-suffering, slow to wrath,
A burning and a shining light!

Our harps we left by Babel's streams
The tyrant's jest, the Gentile's scorn;
No censer round our altar beams,
And mute are timbrel, harp and horn,
But Thou hast said, "The blood of goat,
The flesh of rams, I will not prize—
A contrite heart, a humble thought,
Are mine accepted sacrifice."

—Sir Walter Scott.

The Lone Wolf

A silent, gray shadow, in the swaying pines
Across the wooded ridge he slinks along,
Seeking his prey by snowy, midnight trail,
Joining the winter wind in wild, unfettered song.
Thou hast said, "The blood of stars
He stops, yet poised for flight.
Beneath the frosty silence of the night,
In deep communion with the pagan —Elaine L. Thompson in Our Dumb Animals.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Are animals afraid of you or are they your friends? The answer to this question will tell in a way what kind of a boy or girl you are. The boy or girl who has lots of friends among animals is kind, gentle, merciful, sympathetic and considerate.

If animals, especially dogs, are afraid of you and skulk and snarl when they see you it shows that you have not treated them as you should have. They know when you are kind to them. They know a cross word or a cross look And they resent cruelty.

The first time a dog sees you he either makes friends or becomes an enemy. Of course all dogs are not friendly. There are exceptions. Some of them are by nature suspicious of everyone but their master or the members of their master's family. This is often seen in the police dog and the watch dog. But the majority of dogs are willing to make friends and often go more than halfway to strike up an acquaintanceship.

If you speak cross to a dog, chase him away from you, throw stones at him, hit him or kick him you can be almost sure that you have made an enemy, especially if it is the first time he has seen you. But if you treat him kindly, pat him gently, offer him a nice juicy bone and show him you are pleased to see him you have made a friend. He will always know you and when he sees you coming will rush toward you barking and wagging his tail. He knows you are his friend and that is his way of telling you he is glad to see you.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Mixed Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed, It's a long time since I wrote to you. I received a book which I now thank you for. I couldn't do it then because I had the scarlet fever. Unfortunately, I have a very bad cold now, and am home from school. I have nothing to do so I think I'll tell you about the time I went for quahaugs in Fisher's Island.

Well, to begin with our bunch had been on the island just six days. We had had clam chowder for four days right arunning. If it wasn't that it was steamed clams, mussels or fish. It was alright but you know too much of a good thing spoils the appetite. We had been planning on going for quahaugs for some time and on the six day we went. I guess you know how funny the sky looks over the ocean sometimes. Well it looked exceedingly funny that day. We didn't seem to notice it much, so around nine o'clock my brother, father, mother and I started off. For convenience we all wore bathing suits.

You ought to have seen the loganberries on the way. Oh! it seemed a shame to go by them all.

After walking about one hundred miles (it seemed that long to me, in reality it was only seven) we came to the life saving station. Just beyond that was the little stream where we were allowed to get quahaugs. In fact we couldn't go much further as we were at the end of the island.

There were quite a few quahaugs and you know how easy they are to get. They only lay about two inches under the mud. It was so much fun. To tell you the truth, I didn't get many because after I'd dug about half a dozen, I cut my finger. It didn't hurt much but my back seemed as though it could never be straightened again.

Quahaugs weren't the only thing that inhabited that little stream. My goodness! you ought to have seen the crabs. Some were as small as a penny and the largest we saw was about four inches across the shell.

I got on the bank and started tossing the rest. They didn't pay much attention to me, though. Oh, how I laughed at them. The tide was just beginning to come in and every time they went to dig down deep they got wet.

After getting a half bushel basket nearly full it started to thunder. Then we decided to start for home. Alfred my brother, called to me to look how terrible the clouds looked in the water. Indeed they did look fierce. But, it looked fiercer still. Then looking down to where I was pointing was the largest blue shell crab he had ever seen.

I ran to the bank and got the empty basket while my mother handed A la board. He tried to shove the crab on the shore, but I guess the crab didn't like the thought of having his blue complexion changed into a bright red.

You may be sure Alfred kept a safe distance from Mr. Crab whose claws were snapping together like twigs breaking from larger branches.

It had started to rain now, but we were determined to get that crab. After we succeeded in getting the little monster into the basket they gave me the honor of carrying it home. The rain was coming down in torrents now. But what did we care?

After another eternity of walking we reached home. Thank goodness! supper was ready.

As I was the youngest of the quahaugs they pleased me by saying I caught the crab. But really all I did was to jump up and down the bank yelling.

One Good Time

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing and telling you of one of the good times I had during the summer vacation.

One Friday morning we all started out in the machine for Atlantic beach and Weekapaug where we went to a cottage and took several boys with us to the Sand Dunes. We immediately had lunch which consisted of goodies.

After an hour or so, frolic in the sand we got into our bathing suits. We played in the water for a long time then retired in the sand. We dressed quickly for the sun was going down and it was becoming cold in our wet bathing suits.

We arrived at the cottage some fifteen minutes after. We walked around and investigated the place. We decided to go for a short row on the pond. We heard the shouts from the cottage calling us to supper. We all agreed we were terribly hungry so hurried and found a large table spread for us on the piazza. We did justice to what was set before us. Toward seven o'clock we departed for Westerly where we intended to stay until Sunday night. I met one of my girl friends who invited me to spend Saturday and Sunday with her.

I was given consent, so soon I was riding in her machine for the Anquilla on the Pequot Trail. I had a very enjoyable time while visiting and with some regret started for home in our machine which came for me. I was invited to come again and I hope to accept the invitation soon.

Likes to Go to School

Dear Uncle Jed: I like to go to school. I go to school every day. My teacher is very good to us. I like her very much. We have a new superintendent. He is very good to us. I like him very much. We have a new music teacher. She is very good to us. We like her very much. In my room I try to improve in my writing, and in my arithmetic my history, my geography and in my reading. We do exercises every morning and afternoon. I like to do them. Some times we do exercises on the victrola music.

OUR SCHOOL FAIR

Dear Uncle Jed: We had a school fair October seventh. It began at three o'clock in the afternoon. There were many things exhibited. Some of them were: vegetables, fruit, flowers, chickens, and animals such as: calves, guinea pigs and cats.

I brought a little basket of grapes and some large carrots. There were red and blue ribbons for prizes. I received a red and blue ribbon.

After the fair was over the people talked with friends, while we, the children, played games.

Daniel Webster's First Case

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story and hope all the Wide Awakes will read it. Daniel Webster's father was a farmer and a woodchuck often did much damage to his growing vegetables. Daniel and his brother Ezekiel therefore determined to set a trap and catch the little creature. One morning they found the woodchuck in the trap and Ezekiel wished to kill it at once. But when Daniel saw the poor little creature trembling with fright he insisted that it should be released. As the boys could not agree, they referred the matter to their father. Now Mr. Webster was a wise man and instead of deciding the question suggested that the boys be the lawyers in that case, and he himself to be the judge. Ezekiel spoke first. He argued so cleverly for killing the woodchuck that his father was very proud of him.

Then came Daniel's turn. Keeping his eye on the poor captive he pleaded for its life. When he had finished Mr. Webster exclaimed hastily, "Zeke, Zeke, let that woodchuck free."

Old Trinity Church

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my trip to old Trinity church. This church was built in 1771 by Colonel Godfrey Malbone of Queens college Oxford, England The church was copied from King's chapel in Boston, Massachusetts. This was when old Trinity was in the town of Pomfret in the Connecticut Colony.

The first rector was Rev. Daniel Fogg. The tablet on the outside says it is the oldest standing Episcopal church in the oldest diocese in the United States. King's chapel would have been the oldest Episcopal church but it has changed from the Episcopal to the Unitarian denomination.

The inside of the church is very delightful to see. Its old fashioned seats are high backed, narrow and very uncomfortable. The gates that lead to the seats have the name cards of the people who sat there. One was Daniel Putnam. There are about 30 pews. Under the pews are stools and tiny foot stoves. Many very old bibles and prayer books are in the racks. The rector's pews are in the front near the altar.

The rich people sat downstairs. Upstairs was a place where the servants sat. The whites sat on one side and the negroes on the other. The organ is upstairs too. It is very small.

In the cemetery the oldest tombstone we could read was dated 1772. I wish sometime you might visit old Trinity church too.

A Rainy Day Parade

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and I hope you will enjoy it. Ha, ha! here they come. Sam with his drum and soldier hat; Ed with his toy horse, blowing his trumpet, and also wearing his paper hat. Bess with the gun is dragging her horse behind her. All seem to enjoy the little parade of three, which was in the house for it was raining. Ed and Bess too little to go out in the rain said they would stay in and play with them. A good brother wasn't he? They decided to have a parade.

The Costume Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to become a member of the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you about the costume party at the public library. Each one represented a book. I was William Tell. Nell's Dressing Up

Dear Uncle Jed: "Mother," said Nell, "Leonel Barkley is here, father and mother. I saw him, but he hasn't seen me. Oh, darling mother, do let me play a trick on him it would be such fun?

"What do you want to do?" asked mother, looking down at her smiling little daughter.

"Oh, I want to dress up and see if he knows me. Do let me put on the things I wore at the fancy dress ball, mother, and I'll go down on the beach and pretend I'm a fish-wife."

Mother laughed and said "yes;" and Nell took off her shoes and stockings, and dressed herself in the striped petticoat, little jacket, and big cap and fastened the funny long ear rings in her ears. Then she took her basket and went down on the sands.

Presently Lionel strolled along, his hands in his pockets. Now I must tell you that he and Nell had been great friends the year before, and yet when he saw the little fish-wife he did not know her at all. He looked at Nell as if he thought her very young to be a fishwife, but he was too shy to speak. Nell went up to him. "Please, sir, will you buy some fish?" she said.

"Oh, thats a pity," said Nell, "why don't you try to earn some?"

"I don't know," answered Lionel. "I'm afraid I am not old enough to do anything to get money."

"Not old enough!" cried Nell, "Why you are as big as I am!"

Poor Lionel looked very much ashamed of himself, "I-I-perhaps I'm a little younger than you," he stammered, "I'm ten."

"And I'm only nine," cried Nell. For a minute Lionel could not find anything to say, and then at last, he began "And have you been a fishwife long?"

"Oh, years and years," replied Nell, but she could not help laughing. "Oh, Lionel," she cried, "don't you know me? I'm Nell!" and both the children burst into a peal of laughter.

Came From Hartford

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have had the pleasure to write to you and the Wide Awake circle. I have always lived in Hartford, Conn. As my father got interested in a business in Norwich we moved there. I think that I will like Norwich, for it seems to be a very nice, quiet little town. We had a little excitement since we came to Norwich. We were here just about a week. Mother and I went back to Hartford for a few days and in the meantime our house caught fire. No one was at home at our house, but as the man upstairs was there, the fire was quickly attended to by the Norwich fire department. No great damage was done, only some of our furniture was damaged by the water. Great was our surprise to come home and find things in that condition. We are pretty well straightened out now. I hope I will always like Norwich as well as I do now.

A Dream

Uncle Jed: One day I went into the woods. I went to get flowers for my mother. The moon was shining bright and the stars shone above the trees. While I was looking for the flowers which I couldn't find. I heard a noise in back of me. I looked around to see who it was. I saw a fairy. She asked me what I was doing in the lonely woods. I told her that I was looking for flowers but couldn't find any. She said to me if you will follow me you will reach a place where you will get all the flowers you want. I said that I would. I followed her till I came to a palace. I went in there. The walls were shining like gold. She took me all over the palace. Then we went into the garden and she said, "You can pick all the flowers you want." I picked a lot of them. Then I was ready to start for home. I thanked her for the flowers then I shook hands with her to say good bye but it was my mother who was shaking my hand and saying, "Wake up, it is time for school."

A Potatoe's Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a potato and am going to be cut with my other friends to be planted. One day a farmer came and took my friends and myself to the field to be planted. The man took me up and started to cut me up. When I felt that sharp knife cutting me I cried out but the man didn't hear me because my voice was weak. So he went on cutting me into pieces and planted me. For the while I was very much afraid. But soon it were over. And I lay down to think what was to become of me. I thought about it for many a day. But at last I grew weary and fell asleep. When I awoke it was summer. I wanted a drink very much. At last I felt some water coming down through the earth and drank it. Then after some days I began to grow. I grew very fast until I reached the outside world. There I saw many of my friends. I soon grew familiar with my whereabouts and began talking with my friends. We had lots of time talking. But at last we began talking to the flowers we had on our stems. All of us were very proud of them. But one day something happened which caused us to be very frightened. Some potato bugs had climbed on some of us and had eaten all the leaves up and had caused them to die. But pretty soon the farmer came and put some kind of poison on us which killed the bugs. Then we weren't bothered by them, any more. One day some men came and dug us all up. Then we were put in a dark place called a cellar and kept until winter. Then we were taken out little by little and cooked. Then we were eaten up.

My Three Little Plums

Dear Uncle Jed; One night before I went to bed I put three little plums by my pillow. When I awoke in the morning, two of them were gone. I thought it strange where they could go. I dressed and went downstairs to wash myself. While I was washing myself. I saw a mouse running through the garden with one of my plums in his mouth. "You rascal mouse," I said, as I was chasing him, but the mouse went under the wall cool as ever. I stood watching for the mouse but he did not come out. My mother said, "Whatever are you doing there?"

I said, "The mouse has taken my three plums that were by my pillow last night and I do not know what to do, so I am standing out here watching for it."

Preventing Sickness

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you, and I am going to tell you about a proverb I learned today. This is the story about it:

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Of the millions of people who have died in the past generation. I am safe to say that thousands of these could have been spared if the knowledge of prevention as known today could have been used a generation ago.

Thousands of people formerly died of malaria. While today, thanks to prevention malaria is rapidly becoming a sickness of the past. It is true of malaria. Although perhaps in a lesser degree of many other diseases also. Compare child mortality of today with the records of past generations. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is proven true.

A Visit to Holyoke

Dear Uncle Jed: One Sunday morning I got up at 6 o'clock. We had breakfast and started for my aunt's house in Holyoke. We got there at ten minutes past ten. We saw a lot of apples and other thing too. When we got there we played awhile. Then we had dinner. After dinner we went up on the hill and saw Mt Tom and lots of other mountains. Then I was tired. When we got back to my aunt's house I laid down for awhile. We started for home before dark.

The Old Trinity Church

Dear Uncle Jed: One Saturday our teacher took us children to the old Trinity church in Brooklyn. It was built in 1773 and is still standing. It is not a very large church. It has small seats that are very hard and narrow with high backs. The slaves and poor people sat up stairs. The rich people sat down stairs. Where the slaves sat the seats were all marked up. There were foot stoves where the people kept their feet warm. It was very interesting.

Planning for Christmas

Dear Uncle Jed: This is our English period and our teacher suggested that we all write a letter. So I thought of writing to you.

Christmas is almost here and I have 31¢ saved up to buy my Christmas presents. I expect to get a present for my mother and dad, and also my teacher and friends.

I am trying my best to be a good boy so that Santa Claus will not forget me on Christmas morn. I will be grateful to Santa of he gets me a bicycle or a Royal Coaster.

My Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I was seven years old on Armistice day. Auntie made me a nice birthday cake. It had brown and white frosting on top. She put E. V. B. on top in white. Around the edge were seven pink candles which auntie lit at night. I blew them out. I got some peanuts. I got a pretty doll's dress, eleven cents, fancy cookies, roll of necco candy and two post cards. I enjoyed by birthday.

Autumn

Dear Uncle Jed: Autumn has come with its many charms and delightful enjoyments. Mother Nature is in her height of splendor. God has provided a robe of glory for her. The trees are beginning to shed their leaves which are tinged with deeper hues of gold and yellow. The hills and highlands are crowned with purple mist in the early morn. The generous earth has given wealthy stores to the world. God has also provided an abundant harvest this season. The orchards have been striped of their precious burdens.

Autumn is the select time for children. They like to play among the leaves and the nice piles of fruit. They help their mothers very much, because mother knows that bare unproductive winter will come and all mothers are busy canning much fruit and vegetables. The kitchen is changed into a canning factory. The cellar shelves are being filled with all sorts of canned goods. All of mother nature's beautiful landscapes are of deeper dyes.

Autumn is a select time for boys. They like to get out of school to repair to the woods in search of nuts which they will enjoy cracking during the long winter evening.

Armistice Day

Dear Uncle Jed: November the 11th was Armistice day. We had a half days school. One o'clock we came home from school. We ate our dinner, brought in some wood and sat down near the table to read over some magazines. Suddenly my brother-in-law came in and said, "Get ready we are going to the city to see the parade. We were very happy. We had never seen a parade before. At a minutes notice we were all dressed. A quarter after two we rode out of our home. On our way we did not see one person. All the stores and houses were closed. Everybody seemed to know what Armistice day meant.

When we reached the city it was very quiet. We surely thought that we were too late to see the parade. My brother-in-law left us in the automobile and jumped off to the other corner. There he saw the parade marching up to a large lot where they could take their places. We soon came there and stopped our car at a corner. When we got there our eyes met wonderful sights. The nurses with their long dresses and white aprons, and black shoes looked pretty. There were all kinds of nationalities. There were Indians with their red faces, black eyes, and long hair. The Scotchmen who played the bagpipes. We heard a radio speaking. It told us that we should always be ready to fight for our country. Then they began to march. Every nationality had their own flag.

Some of the songs that they sang were America, The Star Spangled Banner, Kellers American Hymn and many other songs.

When the parade had marched by we took our seats in the car and were ready to go home. There were about a hundred cars in one row and you can imagine how slow we had to ride in order to follow the other ones. Seven o'clock we reached home. We had a lot to tell our parents because they weren't there. People who attend parades every year said that there has never been such a great parade as this one was and I believe it.

A Race

Dear Uncle Jed: Last week I went on a visit to my uncle's farm. One day when I was playing with a boy whose name was John I asked him if he would race with me in the fields. He agreed with me so I took Prince which was my uncle's horse and he took Beauty which was his father's horse.

We agreed to race from the big oak tree to the river. John started us off on the count of three. At first it seemed as if he was going to win but slowly and surely my horse was creeping up on him. All of a sudden when we were near the river a hunter shot his gun off which frightened John's horse and he passed me very quickly, but when we were at the river he could not stop his horse which plunged into the water. John swam to the shore with all his clothes wet but he had won the race.

The First Thanksgiving

Dear Uncle Jed: It is so long since I wrote to you, that I will write again. This is about The First Thanksgiving.

Once a king of England made a law that every one should go to his church. Some of his people, however, would not do this but went to their own church.

When he heard this he had some of them put in jail. Then they were afraid and said, "Let us go to Holland where we can have our way." So they were called Pilgrims.

In a few years they found that their children were growing to be like Dutch children, so they wished to leave Holland.

"We will go to America," they said, "where we can be free."

On Sept. 16, 1620, they set sail in the Mayflower for America, but it was so stormy that they did not reach there until November.

When they came here they built homes of logs. When the warm days came, they planted corn and other foods that made them very happy because it grew well.

"Let us thank God for his goodness and mercy," they said. "Let us set apart a day for giving thanks to him, and it shall be called Thanksgiving day.

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: My pet dog was named Buster. When I came home from school he used to meet me.

One day a truck came by and my dog was run over. I felt very sad. My dog was lying in the road half dead. I told a boy to watch him while I went home and got a bag. When I came back he was dead so I put him in the bag and buried him. I was very sad.

Making Sunshine

Dear Uncle Jed: I will now write to you about sunshine. The rain had been pouring allday. Flora played with the dolls till she grew cross. "Oh! if the rain would stop I'd go out and see the new calves out in the barn. "Floss dear," said Margaret, "Will you come and help me?" She was cutting out patterns to make clothes for the children of the hospital and also making dolls or other toys. So Floss decided to help. Her sister told her to fill the dolls with cotton. She thought it was fun and soon forgot everything. Could I cut a ball and do it myself? Margaret gave her the needle and thread and by that she knew she sister said yes. It was soon finished and she showed it to her mother. Her mother said, "Little sis, next time it rains try to make sunshine in the house if not go outdoors."

My Funny Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide Awake circle and I hope you will enjoy my story.

Last night I dreamed that I was going to the store. I found a nickle. I picked it up and there was another nickle under it, until finally, I picked up five dollars all nickles.

When I came home I told my mother about it. She said to me, "Give me the five dollars and I will save it for you." I gave her the money. Next morning I went to the store. I found fifty cents. I picked it up and there was another fifty cents under it until finally I picked up ten dollars. When I came home, I told my mother about it. Every morning it was the same thing. At last I had one hundred dollars. I was glad. But, alas, I waked up. I had not a cent. I wish that dream would come true, don't you?

Aardvack Junior

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and your Wide Awakes an interesting story about Aardvack Junior.

The Aardvarks are like pigs but are not related to them at all. They are sometimes called, "Cape Ant Bear," or, "The Digger." But their real name is Aardvark. They have big claws that dig and tear open ants nests for ants are what they live on. They have a long tongue that gathers thousands of ants at one sweep. They hunt for their meals at night for they are shy. They are harmless to any one or things but ants. I hope the Wide Awakes like my story.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about a visit to my grandpa. Last Sunday I went to see my grandpa. He has a radio. He let me hear it while I was there. It was very nice. I enjoyed hearing it.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Old Sic'em Arrives

Now, let me see, you and I,
Did I finish last night's story?
Won't some little rabbit fan
Help your Uncle David Cory?

Well, well, well! No sooner had I spoken out loud this pretty verse than my old Thinking Cap settled right on my head. A wonderful magic cap isn't it? And I remembered all at once, just like that, where I left off yesterday.

Dear Uncle Lucky, Little Miss Mousie, Turky Tim and our bunny were listening in on the radio. As soon as I had finished broadcasting my little Jack Rabbit story, Little Miss Mousie scampered out to the kitchen to set the supper table, for it was after six by this time, and the Old Red Rooster had locked the barn and was already asleep with his head under his wing.

"You'll stay to supper, won't you?" asked hospitable Uncle Lucky, turning to Turkey Tim.

"I shall be only too thankful," answered poor Turkey Tim. "Every day I'm afraid somebody will round me for Thanksgiving or Christmas."

"Not while I have my little white house on the Corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street," replied kind Uncle Lucky. "Stay as long as you like. You've come in plenty of time for my Lollypop Party."

"Yes, yes," shouted the little rabbit, hopping up and down on his toes. "Uncle Lucky has invited everybody to come day after tomorrow. Won't we have fun?"

But, Oh dear me! No sooner were the words out of the bunny boy's mouth than there came a loud knocking at the front door. Poor Turkey Tim's cheeks turned as white as the table cloth that Little Miss Mousie had just spread on the supper table. "Who can it be?" he asked in a trembling voice.

"Hide in the cellar," advised Uncle Lucky, in a low voice. "Slip down the stairs from the kitchen."

Again the knocking came, louder than before. But the cautious old gentleman rabbit waited until Turkey Tim had disappeared before going to the front door. Even then he did not open it but drew aside the curtain to peek through the little pane of glass. For a minute he could see no one in the darkness, until all of a sudden, Old Sic'em, the Kind Farmer's Dog pressed his nose right up against the window. "Bow wow," he barked on seeing the old gentleman bunny's face. "Let me in."

"What do you want?" asked Uncle Lucky, as brave as a lion—not a great big lion, you know, but a little one.

"Let me in. I can't explain out here." And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

JEWETT CITY

The much longed for rain came on Saturday and there wasn't any question about it either! For it fell in torrents toward night, accompanied by a high wind. The gauge at the Jewett City Water company's house on Stone Hill showed that 1.9 inches had fallen up to 6 o'clock Sunday morning. The last time there was any water in the gauge was October 14. About half past six, the Danielson and Plainfield feeder line from the Ashland sub-station to the local station burned off, in the Meadowbrook section in Ashland. Flashes of light caused by the grounding on the feeder line led many to think it was flashes of lightning. The circuit was renewed by the linemen from the Danielson and Plainfield company and lights were in operation at 1.15 a. m. The interruption of the service was not caused by any trouble in the borough system.

People motoring between Norwich and Jewett City, about 6 o'clock Saturday night, as they rounded the curve near Tunnel Hill, saw what appeared to be a man sitting on the fence. If he was contemplating a holiday, his ardor must have been considerably dampened. Or possibly he was glad it was raining and he could take his yearly bath in that very informal manner. Anyway, it was a peculiar place to be sitting under such very moist conditions.

There was something of a celebration in Jewett City, Armistice Day, which was very enthusiastic, but few knew about it. The programme received little or no advance publicity but those who were fortunate to see the performance claimed that it was far ahead of anything seen in these parts before. The Acco Smile, published by the operatives of the Ashland Cotton Co., contained the following account of the proceedings:

The scene of action was one well known clubroom on the main street. The preliminaries were arranged on said street.

Boxing exhibitions, ever popular with the men, furnished recreation and amusement throughout our country in commemorating the cessation of hostilities in the war six years ago, so we had a boxing match in Jewett City.

Quite a crowd turned out at that, considering that the only advertising that the bout received was two four-minute speeches in front of the hall one by each of the contestants. Both battlers are well known to local sport lovers. Tiger Desjardine entered the ring first and was closely followed by Hambone Masse. Adam Rojeske was the referee and Tom Barnett timekeeper. Announcer Joe Humphrey had a previous engagement so Adam announced that it was going to be a four-inning game under strict rules to be made up as the fight progressed. The weights given out were Hambone Masse 237 pounds and the Tiger 123 pounds. It will be seen from the weights that the contestants were fairly evenly matched as to height. The bell found both men rarin' to go, the crowd was enthused. Bock, sock, sock, echoed the bounding leathers until an armistice was signed that this was a friendly bout and may the best man win. Odds were even in the first round, with Hambone accusing someone of taking his breath. The third man in the ring, Adam Rojeske, was easily outpointing the two contestants and his clever blocking of the Tiger's wild swings saved Hambone from taking the count in the first verse. The Tiger complained to the crowd that the referee was holding.

In the second act, Hambone used his hips and back to advantage, the Tiger was tiring fast when like a bolt out of a clear sky Hambone went down, the Tiger sensing victory and wishing to show his sportsmanship promptly tried to help his foe back to his feet, but Hambone claimed it was a bluff and that the Tiger had hit him above the neck while he was down. The referee looked to his instruction book and awarded the first prize to Hambone Masse with Tiger Desjardine a close second.

An attempt is being made to match these two gladiators to a finish bout of six rounds and if the contestants are as willing as the spectators Tex Rickard will probably get the contract.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Faust, William Marshall, Miss Jean Burleson and Andrew McNicol were among those who attended the Yale-Harvard football game in New Haven. Radio attendants at the game had the advantage of sitting in a sheltered place.

A union Thanksgiving service was held in the Methodist church Sunday evening, a large number attending. W. J. Robertson Jr., conducted the praise service. A psalm was read by Rev. Josiah Bickermann, of Foxboro, Mass., prayer was offered by Rev. E. S. Scates, pastor of the Baptist church, and the Scripture was read by Rev. J. W. Payne. The choir sang a Thanksgiving anthem, David Carter being organist. At the close, Winifred Scates and Ellen Prior sang a duet, accompanied by Mrs. G. H. Prior. The sermon was by Rev. J. W. Carter, who emphasized the so often neglected words of praise and thank you. "Say so" for the many acts of kindnesses of individuals to the church workers, and people who do so much for the good of their towns, to the mothers and fathers who so seldom hear words of appreciation until they are ready to die, and to the children who are often censured but do not always receive the commendation due them. He said every one should be thankful for life, and for the are we live in, enlarging upon these thoughts. It was an impressive sermon, suggesting serious thought. The service closed with singing America, the benediction being pronounced by Rev. A. H. Clement.

New London, Nov. 23.—Another evidence of the sale of liquor by the members of the United States Coast Guard, the unit of the federal government that is supposed to suppress the trafficking in liquor on the high seas, was brought to light today, when H. Olsen, stationed at the Fort Trumbull reservation, was arrested by Sergeant Nelson Smith at the Salvation Army lodging house, State and North Bank streets, charged with having liquor in his possession, for sale. Olsen had five quarts of whiskey in a suitcase, which he had deposited in the locker room a short time prior to his apprehension. The coast guard authorities evidently have come to the conclusion that the long reported handling of liquor for salable purposes by some of the seamen is a reality, for this afternoon an officer from Fort Trumbull reservation visited the police station and interviewed Olsen for the purpose of ascertaining where he obtained the liquor.

The soldiers and sailors on shore leave have made a practice of visiting the lodging house and drinking liquor, either brought there by the uniformed men or brought in by others and provided the soldiers and sailors. The practice has become so general that a report of the acts of the uniformed men has been made to the police. Olsen, it is understood, removed his wearing apparel from the suit case and placed the liquor in the case, then depositing it in the locker room. Sergeant Smith obtained information that Olsen had liquor in the case and obtaining possession of the locker room key, found the suit case and in it found the liquor, which was taken to the police station.

An automobile, a Velie coupe, 1924 model, valued at $2200, owned by Albert N. Tiffany, 534 Bank street, was stolen from in front of his residence early this evening. The state police at Groton, Centerbrook and the New London police, New Haven, Hartford and Norwich police were notified of the theft. Tiffany arrived at his home from Hartford about 7 o'clock and absented himself from the automobile about a half hour. When he returned to take possession of the car he found it missing.

Charles E. White, of Groton, treasurer of the Savings Bank of New London, this evening reported to the New London police that while his automobile was parked on Meridian street, early in the evening, some thief stole a robe.

A live electric light wire, property of the Connecticut Power company and carrying a voltage of about 2200, became loose on a pole in front of 13 Truman street, this evening, and was in danger of falling to the sidewalk, but was discovered by a pedestrian. The police were notified and in a short time a repair gang of the power company had linemen at work making the wire secure on the pole.

Two sailors from the U. S. S. Savannah, at anchor in the harbor, were taken into custody this evening when found intoxicated at the corner of State and Atlantic streets, throwing empty bottles in the paths of automobiles and using vulgar language. They were later turned over to a provost guard and delivered aboard their ship for punishment.

Webster D. Copp, 297 Broadway, Norwich, reported to the police this evening that while accompanied by Miss Mary Tirrell, also of Norwich, that the latter lost her wrist bag, containing valuables. Mr. Copp stated that he and Miss Tirrell drove to New London by automobile and that the car was parked in the parking space adjoining the Soldiers and Sailors' monument, State street. After alighting from the machine Miss Tirrell discovered that she had lost the bag. It is believed that the bag slipped from the owner's wrist when she alighted from the machine, but no trace of it was found, although a search for it was made within a few minutes following its loss being discovered.

The mutilated body of Daniel J. Lee, 30, seaman aboard the U. S. S. Camden, stationed at this port, was found lying between the main line tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, at Westbrook, Saturday morning. Lee's legs had been amputated near the knees and he was otherwise badly mangled. A bottle of liquor was found in the man's pocket. It is believed that Lee fell from a freight train upon which he was stealing a ride to this city.

William T. Brown, colored, a sailor, was at a dance at the hall where the colored elite of this city assembles Friday night, and somehow became possessed of an idea that he was all that was to be considered in the conduct of the dance. He had that notion till he encountered Sam Robinson, who manages the hall and then he changed his mind. Samuel saw that a policeman nabbed Mr. Brown and escorted him to North Bank street. He was presented in court Saturday morning. Brown was very docile then, begged to be allowed his freedom and on promise of future good behavior and the view that he had got through with drink he was placed in todY of the probation officer.

Clinton Jobs and Leroy Vanderhurst were charged with intoxication and each admitted that he was rightly charged. Judgment was suspended in these cases also.

An automobile truck owned and operated by Byron P. Clark of Quaker Hill, was in collision with a New London-Norwich trolley car of the Connecticut company Saturday afternoon on Williamss treetoppositeRosemary street. The truck, which was damaged, was in collision with the trolley car when Clark was trying to avoid having the motor vehicle collide with another machine.

John Higgins of Sherman street, reported to the police Saturday evening that a pile of stone was stored on Ocean avenue near Bank street, and that as a result of the obstruction not being denoted by a lantern his automobile collided with it and was damaged.

Madeline M. Childs, a girl who has been in the city several weeks and who has been frequently in company of sailors, was taken into custody Saturday night by Patrolman William Babcock, charged with lascivious carriage. She is being held at the police station, pending a hearing in the police court Monday morning. The girl was taken into custody last Thursday upon her promise to get out of town.

An automobile owned and driven by Timothy J. Fields, 20 Stewart street, was in collision with a macaine owned and driven by Angelo Groppelli, 20 East street, Saturday night on Montauk avenue, between Darrow and Orchard streets. One wheel of Sullivan's machine was demolished.

Patrolman Walter Rehn discovered the entrance to the cottage of Mrs. F. H. Chappell on the Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, unfastened this morning. The owner of the place was notified and and caused the place to be made secure.

Miss Elizabeth Riecke, of Jay street; Mrs. Isabelle Goodman, Elydenburg avenue, and Miss Emma Turscano, of Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Mrs. Mary A. Davis, about 77, widow of Calvin S. Davis, died Saturday morning at her home on Pennsylvania avenue, Niantic. Mrs. Davis had been in ill health about two years. She is survived by a son, Attorney Marion H. Davis of the law firm of Geary Davis & Keefe, this city, and by a daughter, Miss Nan Davis, Niantic. Mrs. Davis was born in Niantic, and has resided there her entire life.

Laura Jane, wife of James Bathgate, of East Lyme, died Friday night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. E. Hall, Hartford. Mrs. Bathgate, who was of advanced years was visiting her daughter and early in the week was taken ill and failed rapidly. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Bathgate, is survived by a son, George Bathgate, of this city.

The funeral of Robert H. Jaeger, whose death occurred at Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., several days ago, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Augusta L. Jaegar, 195 Shaw street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Among the mourners was a delegation of members of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows, of which organization Mr. Jaeger had been a member for a number of years. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by the lodge. A firing squad from the submarine base fired a volley over the grave and a bugler sounded taps. Mr. Jaeger was employed a number of years by the United States Engineers' Corps, Washington.

Mrs. Nellie Tatro, wife of Van A. Tatro, 9 Pearl street, who reported to the police a few days ago that her home had been entered and robbed a week prior to making the complaint and whose statements were so apparently ridiculous that her mentality was questioned, has continued to display signs of mental impairment since lodging her complaint with the authorities. As a result of her actions, the woman will be placed in an institution Monday, according to her husband. Today Mrs. Tatro visited residents on Schoolhouse Lane and there annoyed them with her conduct and persistent entering of their homes. The police were notified and Sergeant John Cavanaugh persuaded the woman to return to her house. Last night Tatro reported to the police that his daughter Louise, 5, was missing from home since early in the afternoon and while the police were instituting a search for the child that a sailor appeared at the Tatro home with the child, he having found her on the street during the heavy rain and wind storm.

The automobile owned and driven by Dr. Isadore Hendel, of Broad street, and a truck owned by the Thames River Lumber company, were in collision on State street Saturday afternoon. The physician's car was damaged.

The police Saturday night raided the house at 210 North Bank street, which had been under surveillance for a considerable time. Because of the number of sailors that visited the place the house was considered to be a place where immorality was countenanced. As a result of the raid, Annis Bryant, colored, was taken into custody, charged with conducting a house of ill fame and Mary Paterson, white and Hilda Thomas, white, and Anthony Cocco, sailors, white, were arrested, charged with being frequenters. None of the accused was able to secure a surety on their respective bonds for appearance in the police court Monday morning, excepting the Peterson woman. The place was observed about 10 o'clock Saturday night to have been entered by the two sailors, Patrolman William Babcock being on watch. A half hour later the officer, accompanied by Patrolmen John Foley, George Perkins and Frank Philopena entered the place and what they observed inside the house caused them to take the gang into custody and lodge the complaints against them.

Two cottages at the Golden Spur, owned by Oscar St. Germain and another cottage owned by Joseph McNamara, 33 Truman street, this city, were attacked by flames late Friday night and before the fire had been extinguished one of the St. Germain cottages had been destroyed and the other damaged, as was the cottage of Mr. McNamara. The cottages had been closed for the season two months ago. How the fire originated is not known, but it is believed that rats nibbling on matches in the cottage of Mr. St. Germain that was destroyed, was the cause. Assistance in combatting the flames was obtained from Waterford, Niantic and New London. Where the blaze occurred there is a group of about a dozen cottages.

The fire after breaking through the destroyed cottage of Mr. St. Germain communicated to the second St. Germain cottage and then to the McNamara cottage. At the time of the arrival of the firemen the fire had practically destroyed one St. Germain cottage and the work of the firemen was devoted to preventing the flames destroying the other cottages. The second St. Germain cottage was considerably damaged and the roof was burned from the McNamara cottage.

Mrs. Margaret Mahan, administratrix of the estate of Bryan F. Mahan, sold a parcel of land on Blackhall street, Saturday, to the Life and Advent church. It is understood that the church trustees, who have long considered the erection of a new place of worship, will have a church erected on the site.

Minnie E. Colgrove has sold a house and lot on Connecticut avenue to Belle Cruickshank.

Funeral services for Joseph, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Cirlio Reeves, 12 Tenth street, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Anna, wife of Jacob Anderson, 46, died Friday night at her home in Waterford. Mrs. Anderson, who had long been ill, is survived, besides her husband, by two brothers, Ludwig Christensen, of St. Paul, Minn., and Oscar Christensen, of Los Angeles, Cal., and by three sisters, Mrs. Clara Asklisen and Mrs. Inga Tvedt, both of Norway, and Miss Hilda Christensen, of Gandershane, Germany.

GALLUP-LANPHERE HOUSE AT WATERFORD BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 23.—Fire, early this morning, completely destroyed the two-story wooden structure at Station 13, Waterford, owned by the Gallup and Lanphere estate and occupied by Frederick L. Goss. Not only was the house reduced to ashes, but all the furnishings of the place were destroyed as the occupants of the house were absent. How the blaze started is not known, but it is believed that it originated from a defective chimney. Assistance was obtained from the New London fire department as buildings close to the burning structure were threatened.

The property was formerly known as the Anderson farm and was acquired by the Gallup and Lapphere estate for $13,000 a number of years ago, at which time the farm was noted hereabouts for the splendid stock produced there. Several years ago the property was considered seriously as a site for a cemetery but the necessary legislation to permit its becoming a burial place was not obtained. The house for the past four or five years has been occupied by Mr. Goss, a local real estate and insurance agent. It is understood that his lease would have expired January 1st, 1925, and that he contemplated vacating the place at that time.

The fire was discovered shortly after 3 o'clock and was burning fiercely, the flames being in the upper part of the structure. The heavy rain falling prevented the flames from gaining greater headway. As soon as the fire was discovered an alarm was sounded, causing the Waterford fire apparatus to respond. By the time that the firemen reached the burning structure it was doomed and flying sparks threatened to ignite other dwellings. A telephone message was sent to New London fire headquarters and Nameaug Engine company and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman were dispatched to assist in subduing the flames and preventing other property from being attacked. After an hour's work the firemen succeeded in conquering the blaze, but not before the place was a mass of smouldering ruins.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

New York, Nov. 24.—(By the A. P.)—With the markets still unusually active, and for the most part buoyant, optimism has continued o ptrevail in business and financial quarers during the past week.

The unanimity of opinion seems remarkable. The best-posted observers do not speak of an inflated boom, but assert the industrial revival is proceeding in a modest and orderly fashion. In explaining their optimism, it was emphasized that fundamental economic factors were more favorable than in a considerable period of years. On the one hand, they pointed to the remarkable recovery in our agricultural districts and to the reparations. Settlement abroad, and on the other hand, to the good beginning of revival in our own well liquidated industry and to the ample supplies of cheap money. These conditions, they maintain, are similar to those that usually have preceded periods of prosperity.

With money admittedly so important a factor in the situation, much interest has been dispayed in opinions as to the future course of rates. The general belief is that relatively cheap money will continue to prevail.

Reports from the steel industry show that the improvement in buying that set in after the election has been maintained. Operations at the steel mills have increased somewhat above 66 per cent. of capacity situation that prevailed during October. Prices are unmistakably firmer and both buyers and sellers seem convinced that the log of things favor a slightly higher charge for the steel products that will be produced in the early part of 1925.

Cotton prices have continued reasonably firm despite another increase in the government's crop estimate. The department of agriculture now places the yield at very nearly 13,000,000 bales, which is a figure that the trade has been in the process of becoming reconciled to during recent weeks. Those who take a broad view of the situation regard the larger crop as a fortunate development. It should permit the continuance of the revival that has developed in the textile industry.

Firmness in foreign exchange rate has been explained on the basis of the larger foreign balances that have been placed at the disposal of Europeans and the optimistic views of European trade prospects that have arisen as a result of the successful installation of the Dawes plan.

RAIN BEGINS TO REDUCE WATER SHORTAGE IN CITY RESERVOIRS

Rain that began before daylight Saturday morning, continued intermittently through the morning and came down with increasing volume, accompanied by strong winds after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, broke the unparalleled drought since the last day of September all over the state. To Norwich it meant more than to most communities for Fairview reservoir had been reduced to a 35-day supply and Stony Brook reservoir is empty.

According to measurements made by President John J. Corkery of the water department, the rainfall amounted to 1.28 inches and the effects were apparent at Fairview reservoir Sunday where a full stream was flowing in through the 24-inch pipe from Bog Meadow while surface drainage was supplying other reinforcement of the water supply there.

The watershed at Stony Brook was also discharging a supply of water into that reservoir and there will be an accumulation in both bodies of water for several days yet. It is expected, too, that other rains will come to the help of the situation and gradually restore the water supply. The rainfall this month is five inches less than the normal precipitation for November, having been only 1 1-2 inches for the whole month to date.

Work at the permanent pumping station on Trading Cove brook at a point off the Salem turnpike is proceeding. The road has been built from the main highway to the pumping station site and the concrete foundations for the pump and motor are being laid. The pump and motor are expected to arrive here before this week is out and it is expected that the station can be ready for operation by the 10th of December.

A well of about 70,000 to 80,000 gallons capacity will be dug from which the water will be drawn by the section pump, when the water has been diverted from the brook to the well.

ST. PATRICK'S NEW CURATE WELCOMED BY ITALIANS

Rev. John Reilly of New Haven, a graduate of the University of Louvain, Belgium, recently assigned by Bishop Nilan to be junior curate at St. Patrick's church, is already greatly revered by the over 200 Italian Catholics for whom special mass is read every Sunday at 8 o'clock in the chapel. This zealous young Levite speaks such fine Italian, and is so learned and eloquent, that the Italian members of the congregation are more than satisfied with the successor whom the Rt. Rev. Bishop has sent to care for their spiritual needs, since the promotion of Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero.

Preaching Sunday to the usual large congregation at the 9 o'clock mass, Father Reilly, after reading the day's gospel—it was the last Sunday after Pentecost—Matthew 24, 15-35, spoke of The Unchanging Church—the Roman Catholic church, the same yesterday, today and forever. Yet even the church appears to have a changed attitude whether it be May or November—in the latter month being reminded, as the leafless trees stand in vigil, of the dear departed ones who have gone to their reward. The preacher very tenderly pointed out that it was not merely the personal sense of sorrow and loss which made Catholics think during this month especially of their dead; but for them, while the world is rushing on in its pursuits and pleasures, there is always the accompaniment of the warning strain, "Death, judgment, heaven or hell." Realizing that nothing defiled can enter the presence of God, now is there particular solicitude for those holy souls waiting in the probation state of Purgatory until they shall have atoned for their blemishes, or until their friends shall have aided them to attain the eternal happiness for which they yearn in anguish. This can be done by prayers, the offering of the holy mass, of communion. The preacher rebuked those who forget not alone their own dead, but all the poor souls who have none to pray for them. When the great cry of anguish went forth from the Titanic, when the soldiers died crying out unnoticed, unknown, unassisted, between the two lines of the armies, had the world heard, it would have been moved. Every Catholic knows the needs of the souls detained in their probation state until their sins are expiated. What is their fate now may be ours before long. Father Reilly exhorted his hearers to extra good deeds this month, applying all and their prayers that a merciful God may have compassion on the souls who suffer, who wait. He sounded again the appealing cry of Job, "Have pity on me, have pity on me, at least you my friends, for the hand of the Lord hath touched me."

Father Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion to the customary large number of penitents.

LITTLE THOMAS MULLEN IS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

Encouraging news was in circulation on Sunday, concerning the condition of little 9 year old Thomas Mullen of Norwich Town, who since November 4th, has been a patient at the Backus hospital in a critical condition from having his skull fractured when knocked off his bicycle by an automobile.

The report was given out that he had recognized a little playmate by speaking his name, also that he was able to tell the time. Until now, things have been blank to the little fellow. The case is one that has aroused great interest in the community, as it seemed so strange for the boy to gain in bodily strength, while remaining for so long a time in an unconscious condition. Friends and neighbors were pleased to hear that his condition shows improvement.

TRAFFIC BEACON PLACED NEAR CHELSEA PARADE

The flashing beacon from the corner of Main and Shetucket streets, which was removed to give place for the new electric traffic signal, has been placed at the junction of Broadway and Washington street, just north of the Chelsea parade, where it splits the traffic in a way that should obviate danger of collisions at this point.

Sunday night the police put a red lantern on it after a motorist had reported at the police headquarters that there was no light on the beacon and he had nearly run into it.

SENDS CHECK WITH THANKS TO FIREMEN

Howard L. Stanton, chief of the Norwich fire department, received on Saturday a letter from Judge Arthur F. Libby, administrator of the estate of Mrs. Charles W. Gale, enclosing a check for $25 to be added to the firemen's pension fund. The check was sent in appreciation of the work of the department Friday in extinguishing a bad grass fire on the Gale estate. Chief Stanton has acknowledged the check and the money has been turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery to be added to the pension fund.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, BOY LOST SEVERAL TEETH

A small boy named Lewis, about 10 years old, who lives at 31 Fifth street, had several teeth knocked out of his lower jaw and suffered cuts about the face when he was struck late Saturday afternoon on North Main street, between Fifth and Sixth, by an automobile driven by Stanley Sagewics of 19 Dime street, Jewett City. The boy was taken to his home and was attended there by Dr. W. T. Driscoll.

It's not charitable to give away things that you don't want, but it is economical.

WILL AGAIN ARRANGE CHRISTMAS TREE FESTIVITIES

The officers and chairmen of the several committees of the Norwich Rural association, held a very interesting meeting in behalf of the associations interests, Friday evening, at the home of the president, Francis Gilman, 380 Washington street.

Several matters of importance were brought up for discussion, the one arousing much enthusiasm at this particular season being the Community Christmas tree and Festival. This idea originated last year and was so successfully carried out under the auspices of the Rural Association, with the several leaders in charge, that undoubtedly it will be an annual affair.

President Gilman was again appointed to act in the capacity of general chairman of the Christmas Tree festivities, so efficently did he manage this part of the programme last year. A large handsome spruce tree has been donated for this occasion by the members of the Gilman family, for which the association is deeply grateful. Bartholomew Sullivan is chairman of the tree committee, and it will be through his efforts that the tree will be cut down, hauled to its location and set up in due time. Clyde M. Beebe is chairman of the lighting and decorating, the same as last year. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott has been appointed to have charge of the music and community singing which will include some of the best talent in Norwich, including church choirs, glee clubs, and others.

Every citizen will be expected to do his or her part in the community singing, as all residents of Norwich Town, the city of Norwich, and outlying districts, will be most welcome to attend.

The Old Town Green, which was the original meeting place of the first settlers, seems a particularly appropriate place to hold a festival of this sort, which is not to be a sectional affair for Norwich Town only, but a festival for the entire town of Norwich. All funds contributed will be in charge of Robert Boisser, treasurer of the Christmas Tree project.

At the meeting Friday evening mention was made of about 500 feet of new cement sidewalks, which have been laid during the past year in front of the Smith Camp and Rogers property, on Upper Washington street, also the property of the First Congregational church and that of Mr. Heath on Elm avenue. This is in addition to the 1320 or more feet of cement walks previously laid by several other property owners in that section of the town. The matter of laying the board walks for the winter was left entirely to the judgement of the chairman of sidewalks, Walter T. Camp, who is to select the most important locations for these walks. Since so many property owners have had permanent walks constructed, the board walks will be assigned to special places.

During the business period President Gilman read a letter of resignation from Henry T. Frazier, for the past few years custodian of the flag on Meeting House Rocks. It was voted to accept the resignation with regret.

The Norwich Rural association now has the largest membership in its history, 128 being the number given out at the 55th annual meeting in May. There are no limitations on this membership. The association welcomes the financial and moral support of all

ADDRESS UPON TEMPLES WITH PICTURES SHOWN

The Y. M. C. A. parlors were well filled Sunday afternoon with men and older boys. After the opening exercises of hymns, scripture and prayer, and vocal solos, rendered by Hugh Kinder, several reels of moving pictures were shown, all of which were interesting and some of them very impressive; one reel showing ancient temples was unusually impressive.

Between the reels General Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk on Temples. The speaker spoke in part as follows: "If we could see a picture of all the beautiful temples of the earth, we would look upon a mass of magnificence. The great temple of St. Peter's, in Rome, of St. Paul's, and many others we might mention, are so beautiful that it is hard to believe that human hands could have wrought so wonderfully. The great art gallery in Washington is really a temple of art, and possesses those things that dazzle the eye and puzzle the imagination. A home that is what it should be is really a temple of love, with the mother as queen; the ideal home is what it is very largely because of the queenly mother, and to her we give all honor. Every boy and man is a temple in himself, for we read in holy writ, the "Our bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost." Let us realize this and let us be very careful that we do not mar the temple. Experts are now at work trying to restore the Rheims cathedral that was so terribly damaged by German shells; they may or may not be able to restore its original beauty. Alas, how many there are who have destroyed or badly damaged this temple, the body; every one who speaks an unkind word or an impure word he mars this sacred thing we call the body. Every time we permit wrong thoughts to linger in our minds, or read the trashy or impure books or papers, we do injustice to the human temple. Let us guard very carefully this sacred gift, the body, and let us see to it that it is kept pure and wholesome, that we play our part in the life of the world. We owe it to ourselves, to society and to God who gave us our bodies. Let us be true to our trust."

He who lacks time to make also lacks time to mend.

FOR HOLIDAY FUND AT TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM

Among all the worthy local causes, none is more worthy than this, and whoever contributes to this fund which stands for good cheer and comfort to these shut-ins, must needs feel a little reflection of the happiness he has helped to make. When one is sick, and maybe without friends or nearby relatives to provide those little comforts, which the state while providing necessities, cannot afford, it means much to have one's birthday recognized by a few little gifts, and maybe a cake with candles, or some small present which will pass the day pleasantly.

The holiday fund provides for all such occasions, and a list of all the birthdays is kept carefully so that no patient's name is omitted.

On all holidays, Valentine Day, Easter, St. Patrick's, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas, there are always special decorations and favors for each patient, and a general spirit of happiness and good cheer prevails. On Hallowe'en there is always a large party, to which outside friends are invited, and the wards present a very attractive picture, with timely decorations and all that goes to make the occasion delightful in private homes.

There are always those who do not understand the difference between this fund and that raised by the sale of Christmas seals. The two are entirely separate funds. The sale of Christmas seals provides practical necessities, such as milk, etc., for local patients outside of the hospital, and attends to the wants of the clinics. The hospital fund furnishes good times, and is the special representative of the blue bird of happiness; that is its prime duty, and as such highly to be recommended to us all.

A chance will be given everyone to give, and any contribution from five cents up is acceptable; in other words, the sky is the limit! Contributions may be given to any of the committee, or sent direct to Miss Mary E. Richards, 93 Sochem street.

Miss Richards has chosen as her committee, Mrs. Frank A. Alter, Mrs. Curtis Bernard, Miss Mazie V. Caruthers, Miss Audrey Gernon, Miss Kate Kent, who will take charge of the Norwich Town fund, Miss Lillian Stetson, who will solicit from the teachers and school children, Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson, who will represent the Taftville section, and Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg, Mrs. George L. Ingalls, Mrs. James P. Sheridan, Clarence Carpentar, Felix Callahan, LaRue Bliven, Roy Judd, George L. Ingalls and William R. Clark complete the personnel of this committee, which met on Thursday night last to complete their plans for raising the 1925 fund.

Although the campaign is only just started the following have contributed: The Lions club, Mr. and Mrs. W. Tyler Olcott, Miss Anna Ely, Agnes R. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Joslyn, Dr. H. E. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. George Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Eastwood, J. M. Young, Auditorium Hotel, Austin Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Taggart, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Taggart, Miss Bessie Grimes, Lillian Dyer, The Woolworth Company, The White Star Clothing Co., Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Terminal Restaurant, O'Neil's Electrical Co., Economy Store Co., Mr. and Mrs. C. CAUGHT GARAGE EMPLOYE USING HIS AUTOMOBILE

A local man who left his new sedan in a public garage late Saturday night went back for it within a few minutes but it was not in the garage. About an hour later it was discovered that one of the garage men had taken it out and had been to Montville and back with it. The matter was brought to the attention of the local police and the garage man who "borrowed" the sedan went through more or less uncomfortable half hour at police headquarters. It is understood that the owner of the sedan will not prosecute the case.

There was no arrest made in the case.

On Reckless Driving Charge.

In order to avoid hitting a machine driven by Arthur H. Lathrop of 111 Laurel Hill avenue, late Saturday night on the military highway in the vicinity of Poquetanuck drawbridge County Detective Lewis claimed that Mr. Lathrop was driving without his lights turned on and that he turned into the main highway from a side road. Officer Lewis said he did not see Mr. Lathrop's machine until he was about 20 feet from it and that he ran his automobile off the road to avoid hitting him.

Mr. Lathrop was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and will answer to the charge in court. He denies the charge.

REDUCING FATALITIES IN MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS

Reduction of Connecticut motor vehicle fatalities in five months of this year from the total for the corresponding months of last year is cited in the current bulletin of the state motor vehicle department as an indication "that police discipline and supervision, plus educational effect, are bringing results in Connecticut."

The first four months of 1924 showed an alarming increase in the number of people killed in this state in automobile accidents, according to a table showing the statistics for the first ten months. In January, for instance, thirteen people were killed, as against four in January, 1923; in February, 1924, the fatality list reached a total of seventeen, whereas it stood at five in the corresponding month of last year; in March, 1924, it leaped to twenty-six as compared to seven in March, 1923 and the April 1924 total went to thirty-two more than one a day—whereas there were twenty-one in the same month of 1923. With the month of May, the situation took a turn for the better and the improvement continued in all the remaining months of the year up to the present, excepting only June. The comparative record of fatalities for these months, is shown by the bulletin to be as follows:

May	25	17
June	19	26
July	33	25
August	34	26
September	37	22
October	37	24

The big improvement in the fatal accident situation in five of the months was sufficient almost to balance the big setback given to the 1924 record by the opening four months of the year so that, on the first of November, the number of people killed by motor vehicles, as recorded at the department, stood at 225, an increase of only six over the same period of last year, in the face of a 20 per cent. increase in the number of motor vehicles on the highways.

The bulletin points out that the fatal accident situation in the state improved immediately when most of the municipalities put on their maximum forces of traffic officers. It says that "the effect on traffic and traffic accidents, as shown by fatalities, is clearly demonstrated by the betterment" in months stated. Authorities in charge of traffic supervision in the several municipalities of the state are requested to make their plans to keep their officers at their posts during the winter as well as in the milder seasons until winter weather becomes severe enough actually to cause the withdrawal of motor vehicles from traffic, and not "permit economy to be the basis of traffic management plans," as automobiles are practically as numerous in the winter as at other times of the year until a sharp cold snap or snow storm causes many owners to put them up temporarily.

"EYE HATH NOT SEEN."

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have it entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him. But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit."—I Corinthians, 2: 9, 10.

I know not what doth lie beyond the tide
Of death's dark stream;
But this I know—that love and peace abide
Yond highest dream.

I know not what the loved ones, gone before,
Are doing there;
But this I know—that on that happy shore
They know no care.

I know they look upon that face, once marred
With cruel pain;
That now His presence keepeth o'er them guard,
And death is gain.

I know not when will come the call to meet
My dear ones there;
But this I know—the welcome will be sweet
Beyond compare.

I know that I shall see my Lord's dear face,
Even as they;
And I, because of God's exceeding grace,
Shall with Him stay.

No heart hath known
The things prepared, and promised in God's Word,
For all "His own."

And so I leave to God what He doth hide;
In sweet content
I rest me in His love, and thus abide
In earthly tent.

And when He calls, I'll softly steal away
On joyous feet;
Earth's night will end in everlasting day,
And bliss complete.

—Jennie Wilson-Howell.

ON THE LIFE OF MAN.

Like to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles on which water stood;
Even such is Man, whose borrowed light
Is straight called in and paid tonight.
The wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The spring entombed in autumn lies;
The dew's dried up, the star is shot,
The flight is past—and man forgot.

The reason is that goats, feeding on the fresh, young tops of shrubs and small trees, apparently are eating the country bare of forests. Hence, steps are being taken to discourage their increase.

OPENING OF THE REP. STATE CONVENTION IN HARTFORD WILL NOMINATE BINGHAM

Governor-Elect Bingham is Practically Assured Nomination as Candidate to Succeed the Late Senator Brandegee—Opening Address Was Made by Senator McLean, Who Will Be Permanent Chairman Today, When the Nomination Will Be Made—Committee Appointed to Draw Up Resolutions For Late Senator Frank B. Brandegee.

Hartford Nov. 24.—To place before the electors of Connecticut a party nominee for United States senator to fill the vacancy and for the unexpired term, created by the death of U. S. Senator Frank B. Brandegee, a republican state convention opened here tonight. United States Senator George P. McLean as temporary chairman made the address of the evening, and will be permanent chairman tomorrow when the nomination is made. Unlike most republican state conventions in the past the Foot Guard Armory was only partly filled when State Chairman J. Henry Roraback introduced the temporary chairman. The place was without decoration except that on either side of the proscenium arch of the stage were small flag-draped portraits of President Coolidge.

The seats reserved for delegations were not all filled but it was anticipated that the delegate body will be present to a man or woman tomorrow because of interest shown in the nomination.

Mr. Roraback in opening the convention said that it had been felt fitting by the state committee to have as the presiding officer United States Senator George P. McLean, "who had served the state so long and faithfully."

Mr. McLean was given a warm greeting as he acknowledged his introduction.

Several times the speaker brought laughter from his audience as he made sallies or quips at the expense of the democrats.

Organization of the convention was made by choice of Judge Alexander W. Creedon and Clarence G. Witland as secretaries, and J. Fred Baker, Albert S. Bell, Frank M. Lynch, John P. Harbison and Mrs. Edwin Frisbie, as assistant secretaries.

The membership of committees on credentials, rules and resolutions and the honorary vice presidents were read and the convention recessed until morning.

The committee on permanent organization will recommend that the temporary organization be made permanent, and the committee on rules as the rules of the last convention. There was no contest for the credentials committee to act upon and the temporary roll made up by the state committee in the afternoon was approved.

The committee on resolutions which met after the convention at the Hotel Bond was under instructions, in a resolution offered by Albert C. Baldwin, of Derby, to frame a resolution on the death of Senator Brandegee. The committee was made up as follows:

By districts: 1—Walter B. Batterson. 2—Newton C. Brainerd. 3—Jacob Leipsinger. 4—R. W. Johnson. 5—Marcus H. Holcomb. 6—E. Allen Moore. 7—Walter Hastings. 8—E. Buckland. 9—Theodore Blakeslee. 10—Mr. Smith. 11—Sarah Richards. 12—J. E. Brainerd. 13—William Rettenmeyer. 14—R. T. Hodge. 15—E. A. Wells. 16—Morris G. Ruskay. 17—M. C. Isbell. 18—B. H. Hewitt. 19—C. W. Cassidy. 20—John Clarke. 21—Andrew M. Cooper. 22—Mary L. Lynch. 23—Joseph C. Ivers. 24—J. Moss Ives; 25—Albert E. Lavery. 26—Dr. W. A. Wood. 27—Matthew Kenealy. 28—J. F. Reardon. 29—Raymond Gates. 30—Walter Holcomb. 31—Malcolm D. Rudd. 32—E. L. Pond. 33—J. McDonough Russell. 34—Frederick De Peyster. 35—John Buckley.

The resolutions committee named a sub-committee to draw up resolutions, consisting of: Milton C. Isbell, of Ansonia; J. Moss Ives, of Danbury; Malcolm D. Rudd, of Salisbury; E. G. Buckland, of New Haven and Matthew Kenealy, of Stamford. Mr. Buckland took the place of Ex-Governor Holcomb who declined appointment. The sub-committee will report direct to the convention.

COL. BINGHAM LEADING CHOICE FOR NOMINATION

Hartford, Nov. 24.—The republican state convention, which opened tonight, will nominate for United States senator tomorrow the governor-elect, Col. Hiram Bingham, who at present is lieutenant governor of Connecticut, according to those who referred to themselves as "organization men." Colonel Bingham, it was forecast by those men, on an informal ballot which is expected to be taken as soon as the convention reassembles, would lead Congressman John Q. Tilson of the Third district and Congressman Schuyler Merritt of the Fourth district. It was expected by many, and discussed freely, that the "organization" will demand a roll call in order to determine the relative strength of the several candidates.

It was forecast that nominating speeches would be made, a formality which many republican conventions in recent years have dispensed with. During the evening names of the sponsors for each candidate were withheld, but at a late hour it was stated that Major John Buckley would nominate Colonel Bingham, with seconding speeches by former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb and Harvey P. Bissell. Edward G. Buckland of New Haven will offer Colonel Tilson's name and for Mr. Merritt the indications were that John T. King would be the sponsor.

Supporters of Colonel Tilson declared they favored a roll call and asserted that delegates by the score from all the counties would be found voting for their man. The New Haven city delegation at a meeting voted to stand by Colonel Tilson "to the end."

The groups of delegates at both Hotel Bond and Hotel Garde scarcely mentioned any candidates but the three already mentioned, but it was predicted that in a roll call there would be votes for several other candidates.

A. F. OF L. TO REMAIN NON-PARTISAN POLITICALLY

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 24 (By the A. P.).—The American Federation of Labor voted in its annual convention today to adhere to a non-partisan political policy, rejecting with only one opposing vote two resolutions which would have committed the membership to a new political party.

Opposition to government invasion of the industrial field was approved as a fundamental, guiding policy of the federation.

In rejecting a resolution urging trade agreements between the United States and Russia, the convention unanimously reaffirmed its opposition to relations with the soviet regime.

A resolution commending military training camps was referred to the executive council for action with an expression of approval of the principle of preparedness and denunciation of pacifism.

"Our non-partisan political policy does not imply that we shall ignore the existence or attitude of political parties," the committee on resolutions reported. "It does mean that labor proposes to use all parties and be used by none."

Matthew Woll, sixth vice president of the federation and chairman of the resolutions committee, said in urging acceptance of the committee's report that the vote for the independent presidential ticket in the recent election "demonstrated that labor will not be led into a separate independent political party."

He pointed to a continuance of non-partisan activity as the most effective policy.

PLAN INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING TESTS

Washington, Nov. 24.—International broadcasting tests designed ultimately to bring the North American and European continents closer together by means of radio were opened tonight with stations of each continent sending out special programs at different periods in an effort to reach the amateur listeners-in across the seas.

North American broadcasting stations will send programs for Europe between 10 and 11 p. m. every night this week, while the hour between 11 p. m. and midnight has been set aside for tuning in the European stations. American broadcasters have volunteered to keep their stations silent for an hour each night to aid the tests.

A special program of speeches by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, George Harvey, former ambassador from Washington to the Court of St. James, and Sir Maurice Lowe, chief correspondent for the London Morning Post, was arranged for tonight from station WRC at Washington.

CROWDED MOTOR BUSSES PILED UP IN COLLISION

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 24.—Two crowded motor busses and a number of smaller automobiles were piled up in a collision early tonight on the road between here and Durham, according to meagre reports received from Carey, near the scene, which said several persons had been injured.

Officials of the bus line were told that one of the busses and a small automobile collided in the darkness during a fog, and that almost immediately several other cars and the second bus ran into the wreckage.

AMOSKEAG MANAGEMENT REFUSES TO GRANT 48 HR. WEEK

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 24.—The management of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company, which employs approximately 14,000 textile operatives under normal conditions, today declined the request of the joint council of employe representatives for a 48 hour week. The management indicated that a 48 hour weke would prove an additional handicap in running the mills and preventing curtailment. Leaders of the workers assert that no strike action is contemplated.

CHAPLIN DECLINED TO TALK ABOUT MARRIAGE

Nogales, Ariz., Nov. 24.—Charles Chaplin, en route to Guaymas, Mexico, today declined either to affirm or deny the current rumor that he would marry Lita Grey, his leading lady. Beyond the statement that he was going to Guyamas to "take a few pictures" and that he did not care to discuss matters of personal interest, the comedian was uncommunicative.

Miss Grey preceded Chaplin to Guaymas last week.

Logan, Jr., American observer with the reparation commission, has been actively negotiating for several weeks with the finance ministers of the allied powers, or their representatives in Paris, for full recognition of the American position respecting the United States claims under the Dawes plan. FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. FLORENCE K. HARDING

Marion, O., Nov. 24 (By the A. P.)—Under a leaden November sky, Florence Kling Harding was buried in Marion cemetery today beside the mortal remains of her husband whom she helped rise from country editor to the presidency of the United States.

Grouped around the gray vault with heads bared to the chill wind that carried a flurry of snow flakes, hundreds paid a last tribute to the widow of Warren G. Harding, 29th chief executive of the nation.

Inside the small vault, relatives and friends listened to the brief services that preceded the final commitment of her body to its last resting place.

The casket, a veritable mass of flowers, was carried into the narrow room. The Rev. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, read the regular burial service of his church. The Rev. George M. Lanius, who had been President Harding's pastor, pronounced the benediction, and hardly had his words ceased when softly on the air swelled the refrain of "The End of a Perfect Day," from the score male throats. Then the clear tones of bugles sounding taps rang through the the cemetery, and as the final notes ended, the vault doors were gently closed and the silent crowd turned away.

The funeral services at Epworth church were equally as simple. There Dr. Swank delivered a short sermon and prayer was said by Dr. Landis.

THEFT OF LIQUOR FROM THE LEITER WINE CELLAR

Beverly, Mass., Nov. 24.—Savoya Calantonio of Boston was charged tonight with larceny and with breaking and entering in connection with raids Saturday and today on the wine cellar on the estate of Joseph Leiter of Chicago, in which thieves made off wtih hauls of liquor worth $50,000 and $10,000, respectively.

Calantonio was taken into custody by the Beverly police today after a band of eight men who had been arrested as they were driving away with the last of the liquor obtained from the Leiter cellar escaped in the police automobile. They left behind them the liquor-loaded truck which had been stalled as it was being driven to the police station.

COUPLE HELD IN NEW YORK FOR ANSONIA AUTHORITIES

New York, Nov. 24.—On a charge of being fugitives from Ansonia, Conn., Mrs. Louisa Imarisio and Carlo Pizzi, were arranged in Tombs court today. Magistrate George W. Simpson, held them in bail of $5,000 each for a hearing next Monday.

They were arrested by Detective Louis Herman, of the bomb squad, who made a short affidavit indicating that a telegram had been received from the authorities at Ansonia saying that the pair was wanted there on a statutory charge for questioning in regard to the disappearance of Mrs. Imarisios' 4-year-old daughter, Olga, who, it is claimed, they brought with them to New York.

The child, according to Herman, was taken to the children's court and arranged as a neglected child. He said she was placed in the custody of the children's society pending the outcome of the case against her mother.

DISSENSION IN AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

Indianapolis, Nov. 24.—Differences between the American farm Bureau Federation and the Indiana Farm Federation that have caused the latter organization to withhold payment of its dues to the national body during the last year, were outlined today to the delegates attending the sixth annual convention of the Indiana federation by President William H. Settle.

Charging that the American Farm Bureau Federation is dominated by a "clique of officers and employes," Mr. Settle recommended that the body "free itself from the man and influences that have dominated it during the last year and adopt and put into actual operation a program of real service in organization, education, marketing and legislation that will be worth to the state farm bureaus the sums they are asked to pay for its support."

SEN. BROOKHART GIVEN CERTIFICATE OF ELECTION

New Haven, Nov. 24—With the generally expressed probability that Hamilton Holt of Woodstock, nationally known advocate of the league of nations and former editor of the New York Independent, would be the unanimous choice of the delegates tomorrow, the democratic state convention, called to select a nominee for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee, met at Music hall tonight, listened to an address by Charles G. Morris of Newtown and New Haven, recent democratic nominee for governor, selected convention committees and adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow.

That Mr. Holt will be presented to the state's electorate on a platform of his own choosing, which is generally expected to contain a reference to the league, was indicated when the resolutions committee, named by the convention met at the Hotel Garde immediately after the adjournment of the convention tonight, after its session, lasing less than an hour. The committee, it was said, would probably designate a sub-committee to wait on Mr. Holt, who attended the convention and obtain his views with reference to a platform. The sub-committee is expected to report at the meeting of the general committee tomorrow morning.

The selection of Mr. Holt as the probable nominee, was the result of a conference of the leaders of the party held at the Hotel Taft late this afternoon at the invitation of former National Committeeman Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford. Those present reported that a majority of those at the meeting had expressed a choice for the nomination of Mr. Holt. Those present included, besides Mr. Cummings, State Chairman E. M. Yeomans, Thomas J. Spellacy and Charles C. Hemenway, of Hartford; Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile and ex-Mayor W. E. Thoms, Waterbury; James J. Walsh and Francis Maloney, Meriden; John A. Walsh, Stamford; Paul Connery, Norwalk, John A. Cornell, William P. Corr, George F. Mara, Frank D. Anderson, Bridgeport; ex-Congressman P. B. O'Sullivan, Derby; Rollin U. Tyler, Haddam; Frank P. Fenton, Willimantic; Edward Keegan, Thompson; Ozro Hanks, Mansfield; Philip Troup, New Haven; Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch Columbia and Mrs. Josepha Whitney, New Haven.

Mr. Tyler of Haddam, who had been mentioned as a possible candidate was understood to favor the nomination of Mr. Holt. Mrs. Welch, one of the avowed sponsors of Mr. Holt's nomination told the committee that former Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, had informed her that he was not a candidate for the nomination. Former Congressman Sullivan is understood to have reiterated his willingness to stand if no other candidate was available. Those present from Windham county were understood to be a unit for Mr. Holt. It was the general belief, as expressed by those present that Mr. Holt's name would be presented to the convention by Philip Troup, of this city.

This was the situation tonight when

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 24.—Leo Koretz, alias Keyte, today confessed, according to police, to perpetration of mail frauds which netted him approximately $2,000,000 and for which he was indicted in Chicago a year ago. He disappeared at the time of his indictment and no trace of him was found until he was arrested here last night.

In a statement concerning his alleged fraudulent land deals, Koretz today made mention of "my beautiful wife and two children" whom police said he left deserted when he disappeared and with whom he has never communicated while playing the part of a free handed millionaire.

The officers said that Koretz had been traced through hospitals and physicians to whom he had been for treatment of a malady from which he had suffered for years.

According to his statement Koretz has spent practically all the money which he is alleged to have carried away with him in asatchel when he disappeared from Chicago.

Koretz was said to have told detectives that he registered at a New York hotel under his own name after he was indicted. He was said to have told police that he financed a book store on Madison avenue.

Ward Liner Ashore Near Tampico, Mexico

Passengers and Crew Have Been Taken Off Steamship Esperanza.

New York, Nov. 24—Disabled in a furious norther and an angry sea which was reported to be pounding it on Tampico Bar, the Ward liner Esperanza, 4,764 gross tons, which left New York for Tampico November 13, with a crew of 75 and 120 passengers was manned tonight only by its captain and two wireless operators, according to wireless messages picked up by the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company here.

The passengers and the bulk of the crew were taken off this morning by seagoing tugs out of Tampico after the Tanker Baldhill had stood by helpless to lower lifeboats or offer any assistance because of the gale which lashed the shallow waters over the bar into a maelstrom.

The liner was reported in 27 feet of water tonight, pounding the bottom and listing dangerously.

The first distress call from the liner was picked up here this morning. Reports from ships in the vicinity soon after told that the Esperanza was in serious difficulties and was evidently drifting ashore.

Although it is known that there were 120 when the liner left New York it stopped at Havana November 17, how many left the ship there and how many boarded it has not been ascertained.

NEW GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN CONTROL OF EGYPT

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 24—(By the A. P.)—A new government, headed by Ziwar Pasha, president of the senate, has taken control of Egypt, Zagloul Pasha, having compiled with the British demands as far as he deemed expedient—an apology, the payment of indemnity, and the promise to punish the assissins of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army—withdrew from the premiership, and his resignation was immediately accepted by King Fuad.

Ziwar Pasha also takes the office of foreign affairs, until it is known whether Ahmed Zulficar Pasha, minister at Rome, to whom the portfolio has been offered, will accept.

Other members of the new cabinet as officially announced are: Communications, Nekhl Aguirgi Moteli; education and justice, Khashba Pasha; war, General Sadek Yahia Pasha; public works, Osman Muharren Bey; agriculture, Mohammed Said Abu Ali Pasha; pious foundations, Mohammed Sicky Pasha.

On the assembling of the chamber this evening the former premier, Zagloul Pasha, received an ovation. Zagloul exhorted the nation to preserve the utmost calm in these anxious times and promised to support the new government.

Opposition speakers attacked Zagloul, accusing him of weakness and failure to rotect the country's dignity against Great Britain's onslaught. Various motions from both opposition members and supporters of the former premier were proposed; they were mainly to the effect that the Egyptian parliament protested to all parliaments and to the league of nations against the British action.

One hundred British marines were landed today at Alexandria and occupied the customs. This action, however, did not interfere with ordinary business and all remains quiet.

WOULD REQUEST SEC'Y WILBUR TO EXPLAIN

Washington, Nov. 24—Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking republican on the house naval committee, announced today that, with the openingof congress next week, he proposed to introduce a resolution requesting Secretary Wilbur to appear before the committee and explain in what respect congress had failed to provide sufficient funds to keep the navy in repair.

Mr. Britten said that, inasmuch as the secretary had stated in his annual report that inadequate funds for repair were the cause of a lowered material condition in the fleet, he believed the matter should be placed before congress so that it could see in what respect it had failed in its duty to maintain the navy.

The Illinoi member also said that he intended to press for action on a bill introduced by him which provides for gun elevation on thirteen battleships. Should this elevation be made, Mr. Britten declared, the American navy would be brought up of full strength permitted under the Washington arms conference, agreements, and the ratio of strength might be changed to 5-4-3, with the United States in first place, Great Britain in second, and Japan third.

It is understood the president, while desiring that both men continue in their present posts, is unwilling to stand in the way of fulfillment of the wishes of either.

SENATOR CURTIS TO BE THE REP. LEADER IN THE SENATE

Republican Senator Fram Kansas, Has Been Agreed Upon by a Majority of Republican Leaders to Succeed the Late Senator Lodge as Floor Leader—Senator Warren of Wyoming, in Line Under the Seniority Rule, Would Not Accept the Leadership and Advocated the Selection of Senator Curtis.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Senator Curtis, of Kansas, virtually was agreed upon today by majority leaders of the senate to succeed Senator Lodge as republican floor leader.

The key to the whole leadership situation has been held by Senator Warren, of Wyoming, who was in line for the leadership under the seniority rule, which has never been violated by the republican party. He withdrew his name from th elist of candidates today, however, although all factions of his party were willing to accept him as leader.

In withdrawing, Senator Warren took occasion to endorse Senator Curtis for the post. It also was reported in senate circles that Senator Wadsworth, New York, and Senator Watson, Indiana, whose names had been mentioned as candidates, were prepared to withdraw in favor of the Kansan, which would leave the field clear for his selection at the republican conference next Friday.

The Kansas senator has borne the brunt of many a republican battle at party whip and assistant floor leader and he is regarded by his friends as well qualified and deserving of the honor. His ascension to the leadership would mean the passing of another important senate position to the west, as several important committee chairmanships which had been held for years by senators from New England and the east will be assumed by westerners.

Senator Warren said the only reason he had given any consideration to the leadership was for the sake of party harmony. The chairmanship of the powerful appropriations committee and the demands made upon him by his constituents, he said, prevented his taking on additional burdens. He pointed out that the duties of a senator from Wyoming were unusually heavy, since the state has only one representative in the house.

BANK TREASURER SHOT HIMSELF IN GRAFTON, MASS.

Grafton, Mass., Nov. 24—Oliver Wing, 65, of North Grafton, treasurer of the Grafton Saving Bank and Grafton Co-Operative Bank, who shot himself through the head at noon today, will recover unless unforseen complications develop, physicians in attendance at Worcester City hospital said tonight. Officials of the bank with which Mr. Wing is connected declared tonight that as far as known, the financial affairs of both institutions are in good condition. Joseph C. Allen, state commissioner of banks, sent word, however, as a matter of precaution a staff of men from his office would come to Grafton tomorrow morning to make a complete examination of the books. The books of both banks were examined on May 19 of this year by representatives of the bank commissioner's office and revealed that everything was in excellent condition.

Mrs. Wing said that for two weeks her husband had appeared to be in better physical condition than he had been for some time. He seemed especially bright and chatty today, she said.

"When he left the house to go to the garage, I asked him if he was going to use his car or go by trolley. He did not answer and shortly afterward came into the kitchen with the bullet wound. I asked him why he had done it and he replied 'I couldn't stand the pain any longer.' I think his head was tired and just for the moment he didn't know what he was doing."

PROGRAM FOR COMING SESSION OF CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 24.—A legislative program for the impending session of congress is expected to emerge from a series of conference being held this week by President Coolidge with republican leaders of the senate and house.

The president conferred on legislative plans late today with Senator Curtis of Kansas, who is expected to be named the next party leader in the senate. He already has held similar discussion with Representatives Longworth, Ohio., Madden, Illinois, and Snell, New York.

The president is desirous that all appropriation bills be disposed of at the short session, to obivate the necessity for an extra session on this account, but aside from such measures as the farm commission, which reconvenes here in January, may recommend, and disposal of bills left over from the last session, it is believed that little will be attempted in the way of new major legislation in the next three months.

BRITISH BOOKMAKER SUES BANK FOR $125,000

London, Nov. 24.—Ever increasing interest is being shown by the London public in the action brought by the London public in the action brought by C. E. Robinson, a former bookmaker, against the Midland bank for $125,000 which he alleges the bank owes him on account of a settlement with a mysterious eastern potentate who has become overfriendly with Mrs. Robinson.

Not in recent years has another case, not even the famous Russell legitimacy controversy, aroused greater attention, on account of the enormous sum involved, and because of the anonymity of the eastern potentate, whose name is being kept secret for political reasons.

Before adjournment of a session that was full of sensations today, Sir John A. Simon, counsel for the bank submitted that on the evidence produced there was no case for the jury. He disputed that the bank had ever undertaken to be answerable to the plaintiff for the money, and argued that it was the prince's money, "taken from him by menace of exposure."

Negligence, the defendant's counsel maintained, had nothing to do with the case, and, he said, whoever the money belonged to, it was not money about which Mr. Robinson could bring action against the bank.

On this point, Judge Darling, in the course of the day's hearing, had expressed the opinion that after perusing the signatures to the various checks involved, and on the evidence before the court, it seemed that whoever had put the money into the bank had also drawn it out.

"If that is the case," the judge asked, "Where is the negligence?"

TO ALLOW WILSON & CO. TO DEFAULT INTEREST

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Receivers for Wilson and Company, packers, will allow the company to default on the semi-annual interest, due December 1, on the $15,085,000 unsecured 6 per cent. convertible bonds, it was learned today.

Frank O. Wetmore, president of the First National bank and head of the committee of bankers which has been seeking to work out a plan of reorganization, made it clear that interest on the first mortgage bonds has been and will be paid regularly. The default to be made on the unsecured convertible bonds, he explained, was only an incident of the receivership.

"The interest payments will have to be adjusted to even date when a reorganization plan is effected," he explained.

It was explained to Carrigan that the child labor law provides penalties for any person failing to send to school a child of school age, dependant on him even though the child is his wife. Mr. Cannon said that he does not believe that wives are always under control of their husbands but that he will hold husbands responsible.

In connection with Education Week, Friday was designated as National Physical Education Day. An article on Preventive Dentistry written by a local dentist, contained the following advice:

Preventive dentistry in its broadest sense aims not only at the prevention of dental diseases, but of any general disorders which might arise as a result of dental disease. That which is of the greatest moment in the building of sound teeth is the diet. A good balanced diet is a vegetable diet, supplemented by milk, eggs, and small quantities of meat. Given to the young boy and girl a well constructed set of teeth with the classroom dental education which must soon find its way into our schools, bringing with it the correct use of the tooth brush and oral prophylactic treatment, then, and only then, will there be an elimination of the ailments which first originate in the mouth; and preventive dentistry will have become fully appreciated.

JCCUM-VERSAILLES MEN BOUND OVER FOR THEFT

Willimantic, Nov. 24.—Albert Gladue of Versailles and Philip LeClair of Occum, arrested for the theft of several guns, revolvers and butcher knives from the Frank Beckwith home in the Decker Hill district of Windham, about October 10, last, were found guilty of the charges of theft and breaking and entering, in police court Monday morning. They were bound over to the superior court under bonds of $500. ladue said that he had someone who would go bonds for him.

The arrest of the men was brought about when it began to be rumored that they were the owners of a baby arsenal and had a fine assortment of guns. Constable John McGuire of Baltic apprehended LeClair and Constable Tetreault of Versailles took Gladue into custody. Gasping for breath amidst heart-rending sobs, Gladue took the witness stand, wiping his eyes with his cap. He was married when he was fourteen and one-half years old and is now 26. He had only been arrested once before, for fighting. He happened to be loafing on the day in question and in their wanderings he and LeClair came to the deserted home. Crying like a child, Gladue said that he must have been out of his mind when he took the guns. He said that he had found one of the doors unlocked and flatly denied having broken through a window to gain entrance to the house. He said that he kne wwhere the guns were and would recover them. He had been chumming with LeClair since the latter had returned from the war. He had traded two of the rifles for a horse in Norwich. Another gun and a revolver he had hidden and the butcher knives he had in his home. He testified that they had taken the weapons with the intention of doing a little hunting and they expected to use the knives to skin whatever game they shot.

LeClair pleaded not guilty to both charges of theft and breaking and entering and turned the entire blame for the affair onto Gladue. He said that he stood a distance off and witched while GGladue got into the house and took the guns.

E. Clinton Meyers was the first witness for the state. He said that he lived in a house nearest to the Beckwith home, stating that the latter place had been vacant for about a year. He visited the house once a week to see that everything was all right. About October 11 he was told that a window was broken in the Beckwith home and that two men carrying rifles had been seen walking along the road the day before. The sash in the entire lower half of a window had been broken out and the front and rear doors had been unbolted from the inside. Furniture and clothing in the house had been disarranged, all of the rooms having been ransacked.

Two shot guns, two rifles, a revolver, two knives and articles of clothing were missing.

Albert Beckwith, the owner, testified to having visited the house after the break and missing the objects stolen. He identified two of the recovered rifles as being his property. Automobile tracks were noticed near the house and when the prosecuting attorney asked Gladue if he had a car, he answered that he had an old Ford which he had sold two weeks ago for 16. Gladue said that he had five children and was working quite steady. LeClair appeared unconcerned as to the outcome of the case.

Probable cause was found by Judge Foss and the men were ordered bound over to the higher court

RISING RIVERS IN QUEBEC MADE MANY HOMELESS

Quebec, Nov. 24. — Rising rivers which forced hundreds of families from their homes in the Charlevoix district, fifty miles northeast of here early today, were receding tonight and indications were that the damage would not be as serious as was at first thought.

The floods were brought on by the heavy rains over the week end, which were general throughout the Quebec province.

$100,000,000 LOAN TO FRANCE HEAVILY OVERSUBSCRIBED

New York, Nov. 24.—(By The A. P.) —Public interest in today's stock market, which marked the beginning of the fourth consecutive week of the "bull" market, continued unabated despite the counter-attraction provided by the public offering of the $10,000,000 French government loan, which was heavily oversubscribed and immediately commanded a premium when listed for trading on the New York Stock Exchange on a "when issued" basis.

ZIWAR PASHA TO HEAD NEW EGYPTIAN CABINET

Cairo, Nov. 24.—(By The A. P.)—It is understood that Zwar Pasha has completed the formation of the new Egyptian cabinet to succeed that of Zagloul Pash who tendered his resignation to King Fuad today. The new cabinet will be headed by Ziwar Pasha as premier and minister of the interior; Ahmed Zulficar Pasha, foreign minister; Sadek Yehia Pasha, minister of war, and Adolph Cattaui Pasha, minister of finance.

Your hands can keep their festive look, even though they work in the kitchen

SHE is a heroine who does all her own work; but she seems a genius whose hands never show it!

The question women ask every day is, "Can I do dishes, wash clothes and clean house, and still have hands that do not confess it?"

Millions of women answer, "Yes."

You can surprise these women in the midst of any one of a dozen soap-and-water tasks and their hands seem by some miracle to have kept their fine, smooth whiteness through it all.

But it is not really a miracle—it is just Ivory Soap!

Safety for skin
Safety for fabrics
Rich suds

SAFETY FOR SKIN

You have probably used Ivory for toilet purposes, so you know it is pure and safe. You may have used it for fine laundry and found that it harms nothing that can stand the touch of pure water. Now we suggest that you use it for dishes and general laundry and cleaning, because it cleanses thoroughly while it saves your hands.

As one of the millions of Ivory enthusiasts writes: "If the woman who does her own washing will substitute Ivory Soap for the cheaper soap or washing powder she has been using, she will find the slight increase in cost more than compensated for in the improved condition of her hands. There will be no red, sore, or chapped hands following washday if she does so."

SAFETY FOR FABRICS

Remember, it is always the suds that do most of the work, whatever the soap. And Ivory is famous for its suds.

RICH SUDS

Use Ivory for all your soap-and-water tasks—try your very next washing with Ivory—see if your hands do not keep their beauty all through the day.

IVORY FLAKES for shampooing

For a wonderful, sudsy, quick-rinsing shampoo, nothing is finer than Ivory Flakes. Pure, rich suds that remove oil and dust thoroughly, without irritating the scalp, and then rinse out completely, leaving the scalp soothed and the hair light and fluffy.

Laundry Ivory (the big cake for general household use)
Ivory Flakes (tissue-thin flakes ready for instant rich suds)
Bath Ivory (the medium-sized cake that floats in the bathtub)
Guest Ivory (the dainty new cake of Ivory for face and hands—just fits the toilet-soap holder)

Here is a fine, simple treatment for your complexion

Wash your face once or twice daily with Ivory Soap and warm water. Rinse in warm water, followed by a dash of cold. Dry thoroughly by patting with a soft towel. If your skin needs it, rub in a little pure cold cream. Guest Ivory, the dainty new cake of Ivory made especially for the face and hands, costs but 5 cents.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Announcement was made Monday that a contract has been awarded by Augustus Longo to Damase Boulais for the construction on the Longo property on Main street, near the Hyde block, of a brick structure, 57 feet on the street frontage and extending back 85 feet. Preparations for putting up the building will begin today and will be pushed right through the late fall and winter season.

The new building will contain three stores on the street level and four apartments on the second floor. The new building will include the present brick structure in which the Longo business is located. Removal of a small frame structure in which a fish business has been located for several years past and removal of another small frame building in which a cobbling business has been carried on will be incident to the construction of the new block. The Longo business will be continued without interruption while the construction work is in progress.

Back in graded school days one was impressed, in reading about mining and its hardships, to learn that mules were kept down in the bowels of the earth for years at a time, seeing only by the flicker of the mine's dim lights, and that when they were eventually brought to the surface and into the glare of sunshine they fairly blinked in adjusting their eyes to normal conditions. People hereabouts are beginning to imagine they are going to be like those mules. Saturday, Sunday and Monday were days when lights were needed about all the time in doing many kinds of work. The sun's on vacation. These are halcyon days for the lighting company. There isn't much daylight at the best. It would appear that about the peak loads of the year should be touched this week, seeing that lights are necessary about 24 hours each day.

Towed here for repairs, after skidding and crashing through a section of state highway fence at Hampton hill, a coupe of well known make was at a repair station here Monday with a length of fence rail penetrating the windshield and protruding through the rear of the car. So tightly is this section of 2 by 4 fencing jammed into the car that it can be removed only with difficulty. The car was owned and driven by Patrick Foley of New Bedford and with him at the time the accident happened were two male companions. Fortunately only one of the trio was injured in the accident, which was similar to one that caused a fatality here a few years ago.

Thursday, Thanksgiving day, the usual holiday schedule of service will be in force at the postoffice. The office will be open until 10.30 a. m. and then closed for the day, although the lobby will be open all the usual hours. No money order or postal savings business will be transacted. Carrier service, city and rural, will be suspended for the day.

Announcements made within the past few days of native turkeys for sale for the Thanksgiving season would tend to indicate that there is a revival of turkey growing underway in this territory. True, turkeys are not being grown hereabouts by the hundred, but one hears of many small flocks and a few that contain as many as 40 or 50 birds. It appears that the turkeys do quite well and are a profitable venture with what is now considered ordinary good luck.

Thanksgiving day will be an occasion of feasting for inmates of institutions in this vicinity. Following a long established custom, a holiday dinner will be served the inmates at the town farm, where Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett, superintendent and matron, have made this a yearly practice and one that those who live there look forward to with joy. A special dinner also will be served the prisoners serving time at the county jail.

Sheriff Lynch of Kent county, Rhode Island, was at the state police barracks here Monday to inspect what remains of the loot collected by state officers when they took away from the home of Henry Breault, in Putnam, a few weeks ago, a veritable truck load of stolen goods. Breault gathered this stuff in various raids made in territory for miles about. The bulk of it has been identified by its legitimate owners. Sheriff Lynch found nothing in what remains unclaimed from any places broken into recently in his jurisdiction.

L'Avenir National, a Franco-American publication issuing at Manchester, N. H., makes in a current issue that caused no small amount of irritation last summer when an article in one of the best known magazines in the country attacked the French-Canadians in an unwarranted way and reflected on their patriotism. Since the publication of that original article there has been much apologizing and running to cover. Included in the record L'Avenir National makes in closing the case is an article laudatory of their national traits that appeared in this column in August, and which is duly credited to ing the full effects of the extremely

PUTNAM

Miss Tempest Smith, who has been a nurse at Day Kimball hospital for several years, was married November 13, at Sekonk, Mass., to Frank Halford Letters, a son of Mrs. Genevieve Letters of this city. They will live in Putnam making their home with Mr. Letters' mother. The bride's home is in Keyser, West Virginia and she had been there on a visit for some weeks. On her return she met Mr. Letters at Sekonk where the marriage took place. No announcement of it was made until Monday.

Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of Holy Trinity church at Pomfret, has returned from a visit to New York.

Mrs. John Addison Porter has returned to her home at Pomfret after a visit of several days to friends in Hartford.

This year the honor roll of Putnam High school is being made up somewhat differently from the plan of last year. There are two rolls, one containing those who have no mark below 90 per cent., and another for those who have no mark below 85 per cent. It has been the practice to determine who the honor roll pupils were by finding the average of all marks. This resulted in large honor rolls, for, although a student was not particularly proficient in one or two subjects the marks he received in his favorited studies might bring his average up to a very satisfactory level. However, under the present system the honor roll contains only the names of those who are good all around students, and those whose names are included may well feel proud of their achievement. The honor roll for the first eight weeks marking period has no first honor roll pupils and but eleven on the second list. Those who have received such distinctions are as follows: Seniors, William Perry Barber, Leslie Bonney, Minot E. Horne. Juniors, Norman Amidon, Sheldon W. Carpenter, Dorothy M. Kenyon. Sophomores, Ethel Ruth Bennett. Freshmen, Ruth Alma Bryden, Madelyn A. Houghton, Irene G. Martin, Karl Whitehouse.

The rainfall that began Saturday afternoon and continued through the night and part of Sunday broke the longest drought that Putnam has known in ten years. It had been more than forty days since there had been any rain, except for a slight shower a week ago, that lasted but a few minutes. A well known Pomfret farmer said Monday that but for the heavy downpour he had intended offering his herd of twenty cattle for sale at half their value. For two weeks he had been hauling water for them from a spring a mile distant and the spring had begun to show signs of drying up.

Although what fell was of inestimable value to the entire community, 48 hours more of continuous rain would not be any too much.

Edward M. Leete of Guilford who died Friday was a brother of the late Mrs. Frederick W. Seward of this city and frequently visited her here. Mr. Seward attended the funeral which was held Sunday. Mr. Leete was a descendant of Governor William Leete, of the Connecticut colony.

Owen J. White, principal of Israel Putnam school, which was closed for a week because of cases of scarlet fever among the pupils, says that the attendance is almost normal again. There were two cases reported last week in the town and they are not pupils of the school. The malady was in a mild form and there were no deaths.

A spelling contest is being held between all the English classes of the Putnam High school in order that the pupils may derive some help and benefit.

The three hundred words which are being used in the contest are the Newton List made up of words which are the most frequently and commonly misspelled.

The divisions of all the classes of the centers school are eagerly competing in order that they may win first place in this interesting contest. So far the English class IVB has had the best record in spelling, winning easily over all the other divisions, with percent of error of 2.21 in 150 words.

The rate of percentage is based on the number of words, rather than the number of pupils in each division.

Luke Champagne persists in running true to his name. He has just been released from Brooklyn jail where he was sent for violation of the liquor laws, and Monday morning he was before Justice Geissler in the city court on a similar charge, and was sent back to the same institution.

Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows, No. 33, is to start degree work for the winter season by initiating two candidates at its session tonight (Tuesday).

Mrs. Joseph Hoppman has moved with her family to Arctic, R. I. Mrs. Hoppman is the widow of the fireman who was killed in the recent railroad accident at Mechanicsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Holgerson of Hartford have been visiting relatives here.

John B. Daigle has returned to the Norwich sanatorium for further treatment.

Matthewson Angell has returned from a visit to his brother at Chepachet, R. I. He expects to leave soon for Atlanta, Ga., to spend the winter with his daughter.

Miss Lorena Durand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emeline Durand, will be united in marriage Thanksgiving Day with Ered Lapoint, son of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Lapoint.

The Whatsoever class and the Men's class of the Baptist church will join in giving a social at the church this (Tuesday) evening.

PLAINFIELD

The Doll Carriage parade and whist at the Community house Monday evening proved a success. Fourteen entrants were in the parade. Each carriage was beautifully decorated. Prizes were awarded to each little girl. The children paraded around the hall past the reviewing stand of the judges, Mrs. Charles Heap, Mrs. Henry Fountaine, Benjamin Dawson, Ray Greene, Jr., and Cecil Butler. The judges awarded first prize, a handsome gild bracelet, to Rose Conrice, second prize, a pocketbook, to Rosgeh Hebert, and honorable mention to Arline Knight. Miss Cecelia Israel and Miss Elizabeth Gorman had charge of the parade. Later whist was played by the grown ups.

At 8 o'clock Monday morning Charles Brelsford and Miss Viola St. Onge were united in marriage in the Sacred Heart church, Wauregan, by Rev. John C. Mathieu. Mr. Brelsford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brelsford, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph St. Onge. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the bride's home. A wedding supper was served at the home of the groom. The bride wore white satin with a train, wore a veil and carried a bouquet of peonies. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a ruby ring. The groom's gift to the best man was a set of monogrammed cuff links. The bride received many girts. Guests from Fall River, New Bedford, Providence, Norwich, New London, Plainfield, Central Village were present. They will spend their honeymoon in New York city and upon returning will reside in a newly furnished home in Wauregan.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Does Your Tongue Tell?

Take your hand mirror, look at your tongue, for your tongue is the barometer of your health. Is your tongue sweet and clean, or is it coated and "fuzzy"?

The common cause of coated tongue and offensive breath is bad digestion, biliousness and constipation. Take Beecham's Pills at once. They will clear off the tongue by toning the stomach, stimulating digestion, activating the liver and restoring complete and regular evacuation of the poisonous wastes.

Beecham's Pills are harmless, gripeless and non-habit-forming. Being purely vegetable, they act with Nature in setting right the organs of digestion and elimination. Good for man, woman and child. Small, easy to take.

FARM BUREAU REPORTS THROUGH LANTERN SLIDES

Lantern slides showing progress made during the past year in the county's agriculture, will be shown at the annual meeting of the New London County Farm Bureau at Buckingham Memorial, Norwich, Saturday, Dec. 6. This novel method has been adopted by Walter Clark, county agent, and Gladys E. Stratton, the home demonstration agent, to present their annual reports in an interesting and instructive manner.

Increased interest in the annual meeting is expected because of the fact that New London county now has the record of placing the largest number of pure bred dairy sires in a year of any county in the United States. The farm bureau is now working out a plan for a lime and clover campaign for next year, by which it is hoped to add to the profits of the local dairy industry by growing more high quality roughages at home and cutting down the bill for western grains. With this combination of better breeding and better feeding it is hoped to put New London county to the front in dairy production and this idea will be a dominant note at the annual meeting.

Among the speakers at the annual meeting will be Glenn C. Sevey, editor of New England Homestead, an authority on farmers' organizations and widely known as a speaker and writer on agricultural subjects. Miss Jessie M. Hoover of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will discuss the methods by which the farm bureau can help farm women with their problems. It is expected that Walter C. Wood of New Canaan will present the program of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The session will convene at 10.30 o'clock a. m. and will be open to all farmers in the county, whether members of the farm bureau or not. A basket lunch will be served at noon, the farm bureau to furnish coffee without charge.

At the business meeting, officers for 1925 are to be elected and the program for next year discussed.

SAYS TROLLEY LINE CHARGES INCREASE N. H. DEFICIT

New York, Nov. 24.—Some of the New England railroads seeking a higher share in joint freight rates are increasing their annual deficits by interest charges on property not used for railroad purposes, says William E. Eppler, comptroller, Delaware and Hudson company, in testimony before the interstate commerce commission. The New England group is asking better compensation through the interstate commerce commission, comparing its "straightened circumstances" with the "prosperous condition" of roads west of the Hudson river.

Mr. Eppler recently testified before the commission, it was declared today, that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, for one, seeks to credit itself toward such adjustment to the extent of $771,000,000, annually for fixed charges which it pays on a dozen non-railway trolley lines.

The Central of Vermont, according to Mr. Eppler, would bill for $144,000, which it loses annually in the operation of the Montreal and Province line railway, the Stamstead, Shefford and Chambly railrbad and the Montreal and Vermont Junction railway.

"These roads," Mr. Eppler said, "are exclusively located in the Dominion of Canada, and are not a part of the transportation system in this country."

Asked is these were the only items of the kind, Mr. Eppler replied:

"Not at all. I have only included those that we could earmark from the figures available."

He listed the trolley obligations of the New York, New Haven and Hartford as follows:

The Consolidated Ry. Co., $435,386.

Worcester and Connecticut East Ry. Co., $70,380.

Stafford Springs Street Ry Co. $20,000.

Norwich Street Ry Co., $13,123.

New London Street Ry Co., $5,625.

New Haven and Centerville Street Ry Co., $14,150.

Meriden, Southington and Compounce Tramway Co., $8,750.

Meriden Horse Railroad, $20,750.

Hartford Street Ry Co., $106,600.

Hartford, Manchester and Rockville Transportation Co., $10,000.

Greenwich Tramway Co., $16,000.

Branford Electric Co., $2,291.

Children Are Ill if they won't play

Watch them carefully. You can forestall a serious ailment with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WHEN you see a child moping, avoiding companions and toys and play, look at its tongue and you will usually find it coated—a reliable symptom of constipation.

Forthwith give a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will operate in a few hours and the child will feel better again. If there is also feverishness, sneezing and sniffing give another teaspoonful the following night, to make sure that all danger is past.

It is perfectly unnecessary to give young children strong physics and cathartics as they are apt to set up a bad habit they will later find difficult to throw off.

A mild vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin meets all their requirements, and as it is pleasant to take you will find no difficulty administering it.

Experienced mothers learned its value long ago, for it has been on the market over thirty years, and Mrs. Josie Clark, Rocky, Okla., and Mr. Charles Lewis, Blackwood, N. J., attribute the general good health of their families to the prompt use of Syrup Pepsin at the right moment. They have it constantly in the house, knowing they can relieve over night constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, headache, sour stomach, fevers, colds and other disorders accompanying or due to a constipated condition of the intestines and bowels.

The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are very generally known, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics, and wholly free of opiates and narcotics. The formula, which is on every package, was written by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine for forty-seven years.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WORLD DOMINION BEING TRANSFERRED

Ever since the Worl war, thinking people have wondered why such a catastrophe visited the earth. It was thought that war was fast becoming an impossible thing. But the rumbling of cannon and the tread of the soldier were clearly heard by those who had their ears to the ground. A few statesmen knew that war was inevitable; for there were great efforts at preparation made by some of the leading governments of earth. Those who were studying prophecy were confident that there would be at least one more great conflict.

When the trouble broke in 1914 many were surprised and the surprise grew as the horror of bloodshed increased. When the death-toll mounted into the millions many wondered if the end of the world was at hand; if not, and if there is a God, why did He not stop the war? Czar, kaiser, emperor, king dethroned and set at naught. What did it mean?

Another mystery, perplexing to the minds of the leaders, is, Why cannot the nations get back to normalcy? Why are the economic conditions disturbed to such an extent that it seems impossible to stabilize business and steady the nerves of the country? It is said that the answer is found in the Bible.

The International Bible Students Association has arranged for Mr. O. L. Sullivan of New York city to give a free lecture at Buckingham Memorial on "World Dominion Being Transferred" in which the prophecies will be presented which describe the orderly transfer of the "kingdoms of this world" from under the selfish domination of Satan to the benign rulership of Christ. The lecture will be given at 7.30 p. m., and is said to be quite edifying and satisfactory in explaining the causes underlying the present world distress.

Breed Theater

If you seek entertainment with a punch and with plenty of romance and heart appeal into the bargain you will make no mistake in putting down The Siren of Seville on your must-see list.

Priscilla Dean, more dynamic and fiery and appealing than in even The Virgin of Stamboul, The Wildcat of Paris and Outside the Law, her memorable successes, is the star of this unusual screen drama, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today.

The Siren of Seville is a typical H. H. Van Loan story of action and thrills, romance and adventure, and in bringing it to the screen directors Jerome Storm and Hunt Stromberg have provided theatergoers with one of the fastest moving film plays that have been shown in several changes of season. There is an especial interest in the production because it is laid in modern Spain and all the picturesqueness of that Latin country has been injected into the picture.

Lloyd Hamilton in Jonah Jones and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theater

We saw and were conquered. It is a real holiday program of one hundred per cent entertainment that you'll see at the Broadway theater the first half of this week.

Baker and Baker started the vaudeville program off with a bang. They offer a melody cocktail of the south, consisting of excellent singing and musical entertainment.

Knowles and Hurst followed in an eccentric comedy offering that kept up the fast pace set.

Then followed the Revue Caprice. This artistic act was the feature at Shubert's Winter Garden last season and scored a decided hit there. It is a bouquet of dance oddities featuring Iris Greene and a company of six.

Sure fire comedy patter and songs was offered by Mason and Gwynne in The South Today. They have a cure for the blues.

The European novelty, the Mitkus Duo, closed the program with an excellent balancing act that is original.

The final showings of the Allan Dwan-Paramount production Wages of Virtue, starring Gloria Swanson, which was shown for the first time in Norwich at the Broadway theater on Sunday last, will take place there today and tomorrow for the last times.

Testing Tug-O-War Pants

Tug-O-War Pants which are guaranteed not to rip are demonstrated in a window display at Savard Bros. store on Main street, where a pair is hung with a boxful of bricks depending from one of the legs. More severe tests were given garments of this make Monday at Scott & Clark's, Richmond Radiator Co., American Woolen Co., and J. B. Martin Co., where actual tugs of war were pulled off with four men to a leg trying to pull the pants apart, but the pants refused to rip. Had they done so, Mr. McDuff, who represents the Sweet, Orr Co., would have given each man of the team who pulled the pants apart a pair of pants for himself. Mr. McDuff will continue the tests at other factories today.

M'LEAN AS KEYNOTER.

Without any question Senator McLean, as the keynoter of the republican convention, called for the purpose of nominating a successor to Frank B. Brandegee, places emphasis at the right spot when he directs attention to the need of getting to the polls at the coming special election.

Senator McLean is no stranger as a convention chairman. It is a role into which he fits most acceptably, and in this instance has treatment of the accomplishments of the republicans in comparison with the previous administration was characteristic. There was the keen analysis and the pointed references. He showed the stand and contribution of the republicans concerning national welfare and he made good use of the opportunity to show that the duty of Connecticut at the present time is to send a senator to Washington who will be in a position to uphold the administration and the republican policies.

Well does he say that there is no use in Washington at this time for a democrat. The country has just spoken. The state has insisted upon a solid delegation for the next congress in the lower house. Connecticut has been solidly republican in the senate for so long that memory runneth not to the contrary.

Reliance is placed upon the convention to place in nomination a man whose qualifications will instantly appeal to the voters of the state irrespective of party. Such a candidate will be committed to the republican platform and the policies of President Coolidge. That means being in harmony with the sentiment of a big majority of the people of Connecticut.

It is in fully understanding this coming result that Senator McLean advances the cautionary advice of not being so sure of the outcome as to fail to go to the polls and vote. It is not a time for overconfidence but for insisting upon a senator who will work with and stand by the administration. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the voters.

WORKING FOR SAFETY.

Sometime ago Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce appointed a committee on traffic control for the purpose of having its conclusions considered at the conference on street and highway safety to be held next month at Washington. That committee has rendered its findings and it favors standard rules for the government of highway users, speed regulation to prevent reckless driving, examination and licensing of operators and the denial of licenses to those under 16, those who cannot read English and those mentally and physically unfit.

The committee likewise stresses the importance of uniformity of regulations and a vigorous enforcement of traffic regulations, calling attention to the fact that responsibility rests upon pedestrians as well as operators and that only through making it known that regulations mean something can respect for them be obtained.

Probably there is nothing more clearly needed than some attempt at uniformity. Many are the regulations which are violated unintentionally by those who cross several states, and yet there is probably no good reason why a set of regulations for one state dealing with speed, lights, rules of the road and the rights of others should not prevail.

Cautionary signals are favored in a general way but attention is directed to the possibility of their effectiveness being removed through too many complications, while the importance of preventing parking from interfering with moving traffic and the demand for placing a car in full control by reducing speed at the approach of railroad crossings come in for favorable recommendations.

Eastern states have recognized the value of uniformity in many regulations. Each day increases the demand for it, or discloses the importance of the action where taken. The value of extending certain general provisions to include all states will be appreciated some day if it is not already impressed upon those who have studied the situation. The committee has assembled many of the problems for presentation to the conference with sane recommendations.

THE NAVAL RATIO.

We cannot be unmindful of the importance of the first line of defense. It means much in case of need, and in order to have it in such an emergency proper provision must be made in advance to keep it at the right degree of efficiency.

Since the Washington conference there has been a ratio of 5-5-3 concerning the naval strength of this country, Great Britain and Japan. We are restricted in construction of new vessels and obligated not to exceed the ratio. As a matter of fact we have not kept up to it. We have permitted certain ships to deteriorate and have not built as many auxiliary vessels as we were entitled to. The ratio has not been maintained on our part. That doesn't bother the other countries, but it may well concern us. We do not anticipate any trouble but it is too late to wait until trouble is at the door before guarding against it.

This is in the mind of Secretary Wilbur of the navy department when he directs attention to the need of providing for certain upkeep on our capital ships and when he repeats that while we have sanctioned the 5-5-3 ratio we have not lived up to it.

This is a matter which congress will be called upon to deal with, and which will get attention under the budget system. It is not unwarranted outlays or treaty breaking expenditures which are involved. It is a question whether we can afford to permit our first line of defense to get into a serious condition. It lies within the possibilities to spend a sufficient sum of money on our navy to bring it up to a level with the British and two-thirds stronger than Japan or of getting the others to decrease their naval strength until they stand in the same relative position as the ratio calls for.

Perhaps if the other two nations look through the same eyes as we do they would rather meet our naval strength than to have us meet theirs. It would be in keeping with the spirit of the Washington conference, but there is to be realized the fact that no country is disposed to reduce its navy until it sees some corresponding action on the part of others. The situation might change if the strengthening of our navy was actually provided for.

OUTSIDE LOOKING IN.

When Emma Goldman was deported to Russia and shook the dust of America from her feet there was a feeling of relief. It was considered that this country had cause for receiving congratulations. It was a case where one of anarchistic tendencies had been attracted by the opportunities offered by soviet Russia. She saw just what she had been looking for and grabbed it.

It was a case like many others where anticipation exceeded realization. Russia had been undercolored. It was even redder than she had believed possible. It was found by her that "the party in power has emasculated the revolution; it is slowly undermining all that is best in Russia. All ideals have been discredited in Russia."

As far as getting what she sought and anticipated in Russia Emma Goldman was sold a gold brick, and now she is telling the world about it, even though most of it understood the situation before she decided to go there.

When she left the United States it was with the intention of never returning. That at least was the hope of those who welcomed her going. Now she says that when she goes back to the United States it will be on her own terms.

Perhaps she expects that some day she will receive a special invitation with transportation expenses. It is as illusionary as all her dreams about Russia. She can get in only as others are admitted, and she will of course be obliged to prove that she is a desirable. Without a doubt Russia felt as happy over her departure as this country did. The fact that she didn't make a hit in Russia, or that Russia didn't meet her expectations doesn't mean that she has been cured of her harmful ideas.

EGYPT'S TROUBLE.

Following the assassination of the British sirdar it was to be expected that firm demands would be made upon Egypt by Great Britain. It assumes the responsibility of giving protection to foreigners in that country and that protection must certainly extend to the British. Seeking apology, an indemnity of $2,500,000 punishment of the assassins and the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from the Sudan the British will not be regarded as making a modest claim against Egypt. It is apparently a time when it considers there is wisdom in exercising a firm hand if the proper impression is to be made upon Egypt with a view to suppressing disorders, hostile demonstrations and preventing future assassinations.

From the attitude that has been displayed in the reply of the Egyptian government the demands are regarded as excessive, and this being particularly true concerning the Sudan. Apparently Egypt doesn't consider that the murder was the direct result of its policies or its failure to guard against such conditions. To permit the situation to remain, unchanged would therefore be inviting a renetition. At least that must be regarded as expressing the view taken by the British following the death of Major General Stack.

The Egyptians may look unfavorably upon the demands. They of course know what resistance would mean. Perhaps no better method of obtaining a modification of the terms would be the display of a spirit of submission and the taking of an initiative to clean up desirable conditions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Thanksgiving is drawing close. Are you ready for it?

Just now rain is one of those good things of which we cannot get too much.

We can give thanks for the rain we have received, but we're willing to extend even more.

The man on the corner says: Think of being too tired to bother with cross word puzzles.

President Coolidge is writing his message to congress. He could get plenty of help if he so desired.

Just because the Literary Digest came so near to perfection in its election forecast doesn't mean that it will be allowed to cast the one vote in future contests, even though it might save a lot of money.

Today the republican convention is faced with the duty of selecting a candidate who will be elected United States senator next month, and is a duty it should have no difficulty in performing.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—"What shall we do with the insurgents?" is the question both the republicans and democrats are asking themselves.

At this moment the democrats are in the lead in making up their minds as to their course of action. It is easier for them, as they have but one man—Wheeler of Montana—on their side of the chamber who comes under the ban. All the same there is a vexed question for the minority in how to treat the malcontents on the republican side, who last session made overtures to the democrats and often by coalition, put the democrats in winners when votes were cast.

But the insurgents will demand their pound of flesh, if that custom is continued, and it is authoritatively said here that democratic leaders of the old school prefer to stand on the merits of the party, rather than be under the dominion of the LaFollette group. The democrats say they will purge their party of the cast off element of others parties; they will go before the country in the 69th congress as a minority, not a coalition party. They expect in that way to win big gains in the 1926 election, should the republicans fail to keep their promises, a feat which the democrats believe they cannot live up to, and which the republicans feel certain of making good.

Of the senators to be elected in 1926 democratic seats will come from the solid south, so the democrats are not worrying about losing what they now hold. They will train their guns on doubtful states. They think they can accomplish more if they turn away from their party the LaFollette element, and fight for what they deem pure democracy. That is unquestionably the sentiment of leaders at this moment, but it is not safe to make predictions until the senate organizes. Conditions change over night in these uncertain political days.

The republicans will decide the matter when the caucus of the senate is held just prior to the convening of congress. Senator Borah, who has suddenly branched out as a spokesman, says he don't believe in sending the LaFollette group to the wall—he wants them in on the same ground as the regulars. But there is much opposition to that plan and the result is too doubtful to make a prediction as to what the end will be. The caucus call embraces all nominal republicans, so no change will be made till the next session.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire will be president pro tempore of the senate, unless the prejudice against giving one or the other of those important positions to a New Englander prevails. Your correspondent overheard a conversation this morning between a couple of mid-western men well up in political circles. They waxed wrath over the prospect of New England having a big finger in the congressional pie, under reorganization. They referred to that section of the country as "stuck-up" and especially condemned what they called "the cod-fish aristocracy," which has had, as they figure it, the control of the republican party in congress. It was enlightening to hear those men dump President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks, Speaker Gillett, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, Tilson of Connecticut, and other political leaders into one group and then calmly scrap heap them. The men were especially perturbed over the fact that Massachusetts has sent to the senate two men who will be spokesmen for the president. That the west is exceedingly jealous of the power and ability of the New England delegation in congress grows more and more evident as the days pass. In the senate it may result in keeping Moses from a top place, and in the house defeat Tilson for speaker if he fails to win in the senatorial election soon to be held in Connecticut.

If Senator Warren of Wyoming, now in his 82nd year, will consent to assume the floor leadership until the end of the present session, much of the difficulty in choosing a successor to Senator Lodge will be done away with. It will not make necessary a complete separation of the stand pat sheep from the insurgent goats at the beginning of the winter session.

By right of seniority, under which the senate plums are parcelled out, the leadership will fall automatically on Warren, who is capable and highly respected by both parties. But Warren is well along in years, he has never been active on the floor except when matters of the appropriation or military affairs committees are up for consideration, and it is doubtful if he cares to have thrust upon him the responsibility of floor leadership in addition to that of his chairmanship on appropriations. It is looked on here as probable that he will either take the office for this session only, and then resign, or that Assistant Floor Leader Curtis of Kansas will be quietly slipped into the floor leadership at the caucus this week.

But whoever gets the nominal leadership will have to watch his step, or he will always be a half tone behind Borah. Promoted to the chairmanship of foreign relations Borah, always prominent in everything of importance, now sits with added luster, and his manner indicates that he will walk in the path of actual leadership, whether or not he bears the title. Borah smiles broadly these days; he doesn't hesitate to show his personal friendship for men like LaFollette, Shipstead and others who are taboo with the regulars, but whom Borah believes have as much right to their opinion as he has to his own. He is equally friendly with the old guard, like Warren, McLean, Moses and others of that type, so has a pretty strong hold on senatorial prominence, outside his eloquence and ability. His strong personality cannot fail to dominate, whether or not his policies meet approval.

Don Lundy, secretary of the late Senator Brandegee, has been selected to act in the same capacity by the incoming senator from Massachusetts, William M. Butler. Mr. Lundy was with Senator Brandegee a number of years, serving as clerk of the great judiciary committee when the senator became chairman, and also a clerk of several investigating committees, of which Mr. Brandegee held the top place. The committee assignment of Mr. Butler will not be known until after the caucus this week, but it is certain to be a good one, as he comes to the senate with prestige of not only being an able lawyer, a business man of large experience but also as the chairman of the republican national committee, so there will be no Cherokee strip chair reserved for him, even if the republican side of the chamber is crowded.

Although no official mourning can be ordered for the death of Mrs. Harding as there is no rule making it possible, the first act of President Coolidge when he heard of her death, was to order the flag on the white house to fly at half mast until after the funeral service today. The same tribute was accorded his own beloved son when the boy died last summer.

The white house will end its season of official mourning at the beginning of this new year, and the customary round of official receptions will be held, according to long established practice.

Some of the men who returned from the world flight think of going into the hair renewing business. One of the puzzling incidents of the flight was in the case of Lieut. Nelson, who started out with a bald head, and came back with a fine crop of hair. Thus far no specialist has been able to account for this curious result of the long flight.

Since Secretaries Hoover and Wilbur announced that they would remain in the cabinet, there is much speculation as to whether or not Weeks will retain his office as secretary of war. It is well known that he would enjoy a season of less arduous work, but at the same time Mr. Weeks has borne the brunt of unscrambling the war department from the confusion in which he found it after the Wilson administration and the end of the war. It seems to many of his friends, that after having had that heavy task for four years, he would now enjoy merely routine work and responsibility of the office, and he will be pressed to remain. It is understood President Coolidge so desires, and it is also understood that for many reasons Mr. Weeks is in accord with that sentiment. What the decision will be is not yet known. Mr. Weeks, like Mr. Coolidge, is not given to making advance statements of his plans, and thus far neither man has made and quotable statement.

Indications that the president will hold fast to his preference for no extra session, accumulate, rather than diminish, in spite of occasional reports to the contrary.

There is great interest expressed here as to the outcome of the senatorial convention in Connecticut. Both Tilson and Merritt are held in high esteem in congress, and though the house does not want to lose either of them, the senate is watching out eagerly to secure for its body one or the other of the Connecticut congressmen. The senate wants experienced and steadfast men for the next session and believes both Tilson and Merritt are of the right senatorial timber.

Today's Birthdays

Sir Frederick Haultain, eminent Saskatchewan statesman and educator, born in England, 67 years ago today.

Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster, Episcopal bishop of Maine, born at New Haven, Conn., 64 years ago today.

Maj. Gen. Walter A. Bethel, retired, late Judge Advocate of the U. S. Army, born in Ohio, 58 years ago today.

Mrs. Alice Ames Winter, former president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, born at Albany, N. Y., 59 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, who reaches his 55th birthday anniversary today, is in line for congratulations on his reelection as head of the Juvenile Court of Denver, after one of the hardest fights of his whole career. Many attempts have been made to oust Judge Lindsey from the bench since he founded the juvenile court a quarter of a century ago. To keep his place he has been obliged a number of times to seek re-election at the hands of the people. The Juvenile Court of which he was the founder has become famous throughout the world, and more than half the states have modelled upon it, not to mention several foreign countries. Promotion of the interests of his court, exposition of the theory of law and equity which lies back of it and defense of himself from charges brought against him have given Judge Lindsey an international reputation.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

DISCIPLING HENRY

"The Appletrees give their Edgar 50 cents a week for spending money, and we allow Henry the same amount," said the woman with the irresistible dimples, "but from then on the parallel lines shoot away from each other with neatness and dispatch and no human soul could find any similarity in the stories!

"When little Edgar grows up he is going to have his picture in the uplift magazines showing him with massive furrowed brow seated before a mahogany desk ringing push buttons while he dictates his famous article on 'How I Saved My First Thousand Dollars.' And I greatly fear our Henry is going to be one of the disconsolate men in shiny trousers who answer the push button!

"I have bought Henry six separate banks, ranging from an iron alligator which opens its jaws for pennies to a suburban bungalow down the chimney of which the young financier drops nickels and dimes. But he ignores all of them with great impartiality. One can no more teach Henry thrift than impress him with the fact that he must not scuff his shoes.

"Well, what I started to say was that I was dreadfully irritated the other day when Henry came home in triumph from the auction sale the little Woggle children held. Henry had bought a string of doll's blue beads for 10 cents one skate, much too small for him for 15 cents, a picture book with half the pages torn out for another 10, and a pair of discarded assorted hairpins for a nickel. He explained that he had got 'em at auction, as though that made it all right. 'We—we bid for 'em!' he added excitedly.

"However, I had to admit that if he had spent 40 cents for lemonade and sodas during the week I should not have felt so righteously peeved. Contenting myself with pointing out that he had nothing whatever to show for his expenditures and had received only a dubious amount of fleeting pleasure I uttered 'uncomfortably' and then felt instantly justified when Henry came flying in with the news that all the boys were going in town with Tubby's mother as a chaperon Saturday and were to take in a movie and please could he have 50 cents.

"'No, Henry,' I said silkily and casually, 'You had 50 cents, you know, and you've spent it! You can't expect to spend it twice!'

"It was then that Henry got strenuous. He cut the back yard grass for his father and earned 15 cents. He ran an errand for me and earned a nickel. He asked if he shampooed his own hair instead of letting me do it if he could have another nickle and I let him, spending an hour afterward cleaning up the drenched bathroom. The last quarter was a sticker and when he rounded up a job in the Lickorishes' garden we hurrayed and apted Henry on the back and burst with pride to such an extent that when he came home from the Lickorishes with the nonchalant news that he had lost the quarter on the way home and then paused expectantly awaiting us to make good the loss, we saw too late where our enthusiasm had led us.

"He hadn't even bothered to look for his lost wealth, so certain was he that we would be proudly generous. Steeling ourselves, we told Henry it was too bad, but if he wanted that quarter he'd better go look for it and I felt you he did some tall and lofty scrambling in his fruitless search. As he realized that he wasn't going to be financially able after all to go with the crowd Saturday Henry grew pale and peaked before our eyes and we had to tell one another every five minutes that it was for his own good and that he was learning a lesson he would remember all his life.

"Saturday morning he could eat no breakfast. It would have been so much easier for us if he had wept and begged and teased, but he merely kept still and looked as though he had been beaten to death. When the first of the boys dashed by on their way to the station Henry turned from the window and sort of reeled away—"

"I'm sure it will have a wonderful effect on his character," said the interested listener.

"Well, I don't know," sighed the woman with dimples. "I ran and got Henry the extra quarter just as the telephone rang. It was my husband from his office saying that maybe perhaps if I thought best I'd better give the kid the money and let him have his coveted fun with the gang. I guess if Henry wants to get his picture in the magazines later in life he'll have to pick out a fresh set of parents and give us up!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Proposed Amendment.

Mr. Editor: Jean M. Heer is rather agitated and overwrought about my letter in The Bulletin discussing the child labor amendment. In her enthusiasm for great benevolent accomplishments she overlooks the possibility of contradictory arguments.

Every real human being is glad to see a sufferer helped and I for one would like to see child abuse universally abolished. However, the real question at issue is one that involves the privileges of parents and a direct violation of state rights. We are living in an age of civilization and I am sure that parents are not as barbarous as Mrs. Heer suggests. I am equally certain that those states that are backward in legislating for the benefit of children, if left alone, will in time fall in line. I consider the amendment a despotic measure. I do not believe it is proper to confer such absolute power to the chance caprice of politicians.

Mrs. Heer says she believes that "congress ought to prohibit the labor of children under 14 and also prohibit the labor of persons under 18 in a few specified dangerous occupations." I have read every word of the amendment and there is absolutely no reference whatever to any "specified dangerous occupations."

I am surprised that any intelligent person will call it a "wild and chimerical" statement, when I say that it will cause hardship to poor parents if children are kept out of industry.

Mrs. Heer goes on to say: "Every day thousands of children are sent forth to work inadequately trained for responsibilities of life." I know from actual experience that the best training to meet the responsibilities of life is gained by application to labor and not by wearing out pants on school chairs. There is a bigger demand for coal shovelers than there is for poets. In fact, according to the latest census report, only 10 per cent of our population is engaged in the so-called white-collar occupations.

Working in the same cotton mill with me, I see every day young boys and girls accomplishing their various tasks and when I see the gleam of ambition in their eyes and observe their happiness in doing something worth while, I cannot help being convinced that they are getting a better training than they would by looking at shows and eventually becoming snobs.

In these modern times of bobbed heads and early marriages it comes in handy for youngsters to have the necessary training to command good wages in order to start raising a family at the age of 18 or 19.

Every child today receives the fundamentals of an education before being permitted to work. These fundamentals are reading, arithmetic and language. This gives the children the groundwork for any amount of further education which their conditions may permit them to acquire. They have the tools for taking unto themselves as much learning as they will.

Regardless of what Mrs. Heer or any other publicists have to say in favor of the amendment in the future, I will not attempt to do any more writing on this question, for my literary abilities are rather limited and I am too busy earning my living. Before concluding, however, I wish to call attention to the fact that the backers of the amendment are very well supported and if our civic and patriotic organizations do not interest themselves to give them opposition, it will not be surprising to see the Connecticut state legislature ratify the amendment when it is presented next January.

Wilson Had No Vacation in 15 Years

Thomas E. Wilson could not go to college, he took the job the other man did not want, and he did not have a vacation for 15 years.

Born in Toronto, Canada, and taken by the family to Chicago when he was nine, he attended the public schools and had hopes of entering college. His father's oil refining business met with reverses, and after completing his high school course, the lad had to go to work.

Finally finding a position as clerk with the Chicago, Burlington & Company asked the Burlington to send them a young fellow to check the cars. The man chosen soon returned and said the place was "too smelly," even if it did pay $100 a month. Wilson jumped at the chance and was given the job.

The work was hard and the surroundings unpleasant, but for the next 15 years Wilson worked an average of 14 hours a day, and was away from duty only five days, and then because of illness.

Soon after beginning his work at the packing plant he was placed in charge of the car repair work, then of the car construction department. Next in charge of the purchasing department, he eventually was put at the head of all construction work and was sent over the country to establish branches for the firm.

Made vice president at 38, he continued his stride and upon the death of Edward Morris, succeeded him as president. Then he carried out the wishes of Morris that Morris' sons be trained to conduct the business.

Eastern capitalists reorganizing the packing concern of Sulzberger & Sons Company offered him the management of the company, but he refused. Later they proposed to change the name of the firm to Wilson and Company. Wilson to be made president, to be given a large block of stock and to receive a salary of $125,000 a year.

At 48 Wilson became head of the concern bearing his name, is interested in that and many other concerns and friends say his success has only started.

You May Have

Pretty teeth already—and yet not know it

Make this unique test. Remove the dingy film that's clouding your teeth. Beneath it, you will find, to your own surprise, those white and glistening teeth that you envy in others.

STRANGELY enough, thousands of people who go through life wishing and hoping for glistening teeth already have them, without ever realising that they do.

This is the reason given:

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is charged too with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, film is a serious danger to healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

Now modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to curdle film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube at any druggist's today. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

To Observe Health Day

"Health Day" is to be observed annually in every elementary school of New York city on the first Thursday in November. On this day all academic work is to be suspended until all pupils have been tested and observed by their teachers for acuity of vision and for evidence of defective hearing, defective teeth, nasal breathing, malnutrition, and other physical defects. Parents will be informed of the physical defects discerned and urged to have them removed.

In all things the supreme excellence is simplicity.

SHOWS GREAT PROMISE IN PIANO RECITAL

Before an appreciative audience invited to the home of Professor Frank L. Farrell on Washington street, Monday evening, James Olsen of Jewett City, one of Mr. Farrell's most advanced pupils, gave a piano recital that revealed the great promise that is held for this young artist. His programme was as follows:

Toccata and Fugue, D Minor.	Bach-Tausig
Chant Negre.	Kramer
Scherzo—E Minor,	Mendelssohn
To the Rising Sun.	Torjussen
Ballade No. 2.	Liszt

Mr. Olsen played with a clear singing tone, nice discrimination in phrasing and admirable technique in his opening number that promised his hearers an evening of pleasure which he sustained to the end of the programme. The Mendelssohn Scherzo was brilliantly executed and the player caught and interpreted the poetic fancy of the Torjussen with delicacy and skill. For an encore after the Liszt Ballade he played Grainger's In a Country Garden, crisp and sparkling in its style, and by request he repeated the Scherzo and the Torjussen number.

Mr. Olsen recently played for broadcasting over the radio from a Providence station.

WILL RAZE CHAPMAN BUILDING TO ERECT NEW ON FRANKLIN SQUARE

Changes in the plans for alterations to the Chapman building on Franklin square at the corner of Main street and Rose place now call for razing the building which will be begun this week.

It was originally planned by the owner Peter Sellas, proprietor of Sellas Spa, which occupies one of the stores in the building, to make the improvements and alterations without tearing down, which would have enabled the stores in the building to carry on business during the larger part of the reconstruction work. It was expected to place steel girders and beams so that the ceilings on each floor would be raised two feet and it was planned to save the rear wall of the building. But on account of the difficulty of shoring up the building properly in order to run in some six foot steel pieces in the foundations, it has now been decided to raze the building to the street level and Contractor P. F. Sweeney has engaged a New Haven wrecking company to do this work. The men for this work will arrive here Thursday, but the stores in the Chapman building will be able to remain open until Wednesday night.

Edward Kirby, dean of the active working barbers of the city, who has had his shop on the second floor of the building for the past 30 years, closed his shop there Saturday night and will probably retire from business. Previous to locating in the Chapman building, he was in business in other places for several years and only the late Clinton O. Christman had exceeded him in length of service in the trade.

The revised plans for improving the Chapman building do not include any departures from the first plan as far as the layout of the building is concerned. When completed it will be a fine modern three-story building with tapestry brick front, stone trim and plate glass windows with copper frames.

FAIRVIEW RESERVOIR IS HOLDING ITS OWN

Fairview reservoir was holding its own Monday due to the reinforcement that is coming from Bog Meadow. Lafayette Main Offers Water.

The Bulletin is in receipt of a letter from Laffayette F. Main of Star Light farm, Swantown, North Stonington, offering a water supply to the city of Norwich. The letter follows: To the Rose of New England, the beautiful City of Norwich. I have been informed that you are getting very short of water and I hereby offer to you a water supply from my property if you see fit to lay pipes to the dam. I will furnish you free of charge 4 or 6 streams of pure spring water of from 4 to 6 inches continuous flow and also render my services as far as possible towards assisting in getting you the supply if you see fit to accept the same.

I have the opinion that before the following Sunday, Nov. 30th, we will surely have some rain, but you may take it as granted that this is the driest period I have ever experienced but I feel sure there is plenty of water today and that we need never fear for the lack of water.

TENANT FARMS GROWING LESS IN CONNECTICUT

Tenant farms are growing less numerous in Connecticut. Between 1910 and 1920 there was a drop from 9.8 per cent., to 8.5 per cent. in the number of such farms. New London county continues to have the largest percentage of tenant farms while Middlesex county possesses the smallest. Figures are from the bureau of census of the department of commerce at Washington.

In 1920 the state had 22,655 farms, of which 1,919 were tenant farms and 313 were designated as share tenant farms.

Hartford county possessed the largest number of farms for any one county, 4,700; Fairfield county, with 3,874, came next. Litchfield county possessed 3,041 farms, New London, 2,747, New Haven, 2,687, Middlesex, 1,412, Tolland, 1,977 and Windham, 3,217.

Every county displayed a decrease in the number of tenant farms. Hartford county had 9.3 per cent. of its farms tenant farms in 1910, and 8.5 per cent. in 1920. Fairfield county dropped from 9.8 per cent. to 9.0 per cent. New London county dropped from 14.3 per cent. to 11.3 per cent.; New Haven, from 9.1 per cent. to 8.5 per cent.; Litchfield, from 10.5 per cent. to 9.5 per cent.; Middlesex from 5.6 per cent. to 8.8 per cent.; Tolland from 6.3 per cent. to 5.3 per cent. and 5.3 per cent.; and Windham county, from 11.7 per cent. to 8.5 per cent.

PROPOSE STANDARD RULES FOR TRAFFIC CONTROL

Standard rules governing the conduct of travelers on the highway; uniform speed regulation aimed primarily at reckless driving; and examination and licensing of all motor vehicle operators, with a ban on the mentally or physically unfit as well as persons under 16 years of age or who cannot read English, are among the outstanding recommendations made by the committee on traffic control of the national conference on street and highway safety to Secretary Hoover, which will be presented at sessions of the conference in Washington on December 15, 16 and 17.

"Traffic control and traffic law enforcement have been added to the duties of police forces that in some [illegible] are little if any larger than before the advent of the motor car, and the traffic has outgrown the organization to control it," says the committee. "Uniform, impartial enforcement of reasonable requirements by adequate and properly organized police is a primary necessity in reducing street and highway accidents. The mere addition of numbers of traffic officers untrained in the special problems will not insure the desired results."

"The most abundant provision of streets and highways, the most careful working out of traffic regulations and the most vigorous enforcement of traffic laws, to be 100 per cent effective in the reduction of accidents, must be supplemented by a sense of personal responsibility instilled in every motorist and every pedestrian."

Other important recommendations include:

That speed regulations should be directed primarily at reckless driving and should be uniform throughout the country. That communities should be so empowered to fix speed limit zones, but should be required to mark the boundaries of such zones plainly; and should be prohibited from establishing a speed limit lower than 15 miles per hour. Speed in an excess of 25 miles per hour in rural areas should be considered prima facie, reckless, and the burden of proof of its reasonableness should rest upon the operator.

That overtaking moving vehicles on sharp curves, approaching hill-crests, at intersections or at railroad crossings should be prohibited.

That parking should not be permitted where it will endanger or seriously impede moving traffic or prevent reasonable access to the sidewalk for loading or unloading of vehicles. This will prohibit the parking or stopping of cars on any part of the traveled portion of a rural highway.

That a single cautionary signal made by extending the arm well outside the vehicle is recommended as preferable to a more complex code.

That vehicles should not be permitted to exceed a speed of 15 miles per hour when approaching within 100 feet of a railroad crossing.

That in cities pedestrians should be required to keep within the boundaries of designated safety zones and crossing places. That motorists should be required to accord pedestrians safe and dignified use of such safety zones and crossing places.

That reckless driving and other flagrant disregard of the rights of others by any user of the streets or highways should be vigorously and unceasingly prosecuted. Legislation should provide adequate penalties, including mandatory revocation of licenses for cumulative evidence of carelessness or irresponsibility, for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors or drugs * * * and severe penalties for driving after revocation. There should be a sufficient number of organized traffic officers to detect and prosecute such infractions.

All persons operating a motor vehicle should be properly licensed. Such licenses should be issued by a state department or division having exclusive administration of the motor vehicle law as its exclusive duty; with full authority to refuse a license, to suspend or revoke a license already issued for any reason deemed sufficient. Before granting such license the applicant's ability to operate a motor vehicle safely should be determined by ascertaining his physical and mental fitness, knowledge of the law, and by requiring an actual demonstration. Persons under 16 years of age or who cannot read English should not be permitted to operate a motor vehicle.

Lack of uniformity, the committee points out, leads almost every motorist to violate some traffic law or regulation occasionally. An "unwholesome contempt for the law and inclination to substitute individual judgment for the prescribed rules," the committee says, has resulted from the fact that many laws are unreasonable and practically unenforceable.

Deviations from uniform rules "should be conspicuously posted where they are in effect" it is declared. While organizations and conferences have done much toward standardization, minor differences have not been harmonized and the actual adoption by states and cities has not progressed to the desired extent. This object may be expedited by the conference, the committee declares.

Discussing the advantage of maintaining a prevailing average of speed for all vehicles on heavily traveled roads, the committee declares that the excessively slow vehicle may be as serious a menace to traffic as the speed maniac. However, it deems education preferable to legislation in this respect.

There is need of consideration of the motorist toward the pedestrian, the committee points out. "Certainly," it says, "if motorists will display proper consideration for pedestrians crossing at intersections with the traffic, thus demonstrating his greater safety at these points, this will go far toward encouraging him to promote his own and the general safety." But the committee points to the fact that "the average pedestrian seems to have little regard for traffic regulations even those intended to promote his own safety and violates the simplest requirements. * * * Since in doing these things he is mainly risking his own life, the extent to which he can be compelled by law to do otherwise is problematic."

The position of the committee with regard to children is expressed thus: "Public streets are no longer a safe place for children to play. It is obvious, therefore that public playgrounds should be supported and multiplied so that street play for children may be eliminated."

ATTENDED DEBUT OF YOUNG RUSSIAN PIANIST

Prof. Frank L. Farrell attended the debut of Alexander Brailowsky, the 27 year old Russian pianist, at New York last week. A number of other prominent American pianists attended the recital of this young man who is receiving flattering notices in the metropolitan press. Mr. Farrell was the guest of Alexander Siloti while in New York. He greatly enjoyed hearing the playing of the Russian pianist and predicts a brillian future for him.

RELATION OF ENGINEERING SCHOOLS TO NATIONAL LIFE

In connection with the survey of engineering colleges of the United States, W. E. Wickenden, director of investigation of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, is planning to spend several months in Europe in order to study the relationship of engineering schools to the various aspects of national life in some of the leading European countries. This survey which involves the study of all phases of engineering education, is expected to be one of the most comprehensive pieces of work of this kind ever undertaken in the United States.

LEARN TO CONDUCT COMMUNITY RECREATIONAL PROGRAMS

At the Grange Community Leadership School at Pennsylvania State College, August 21 to 27, demonstrations and talks were given in the planning and conducting of rural community programs, play and other social and recreational activities. Students of the course actually staged the plays, planned the stage lighting, and made the costumes, using only such equipment and facilities as are found in the ordinary rural community. One hour each day was given to talks by prominent rural leaders.—School Life.

English "Toy Railway."

From Boot to Ranvenglass in West Cumberland, England, there has been in operation for some time a most interesting "toy railway." The gauge is but 15 inches, the size of track that appears in nearly all of our American amusement parks, and the engine and whole train are so tiny that when they are working at full passenger capacity it would seem that one strong man could pull the combination behind him with a piece of cord and not exert himself particularly.

This railway, however, will not allow itself to be held an object of laughter. It is there for a serious purpose. It traverses 7 miles of mountains and glens the garden spot of the Cumberland, in which a regular railway would seem a sacrilege against nature. Here and there along the right of way small open spaces come into view. These are the characteristic, well groomed little-residence communities of western England, and from these the small railway gets its patronage of sleek, well groomed landlords, who only occasionally find travel necessary in the course of their well ordered lives.

Paper as Floor Covering.

A permanent covering for the pine wood floor may be had by the use of paper, a covering that will last indefinitely and that may be treated like ordinary hardwood floors. The process is as follows: First, the floor is planed smooth, so that there is not even the suspicion of a splinter or rough spot anywhere. Next there is laid down builder's paper of medium weight. This is stuck to the floor with a mixture of flour paste and glue. Moulds flour serves very well for the purpose. In case the various width of paper do not fit perfectly it is necessary to cut down the length of a section. It is of great importance that the various strips fit to a nicety. When the paste has dried—a matter of probably two or three days—the paper must be saturated with linseed oil. When the oil has been absorbed the final step is to apply a coat of paint. The whole process requires care, as the purpose is to make the paper waterproof.

Spider Webs on Hats

Spider webs are reported to have been prepared successfully by a European collector for trimmings for women's hats, handbags, cushions and other articles. The webs, says Popular Mechanics, are first transferred to gummed cards and then treated with chemicals to give them strength and to make them waterproof. They are then placed on the cloth background like silken threads. As a full-grown spider can spin a new web in about an hour, a constant supply of the material is easily obtained.

Meteor Hit Ship.

In 1908 the sailing ship Eclipse, on a voyage from England to San Francisco, was struck by a meteor which crashed through the deck and through the whole fabric of the vessel, making a hole through which the water poured. After four days at the pumps, the crew was forced to abandon the ship and take to the boats, eventually reaching Honolulu.

Safety Instruction Reduces Number of Accidents

Thirty-six fewer persons were killed by vehicles in New York city during the first eight months of 1924 than for the same period in 1923. This is attributed to safety instruction in the schools. Essays, debates, singing safety songs, drawing posters, and the composition of safety slogans constitute of the safey activities in the public schools. A safety banner will be awarded to the winning school in each district for the best safety work performed during the school year ending in June, 1925.

Neighborhood activities associated with the Lakeview Consolidated school an open-country consolidated school in Michigan, include a community club, boys' and girls' clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Reserves, a glee club, dramatic club, athletic association, gymnasium club, and parent-teacher association, according to Edith A. Lathrop in the September number of School Life, a publication of the United States Bureau of Education.

RULES GOVERNING FEATHERWEIGHT ELIMINATION BOUTS MAY BE CHANGED

New York, Nov. 24—Public dissatisfaction over the result of the first round of the featherweight elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden last Friday night, in which at least one of the decisions apparently met with popular disfavor, may result in a readjustment of the rules of the tournament, according to George E. Brower, chairman of the state athletic commission.

Officially only the three winners, Jimmy Kramer, Louis (Kid) Kaplan and Jose Lombardo, still remain in the tournament. Chairman Brower said, but there is a possibility that at the commission's meeting tomorrow afternoon, Bobby Garcia and Mike Dundee may be placed back in the competition despite their defeats at the hands of Kaplan and Kramer, respectively.

Chairman Brower, speaking for himself only, said the purpose in arranging the tournament was the selection of an outstanding champion and that the margin which Kaplan and Kramer apparently enjoyed over their opponents was such that there was room in the minds of some as to the winner. The commission, he said, wanted this doubt eliminated and for this reason the two defeated boxers might be given another opportunity to fight in the tournament.

However, Chairman Brower said, any action of this nature would be taken only with the whole-hearted consent of the other principals still in the tournament, Lou Paluso, Salt Lake City featherweight, who was defeated by Jose Lombardo of Panama, was outclassed, Chairman Brower said, and definitely out of the competition.

Following the fights there was an intimation that the two alternates in the tournament, Babe Herman and Willie DeFoe, would get a chance in further eliminations, but Chairman Brower denied this was contemplated. He also said that the reports Garcia and Dundee would be given another chance had no official sanction and would depend altogether upon tomorrow's meeting.

Speaking of the ban placed on Dick Curley, Dundee's manager, for his part in the disturbance following the announcement of the decision of the Kramer-Dundee match, Chairman Brower said that Curley's license was revoked for all time and that never again, while the present commission was in charge of ring affairs in this state, would Curley be permitted to handle any fighters in New York State. Dundee, however, was not placed under the ban but if he continues in the competition he will have to sign with a new manager.

The managers of the three winners together with Garcia's manager and Mike Dundee will meet with the state athletic commission tomorrow and iron out the wrinkles in the tournament. The drawing for the semi-final round will be made at this meeting.

The possibility that the tournament might be taken to some other city than New York arose during the day, according to friends of the boxers but the plan appeared to meet with the various manager's disapproval, although it is said to have been discussed at a meeting late today from which no official statement could be obtained.

Those interested in promoting the eliminations were inclined to withhold comment until the boxing commission takes action tomorrow.

GIANT AND WHITE SOX PLAYERS SAIL TODAY

Paris, Nov. 24—Members of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox baseball teams, most of whom have been touring Europe since the last of their exhibition games, gathered in Paris this afternoon preparatory to sailing for the United States tomorrow aboard the Leviathan.

The baseball players visit was a huge success from a sight-seeing viewpoint but a big loser financially.

"We did didn't expect to make any money," said Manager John McGraw, of the Giants. "We wanted to give the boys a good time and try to introduce baseball in Europe. We succeeded in our first aim and time will tell whether we were successful in the second."

THREE BALL PLAYERS BACK FROM EUROPE

New York, Nov. 24.—Walter Huntzinger of the Giants, Gus Forbes of the White Sox and Val Picinich of the Red Sox, who played with the Chicagoans, returned from Europe today on the George Washington, among the first of the touring players to reach home shores. They sailed from Bremen.

The French railways were responsible for cancellation of the remainder of the schedule after twelve games were played, resulting in six victories apiece, they said, explaining that the managers of the tour were unable to obtain accommodations for sixty players on any one train. It was also found that suitable grounds for baseball were a rarity on the continent.

They told of the contests in England where the kind and queen, coached in the intricacies of baseball by the recently returned Prince of Wales, who saw three innings of a diamond battle at the Polo Grounds last summer, applauded heartily when any player accomplished a difficult catch. The English boys stood outside the grounds and demanded "whackers," their name for cricket bats, as souvenirs.

In France sizzling grounders went almost unnoticed by the Parisians but when a soaring infield fly was hit the cry of "cartouche" (bullet) came from the stands and the catch of what to Americans would seem an easy chance drew the spectators to their feet in clamor.

Games were played in London, Liverpool and Paris and most of the fans were Americans.

ALUMNI TEAM PLAYS ACADEMY ON THURSDAY

The Academy has been putting in some hard practice for Thanksgiving day and judging from the team they have stocked up against them they need every bit of practice they can get. The alumni has a bunch of all-around performers for Thursday afternoon, starting with Phil McNamara, former Academy star at right end, while Stirril Chase will hold down the other wing position. For tackles Paul McNamara and "Bull" Steinman will give the N. F. A. boys plenty to worry about. Ray Byrnes, former Trinity freshman player will hold down one guard position and Bill McKnight, former C. U. star, will take care of the other side of the line. In the backfield will be seen Bill Ringland of Tufts, Ray Reid of Providence college, Fred Williams and Lew Covey. The big surprise of the day will be when Irving Bruckner, well known local boy, dons his uniform and takes a crack at left halfback against the N. F. A. boys. It is rumored that there is intense rivalry between Hinricks, the N. F. A. fullback and Bruckner so the fans are promised some lively football. All of the alumni are requested to be at the local Y. M. C. A. at 7 p. m. tonight (Tuesday) for signal drill and practice.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM OPENS SEASON WITH VICTORY

The Army-Navy Club opened their basketball season Saturday night when they defeated the Westerly Cycle Club at Westerly in a fast and close game. The local lads were in mid-season form and outclassed their opponents in the first half the score being 19-10 when the whistle blew for half time. In the final period the Westerly five came back strong but could not overcome the lead and the game ended with the score 25-20 in the locals' favor. The outstanding stars for the Army-Navy quintet were the Coleman brothers, both caging 3 baskets. Their defense work was also above par. Ralph was the individual star of the Cycle Club, caging 4 baskets from difficult angles.

JOHNSON WILL BE GIVEN INCREASE IN SALARY

Washington, Nov. 24.—Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington baseball team said today that Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher, had not signed a new contract with the Senators, but that Joe Engel, scout, had been authorized to offer Johnson the choice of two contracts, both providing for increases in salary.

Mr. Griffith made his statement, however, on the golf links, and there was a possibility, he indicated, that a signed contract either was in the mails or in the unopened correspondence at headquarters of the World Champions.

Both propositions offered Johnson, Griffith said, called for increases over the $12,000 the star twirler is reported to have received las year, one being for one year, and the other for two. He added there was no foundation for rumors that Johnson was to receive $20,000 a year. The $12,000 salary, he remarked, was on a par with the highest paid to any pitcher in baseball.

BOUTS AT DANIELSON HAVE BEEN POSTPONED

The amateur bouts scheduled to be held this Tuesday evening at Danielson have been postponed owing to unforseen circumstances and will be held at the Danielson Casino some time next month. Promoter Barber has matched George Robinson, the Boston tarbaby, and Battling Thomas for a 12 round bout at the Casino on December 18th. This is one of the bes attractions that has been billed in the eastern part of the state in several years.

PITTSBURGH SPRINGS SURPRISE AND WINS THE ANNUAL CROSS COUTRY MEET

New York, Nov. 24—Pittsburgh university sprang a sensational upset today by capturing the intercollegiate varsity cross country team championship in a race in which individual honors went to "Mac" Smith, of Yale. Pittsburgh, finished with a score of 57 points while Harvard was second with 75 points and Syracuse, two-time champions, and the favorite, was third with 83 points.

The "dark horse" Pittsburgh team, scoring its first victory since joining the I. C. A. A. A. A., was led by C. Lies, who finished fourth in the six mile chase over the Van Cortlandt park course. His team-mates, in order of their finish, all inside the first thirty, were Corbett, Schroedell, Howell and Kerr.

Syracuse saved some prestige by winning the freshman team race although John D. J. Bell, who carried the Orange to first place in this three mile contest, was disqualified when it was found he had run previously in open A. A. U. competition. First place was awarded to Berger, of Yale, thus giving the Elis both individual titles.

The complete and official varsity team scores: Pittsburgh 57; Harvard 76; Syracuse 82; Yale 117; Maine 136; Columbia 167; Cornell 176; Dartmouth 193; Princeton 229; M. I. T. 254; Rutgers 286; Georgetown 268; Pennsylvania 364; C. C. N. Y. 422.

Smith won the varsity event by 175 yards, breaking the record for the course held by Verne Booth of Johns Hopkins, 1923 winner, by 46 seconds and finished in 30.24 Booth's time in 1923 was 31:10.

Bell broke the tape in the freshman event, 150 yards ahead of Berger but the former's disqualification elevates the Yale runner and gives the Elis individual laurels in both the varsity and yearling events. Berger's time which will stand as the winning time, was 17.31. Bell's time was 17.14 4-5.

Pittsburgh won the varsity event by a brilliant demonstration of sustained running, placing men fifth, ninth, twelfth, fourteenth and seventeenth. Frank Shea, former 400-yard National A. A. U. champion and a member of hte 1920 American Olympic team, coaches the Panther Hill and Dale squad. The Panthers had not been figured in the running for the team laurels and their victory is a sensational upset in college cross-country circles.

A. S. Hillman of the University of Maine finished second to Smith in the varsity event. Hillman, who placed fourth in the 1923 race, pushed Smith hard up until the last quarter mile when the Eli harrier lengthened his stride and crossed the finish line 150 yards ahead of the Maine rival.

Bell's disqualification in the freshmen event was based on the fact that he had previously won a race in open A. A. U. competition before his entrance into Syracuse University, a violation of the I. C. A. A. A. A. rules. Coach Tom Keane of the Orange team was ignorant of this rule, he said, and willingly agreed to abide by the ruling following a conference with Gustavus T. Kirby, president of the A. A. U.

The first nine runners to finish in today's event shattered Booth's 1923 mark while Pittsburgh's first five men all finished within a minute of each other. This compact running accounting for the Panther triumph.

Pittsburgh has not lost a race this year but came to the intercollegiate event unheralded as a championship combination. The Panthers won a dual meet with Carnegie Tech, placing men two, three, four, five and sixth, against the Engineers. In a dual meeting with Allegheny the Pittsburgh team had a perfect score with a single exception. In the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. the Panthers had a perfect score, placing all five of their runners to the tape first.

Maculey L. Smith, the Eli victor in the varsity event, runs with glasses on. He is 19 years old and ran at Andover before his entrance into Yale. He won the 1923 freshmen event and this year won the individual championship of the "big three" in addition to being the Connecticut State A. A. U. champion.

According to present plans, the team which held Penn State to a scoreless tie a week ago, will start against the Ithacans. SPORTING NOTES

For five consecutive years the football championship of the Pacific coast Intercollegiate Conference has been won by a California team.

Despite the many rumors and reports in circulation, no teams have been definitely selected for the annual New Year's day football classic at Pasadena.

A proposal to create a state racing commission and to authorize operation of the pari-mutuel system in Arizona was defeated by the voters in the recent election.

The Blue Ridge league, one of the most successful baseball organizations in its class is figuring on expanding its circuit to eight clubs before the opening of the next season.

While the racing shells used by the Oxford and Cambridge crews have often been built by various well-known firms, one firm alone for nearly 60 years has always made the oars for both crews.

Several of the most noted auto drivers of America and Europe have entered for the great 250-mile race which the new million-dollar speedway at Culver City, Cal., is to be dedicated on Thanksgiving day.

The Fairmount Jockey Club, which is building the new racing plant near East St. Louis, expects to have the track completed in time to begin racing next May. Stable accommodations for 1000 horses will be ready by that time.

Dave Shade, who is generally recognized as the strongest contender for Mickey Walker's welterweight title, will be seen in action in New York on the night of December 3, when he is scheduled to engage in a 12-round contest with Morris Schlaiffer, the Omaha battler.

While the six-day bicycle race is almost as popular in Paris, Berlin and other Continental capitals as it is in New York or Chicago, London alone has never taken to this form of sport. The average English sportsman is inclined to consider the long grind as a "disgusting exhibition" and a senseless waste of energy.

In these days when 12 to 15 round championship battles bring the principals a fortune, it is interesting to recall that in 1887 Jake Kilrain and Jem Smith battled 106 rounds in a contest for the "world's championship." Darkness ended the fighting and the bout was called a draw. The two gladiators, who in this one contest had fought the equivalent of ten of the average title bouts of these times, were rewarded with the magnificent sum of $2500 each.

While the English regard football as an excellent profession from the professional viewpoint, the pay received by their best-paid professionals is almost insignificant in comparison with the salaries of professional baseball players in American. The highest salary permitted a star football player under the league rules is $45 a week the year round. In addition there are certain bonuses and benefits, but all told a player would not be able to save more than $5,000 in the ten years or so which is the average life of a football professional.

University Equipment Necessary For Medical Research.

"Individuals as a rule have not the means nor the equipment to do research in medicine" and "the great continuous advance in medical science in the past 90 years has been made by organized laboratory effort, most of it carried on in the universities of Europe and America" is the opinion of James F. Abel as expressed in a recent number of School Life, a publication of the United States Bureau of Education.

In his presentation of profitable research in universities Mr. Abel mentions Pasteur with his long career of brilliant discoveries; Lister, the founder of modern surgery; Behring, the discoverer of tubercle bacillus and the cholera spirillum; Leibig, the founder of organic chemistry and discoverer of chloroform, chloral, and aldehyde; Henderson, Ranting, and many others as among the long list of professors who have given freely to the world the best of their thought.

EFFECT OF SIZE OF CLASSES UPON EFFICIENCY

Relation of size of class to efficiency is the subject of a project under study by the Bureau of Educational Research of Ohio State University. Four Ohio cities—Cleveland, Cincinnati, Akron and Toledo—are participating in the project as it relates to the elementary grades. Pupils are grouped for a semester in a small class, foltaught in each case by the same teachlowed by a semester in a small class, er, while another teacher has a group of children in a small class during the first semester and in a large class the second semester. As determined by testing, the classes have the same average and variability of intelligence. This is but one of the projects of the elaborate program which the bureau has under way.—School Life.

POSSIBILITIES AND VALUES OF OUTDOOR RECREATION

An educational program outlined at a recent meeting of the Advisory Council of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation included the following objectives: To teach the public the full possibilities and values of outdoor recreation; to establish outdoor play, physical education, and nature study in the outdoors and in natural history museums; and to encourage the necessary augmentation of educational facilities for the training of recreation superintendents and supervisors, playground directors, park administrators, foresters, and others in management related thereto.

EDUCATION PROFITABLE IN FIELD OF MINING

"Education costs, as all good things do, but it pays enormous dividends" is the opinion of James F. Abel expressed in a review of the contributions of university researchers in the field of mining presented in a recent number of School Life, a publication of the United States Bureau fo Education. In this article many instances are given in which college men have turned by-products into valuable aids for the very things to which they were most harmful. The most conspicuous of these is Coffrel's discovery of electrification applied to the oil industry by which more than one hundred millions of dollars worth of oil is saved annually from otherwise worthless oil emulsions.

SUMMER CAMP IMPORTANT STEP IN EDUCATION

Learning the joy of climbing hills exploring forests, swimming in lakes and streams, viewing clear, colored sunsets, and feeling the joy of stretching the mind as well as the body are experiences of children at summer camps described by Marie M. Ready in the October number of School Life ment; Bureau of Education.

Indorsing the Massachusetts plan for placing in summer camps all underweight children within ten years Miss Ready advocates the camps as of great value in the development of mind and body, and quotes Doctor Eliot of Harvard as saying that the organized summer camp is the most important step in education that America has given to the world.

BETTER LIBRARIES FOR TENNESSEE RURAL SCHOOLS

Establishment of school libraries is actively promoted by the Tennessee State Department of Education. The director of State library extension is also chairman of the committee on children's reading of the Tennessee Parent-Teachers' Association, and she is making a comprehensive inquiry to determine how many schools have libraries and what kind of books they have. A copy of "The First Twenty-Five Books to Buy for a Rural School," prepared jointly by the American Library Association, and the National Education Association has been supplied to every rural school in the state.

Housing Problem Most Acute.

The housing problem is so acute in Vienna that a judge there has suspended sentence in the cases of thousands of divorcees who remained in their former husband's quarters, in some cases after they had remarried. The court took cognisance of the acute situation involved in the shortage of houses and admonished the defendants to endeavor to make other arrangements.

SENATOR M'LEAN'S ADDRESS AT OPENING OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

Senator McLean said: The event which has made it necessary for us to come together this evening will long be remembered as one of the saddest in the history of Connecticut—doubly sad to those who feel as I do, a deep sense of personal loss, and I cannot let this occasion pass without giving brief expression to thoughts which I am sure are now uppermost in the minds of all of us.

Senator Brandegee was a man greatly admired and easily understood by his friends and sometimes easily misunderstood by others. For some years we were good political friends but in 1900 we both wanted the same office, with the usual consequences. We both followed Cardinal Woolsey's admonitions in so far as they advised a close and constant regard for the interests of number one. I won the governship in 1900, he beat me for the senate in 1905. I came to the senate in 1911 and for a time our meetings were infrequent and featureless. But gradually the past was forgotten; there was nothing to forgive.

When the controversy over the League of Nations came into the senate he rapidly came to the front as one of its ablest opponents. This is not the time or the place to discuss the wisdom of his position. I favored the League of Nations with the Lodge Reservations. He was a member of the committee having the subject in charge and knowing his intense anxiety to prevent the ratification of the treaty of Versailles I early took occasion to inform him of my intended action. In our very first discussion of the subject he revealed a mind as generous to others as it was keen in its own defense. Unbending and emphatic himself he expected and admired like qualities in those who held contrary views, provided they were honestly and consistently entertained. In defense of what he believed to be right his courage was unlimited. The greater the danger, the stronger his arm. In this controversy he won and I think deserved the reputation of being the hardest man to fool in the United States Senate.

On the 16th of December next it will be the duty of the people of Connecticut to elect his successor. It is your duty now to nominate the candidate of the Republican party for that high office. I am sure you will have no difficulty in selecting a man well qualified to sustain its high traditions. Briefly now I want to point out to you some of the reasons he should be elected.

I know just how you feel. You come here tonight flushed with victory and ready to join with me in singing all the Hallujiah hymns known to the victorious and glorious grand old republican party. I could mention one name that would quicken your hearts with praise and your hands and feet with emphatic approval. I am not going today it at this stage of the proceedings. We have escaped the threatened chaos, let us be sure that in our enthusiasm over this deliverance we do not lose sight of the reasons why the American people with emphatic unanimity continue to trust the party of Washington and Lincoln.

Must Not Be Overconfident.

"I have no desire to speculate as to what would have happened had the democratic party made fewer fatal mistakes; what would have happened if they had not put at the head of their ticket two men so unlike in practice and profession that no discriminating man could vote for both, which he must do if he voted for either. What would have happened but for the wheat rust in Canada and the corn mold in our western states; what would have happened if the progressive party had not foresworn the principles of its founders. What would have happened if the republican party had been less mindful of its duty. I am not saying that we would not have won against any and all possible progressive and democratic candidates and climatic conditions. The point I want to stress is that with our colossal and complex industrial activities and interests, in many instances antagonistic when superficially considered, all of them prone to attribute their profits and successes to their superior wisdom and their losses and failures to the party in power, the time may come, if it has not already arrived, when it will be more difficult for a political party to survive a victory than it will be to survive a defeat.

"Of one thing we may be certain. Industrial inflations and deflations will follow each other in the future as they have in the past, and the resulting destructive or constructive consequences of these alternating periods will depend upon the ability of the American voter to distinguish between governmental interference that will help and governmental interference that will hurt. I am an optimist, but there were days last winter and spring when I was inclined to agree with Uncle Eben, who said to his friends circled about the fire in the country store: "Boys, I ain't exactly what you would call a pessimist, but I think poorly of most things; it's safer." The London Punch, which often mixes much wisdom with its wit, tells us that the United States is not a nation, "it's a picnic." With over 50 per cent of the gold of the world, 60 per cent. of the coal and iron, 70 per cent. of the copper, 75 per cent. of the oil, 90 per cent. of the automobiles and three million square miles of fine picnic grounds, we surely have all the fixings that usually result in hurried calls for the hot water bottle and the stomach pump, and, sometimes, the undertaker. He's the gentleman I want my country to avoid. Some day, somewhere, a race of men and women will learn of the things that government can't do and the things that individuals must do. I want America to learn them first, because if history repeats itself, and it will, it is first or never.

"We all agree that we must have two things: order and liberty.

"The best definition of liberty that I ever heard was given by John Fiske in one of his British lectures. 'Liberty,' he said, 'is the right to do what one ought to want to do.'

"Recent events have demonstrated that whatever mistakes the real republicans made, disaster and panic blameworthy real republicans may be, did not follow them, and that, however the American people are emphatically of the opinion that the noisy and ill-sorted combination of critics who tried to fool a majority of the people on election day, can do less harm at home than in the capitol at Washington. And we hope that the few obstructionists who survive will take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

The Constitution.

"The men who wrote our constitution could start with a clean slate. They had the mistakes of history to avoid and the philosophy of the wise to guide them. They did the best they could to build a strong high fence around the home of the humblest citizen, a fence that for all time would insure his civil, political and religious liberty against marauding and ignorant majorities.

"One of the fears that brought millions of patriotic democrats to our support in the campaign just closed was the proposal of the progressive party to give to congress the power to veto decisions of the supreme court. To be sure, this proposal was to be accomplished by a constitutional amendment, but let me call your attention to the fact that there are men in the United States senate today who hold that the supreme court under the constitution as it now reads has no right to veto an act of congress, that this right as now asserted is purely inferential and unjustified. Today a sympathetic administration, by adding sympathetic justices to the court, could make a scrap of paper of the constitution. It is well to bear in mind that constitutions are made for living, and, in a democracy, can and will be changed to suit the living. The underlying and ultimate sovereignty of the people will assert itself, when it wants to, however mistaken and destructive it may be.

"The conservative revival in this country was not more pronounced or emphatic than that which swept the so-called labor party out of power in England. The result in England clearly indicates that the intelligent laboring man there as well as in America is beginning to realize that social reform means, as Doctor Babbitt puts it, 'self reform,' that class legislation means class war and that class war means class hell.

"With the power to tax, which is the power to destroy, with plenary power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce, the American congress today can easily turn Mr. Punch's picnic into a panic of poverty and distress. Give us a tariff for revnue only, and an internal revenue law that taxes thrift until it pays better to be thriftless, that taxes legitimate gains until illegitimate gains are more easily obtained, give us only two or three of the historic tenets of the democratic party, and you won't need Senator LaFollette's assistance to confine privileges, special and general, to the soup house and the county jail.

Protection and the Hon. Byron Patton Harrison.

"The Honorable Pat Harrison of Mississippi, the chosen prophet of democracy, in his keynote speech which was greatly praised by the democratic press, told the American people that it was time they secured their release from New England influences. 'How 'our Homer' must have enjoyed this announcement as it came from the bulrushes of the Father of Waters. The prime reason assigned by the new Moses of democracy for substituting the political philosophy of Mississippi for that of New England was that the 'iniquitous' tax of 11 cents a pound on raw wool in the Payne-Aldrich was raised to 31 cents a pound on raw wool in the 'infamous' Fordney bill. There is a duty of 31 cents a pound in the Fordney bill on the clean content of wool and as it takes more than three pounds of raw wool to make one pound of clean wool, the present tax on wool is about three cents a pound less than in the Payne bill. I don't accuse Senator Harrison of intentionally telling an untruth. The trouble with him is he doesn't know the difference between 'raw' and 'clean' wool. Yet this statement went abroad in the democratic press as the last word on the tariff question.

"Mr. Davis made just as serious mistakes in his discussion of the tariff, and first among them, was the use of the illustration often employed by President Wilson, namely, that as the unprotected trades received higher wages than the protected ones, protection is of no benefit. You would think it would occur to a candidate for president that we don't import cities and towns; we don't import factories and hotels and homes and hospitals and stores; carpenters, painters and plumbers, like doctors and lawyers suffer no competition from abroad. * * *

"If Connecticut elects a democratic senator in December next it isn't likely he will be called upon to vote for or against a tariff bill in 1925, and he might not be re-elected in 1926 and he might not be in a position to do any harm, but it is very evident that Connecticut just now, has no greater use for a democratic senator than Pepper Suellman's bridegroom had for a coffin. If the time ever comes when the democratic party in the north ceases to be bound and gagged by Mississippi influences: if the time ever comes when the democratic party in the north stands for reasonable protection; if the time ever comes when all the political parties concede the wisdom of maintaining protection as a national principle in the only way it can be maintained, then and not until then can Connecticut safely send a democratic senator to the United States senate.

Sugar.

"It was interesting to read the criticism directed against the president because he did not lower the duty on sugar as recommended by the tariff commission. Our tariff commission is composed of two free traders, one reciprocity fanatic and three protectionists, one of whom did not serve at the time of the sugar investigation, a condition which clearly justified the president's order for a rehearing. Before a tariff commission can be of any benefit in the administration of the new tariff law which gives the president the power to raise or lower duties to the extent of 50 per cent, the principle of protection must be beyond assault and this will be impossible until the tariff commission is composed of men who believed in protection. You would hardly expect to secure a fair and just enforcement of the 18th amendment with a court composed of two drys and three wets, two prohibitionists and three bootleggers.

"We consume four millions of tons of sugar in this country every year. We produce about two million. Sugar is now selling around six cents a pound. Take off the tariff drive the American producer from the field and sugar will cost the consumer as much as the combination of refiners thinks the trade will bear. The price of sugar in the last democratic administration was, at one time, 30 cents a pound.

"Only twice since 1861 has the democratic party succeeded in tearing down the protection banner and that is because it takes the American people at least thirty years to forget the dire consequences that inevitably follow.

Income Taxes.

"As a member of the senate committee on finance and as a member of the committee of conference of the two houses which framed the tariff act of 1924 I have had ample opportunity to note the fiscal philosophy of democratic statesmen, north as well as south, and I regret to say, this philosophy is too frequently approved by our progressive friends from the west. There is nothing that will X-ray a congressman's political liver as accurately as a revenue bill. All taxes are unwelcome and most of them are considered unnecessary by those who pay them. Members of congress like to be re-elected. As a result we have upon the statute books today a law that is indefensible in spots.

"The views of the congressman who hold out for high surtand estate taxes are not only popular but are plausible in purpose. To maintain high surtand inheritance taxes and lower the taxes upon smaller incomes sounds well. The American people have yet to learn that there is a limit to the taxes upon profits and surplus capital which, if exceeded, will be reflected in higher prices for the basic necessities of life. The larger incomes, where it is possible, will seek investment in tax-exempt securities, unimproved real estate, undeveloped mines, growing timber, but the great industries which are creating wealth cannot shift their capital without curtailing their activities which will result in great hardship to their employes and great losses to their stockholders.

"The amount of free capital consumed every year is enormous. The experts in the treasury department informed me that of the billions of income annually received by the American people, not more than three billions can be considered as net profits, that is, profits after paying all taxes and living and current expenses, profits that can be invested in entirely new enterprises.

"The subject, insofar as it presents a legislative problem, is one of the most difficult to modern parliaments, for whether wisely solved or not it will never be satisfactory to those who bear the burdens.

"What the becoming congress can do to improve the existing law will largely depend upon the south and west. The southern and western states pay but a small portion of the federal tax bill. Republicans in the great industrial states will in the future as in the past do their best to prevent legislation that will directly or indirectly cripple industry or reduce the purchasing power of the day's work. We know in New England that good wages and good prices stand or fall together and that good times are impossible without them.

"The unimpeachable records of some of the largest industries of Connecticut show that wages today are eight times what they were eighty years ago. This advance, unprecedented in the history of this or any other country, is attributable to many causes, but first among them, has stood a wise and fostering government, a government that since 1861 has for the most part consisted of men and women belonging to the republican party. And I might add a party which under New England influences and leadership has preserved order and opportunity against assaults from within and without.

Insofar as revenue legislation is concerned a democratic senator from Connecticut just now would be compelled to follow the leadership provided by Mississippi, North Carolina or Arkansas or repudiate his party.

Fiat Money

"Very close to the tax problem is the currency question. Both of them are dry and technical subjects and I would not mention them at this time but for the fact that it is exceedingly important that men who can follow New England leadership and still remain loyal to their party should be in the majority in the present congress. We are all familiar with the record of the democratic party on the currency question. Not being satisfied with its experiments with the elder Bryan brother and his free silver and other vagaries which frightened us almost to death in 1896 and 1900, it hailed as a master stroke its recognition of the younger Bryan brother in 1924, who upon hearing of his promotion from state to national leadership lost no time in assuring the American people that the Bryan brothers are one upon all public question.

"The federal reserve system which in its important features is based upon the recommendations of a republican monetary commission is an improvement upon the system it superceded. It is not as strong as it would have been with fewer banks and the amendments that had been added to it under democratic and agricultural pressure from the south and west have opened possibilities of inflation that will require great courage on the part of the federal reserve board and the managers of the federal reserve banks to confine a speculative wave within safe bounds. The special privileges extended to agricultural paper in the original act were largely responsible for the debacle in agricultural credits in the west and south in 1920 and 1921. The farmers encouraged by the banks pumped 37 billion gallons of water into agricultural values from 1910 to 1920. Values in farm lands in some states were quadrupled in the war periods. The farmers could take their notes secured by farm products to the banks and get in return federal reserve notes which are promises by the government to pay gold to the bearer on demand. When the supply of agricultural products greatly exceeded the demand in 1919 and 1920 prices dropped and the banks called their loans. Banks and farmers went to the wall and the federal reserve system, the evil lamb of democracy, was in great disrepute. You will remember that prominent among the sins of the republican party as published in the democratic platform was the deflation crime of 1920, committed in cold blood by the federal reserve system. Mr. Wilson was then president of the United States and the federal reserve board, which has absolute control of the discount rate to be charged by the federal reserve bank, was composed largely of democrats. The action of the board in raising the rate was highly commendable and it would have been raised a full year earlier but for the billions of short time federal certificates of indebtedness outstanding which the public wouldn't absorb and the banks couldn't. If the discount rate charged by federal reserve system was higher than the rate of interest paid by the government on its notes. The whole truth of the matter is that Mr. McAdoo as secretary of the treasury issued a larger total of these

Know what's underneath the paint before you buy

YOU wouldn't think of buying a house without first knowing how it is built and the quality of materials used. In selecting a piece of furniture you are sure to find out whether it is solid wood or veneer.

Yet many people who exercise care in most purchases buy automobiles without even lifting the hood or knowing about the hidden qualities of body and chassis construction that really determine one's satisfaction with a closed car.

* * *

We want you to know about the unseen qualities of the new Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

Down underneath its superb body finish is a sturdy framework of carefully selected ash, glued together and fastened in place by screws—not nailed. Ash is scarce and expensive, but Studebaker uses it because it best combines proper weight and strength.

Upholstery is genuine mohair of high quality. Various grades of mohair look much alike—the big difference is in the quality.

Beneath this mohair covering are many nests of cushion springs, padded with heavy burlap, upholstery cotton and curled hair. Almost any car seems comfortable on the showroom floor, but it's quality such as this that makes the Studebaker Standard Six remain comfortable after years of service.

The same standards of excellence are maintained throughout the body and chassis. In the engine, for example, the crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces, a practice that results in the smooth, quiet, vibrationless performance that characterizes all Studebaker cars.

* * *

Judged solely on what your eye can see—in beauty of line and finish and exterior refinements—the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan will command your instant approval.

But go deeper than that. Compare its hidden, vital qualities—its design, materials and workmanship—with cars selling for hundreds of dollars more.

Studebaker never compromises—never uses a substitute for genuine quality. Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for 72 years.

Come in and let us tell you the "inside story" of the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

New London

Work has been started on the restaurant and recreation hall being erected on Lawrence Larsen, Waterford, at Riverside Beach at Mago. The owner has charge of the construction. The building will be of frame construction and will have dance hall facilities in addition to the restaurant. The plans have been perfected for the commencement early next year of work on the recreation hall at Mago Point.

The plans for a synagogue for Temple Israel, Inc., on Park street, Ocean Beach, are now being heard. Bids are being received by Max Gerson, Norwich. Architects Bilderbeck & Langdon, Inc., prepared the plans, which call for a frame edifice, 30x45 feet, with a balcony.

The Goddard property consisting of a store and office building at 118-127 State street has been leased by the Goddard estate to the S. S. Kresge Co., a Michigan corporation, for a period of 30 years commencing April 1, 1925. It is specified in the lease that the lessees shall cause a new structure of brick material of a similar nature to be erected on the site; said structure to be completed within five years from April 1, 1925.

The contract has been awarded to Carl Burgess for a store building on Willetts avenue, for Arthur G. Burr, 733 Bank street. The plans were prepared by Architects Bilderbeck & Langdon, Inc., and as previously described in these columns, call for a one story building, 32x32 feet, with basement. The concrete work is being done for the owner by day labor. The owner will also award the contracts for the plumbing, heating and electric wiring.

GERMAN PRESS COMMENT ON BRITISH ULTIMATUM TO EGYPT

Berlin, Nov. 24 (By the A. P.)—While German champions of the league of nations are visibly distressed over the situation created by Great Britain's ultimatum to Egypt, the nationalist organs find the situation to their liking, in that it is considered to prove their suspicions of the league's inability and authority to assist itself in critical international situations.

Comparing the present ultimatum to that addressed by Austria-Hungary and Serbia, which was followed by the outbreak of the World war, the Tages Zeitung concludes that the British ultimatum was far more grave and humiliating in its tenor and its terms than that of Austria-Hungary and that, incidentally, it reveals in its true light the indignation heaped upon Austria-Hungary in 1914.

"Where is the much vaunted league of nations, now that weighty decisions are to be at stake?" the Pan-German organ asks.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung speaks of an "Egyptian Sarajevo." (It was at Sarajevo that Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary was assassinated and because of whose assassination the dual monarchy sent its ultimatum to Serbia).

The Boersen Zeitung refers to the league of nations as "a theatre conducted for the amusement of the innocent Masesamz German sympathizers, this newspaper adds, re wholly with the Egyptians, since they undoubtedly will be deserted by a majority of the great powers. The measures adopted by Great Britain are tantamount to the annexation of Egypt, in the opinion of the Boersen Zeitung.

GERMAN DESIGNER FOR GOODYEAR-ZEPPELIN PLANT

They will go at once to Akron, O., to begin constructing, in the name of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation, huge commercial dirigibles for passenger and mail service, domestic and trans-Atlantic.

"I am certain that the lighter-than-air craft industry of the world will be centered in America," said Dr. Arnstein. "You have here all the best conditions for dirigibles manufacture—capital, engineering talent and a favorable public spirit. I hope to make America my home forever."

Dr. Arnstein designed the ill-fated French record-breaker Dixmude, the model of the American Shenandoah, and the newest record-holder ZR-3. With the Friedrichshafen works about to be dismantled in accordance with the Versailles treaty he comes here as the technical brains of an industry being transferred to America for perpetuation.

Dr. Arnstein prophesied that an airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity capable of flying from Spain to South America, will be designed soon.

He also said he believed that the greater safety guaranteed by the use of non-explosive helium would make the dirigible far more popular as a means of public transit.

If, however, there are to be developed whole fleets of American-made airships facilities for manufacturing helium must be vastly enlarged, he said.

"Dirigibles for war?" Dr. Arnstein repeated the question of interviewers. He smiled. "Really," he said, "we are trying to forget that we made Zeppelins for war purposes. Don't you think that use for them ought to be forgotten? We are thinking now only of the dirigible as a vehicle of peace—a means of commercial transit."

Patrolman Vernon A. Burdick of Pawcatuck was called Sunday evening about 7 o'clock to the Stonington-Westerly highway, near Wequetequock where a collision was reported to have occurred between a blue Ford automobile of a taxi type and the Ford delivery truck of the Eagle Bakery, Water street, Stonington. A neighbor hearing the crash of the automobiles and the cries of the injured started across lots to the location of the accident but the driver of the blue Ford, having broken the number plates and place them in a wall took a hasty departure in a passing Buick car. Marks on the highway showed that the bakery truck was headed for Stonington and on the right of the highway when the car was struck by the other auto, reported to have been pursuing a very erratic course, and dragged a distance of 43 feet across the highway so that it crashed into the stone wall on the opposite side. The car was towed to a repair shop. The blue Ford is reported to have been driven by a youth who took it without permission from the service department of a local automobile sales room after he had decided to buy it and had paid a first installment of $50. The car bore no registration plates until the young man took possession of it.

NUMBER FOUR

the convention was called to order at 8:43 p. m., tonight by State Chairman E. M. Yeomans. There were present about 500 delegates of a total possible representation of 796. Sixteen towns in the state, Bethany, in New Haven county; Rocky Hill in Hartford county; Bethel in Fairfield county; Middlefield in Middlesex county; Ashford, Brooklyn and Hampton in Windham county, and Ledyard, Lebanon, East Lyme, Franklin, Lyme, Salem and Griswold in New London county, each entitled to two delegates and Sprague, in New London county, entitled to four delegates, a total of sixteen towns with 34 delegates had failed to report a representation.

"We are met here to nominate the next United States senator from Connecticut. It is our turn to win and we are going to put it across," declared Chairman Yeomans in introducing the temporary chairman, Mr. Morris, as "the leader of our party." The sally was greeted with applause and prolonged handclapping was the ovation accorded to the temorary chairman, the delegates, among whom were many women, standing in their seats.

The temporary chairman spoke from notes, extemporaneously, departing from the text but following closely the general tenor of his prepared address.

The mention of ex-president Woodrow Wilson evoked the first applause from the delegates as Mr. Morris described the late president as a "real man, who knew ideals and could see them far ahead," and declaring that he "had made a place for himself that the world would never forget."

The speaker was again applauded vociferously in his reference to the "triumph of human rights over property rights," in discussing Lincoln, and at the conclusion of his address when he declared:

"I bid you bear in mind that the man Connecticut needs in the senate must be a man chosen for his position, ability to stick to the right, whether the wave of popular support is with him or against him, who knows his own mind as we know his mind; a man who can bring the ideals of light and through into the counsels of a great nation."

UNANIMOUS NOMINATION OF HOLT IS EXPECTED

New Haven, Nov. 24.—Folowing tonight's session of the democratic state convention the resolutions committee met at the Hotel Garde and after an hour's session named a sub-committee of five members who will draft the resolutions to be presented to tomorrow's session, after consultation with Hamilton Holt, who is expected to be untinimously nominated for United States senator tomorrow.

On the sub-committee which is headed by former Mayor W. E. Thoms, of Waterbury, is Professor Henry W. Lawrence, Jr., of Connecticut Colege for Women, of New London who was a delegate to the convention, and who today issued a statement in which he declared that "the democratic party will do honor to itself and service to its country by nominating Hamilton Holt for the United States senatorship," and that 'no other private citizen is so intimately acquainted with the essential facts of these international relations of ours."

Other members of the sub-committee who will report back to the general committee tomorrow are: David McCoy, New Haven, delegate from the 8th district; Dr. E. G. Dolan, Hartford, fourth district and Hazel Carey, delegate from the 35th district. Rollin U. Tyler, of Haddam, chairman and A. S. Lynch, secretary of the general committee were named ex-officio members of the sub-committee.

Immediately after the session the sub-committee went into consultation with Mr. Holt, who though stopping at a local hotel, did not attend the convention, nor the meeting of the resolutions committee on which he was named a member from the 28th district.

More than other women, these fine housewives appreciate the rare skill it takes to make this rich, firm, flavory loaf

The first New England housewife who tried it was amazed

WHEN the Six Bakers said they had created a new loaf—"richer than had ever been baked before"—the critical housewives of New England were skeptical. This loaf was probably no different from others, they said.

But the first New England housewife who tried White Rose was amazed! Here was a fragrant, perfect loaf! Crisp-crusted! Creamy-grained! Such a loaf as she knew she rarely achieved herself.

Today 300,000 of the finest housewives in New England are serving White Rose

THESE Six Bakers shared their baking secrets of years of experience to get that firm smooth grain. Just the ingredients the housewives themselves would choose, make White Rose fine-flavored, satisfying.

Every month these Six Bakers meet to keep it up to the highest standard. They go over their recipe, test their loaves and compare new discoveries. Get White Rose from your grocer today. You will enjoy this unusual loaf. In the checked wrapper that looks like a fresh, clean tea towel.

Why you will like White Rose

Fine, crisp crust
Soft, firm texture
Cuts without crumbling
Toasts an even, delicious brown
So rich it keeps fresh for days
The wholesomeness that children need
The wrapper with the checked pattern like a fresh, clean tea towel

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

An express train that traveled the distance of 20 miles in exactly 29 minutes was a feature for headlines 75 years ago, this feat being accomplished by a train running from Bridgeport to New Haven.

First trips over the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad were made three quarters of a century ago and were greeted by the firing of salutes as the two car train passed Staffordsville.

Tuesday, November 20, 1849—The Chronicle says that the Hartford and Willimantic railroad will be completed to Willimantic in about ten days and thus meet the New London road which will be finished through the village by or before that time.

The president and directors of the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad made their first excursion over the road from New London to Willimantic on Thursday last. The fine locomotive, Stafford, with two passenger coaches left New London at about half past nine and reached Norwich in about 23 minutes. Starting from Norwich the train passed under the viaduct and over the bridge at the falls, the trip continuing through a country, the beauty of which is not surpassed elsewhere in New England. As the company passed through Staffordville a salute of eight guns was fired. The party arrived in Willimantic at half past eleven.

After a dinner at the Tremont hotel, kept by Mr. Brainard the party started for New London, reaching "the present terminus on Winthrop's neck, in a little over an hour, actual running time.

William A. Buckingham, James A. Hovey and Amos W. Prentice, committee on finance of the common council have recommended the pressing of the claim of $25,000 held by the city against the Norwich & Worcester railroad, in as much as the business of the road is good and prosperous.

Not less than 200 people were killed on the 16th inst., when the steamer Louisiana bound to St. Louis, burst both her boilers, shattering her to atoms, just as she was leaving her wharf at New Orleans. The sight presented was horrible and all flags in the port are at half-mast.

Thursday, November 22, 1849—News for California confirms the story that gold has been discovered on Trinity river, north of San Francisco. The biggest discovery was on the ranch of Col. Fremont and in new cases the yield of gold has been as high as two ounces to every 25 pounds. A claim of silver has also been found on the ranch which was sold to Col. Fremont in 1846 by Alvarado, former governor of the territory, the land at that time having practically no value.

Mr. Squier, our charge at Nicaragua has just negotiated a treaty with the republic of Honduras which is of great importance to American shipping. This treaty secures every port of Honduras perfectly free to American ships and cedes to us for the time being the island of Tigre in the gulf of Fonseca, this island having now been taken in charge by an American naval force. This is a great blow to England, who was preparing to seize the important island, claiming debts due English subjects.

San Jose has been pitched upon by the California convention as the capitol of the new state. It is one of the most flourishing inland towns of the state and is an ideal location for a capitol.

Capt. Durfee of Providence reports seeing a large whale Saturday afternoon off the west end of Plum island. The monster came within 50 feet of the sloop and was fully 40 feet in length. The whale was headed out to sea.

Out of the 800 people from New Bedford who have rushed to California since the discovery of gold, word has been sent back home of the death of not less than 75. This is an extremely high death rate for so short a period of time.

Saturday, November 24, 1849—The great speed of the trains on the New York to New Haven line was demonstrated Wednesday when an express train made the distance of 20 miles in exactly 29 minutes, this being from Bridgeport to New Haven. The whole time the train was on the road, from the time of leaving the station in Canal street up to the time of arriving in New Haven was only three hours and one minute, this including the usual stops and 25 minutes under horse power before connecting with steam at 40th street. Passengers would be able to make the entire trip in two hours if these delays could be avoided.

President Taylor in reply to a letter requesting that he issue a Thanksgiving day proclamation has issued a letter in which he states that he considers it most proper to leave the subject of a Thanksgiving proclamation where custom has so long consigned it—in the hands of the governors of the several states.

Fares on the steamer Empire City have been reduced to California passengers. Upper and after saloon, only two berths in state room costs $125; forward saloon state rooms, $100; lower cabin, $90; steerage, found with mattress and board $65.

Fare on the Sarah Sands costs $500 for first cabin and $300 for second cabin, the steamer making California via Rio Janeiro and Valparaiso.

ONLY BOMBS DIRECTED AT BATTLESHIP WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 24.—Navy department officials declared tonight that thus far no gunfire had been employed in the trial attack on the uncompleted battleship Washington off the Virginia Capes. All of the experiments up to the present time, it was said have been in the nature of bombing attacks.

The statement was made after a telegraphic interchange with Rear Admiral C. F. Hughes, president of the special board appointed to conduct the tests. It was declared the tests thus far made were in accordance with the programme laid out at the navy department some time ago, and that the firing with the big guns against the Washington's hull was not scheduled in that programme until the practical completion of all other tests.

Published reports that 11-inch shells have been hurled at the Washington by the battleship Texas on two or more occasions caused great surprise at the navy department, and resulted in the telegraphic inquiries today directed to Admiral Hughes.

The CADILLAC Landau
Body by Fisher

The BEAUTY that is CADILLAC

ARISTOCRATIC is the word that comes to mind when you see the new V-63. No other word quite describes the artistic beauty, the elegance of line and finish and appointment which a single glance tells you these cars possess.

The good taste which has always identified Cadillac exteriors is fully present—but there is this added charm, this added distinction.

Aristocratic has always described Cadillac performance, in the sense that it stands above and apart. You will agree that the word is equally descriptive of Cadillac beauty.

The police believe that they will catch the thief who stole the Velie coupe owned by Albert N. Tiffany, 579 Bank street, from in front of Tiffany's residence early Sunday night. This evening the police received information that the machine was observed parked near the New London Marine Iron Works at 7 o'clock this morning and remained there until shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon. Sergeant Samuel Hick visited the point where the car had been parked and from the information he obtained it is believed that the machine was taken either by residents of the Fort Neck section, or by sailors attached to the United States Coast Guard academy. An officer has been stationed in the vicinity where the car was parked today.

This afternoon the state police of the Groton barracks found the stolen machine parked on the Groton highway, leading from the Thames river bridge to the submarine base.

As a result of a fight at the home of Alex and Viola Visich, husband and wife, and the Visich home, Warner street, Groton, Saturday night, the couple were arrested by officers of the Groton barracks of the state police, the husband being charged with assault and the wife with selling liquor. Visich was fined $2 and costs, and his wife $25 and costs. Joseph Kartsyck, who engaged in a fight with Visich was fined $2 and costs, the latter amounting to $12. The testimony revealed that the state police were called to the Visich place when the fighters made so much noise that they annoyed the neighbors. When Sergeant Clifford Gorgas and Officer Bernard Kenerson arrived there Kartsyck was found intoxicated and he claimed that he had tendered Mrs. Visich a $10 bill for a half pint of "moonshine" the price of which was 75 cents. She refused Kartsyck change and when the latter started trouble Visich appeared and administered a beating to Kartsyck.

Daniel McArthur, who was found intoxicated near the Visich home was fined $2 and costs.

The case of Chris Hansen, of Mys-tic, charged with reckless driving, was nolled. An automobile owned and operated by Wasily Slepica, formerly of 137 North Bank street, now operating a farm in Niantic, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton, Waterford town court, this evening charged with failure to give right of way to a passing automobile. He was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $15. Slepica, who was liberated from the county jail a few days ago, following his conviction in the police court of selling liquor, was operating his machine toward Niantic and near Station 16 collided with a commercial car of Coffey & Co., and operated by Harry T. Shurts. Both cars were damaged. Slepica complained against Shurts, but it developed tonight that Slepica was at fault for the crash.

Union Chapter of Masons held a meeting this evening at which there was work and inspection. The attendance was large. The work was followed by a chicken pie supper.

The city council at its meeting this evening failed to take up the matter of a police probe, also failed to make an appointment of a police lieutenant to succeed Benjamin A. Beebe, resigned. The place held by Lieut. Beebe on the police force will be vacant before the next regular meeting of the council as a resolution has been adopted barring from membership on the force any man who is 70. Lieut. Beebe comes under the age at which the barrier is set. Messrs. Whiton and Murray were absent from the meeting this evening and may have been the reason for the failure to take up the matter of an investigation. It is understood that a special meeting of the council will be held Friday evening to consider the investigation and to determine what shall be the course to be pursued. It will be recalled that the majority and minority reports made at the last meeting of the council were tabled and that the course to be taken then pointed to an investigation by the city manager under direction of the council. What that course will be will be decided at the meeting Friday evening, it is believed. The subject of the erection of gasoline tanks on Pequot avenue, which manufacturers in that vicinity believe to be a menace to other property is to be opened up again and Councilor Streeter means that the whole matter shall be reviewed as far as the council can review it.

The police department has gotten rid of a vile spot in the lower section of the city adjacent to the police station. It has cleaned out the den that Mrs. Annie Bryant conducted and which was the rendezvous of blacks and whites of the low sort. At one time, and that very recently, it was supposed to be a place where narcotics were sold, and if that supposition was not correct, it was a place where addicts to the habit-forming drugs resorted. Some of the gang are now in the county jail and others are at the state farm. Today Mrs. Bryant was sent to jail for 30 days, when she pleaded guilty of keeping a house of assignation. A supposed solicitor for the place, one Mary Peterson, was sent up to stay 30 days, and a girl from Boston who was secured as a patron of the Bryant house, was given her choice of leaving town or going to jail. She chose to get out. She said she is married, the wife of a soldier formerly stationed at one of the Island forts. He is now at Portland, Maine, and there the girl wife will eventually bring up. Mary Peterson admitted that she invited the girl wife to the Bryant house and said she had no purpose in view except to secure a lodger for Mrs. Bryant, who she represented to be in financial straits. The story Mary told was not borne out by the admission she made that she was in the company of a sailor at the Bryant house when the police officers called and that the girl who was in compromising circumstances at the same time. Mary said she had her imagination as to circumstances, but she sought to wiggle out of the mess by saying she did not "know" as to conditions. She also admitted that she was a frequenter of the Holloway place, on Bank street, prior to the time that house was raided and the proprietor sent to jail. The Bryant woman has not played fair with the police and has not kept promises she made when she was shown some degree of leniency. It is believed that there are other places in the same section where the Bryant house was located, and where it attracted its business, that will now come in for police observation.

Charles Antis has sold a house and lot on Brewer street to August and Margaret Saucsok.

Employes there could not account for the disappearance of the machine.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Buell, wife of Colin B. Buell, principal of Williams Memorial Institute, died Saturday night at her home, 52 Vauxhall street. Mrs. Buell had been ill for a long time.

Thomas J. Jr., 4 son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Murray, died at Lawrence hospital Sunday from septic poisoning for which affliction the child had been under treatment about two weeks.

Mrs. Nellie Tatro, 9 Pearl street, who has caused the police any amount of trouble for days because of mental ailments, was taken in charge by her husband, Van Tatro, and during the day was placed in charge of a relative residing out of the city, so that no harm will come to the woman. Several days ago, Mrs. Tatro alleged that her home had been robbed of jewelry and wearing apparel and later appeared at the police station and declared herself to be an actress appearing at a local playhouse and inviting members of the department to witness her performance. Sunday she caused residents of School House lane annoyance because of her persistency with which she demanded admission to households. Last night about 11.30 o'clock, her husband appeared at the police station and declared that his wife was missing from home and was coatless and hatless. About 1 o'clock Patrolman George Perkins, on duty at Ocean Beach, came upon Mrs. Tatro in company with a sailor, Atwell Young, of the U. S. S. Redwing, roaming about the beach. The couple were detained until Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Babcock arrived in the police car. They were then taken to the police station where Mrs. Tatro was detained for the night and Young was sent aboard his ship.

Harold Arker, alias Harold Olsen, a sailor stationed at the United States Coast Guard Academy, was in the police court this morning charged with having liquor in his possession for sale. The case was continued to Wednesday next and Arken was ordered to furnish a surety on his bond of $400. This he did this afternoon. Arken was arrested at the Salvation Army lodging house Sunday by Sergeant Nelson Smith, following the officer finding five quarts of whiskey in Arken's suitcase in the locker room. It is alleged that Arken obtained the liquor and carried it to the Salvation Army lodging house where he placed it in a grip and was intending to offer it for sale.

Patrolman John Sullivan, in making his rounds through Blackhall street at 7 o'clock this morning discovered a live wire of the Connecticut company dislodged from a pole and in danger of falling to the sidewalk. The officer maintained a guard about the danger spot until linemen got the wire back in position.

MABREY ESTATE TO WIDOW AND THREE CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 24.—The will of Louis Mabrey, late of New London and Norwich, whose sudden death occurred Oct. 11th at his residence, Mabrey's hotel, at Ocean Beach, was admitted to probate today by Judge Arthur B. Calkins at a hearing for that purpose in the probate court. The document was drawn Oct. 11, 1921, and was witnessed by Matthew C. Graham, Charles S. Price and Charles A. Gallup. It will be noted that Mr. Mabrey died exactly three years from the day his will was drawn.

The instrument provides that the executor pay the funeral expenses and just debts of the testator, after which the following bequests are made:

To Fred D. Mabrey, Englewood, N. J.; Helen R. Champlin, then of Masury, Ohio, now of Renton, Wash., and Nelson L. Mabrey of Milton, Penn., is bequeathed $500 each, to be theirs absolutely.

The testator bequeaths a watch, chain and locket and two bracelets, which belonged to testator's former wife, the late Elizabeth Dill Mabrey, and as requested by her, to "our first granddaughter," to be hers absolutely. (There is one granddaughter, Elizabeth, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Mabrey.)

The testator bequeaths the unused one-half of his lot in Maplewood cemetery, Norwich, for the use by any of his children who desire to use it. Also the right to use the back face of the monument upon said lot.

He bequeaths and devises to his wife, Jessie Steele Mabrey, all the remainder of his personal property, of whatsoever the same may consist, or wheresoever the same may be located, to be hers, absolutely.

He gives to his wife, Jessie Steele Mabrey, during her lifetime or until such time as she may re-marry, a life use of all his real estate, with the right to convert the same into cash, if deemed advisable. If, however, such income is insufficient for her comfortable support, then it is the desire of testator that she use so much of the principal as shall be necessary to support her and maintain her in the same condition as she has been accustomed to.

Upon the death of testator's wife, Jennie Steele Mabrey, or in case said Jessie Steele Mabrey shall re-marry, the testator then gives, devises and bequeaths to his three children, Frederick D. Mabrey, Helen R. Mabrey and Nelson L. Mabrey, all the rest, residue and remainder of the property of whatsoever the same may consist or wherever the same may be located, to be theirs absolutely, to share and share alike.

In the event of any one of the legatees making any contest over the will, such legatee or devisee shall forfeit all rights given in the will.

The testator appointed Frank L. Arnold, of Norwich, executor of the estate.

SILVER WEDDING BY WATERFORD COUPLE

Observing the 25th anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Peabody kept open house from 3 to 9 p. m. on Saturday at their home in Austin street, Waterford. The heavy downpour of rain did not deter many friends of the popular Waterford couple from calling to extend their felicitations and wish them many more years of happy wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Peabody were married 25 years ago at the home of Mrs. Peabody's mother, Mrs. Mary Odgers of Waterford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. They have resided continuously since in Waterford where Mr. Peabody is associated with his father and brothers in the dairying business under the firm name of Joseph Peabody & Sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Peabody were recipients of many beautiful gifts in sterling silver, including remembrances from individuals and societies with which they are connected. Among the latter was a beautiful gift from Cheshire Community club of which Mrs. Peabody has long been an active and loyal worker.

Mr. and Mrs. Peabody were assisted in receiving by their daughters, the Misses Arlene C. and Marjorie E. Peabody and by Mrs. Douglas Weeks and Mrs. E. Clayton Brown.

Numerous congratulatory messages and telephone communications were received by Mr. and Mrs. Peabody from friends deterred by the weather.

POETRY

THE RAIN UPON THE ROOF.

When the hurried shadows gather
Over all the starry darkness
And the melancholy darkness
Weeps itself in rainy tears,
'Tis joy to press the pillow
Of some cottage chamber bed,
And to listen to the patter
Of the raindrops overhead.

Every tinkle on the shingle
Wakes an echo in my heart,
And a thousand dreamy fancies
Into busy being start,
And a thousand recollections
Weave their bright hues into woof,
As I listen to the patter
Of the rain upon the roof.

Now in fancy comes my mother,
As she used to years agone,
To survey her darling dreamers,
Ere she left them till the morn;
And I see her bending o'er me
As I list to the refrain
That is played upon the shingles
By the patter of the rain.

And my little Seraph sister,
With her wings and waving hair,
And her blue-eyed Cherub brother,
A serene angelic pair,
Glide around my wakeful pillow,
With their praise or mild reproof,
As I listen to the patter
Of the rain upon the roof.

Then another comes to cheer me,
With her eyes delicious blue,
And forget I, gazing on her,
That her heart was all untrue,
I remember but to love her,
With a joy that's kin to pain,
And my heart's deep pulse vibrate
To the patter of the rain.

ALL IS VANITY.

Whether men do laugh or weep,
Whether they do wake or sleep,
Whether they die young or old,
Whether they feel heat or cold,
There is underneath the sun
Nothing in true earnest done.

All our pride is but a jest,
None are worst and none are best,
Grief and joy, and hope and fear
Play their pageants everywhere;
Vain Opinion all doth sway,
And the world is but a play.

Powers above in clouds do sit,
Mocking our poor apish wit,
That so lamely with such state
Their high glory imitate.
No ill can be felt but pain,
And that happy men disdain.

Philip Rosseter.

Among the recent acquisitions at the London Zoological Gardens is a nest of umbrella ants which have never been seen before in the gardens. They are proving extremely interesting to Londoners and have had a busy time because during the journey the queen's apartments got terribly disarranged, but the whole community by working overtime soon had them in model shape, says Science Service. In their native home in Trinidad the ants are always to be found in the neighborhood of rose trees. They cut off parts of the petals of the roses and carry these to their nests, holding them over their heads like parasols. On reaching home they masticate the rose petals thoroughly and pile up the resulting mixture in heaps inside the nest. On the beds thus prepared a special fungus grows, of which the ants are very fond.

MARKET REMAINS "BULLISH"

New York, Nov. 24.—The "bull" movement in the stock market today entered the fourth consecutive week with "bear" traders, aided by a large volume of profit-taking, stubbornly contesting the advance. Fifty stocks, 15 of them minor shares, attained new peak prices for the year. Total sales crossed the two million share mark for the tenth time since election day.

Strength and activity of the St. Paul issues, apparently based on the belief that the road will have little difficulty in arranging its heavy refunding program next year, featured the trading in railroad shares. St. Paul preferred advanced more than two points to a new 1924 top at 32 1-8 and the common touched a new maximum at 18 3-4, but both forfeited a substantial part of their gains in the later trading. Buying of these issues also was stimulated by the road's advance payment of an installment note of $365,500, to the government, which was not due until Jan. 15.

Other railroad issues to better their previous year's highs were Seaboard Air Line, common and preferred, Western Pacific common and preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Chicago and Great Western common and preferred and the Rock Island preferred issues. Rock Island common, which recently has enjoyed a spirited advance on rumors of the early acquisition of that road by the Southern Pacific, was offered freely today on an official denial of these reports, falling back about 3 points to 46 7-8.

Standard industrials failed to make any progress on the up side, although United States Steel common opened nearly a point higher and then cancelled all its gain. American Can closed more than a point lower at 150 1-4. Baldwin was unchanged at 125.

Bullish demonstrations were successfully conducted, however, in a number of industrial specialties and public utilities, the new highs including Allis Chalmers, Tobacco Products United Cigar, Marine common and preferred, the Goodyear Rubber preferred issues, Corn Products, North American company and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Fisher Body soared 7 1-2 points to 208. Other outstanding strong spots included United States Realty common and preferred, American Sumatra Tobacco common and preferred, National Cloak and Suit, United Drug, United States Distributing preferred and Universal Pipe and Radiator common and preferred, all up 3 to 6 3-4 points.

Revival of speculative interest in the oil shares followed the announcement of higher gasoline prices in New England and an increase in Bunker fuel oil along the Atlantic coast. Independent Oil and Gas moved up a point in heavy trading on reports that the company has doubled its production by the three new wells brought in last week. Early gains in most of the other oils however, were substantially reduced or cancelled before the close.

Call money renewed at 2 1-2 per cent, but dropped to 2 in the afternoon time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were moderately reactionary. Demand sterling sold about 3-4 of a cent lower around $4.63, presumably in reflection of the uneasiness over the Egyptian crisis, and the other European rates reacted in sympathy.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 24.—Bond prices resumed their advance today under the stimulus provided by over-subscription of the $100,000,000 French loan and fresh rallies in St. Paul and New Haven railroad issues.

With the new French issue from three to four times oversubscribed, the 7 per cent bonds commanded a premium of almost a point in stock exchange dealings, while the interest aroused in the offering led to new buying of French municipal, German and other European obligations. Opening 1-2 points above the offering price, the loan bonds advanced to 94 3-4 and then fell back to 94 1-4 at the close. Gains of a point or more were recorded by most of the French City bonds, the German 7s, Belgian 6 1-2s, and Serbian 8s.

The favorable turn in the outlook for the St. Paul railroad refunding program continued to be reflected in the price movement of the road's bonds. Six of the most active issues scored gains of 1 to 4 points, although the highest levels of the day were not maintained. The rise in the company's shares brought corresponding gains in the convertible bonds. New Haven, Seaboard and Denver & Rio Grange liens also were conspicuously strong.

Although the recent advance in Wilson and company bonds continued early in the day the convertible issues broke sharply upon the announcement that interest on the 6s would be defaulted December 1 and subsequently on the 7 per cent issue. The first mortgage bonds on which interest will be met, yielded 1 1-2 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Largely on account of a decided falling off in the United States visible supply total, the first decrease shown in four months, wheat today scored a substantial upturn in price, with May delivery and July as well both overtopping the highest previous quotations this season. The wheat market closed firm at 1 1-4 to 2c net gain, December 1.55 3-4 to 1.55 7-8 and May 1.63 1-2@1.63 5-8. Corn finished at 2-8c decline to 1-4c advance, oats 1-8 to 1-2c up and provisions unchanged to 25c higher.

Even before it was assured that the visible supply of wheat in the United States had begun to shrink, the wheat market here had a noticeable upward swing. This circumstance was due to sharply higher quotations at Liverpool, ascribed more or less to militant steps which the British government was taking in Egypt.

Buying on a big scale developed in the wheat market and despite heavy selling to realize profits, the greater part of the price gains were held at the finish.

Fair and cold weather likely to facilitate the marketing of new corn kept the corn market easy despite assertions that in the last 26 years May corn has invariably sold higher after November. Oats followed wheat rather than corn.

Scarcity of offerings did much to lift the provision market.

CURB MARKET

New York, Nov. 24.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher on a large volume of trading in today's curb market. Oils bounded upward in reflection of higher prices for gasoline in New England and fuel oil along the Atlantic seaboard, but not all the gains were maintained. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped ten points and Standard Oil of Nebraska 4, while Prairie Oil and Gas fell back 2. Most of the other changes in that group were of a fractional nature.

National Tea was the outstanding strong spot in the industrial group, soaring ten points to 250. Goodyear Tire and Rubber advanced nearly 3 points to a new top at 22 1-8 on a very heavy volume of trading, being stimulated by reports that the company was to refund its 8 per cent bond with another issue at a lower coupon rate.

Radio issues were mixed. Thermodyne duplicated the year's high of 13 1-2 and Hazeltine advanced a point, but most of the other active issues yielded fractionally. Considerable irregularity also developed in the public utilities, American Gas and Electric standing out with a gain of nearly 5 points at 106 5-8.

The new French government bonds sold at a premium of 5-8 in the first hour and then trading shifted to the "big board" where they subsequently sold at a premium of 3-4.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks irregular: two score issues at new highs.

Bonds higher; St. Paul issues lead advance; French bonds active.

Foreign exchanges easy; sterling lower on Egyptian crisis.

Cotton advanced; trade buying.

Sugar higher; firm spot situation.

Coffee weak; lower Brazilian markets.

Chicago.

Wheat firm; decreased visible supply.

Corn steady; open weak; rallied sympathy with wheat.

Cattle higher.

Hogs lower; liberal arrivals.

GOV'T COMPLETES CASE AGAINST BROKER SITKWORTH

New York, Nov. 24.—Three weeks after the opening of the trial, the government today completed its case against William S. Sitkworth, former president of the Consolidated Stock exchange, and seven brokers involved in mail fraud charges growing out of the $7,000,000,000 failure of the brokerage firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell.

Stuart C. Ross, an accountant, the government's last witness, testified that C. Peter Ovens, office manager for the bankrupt firm, had admitted to him that the concern bucketed orders a short time before its failure in 1922. The admission, he testified, was made after Ross had told officers of the firm that an examination of the books had revealed a supposed $400,000 asset as a liability.

After the jury was dismissed, Judge A. N. Hand quashed the indictment against John A. McQuaid, one of the defendants, and heard arguments for the same procedude in the case of Francis X. McQuillen, Edward McQuaid and Louis Gilbrough.

MADE A COMPETENCE IN THE "HOT DOG" BUSINESS

Boston, Nov. 24.—A good location is everything in the "hot dog" business, Samuel Shanker says. When he persisted in standing with his hot oven and "hot dogs" in front of a lunch room on Berkeley street he was arrested. "That's a good stand. I can't afford to lose it," he remarked, as he paid a $3 fine from a $1,000 roll of bills. Then he went out and bought the building, paying more than $12,000 for it. Shanker said he had made enough money selling "hot dogs" in the past five years to buy five houses and have a little cash on hand besides.

Religion has done much for morality, but the fear of being found out has done more.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Looking for Turkey Tim

"Tick, tock, tickerty tock,"
Solemn and slow went Grandfather Clock.
Perhaps he was trying to deaden the sound
Of Turkey Tim's feet on the hard cellar ground.

You remember, I'm sure, just as I ended the last story that the poor old turkey had hidden in the cellar when Old Sic'em, the Kind Farmer's dog had knocked on the front door of Uncle Lucky's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street.

As Old Sic'em had always been most friendly, dear Uncle Lucky opened the door.

"Tick, tock, tickerty tock,
Be very careful," said Grandfather Clock.

"Come into the sitting room," invited the old gentleman rabbit, leading the way and pointing to an easy chair. Then sitting down he put on his spectacles and looked inquiringly at Old Sic'em.

"Turkey Tim has run away from the Farmyard," began the old dog. "He did the same thing last year. I heard the Kind Farmer say today that he would have to punish the old bird. Don't understand why Turkey Tim always gets so nervous around Thanksgiving time. The Kind Farmer would never cook him for dinner."

"Not so sure about that," answered cautious Uncle Lucky. "Turkeys are in great demand around the holidays. Glad I'm not a turkey."

"Nonsense, stuff and nonsense!" exclaimed Old Sic'em. "In the first place. Turkey Tim is old and tough. And furthermore, the Kind Farmer is very fond of him."

"Well, why did you come here?" asked Uncle Lucky. "I'm not going out to hunt for Turkey Tim. No sireebus. My supper will soon be ready. Besides, I have a touch of rheumatism in my little pinky. The evening air isn't good for the rheumatism.

"Well, I just thought I'd drop in to say that when you see him you might say he'll be in no danger if he comes back. In fact, he's in more danger from Danny Fox who is always prowling around in the Shady Forest.

"Very well, when I see him again I'll mention that," agreed wise old Uncle Lucky, winking at himself in the long mirror opposite. "I'd ask you to stay to supper only I know you don't care for rabbit's food."

"Thank you just the same," barked Old Sic'em, rising and bow-wowing to the old gentleman rabbit. "I must be off," and picking up his old straw hat, he walked into the hall.

"You're sure the Kind Farmer means no harm to Turkey Tim," said cautious Uncle Lucky, standing in the open doorway so that the light from the hall lamp would fall on the path to the little front gate.

"I certainly am," replied Old Sic'em, carefully stepping off the porch. "You can take my word for it," and with a wag of his tail, he trotted back to the Big Farmyard. And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

CHINECE COMMITTED SUICIDE IN APARTMENT IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 24.—Police today found the body of a Chinese, Lee Song, in an apartment in a lower East Side tenement just outside Chinatown. He had turned the gas, gone to bed, and waited for the end. Two wilted roses were in a vase at the bedside. Lee Song, others in the tenement had recalled, had said two days ago, when the roses were fresh: "When the flowers die, so will I."

The Chinese left a note explaining that he was about to kill himself to escape death at the hands of gun or hatchetmen who killed his cousin Frank Lee, in Doyers street three weeks ago, a victim of the recent On Leong-Hip Sing tong war.

short time certificates than the occasion justified. Had he and his party, instead of playing politics, raised a little more money by taxation when the war spirit and prices and incomes were at their highest the speculative fever could have been checked or somewhat earlier and with less serious consequence. The interesting part of the story is that when the federal reserve system works, it's democratic, when it fails to supply all the money southern and western speculators in food and farms, it becomes a republican crime.

Foreign Relations

"With regard to other nations I have but one thought to express at this time. The war is behind them and us. It is my hope that its flame of folly has burned so deep into international heart that it will never be repeated. It is possible that in no other way could the world have learned the lessons that must be learned. One thing is certain, Europe as a whole must demonstrate her ability to maintain her political sanity and the great nations of Europe must individually realize that assistance from outside will be neith deserved nor possible until the spirit of co-operation and the will to deal justly with each other takes the place of the gospel of hate and reprisal. Peace is civilization—war is barbarism. To admit that world peace is impossible is to admit that civilization is impossible The three men in the world today best qualified in purpose, ability and experience to promote international goodwill are Calvin Coolidge, Charles E. Hughes and Charles G. Dawes, and the unprecedented vote of confidence given to these men on the 4th of November clearly indicates that, in their desire to foster and encourage world peace, the American people are quite able to discriminate between leaders who seek peace for the sake of peace and leaders who seek peace for the sake of party or personal glorification.

Domestic Peace.

"We long for international peace, we must have domestic peace, knowing but one flag, one country, one allegiance. We are more than one hundred millions of people in whose veins runs the blood of many races, states and creeds but, by the grace of God, we must all be Americans. We hear much in these days about the comparative superiority of long-heads and round-heads, blonde and brunettes. But the man whose heart and hands are clean need not concern himself about the shape of his head or the color of his hair. We may love the mother countries but we cannot help them if we fail ourselves. I am an ardent nationalist, any man must be who loves his home. And the man who won't defend his country against the assaults of ignorance and greed can never have a home or a country worthy of the name.

Our Mothers.

"I have said many times recently that lawmaking, wise lawmaking, is at the present time quite as definite a problem for the sociologist and the pathologist as it is for the lawyer. We have in this country 1,245,000 lives yet there are ten thousand murders in the United States every year—twice as many in the city of Chicago as in all England. There are thirty robberies in Chicago to one in London. It has been carefully estimated that the value of property stolen or obtained by fraud every year exceeds $4,000,000,000. More people are injured by reckless automobile drivers every year than we lost in the World war. There are five millions of people in this country afflicted with tuberculosis, one hundred thousand infants die every year before reaching the age of twelve months. According to the investigations made during the enlistment days and since that time, 50 per cent. of our youth are physically defective, and 60 per cent. at the age of 21 have the mentality of a child of 14. We consume twice the opium per capita in this country that is consumed by the Chinese. If the present increase in insanity percentages is allowed to continue the sane residue of the American people will all be employed in the construction of straightjackets in the year 2,000.

"This is a pretty dark cloud, I hope it has a silver lining but when we count the enormous sums annually required to support hospitals, infirmaries, reformatories, sanatoriums, penitentiaries, community chests and a thousand other appeals which must be answered in the affirmative, we realize the economy and necessity of saving from the sins of the fathers, the mothers of the coming generations of children, who will make this country a glory not a disgrace. Connecticut has 1 per cent. of the population of the United States. The health and habits of the other 99 per cent. now are, and will continue to be, of vital importance to us.

Keynote.

"And now I want to strike what I conceive to be the right keynote for the brief campaign which will follow the action of this convention. It is eerily found and as easily followed. The keynote and all other notes are contained in the single word 'Votes.' I am not worrying as to what the people of Connecticut will do if they will go to the polls and do their duty. In the emphatic language of our emphatic vice-president-elect it would be a hell of a (key-note)' if the land of steady habits' should send him a democratic senator to call to order a few days after she has promised him that she wouldn't do so, by a majority exceeding a hundred and forty thousand.

"The wise course for the democratic party to follow would be to make no nominations. One more democratic sensation will only enhance the possibilities of dead-locks and inaction. But the democratic party of Connecticut will as usual arise from its ashes long enough to nominate a candidate and prophesy his election. Nothing revives the democratic party as quickly as its own funeral. In my day I have witnessed eleven splendid democratic national funerals. In the recent campaign, the democratic party died on the day it nominated its candidates for president and vice president. Four months before the date set by the constitution for its interment; but judging from the editorial wreaths placed upon its coffin it is apparent that many loyal democrats who did not ride in the funeral procession, nevertheless, heartily approved its destruction. A democratic candidate for senator will be nominated and the Honorable Thomas J. Spellacy will wire to democratic headquarters that the tide has turned and that Connecticut is sure to give a handsome majority to Jeffersonian democracy. The one outstanding virtue of a democrat by heredity (and there are few others at the present time), is, that he votes. It doesn't make any difference whether his party is dead or alive, he votes.

BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE EXPLAINS DEMANDS ON EGYPT

London, Nov. 24 (By the A. P.).—Replying to criticisms leveled at some of the points contained in the British note to Egypt, it is asserted by an official source that the foreign office note contained no demands which did not fall under the points reserved by, or covered in, the Egyptian independence agreement of 1922.

This agreement provided, among other things, for the suppression of political demonstrations, the retention of their powers by three British officials, namely, the financial and judicial advisers and the director of public security, and that Great Britain would become the protector of foreign interests in order to allow foreigners to carry on their work in Egypt.

Great Britain, it is pointed out, has been lax in the matter of the suppression of political demonstrations, British officials hoping that the Egyptian internal troubles would quiet down, and allow matters to adjust themselves. With the murder of Major General Sir Lee Stack, which the British government claims was indirectly due to laxity in allowing political demonstrations of an anti-British character, the government believes that the time has arrived to demand that the agreemet of 1922 be fulfilled to the last letter.

The British note, therefore, makes such demands, and the British government is prepared to carry out those not willingly granted by the Egyptians. The government has already taken steps to have the Egyptian troops removed from the Sudan, where they have been allowed to remain with the British troops to insure safety of the country, which had been under martial law since 1899.

Demands for the suppression of demonstrations will be enforced under the existing agreement, but the matter of Egyptian co-operation with the British advisers will largely depend on the attitude of the Egyptian government.

WOMAN CHIEF WITNESS AGAINST COL. FORBES

Chicago, Nov. 24—(By the A. P.)—The name of Mrs. Herbert Votaw, of Washington, sister of the late President Harding, was disclosed as that of the chief witnesses in the government's case against Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the Veterans' Bureau, and J. W. Thompson, contractor of St. Louis and Chicago, when the trial opened in federal court here today. Mrs. Votaw, during Forbes' administration, was connected with the Veterans' Bureau in vocational rehabilitation work.

Counsel for the defendants obtained a ruling which allowed them to examine the list of three score government witnesses. Defense counsel also succeeded in separating the trial of the two charges in the indictment, the government then announcing its intention to proceed with trial of the charge of defrauding the United States government. The other count charged conspiracy to bribe a federal officer, in the awarding of contracts for government hospitals while Forbes was head of the Veterans' Bureau.

MEMORIAL MEETING FOR HERBER L. BRIDGMAN

New York, Nov. 24—Under the chairmanship of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, a national memorial meeting was held tonight by the Psi Upsilon College fraternity at the Lotos Club in honor of the late Herbert L. Bridgman, for many years manager of the Brooklyn Standard Union and formerly president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. He had been president of the fraternity for forty years.

Chief Justice Taft, Chauncey M. Depew, the oldest living member of the Psi Upsilon and a number of other distinguished alumni, sent letters of appreciation. Addresses were made by Earl L. Babst, president-elect of the fraternity, and George B. Mallot of the Amherst chapter, of which Mr. Bridgman became a member sixty years ago. Memorial meetings were also held tonight in all of the fraternity chapters throughout the United States.

JAR OF BLOOD FOUND NEAR SHEATSLEY HOME

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 24.—A jar lid containing about half an ounce of blood was found this afternoon in the fruit closet of the home of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, where the partly cremated body of the minister's wife was discovered in the furnace a week ago today.

The discovery was made by David Shadrack, marshal of the Bexley suburb, while making a search of the premises for evidence of possible murder. The jar lid was inverted in a basket containing a number of other lids. It will be examined by Chemist Charles F. Long to determine if it is human blood.

A burlap bag containing spots believed to be blood was also found in a lot about 200 feet from the Sheatsley home.

Mr. Shadrack said the substance found in the jar lid was blood.

AGREEMENT REACHED AT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Nov. 24.—(By The A. P.)—The Japanese and British delegations to the international opium conference in session here reached an accord tonight on their dispute concerning Japan's freedom to import opium. This dispute was one of the reasons for the collapse of the first opium conference.

Present indications are that some convention concerning the far eastern opium problems will eventually be reached. Despite the Japanese and British agreement, however, it is generally admitted that the convention, as now drafted, fails to attain the object for which the present conference was called, namely, the adoption of effective measures to stop opium smoking in the far east.

FIVE YEAR SENTENCE FOR ATTEMPT AT EXTORTION

Boston, Nov. 24—Salvatore Schiavone, a West End candy maker, who was charged with attempting to extort $5,000 from Henry G. Lapham president of the Boston Athletic Association by means of threatening letters, pleaded guilty in Suffolk superior court today and was sentenced to five years in the Concord reformatory. Schiavone said he had read of Lapham's wealth in the newspapers and wished to obtian some of it to set himself up in a candy business.

TAFTVILLE

Thomas Fleming Brown and Miss Annie Katherine Troeger were married Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the Taftville Congregational church by the pastor, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis. They were attended by Miss Margaret Troeger, a sister of the bride, and Walter Hindle of Providence, a friend of the groom. After the ceremony, a supper was served to the members of the bridal party and a few near relatives at the home of the bride on Highland avenue. The groom is employed as a chauffeur for the Ponemah Mills, and has made his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William J. McNally of North Third avenue. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Troeger, and has been employed by the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd. After a short wedding trip the newly married couple will reside at the home of the bride on Highland avenue.

Although the rain was welcome and helped to swell the Shetucket and Quinebaug Rivers, the two reservoirs owned by the Ponemah Mills, and all the local smaller streams, there was considerable damage in different parts of the town, done by the high wind that accompanied the storm. In the Hunters avenue - Merchants avenue section, many shutters were blown from houses and broken, and electric light wires was torn down, and large limbs were broken from trees. The section of North Third avenue between North B and North A streets which is under construction was turned into a small sea of mud and automobiles had difficulty in getting through it. Sunday morning, a heavy delivery truck sunk to the hubs at the corner of North A street and North Third avenue, and it was an hour or more before the drivers could pull it out of the mire, assisted by all the residents of that vicinity who came to their rescue with shovels. The delivery truck of Wilfred Bibeault skidded on Providence street early Saturday morning, owing to the driving rain and slippery condition of the streets, and having turned around completely crashed into a pole just below the Sacred Heart church, where the rear wheel collapsed.

There was special Thanksgiving music at the morning service of the Taftville Congregational church. Sunday, the choir singing the anthem, Praise Ye the Lord, with solo parts by Miss Mildred Kloss and Miss Dorothy Campbell, and Psalm 24, with the solo part by Miss Dorothy Wood. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis preached on The Spirit of Thanksgiving, and read the Thanksgiving proclamation of President Coolidge. The decorations were evergreen, black alder and barberry. In the evening, the Young Peoples Society meeting was led by Miss Mary Taggart, and the topic was, Our Stewardship.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Singleton of Providence, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle and family of North Third avenue.

Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and son Kendall of North B street are spending this week in Lowell, Mass., with relatives. Mr. Heselton has returned from a short stay in Ballouville, with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and family of North B street.

The Dramatic club held a meeting Monday evening at Ponemah Hall, followed by a rehearsal for both the play and the minstrel that they are to present in the near future.

The Cummunity Sewing Class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah Building.

Because of the darkness Monday morning, many automobiles were seen about the village with their lights on.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trahan and family of South Third avenue have moved to Norwich, where Mr. Trahan has accepted a position.

Walter Lebing has resigned his position with the No. 4 Weaving department of the Ponemah Company.

POQUETANUCK

Rev. John F. Plumb, D. D., executive secretary of the diocese of Connecticut, gave an interesting and instructive address at St. James' church Sunday morning.

At this service Mrs. F. D. Miller sang in a pleasing manner an offertory solo, "In the Garden."

Twenty-eight members of Norwich Review, No. 38, Women's Benefit Association of the Maccabees, attended the celebration of the 32nd anniversary of the Connecticut Order of Maccabees held Monday night by Windham Review in their hall on Main street, Willimantic. The Norwich degree team initiated 20 candidates from the Windham Review, New London Review, Manchester Review and the local Review. The degree work was put on in faultless manner by the local team.

The opening march was given by the Norwich degree team headed by the captain, Mrs. Irene LaPre, and the color bearers, Miss Bertha Wiese and Miss Elizabeth Eckstein. Then followed the flag drill by the New London Review and the degree of fraternity by Norwich Review, Mrs. G. Eckstein, acting commander.

Miss Marguerite Littleton, deputy supreme commander, of Hartford, gave a very interesting talk and was followed by Miss Emma Hass of Hartford nad Miss Bessie Novak, both district deputies. Mrs. E. Hoffman, state captain of Hartford, also addressed the meeting. After the degree work the flower fund march, was put on by Norwich Review, the two color bearers, escorted by sixteen guards heading the officers and members of the three reviews.

Following the business meeting a turkey supper was enjoyed by all present. There was a large birthday cake with lighted candles, there being a candle for each new member initiated since last September. The color bearers of the Norwich Review were in white and the guards wore white silk skirts and green blouses.

The Norwich Maccabees made the trip to and from Willimantic by auto bus, arriving back in Norwich about midnight.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS VOTE IN SIX NAMES

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, held Monday night at the castle on Main street with Chancellor Commander Rudolph Henschel presiding. Interesting discussions for the good of the order followed the business session and these were greatly enjoyed.

WILL BANK RECEIVER DISPUTE STATE'S CLAIM?

Federal Receiver Coffin of the First National bank of Putnam declined on Monday to say whether he would dispute the claim of the state for $125,000 embezzled by G. Harold Gilpatric as a result of the tracing of a check for $20,000 that went through the Merchants National bank of Boston in regular course on June 27 and was credited to the Putnam bank.

It is not known whether Mr. Coffin intends to dispute the claim of the state in reference to the $20,000 check on the ground that it was not listed on the receiver's books either through error, the loss of a leaf in the book or for any other reason not yet explained, says the Hartford Times. Investigation of this misappropriated check by the defaulting bank cashier, who is now serving a fifteen-year sentence in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., has resulted in the receipt of a letter by Treasurer McCook from President Alfred L. Ripley of the Boston bank to the effect that the check went through the latter bank on June 27 in the regular order, credited to the Putnam bank.

Mr. McCook, acting upon advice of Attorney General Frank E. Healy, in order to defend the state's claim against the receiver for the $20,000, has asked Mr. Ripley for all available information concerning the transaction with Gilpatric, inasmuch as the books of the bank failed to record the receipt of the money there. Mr. Coffin has asked that the state present proof of its claim. Mr. McCook Monday said no further information has been obtained in regard to the transaction, although he is satisfied that he has sufficient grounds for his claim.

In the opinion of Attorney General Healy, Gilpatric misappropriated the funds after they had reached the Putnam bank. If Gilpatric took the money in transit between the Boston and Putnam banks, it is said the state may have difficulty in proving its point. But Gilpatric told Mr. Healy that he took the money after it had reached his bank. An interesting feature of the transaction is that the check reached the Boston bank on the same day it was made out by Deputy Treasurer Thomas H. Judd at the capitol in behalf of Gilpatric, then state treasurer. It is not known just how Gilpatric got the check to the Boston bank so quickly without arousing suspicion.

Attorney-General Healy said he had a long talk with Gilpatric at the New Haven county jail the day before the latter went to prison. He said Gilpatric told him, "Frank, I never took a dollar from the state of Connecticut."

Receiver Coffin has notified the state that, in anticipation of a dividend of deposits expected to be made before Christmas, he will accept proof of claim by the state for $105,000 of the $125,000 asked upon regular forms to be forwarded for that purpose, but he will need more proof of the $20,000 claim.

The state treasurer has filed with Receiver Coffin the cancelled check, endorsed by both the Putnam and Boston banks, the state's passbook in which the $20,00 deposit and interest money on the deposit is recorded.

The check for $20,000 and another for a similar amount issued shortly before were for the purpose of depositing in the Putnam bank money which the state was to loan on a Putnam mortgage in favor of one of the state funds, Gilpatric was quoted as saying.

FINED FOR RUNNING UNLICENSED POOL ROOM

Walter Anashavick, 50 and Vennie Petroski, 22, charged with being proprietors of a gambling house, and eight others, charged with being frequenters of the place were presented in the city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. All but Anashavick were discharged. Anashavick was fined $35 and costs for running a pool room without a license. He paid his fine and the costs, the total bill amounting to $43.64. The eight frequenters discharged were: Joseph Byrnes, 23; Frank Bohara, 39; Dolphus Williams, 25; Andrew Petack, 36; Walter Samocavich, 32; John Dobienski, 46; Andrew Taylor, 27; William Jackson, 54.

The case got into court as the result of a raid by the local police Saturday night. William Butler, special detective of Butler's Detective Agency, testified to going to the pool room over Simpson's restaurant on West Main street in company with a colored man named Green. They were refused entrance to the place by Bennie Petroski, who told them they could not go in as the place was a private club. Before the door was closed on them Butler and Green saw four or five men playing cards and there was some silver on the table.

Butler and Green rejoining Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer John Donovan on the street and they all went up to the pool room together and arrested those found within.

William Green, colored, of No. 38 Thames street, told of accompanying Detective Butler to the club rooms and of then going back with the officers. Sergeant Murphy testified to being in the raiding party. He said that Anashavick had stated that he employed Petroski in the pool room at a weekly wage of $20.

Officer John Donovan testified that complaints had come to him about gambling being carried on in the club rooms. Chief Linton testified that no city license had been issued to the proprietor of the place to conduct a pool room.

One man was fined $10 and costs for breach of the peace and intoxication and another presented on a breach of the peace was fined $5. A local man was fined $5 for parking his machine on a cross-walk.

PSYCHIC THRILLS AUDIENCE AT SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Capacity audiences, the largest of the season, greeted A. Hazen Stoddard, America's foremost psychic and lecturer on the occult, at the Spiritual Academy Sunday afternoon and evening.

At both appearances this noted exponent of psychic evolution delivered a masterly and eloquent address, holding the closest attention of appreciative audiences. Not since the days of Mary Vanderbilt has a Norwich audience witnessed such phenominal and convincing work along the line of psychic demonstrations.

Mr. Stoddard, who is not yet 30, began his research work under scientists at the age of 11, appearing not only in this country, but in London, Paris and Switzerland. Personality, combined with keen intelect and psychological attainment, have won for this young man hosts of friends wherever he has appeared.

The musical program in charge of Charles A. Dowsett, organist, and Mrs. Charlotte Dowsett, violinist, was of an exceptionally high order.

SUICIDE'S LETTER NOT FULLY TRANSLATED YET

Parts of the letter left by Onfry Toupasz of 189 Howard street, New London, who committed suicide in Mohegan park, had been translated Monday, which seemed to indicate he had heard some bad news. Part of the letter is in the Polish language and the rest in Russian. Until it has all been translated it will not be known whether it gives any reason for his suicide.

The man's brother-in-law, Paul Sankow of Chesterfield, who found the body in the park, stated when he was here Monday that Toupasz has recently complained of pains in his head and eyes.

The topic presented at the Richmond Radiator Co., Monday was The End of Life and the way to it. The address was given as usual at the noon hour and the speaker was Rev. C. H. Ricketts. The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

1. There is an end to all material life. This applies to the earth itself. It was long ages in forming and will be long ages in wearing out. Nations also have their little day and then go out of existence. We know that this is true of human life from frequent observation. Human life is taken (1) by violence and this includes suicide and accidents. Those who escape accidents are attacked (2) by disease which takes off the greatest number. And (3) those who survive disease are finished by old age. Probably not a person is living in the United States who was here when Washington died. There is a wisdom in this scheme because living would be impossible if death was not allowed.

2. There is a way to the end.

Yes, a right way and a wrong way. We are privileged to know which is the right way and the wrong. If we live a straight, clean life; if we are kind, upright, moral, honest, industrious and God-fearing we are on the right road to the triumphant end of life. But if we mean, low, dissipated, dishonest, unkind instead of a victory at last there will be disaster. Simply because "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

3. At the end there shall be rest. The end of our day of life is not unlike the end of a day of toil. In this workshop you are dealing with iron; the work is heavy and at the end of the day you are naturally tired. Now as rest is sweet to a tired man at the end of the day, so also when the twilight of life approaches there is a desire for rest, and that is promised. Now from all this we learn that the quality of the blessing we get at the end of life will depend on the way we take to reach it.

WILL DISCUSS MEASURES TO FIGHT THE MOSQUITO

To discuss the mosquito situation in northern Connecticut, an anti-mosquito Institute has been organized by the Connecticut Anti-Mosquito Association, in cooperation with state departments of health, education, forestry and parks, with the large insurance organizations, chambers of commerce, and other civic organizations. While Dr. C. P. Botsford, superintendent of the Hartford Board of Health, is one of the prime movers for the Institute at Hartford, and will be one of the principal speakers, heads of the cooperating state departments will describe conditions, and will recommend a program for mosquito relief control in this section of the state. The speakers and their subjects at the institute will be as follows: "Introductory Remarks," Malcolm R. Pitt, President of the Connecticut Anti-Mosquito Association; "The Malaria Mosquitoes of Connecticut," Dr. W. E. Britton, State Entomologist; "Recreational Aspects of the Mosquito Problem," Mr. Walter O. Filley, Secretary of the State Park and Forest Commission; "The Mosquito and the Health of Connecticut," Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, State Commissioner of Health; "Economic Aspects of the Mosquito Problem," Dr. L. G. Sykes, Medical Director Connecticut General Insurance Company; "What Hartford Has Done for Mosquito Control," Dr. C. P. Botsford, Superintendent Hartford Board of Health; "The Present Status of Mosquito Elimination in Connecticut," Dr. William L. Slate, Jr., Director of Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station; "How the Work is Done," Dr. R. C. Botsford, deputy in charge of mosquito elimination in Connecticut; "General Discussion," led by Dr. Elias Pratt, president of Connecticut Public Health Association.

Representatives from the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the Connecticut League of Women Voters, chambers of commerce in northern Connecticut cities and Yale and Wesleyan Universities, all of whom have cordially endorsed the movement will take part in the discussion.

BROADENED SCOPE FOR STATE WINTER EXPOSITION

Broadened in its scope to include scores of industrial and commercial as well as agricultural and state department exhibits, the Connecticut Winter Exposition to be held at the State Armory, Hartford, January 17 to 24, 1925, is being planned on a scale to make it the most stupendous show of its kind ever held in New England. With 50,000 feet of floor space, exceeding even the area of Madison Square Garden in New York City, the vast armory will have over 300 booths typifying practically every line of business, industrial educational and agricultural endeavor in the state of Connecticut. Professionally managed by William W. Bellows, a man with a wide and successful experience in the conduct of expositions, this season's winter show has started its preparatory stage with flying colors, and already there has been a record-breaking demand for exhibit spaces from a most diversified clientelle, embracing nearly every line of industry and business in the state.

The exposition, in addition to having the hearty support and cooperation of Governor Charles A. Templeton, has been endorsed officially by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, the Connecticut State Grange, the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, the Hartford Chamber of Commerce and the Hartford County Manufacturers' association.

The executive commitee in charge of the exposition is as follows: Leonard H. Healey, chairman, state board of agriculture; Philo T. Platt, vice-president, state board of agriculture James M. Whittlesey, state commissioner on domestic animals; E. Kent Hubbard, president Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut; Wilson H. Lee, chairman of agricultural committee, Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut; Elijah Rogers, agricultural advisor to the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut; George B. Chandler, executive secretary, Connecticut Chamber of Commerce; W. W. Bellows, manager.

In addition to its educational and instructive features, the exposition will have an entertainment scope of wide appeal, including a musical program each afternoon and evening, performances by professional artists, and a decorative and illuminative scheme that will convert the big armory into a beautiful panorama of light and color.

It will be an exposition in fact, of statewide influence and significance, one in which every resident of Connecticut can find a colorful combination of education and entertainment, and it is predicted that all former records of attendance will be eclipsed. Special excursion railroad rates and similar arrangements to induce attendance are being made by Manager Bellows and the executive committee.

BINGHAM NOMINATED FOR SENATOR ON SINGLE BALLOT

Had 51 Votes More Than the Necessary Number to Be Nominated—McLean, Chairman of the Republican State Convention, Declared the Vote Unanimous, Even Though Three Delegates Who Votes For Roraback Failed to Vote on Motion—Colonel Bingham Appeared Before the Convention and Accepted the Nomination in Brief Speech—At the Democratic Convention in New Haven Hamilton Holt Was Nominated by Acclamation.

Hartford, Nov. 25.—Hiram Bingham, who early in the month received the highest number of votes of the electors of Connecticut ever cast for governor today was nominated for United States senator by the republican state convention delegates. In the single roll call ballot he led Congressman John Q. Tilson and Congressman Schuyler Merritt by a large margin and had 51 votes more than the necessary number to be nominated.

The outcome of the roll call was as had been forecast by the republican organization leaders and men, and the only surprise in the opinion of many was that neither Tilson nor Merritt polled the strength that had been anticipated. Mr. Tilson invaded Litchfield county, the home county of J. Henry Roraback, state chairman, but Mr. Merritt did not get all the votes in Fairfield county which it was said had been promised him. Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney for Hartford county whose name was offered by Attorney General Frank E. Healy ran a strong third in the field against Mr. Bingham and had more than had been anticipated. Three delegates voted for Mr. Roraback and this was less in number than had been anticipated as several very well known delegates had declared last night that they would vote for him, but did not do so in the roll call. None of the three Roraback delegates joined the sponsors of the other three candidates in making the vote for Colonel Bingham unanimous although United States Senator McLean, the chairman, made the declaration that the vote was unanimous.

The action of the convention has resulted in a unique situation and without precedent in Connecticut. Colonel Hiram Bingham is the present lieutenant-governor and his election to be governor was one of the very few instances where the lieutenant-governor has been promoted to governor. As governor-elect he is now the republican nominee for United States senator, and here again in case of election he will be one of the very few governors of the state who have afterwards become a United States senator, and he is the only governor-elect who in case of election on December 16 over Hamilton Holt, democrat, nominated in New Haven today, would step from a governorship to the senatorship without serving much more than in name in the former office.

The presiding officer of today's convention, Senator McLean, was governor of Connecticut in 1900. United States Senator Bulkeley, who was in the senate from 1905 to 1911 was governor from 1889 to 1893 and Senator James E. English, who served in 1875-76 had been governor a few years before. But a governor has never resigned to accept a senatorship as will be the case if Colonel Bingham is elected in the coming special election.

Colonel Bingham accepted the action of the convention by appearing before the delegates and speaking briefly. He said he recognized the right of delegates as representing the members of the republican party to call upon him to perform a task, a call made possible under what he termed the Connecticut system of representative government. He accepted the call as a duty, he said.

The convention which lasted less than two hours adopted a resolution on the death of Senator Brandegee, and then listened to the merits of the candidate for nomination as presented by the sponsor of each. A roll call vote took about three-quarters of an hour and as it progressed in order of counties it was not until Litchfield county came strongly for Bingham and then Middlesex and Tolland counties added their votes that it was seen that he had surely won.

Before the clerks had totalled the vote John T. King of Bridgeport, had asked the convention to grant Mr. Merritt the courtesy of the floor, a request which brought instant report from Major John Buckley that it was an unusual and an unparliamentary proceeding. The chairman said it was unusual but suggested the convention could extend the courtesy and Mr. King said that he had merely made the motion at the request of another delegate. Mr. Merritt stepped to the chairman's desk and spoke briefly, saying that the contest left "no scar on me" and emphasizing some of the points in Mr. McLean's address of last night that it was time for republicans to pull together and not waste their strength in factional differences. He said he would give unstinted support to the convention's nominee. The result of the ballot was announced, and then the sponsors of three defeated candidates moved that the vote be declared to be unanimous. Meantime, Congressman Tilson had been sent for but did not arrive for some minutes and Major Buckley had inquired if there were other congressmen to be given the courtesy of the floor.

Colonel Tilson spoke and said that these were the days when republicans are needed in Washington and he asked every delegate to do his utmost to elect the convention's nominee.

Colonel Bingham arrived shortly and spoke and the convention adjourned.

PROCEDURE IN EVENT OF ELECTION OF BINGHAM

Hartford, Nov. 25.—The election of Colonel Bingham as United States senator over Hamilton Holt of Woodstock, the democratic naminee, will mean the automatic advancement of Lieutenant-Governor-elect John H. Trumbull of Plainville to the governorship. Although Colonel Bingham himself was not prepared to discuss his course, when seen directly after the convention, the opinion of ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb of Southington, said to be the "original Bingham man" in the state, was that it would be necessary for the governor-elect to go through the inauguration as governor on Jan. 7 and deliver the message he has been preparing to read to the incoming session of the legislature, before resigning. As the first duty of the incoming governor's staff is to act as his bodyguard at the inauguration ceremonies, this would indicate that it will be incumbent on Mr. Bingham to appoint his staff. He and Colonel Trumbull have been working in such close harmony that it is likely the staff appointed by the former will be acceptable to the latter upon his taking office.

There would be no formal inaugural ceremonies upon the taking of the office by Colonel Trumbull, if the customary procedure in cases of the lieutenant-governor succeeding to the executive chair should be followed. The latter would be sworn in as lieutenant-governor, together with all other elective state officers, on the same day that Mr. Bingham was inaugurated governor, and his succession to the governorship would be in accordance with the constitutional provision that, in case of the governor's resignation, "the lieutenant-governor shall exercise the powers and authority appertaining to the office of governor, until another be chosen at the next periodical election for governor, and be duly qualified." Colonel Trumbull would simply be sworn in as governor, presumably by a supreme court justice or superior court judge, when Mr. Bingham's resignation as governor took effect.

Ex-Governor Holcomb pointed out that it would be inadvisable for Colonel Bingham to avoid the inauguration, because of technical complications that might arise. He certainly cannot resign now, he said, because he has not yet been inaugurated governor, and cannot resign an office he does not hold.

The special election is to be held Dec. 16 and from about that time until approximately the time of Colonel Bingham's inauguration as governor, congress will be in recess for the holidays. It is presumed he would qualify for as United States senator for the seat left vacant by the death of Frank B. Brandegee as early in January as convenient.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATED HOLT BY ACCLAMATION

New Haven, Nov. 25.—Hiram Bingham, republican governor-elect, of Connecticut, or Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, former editor of the New York Independent and nationally known advocate of the league of nations, will be elected United States senator from this state to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee, at the special state-wide election to be held next month.

Mr. Bingham, until recently a professor at Yale and who is now lieutenant governor of Connecticut, was nominated at the republican state convention held in Hartford today. Mr. Holt received the unanimous nomination at the democratic state convention in this city today. The nomination of Mr. Holt was by acclamation.

The roll call was taken at the republican convention and Mr. Bingham, who earlier in the month received the highest number of votes of the electors of Connecticut ever cast for governor, led Congressman John G. Tilson and Congressman Schuyler Merritt by a large margin and had 51 votes more than the necessary number to be nominated. The convention vote follows: Bingham, 340; Tilson 133; Merritt 56; State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, of Hartford, 44; J. aHnry Roraback, chairman, of the republican state central committee, 3.

There was no opposition to Mr. Holt in the democratic convention and his nomination was seconded by several delegates including former National Committeeman Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, former Congressman Augustine M. Lonergan, of Hartford and Congressman F. B. O'Sullivan, of Derby. In a speech accepting the nomination, Mr. Holt said that he had not sought the office and that he "will never seek a nomination for office."

"I enter this campaign beholden to no man," he continued. "No pledge has been asked of me or given. If I am elected a senator of the United States, I promise you in all sincerity never willingly to place the interests of any class or section of our people above the welfare of the whole. I shall be ever ready to unite with good men and women of whatever creed or party to bring about the greatest good of the greatest number. There may be some who have lost heart after our recent defeat. But I enter this contest with courage and confidence, for he who fights the good fight keeps the faith, never fails."

The republican convention has left a situation without precent in the history of Connecticut. The election of Colonel Bingham was one of the very few instances where the lieutenant was promoted to governor. If elected next month he will be one of the very few governors of the state who have afterwards become a United States senator, and he is the only governor-elect who, in case of election on December 16 over Mr. Holt, would step from a governorship to the senatorship without serving much more than in name for the former office.

STATUS OF U. S. AT THE CUSTOMS CONFERENCE

Washington, Nov. 25—It was recalled at the state department today that while the United States was invited to take part in the customs conference at Geneva, it did not actually participate but were merely represented by observers.

While no official staement was forthcoming from department officials regarding their attitude concerning the convention, the impression prevailed today that the document would not be signed by Secretary Hughes and was not likely to receive the approval of the Washington government, at least at this time.

Inazo N. Nitobe, an official of the league, has advised the state department that the customs convention would come into force November 27 as the first stage in what it was hoped would prove an important improvement in international commercial relations.

Mr. Nitrobe's letter, dated October 29, further said the league assembly hoped the economic committee created at Geneva would make further progress in the work of simplifying and improving commercial relations between the various world powers.

The customs convention is one of a number of documents drafted by league agencies which has been forwarded to the state department for its information but have either failed to be approved by the department or by he senate after being transmitted there by Secretary Hughes for ratification or whatever disposition it might decide to make of them.

REWARDED FOR HAVING TURNED STATE'S EVIDENCE

Montreal, Nov. 25—Adam Parillo, one of the men arrested for the holdup of the collection car of the Bank of Hochelaga last April, when the chauffeur, Henri Cleroux, was killed, today received his reward for having turned state's evidence.

He was permitted to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter, rather than first degree murder, the plea was accepted after the Crown Prosecutor, R. L. Calder, told the court that he had arranged in the name of the province to let Parillo plead to the lesser charge as the time of his arrest in Bridgeport, Conn., in return for his testimony against his companions. Parillo's evidence, he said, had aided materially in conviction of three of the four men recently hanged for participation in the robbery and murder. Sentence was deferred.

Earlier in the day, in the same court, a jury deliberated four minutes and acquitted Mary Serafini, widow of one of those hanged at Bordeaux jail for the killing of Cleroux, who had been tried on a murder charge. The same jury also found her not guilty of having received stolen goods, the proceeds of the money car robbery.

MOB BENT ON LYNCHING NEGRO IN NORTH CAROLINA

Godette, who was at liberty pending an appeal to the United States supreme court for a conviction under the prohibition law, is alleged to have driven an automobile into a group of school children at Croatan, twelve miles from here this afternoon, fatally injuring Edna Williams, 12 years of age. He was overtaken and arrested some time later.

Navy Dirigible Los Angeles Christened

Sponsor Was Mrs. Calvin Coolidge — First Cruise Since its Arrival in America

Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 25.—Successfully completing her first flight since the epoch-making trans-Atlantic journey which brought the air monster from Germany, the land of her construction, the newly christened naval dirigible Los Angeles tonight took her place in the big hangar along side the sister ship Shenandoah as an American craft.

The ship was sighted at 7.33 but did not come to earth until 9.12 because of unfavorable winds. At 9.30 the ground crew had hauled the bulk into the hangar.

Commander J. H. Klein, Jr., of the new dirigible, was the first of the passengers on the ground. He said it was a very enjoyable trip and without unusual incident, save for the breaking of a rope during the process of landing the big bulk at Bolling Field, Washington, just previous to the christening ceremonies.

Every effort will be made to interest America's influential business men in development of the dirigible, the chief of the nation's air service declared, adding that he has already made recommendations that at the first opportunity members of the president's cabinet, senators, congressmen and manufacturers be given a ride on the Los Angeles.

MATTERS BEFORE THE ATLANTIC CONFERENCE

Paris, Nov. 25.—The Atlantic conference, composed of representatives of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines, ended today with members continuing to observe much secrecy regarding matters discussed during the past two days.

It was understood, however, that the principal business taken up by the conference was the perfection of plans for the development of traffic to take the place of diminished emigrant business. The secretariat established in Brussels by the steamship companies has been engaged in this work, but without any systematic and intensive program such as is now contemplated.

Means and methods of encouraging overseas excursions, it was said, were discussed in all their phases. Another matter taken up by the conference was the relation of the different lines with central Europe traffic and passenger rates.

FRESH BURST OF ACTIVITY IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 25—(By the A. P.)—The pace of trading in stocks gave signs of slackening today but the market was galvanized into a fresh burst of activity just before the close when U. S. Steel common led a brisk rally in trading industrial and railroad shares. Price averages of both groups eclipsed their previous 1924 high records, with the general average of all stocks going to the highest levels in years. Total sales fell slightly below two million shares.

Fifty new high records were established during the day's trading, which was marked by alternate periods of strength and reaction. Heavy selling of American Can, which followed official denials that a stock dividend was under consideration, at one time caused general liquidation. These reactionary tendencies were overcome, however by the heavy flow of buying orders which poured into the market in the last hour.

ATTITUDE OF FRANCE ON THE OPIUM QUESTION

Geneva, Nov., Nov. 25.—(By the A. P.)—Because of previous laudatory French comment on the American proposals with regard to opium, a detailed question was presented tonight to the international opium conference. It rejects one of the main points of the American plan caused considerable disappointment among the delegates who advocate the American system.

Leon Bourgeois for France opposed any project for setting up an international board to which all countries would be obliged to submit annual estimates of opium and narcotic drug requirements. This project not only is one of the central ideas of the American plan but also of the draft convention which was prepared by the league of nations' permanent advisory commission on opium.

Tanker Ashore on Island Off Bay State

The Trinidadian is Pounding Hard on the Rocks—Forehold Filling With Water.

Boston, Nov. 25—The Tanker Trinidadian was reported to have run aground late today on the rocks of Baker's Island off the Massachusetts Coast, near Salem. The ship was pounding hard and her forehold was filling with water, it was said. The Juno was dispatched from this port tonight to her assistance.

A second tug was ordered made ready at this port, to make the run to Baker's Island. A barge was said to have been sent out from Salem to begin lightering part of the Trinidadian's cargo of oil. The Trinidadian, a 2450 ton steamer, was bound from Port Arthur, Texas, to Beverly, Mass. The tanker was entering Beverly when she went ashore.

The tanker's plates were badly scraped, it was said, and she was taking water tonight. It was not expected that she could be floated before morning and the extent of the damage to the vessel has not been ascertained, owing to the darkness.

The Trinidadian was proceeding in the channel at almost dead low tide at about 5.30 tonight, when the accident occurred. The vessel struck in the darkness on the Salem side of the channel. No one aboard was injured. The weather was calm and the crew was reported safe aboard the vessel.

Two tugs and a barge from Boston were sent for to assist in the work of floating the tanker at high tide early tomorrow morning.

The Trinidadian, displacing 2450 tons had on board a full cargo of oil consigned to the Gulf Refining Company's plant at Beverly. She is under command of Captain Parta.

DETECTED ODOR OF LIQUOR ON THE BREATH OF JUDGE

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Testimony that Judge William E. Baker, of the United States district court in West Virginia bore the odor of liquor on his breath and in the opinion of one witness was under the influence of liquor while on the bench was introduced today at a hearing before a congressional sub-committee which is investigating charges of misconduct filed against Judge Baker. Other testimony touched upon liquor drinking parties, orders for the transfer of confiscated liquor and an alleged change in court records in a criminal case.

The sub-committee of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives is hearing what was termed a "cross-section" of the evidence relied upon by United States District Attorney T. A. Brown to support the charges on which he asks impeachment of Judge Baker, and tomorrow it will hear a portion of Judge Baker's side of the case.

The climax of the day came when Mrs. Marion G. Greer, clerk to the district attorney, declared that during a term of court at Parkersburg, she saw Judge Baker and A. Wade Coffman, clerk of the court, going through the corridor at night "maudlin drunk." On another occasion at Elkins, she testified, she found a boisterous party in the marshal's office and saw Judge Baker sitting on a desk "very boisterous" showing indications of the use of liquor.

Mrs. Greer told also of a case in which the judge raised a question of whether jurisdiction had been shown, and said that she smelled fumes of liquor on his breath when he called her to the bench to read back testimony she had taken as court reporter.

ELECTION CONTESTS IN THE NEXT SENATE

Washington, Nov. 25—The senate of the next congress will be called upon to decide at least three election contests. Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, will be forced to defend his election, Daniel K. Steck, democratic opponent having announced plans for bringing a contest. An unusual situation has developed in this contest, as several republican leaders, including Senator Smoot, of Utah, have announced their intention of supporting Steck. Out of a total of more than 1,000,000 votes, Brookhart was declared winner by approximately 756 ballots. Steck avers he would have won if ballots marked with arrow, placed there by overzealous supporters, had not been thrown out.

Friends of Senator Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota, say he will contest the election of his opponent, Representative Schall, republican. Senator Johnson charges Schall made untrue charges against him during the campaign in violation of Minnesota's corrupt practices act.

BRITISH ARE PREPARED TO DEAL WITH THE EGYPTIANS

An Entire Battalion of British Troops is Being Moved Across the Mediterranean From Malta—Citizens of Cairo Today Will Be Given an Opportunity to See a Whole Brigade of British Infantry March Through Their Streets—Several British Warships Are Proceeding to Egyptian Waters—Population of Cairo is Reported Calm.

London, Nov. 25 (By the A. P.)—All reports from Egypt today agree that the population is quiet and Cairo is calm. If it is the calm before the storm there are innumerable indications that the British are prepared. Several warships flying the Union Jack are proceeding to Egyptian waters and troops are being sent to strategical stations in that country; an entire battalion is being moved across the Mediterranean from Malta.

The Second Dorsetshires have left Suez for Port Sudan; a Scottish borderers battalion is being transferred from Alexandria to Ismailia. In Cairo British troops conduct occasional marches through the streets, and British correspondents report to their readers back home that this is having "a salutary effect upon the temper of the people."

Tomorrow the citizens in Cairo will be given an opportunity to see a whole brigade of British infantry marching through their streets with fixed bayonets.

Lord Allenby, the British high commissioner, it is said, has been given rather wide powers to deal with any sudden emergency and no further instructions are likely to be sent from London until some definite move is made by the new Egyptian government. Premier Ziwar's cabinet met tonight.

British officials connected with foreign military and naval affairs had several conferences today. Those who called on Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, included the secretary for war, the first lord of the admiralty, and the Earl of Cavan, chief of the imperial general staff.

The press of Great Britain is for the most part supporting the government's every demand upon the Egyptians and all action which has been taken into Egypt by the government. Some of the liberal papers appear to be of the opinion that the demands are a bit too strong and suggest that the canon of nations ought to be put to work on the situation. The conservatives' press, however, takes the position that what England is doing in Egypt is nobody's business but her own.

That the press of the world in general is somewhat different mind than the conservative newspapers of England there is ample evidence in long extracts from the foreign editorial pages which are pouring into London by wire and wireless. Whether from Germany, France, Italy, Turkey or the United tSates a majority of the foreign papers quoted in London take the position that Great Britain's demands upon the Egyptians growing out of the sirdar's assassination go further afield than merely securing reparation for that crime and safeguarding against a repetition of such violence.

Parallels between Great Britain's present action in Egypt and Italy's action against Greece last year are drawn by several newspapers. Some of them point out that in the Italian case the British clamored for intervention by the league of nations, while now the idea of submitting the new situation to the league is in Great Britain either received silently or with scoffs.

The Evening Standard, in an editorial bearing the caption "The Foreign View," says of the press criticisms in France and the United States: "America asserts in regard to large parts of the globe a doctrine at least as strong as that for which we have secured recognition in Egypt. We must assert our own affair. This is not a dispute of the kind with which the league of nations is qualified to deal.

"In regard to American criticism that the British government has attempted to capitalize for state purposes a burst of indignation and to use an assassination to do the work of statesmanship, it would be easy, if it were desirable, to resort to the 'tu quoque.'

"The great republic is extremely sensitive concerning all attacks by small powers on its citizens and all assaults on national honor. We should hesitate to suggest that it has ever capitalized an incident of the kind, but * * * the American flag waves in the Philippines because an accident happened in Havana harbor."

The students of Cairo are continuing their strike as a protest against the treatment which is being accorded their country. They held a meeting today and decided to continue the strike, but to hold no demonstrations pending an order from Zaglool.

There was an attempted demonstration at Assiut, upper Egypt, but the governor "rigorously suppressed it."

15 PER CENT. INCREASE MADE IN THE NATIONAL GUARD

Washington, Nov. 25—Through "unwavering zeal of the personnel," the national guard component of the United States army scored a 15 per cent. increase in strength during the 1924 fiscal year, Major General George C. Rickards, chief of the militia bureau, informed Secretary Weeks today in his annual report. The aggregate strength of the guard June 30, 1924, was 176,332 he said, due to recognition of new units by the federal government, the increase therefore being "a legitimate and permanent expansion."

While General Rickards saw no hope that the establishment strength requirement of 250,000 men could be reached during the present year, he was confident that important strides could be made if congress continued its sympathetic support.

During the year there had been a marked decrease in calls made by states upon national guard troops to preserve order or give aid in great disaster, General Rickards reported.

"In each instance, however, when troops have been favorably commented upon, with notable absence of criticism."

Progress made in complying with requirements of federal law looking to the efficiency of guard officers has been rapid, the report stated.

BATTLESHIP WASHINGTON WAS SUNK BY GUNFIRE

Washington, Nov. 25.—The hull of the uncompleted battleship Washington was sent to the bottom today by gunfire from the battleship Texas off the Virginia capes, says a brief official report received at the navy department from Rear Admiral C. F. Hughes, president of the special navy board which conducted various tests against the hull during the week preceding the sinking.

No details as to the nature of the fire directed by the Texas at the Washington's hull was contained in the official report. According to the prearranged schedule of tests, however, use of the 14-inch guns of the battleship Texas against the hull was to be safe to permit observation of the results of high-angle fire against the protective deck of the doomed hull.

Since the program did not call for salvo fire at short range against the broadside armor of the hull, it was assumed in the absence of detailed reports from Admiral Hughes, that the plunging fire from long range against the decks of the Washington had proved effective and sent her to the bottom.

HELD ON CHARGE OF SUSPICION OF HOMICIDE

New York, Nov. 25.—Charles Christiansen, 37, and James Haggerty, 34, today were held without bail on affidavits charging suspicion of homicide for the killing last night of Dr. Melville Hays in an attempted drug store holdup.

A third suspect, Edward McCarthy, 22, was in Flower hospital with a bullet in his chest and could not be arraigned. The police said, however, that two men who witnessed the robbers' foray have identified the wounded man and Christiansen as two of the trio. Haggerty was said to have presented an alibi which the police are investigating.

GOMPERS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF A. F. OF L.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 25.—(By The A. P.)—Samuel Gompers, completing sixty-three years of service in the American labor movement, today was unanimously re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor, a post he has held every year but one since the organization of the federation in 1881.

Closing in his seventy-fourth year the forty-fourth annual convention of the organization, which the daring flights of his boyhood imagination conceived more than a decade before the federation came into being, Mr. Gompers, militant, erect, looking to the future, dedicated himself anew to the prosecution of his work.

"I have but one ambition," he said to the convention. "I want only to be of service in whatever way I can to the progress and advancement of the American labor movement."

He paused an instant, and when he resumed, he spoke not as the "Grand Old Man of Labor," but as the vigorous, fighting leader of the American Federation of Labor, again ready for the fray.

"There is just this one thing that I want to impress upon this convention before we adjourn," he said, "and through you I hope to impress it upon all who work with us in the American movement.

"Come what may in industry, American wage earners will resist to the end any effort to reduce wages.

"The attitude of the American Federation of Labor is that any industry which will not support its workers on the level of American standards of life had best get out of the business."

He paused again.

"In accordance with the vote of the delegates, I now declare the forty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor adjourned sine die."

Re-elected with Mr. Gompers were eight vice presidents, the secretary and treasurer all unanimously.

Secretary Frank Morrison, will begin his twenty-eighth year in the office next month.

Vice presidents named in the order of their rank are:

James Duncan, Frank Duffy, William Green, T. A. Rickart, Jacob Fisher, Matthew Woll, Martin F. Ryan, and James Wilson. Daniel J. Tobin continues in the treasurship.

Office Hours: 8:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Two of the three cases assigned for the session of superior court here on Tuesday, that of the James L. Stice Handle company of Fayetteville, Ark., vs. the Windham Handle company of Willimantic, the individual defendant being William F. Maine. The allegations of the plaintiffs in the case, which has been on the docket for a long time, are that May 25, 1920, the defendants contracted with them for 500 dozen of 28-inch boys' size axe handles of five different grades, ranging from $3.55 to $2.70 a dozen. It was agreed that the handles were to be shipped at certain intervals and paid for on receipt of same. The plaintiffs claim that when the action was brought, in June, 1922, the bill for the whole was $1,856.10 and that but $672.30 had been paid, leaving a balance of $683.80.

The defendant claimed that he refused the shipments of handles because the material of the handles was poor, and they remained at the railroad station and were never delivered for that reason. The settlement came about after a conference between Attorney Harvey for the plaintiffs and Attorney Foss for the defendants.

The second case adjusted out of court was that of Charles L. Lewis of this city against Louis H. Maples of Norwich. At the time the action was brought against Maples in the late fall of 1923 the latter was in business in this city under the firm name of the Willimantic Paige company. Plaintiff claimed that Oct. 20, 1923, defendant had sold to him an automobile for $2,022, which was arranged for by exchanging a second hand car equivalent to the sum of $894, leaving the defendant to pay the balance of $1,128 in promissory notes. Lewis alleged that he was led to undrestand that the car he had purchased was in good condition and that it was one of the 1924 models. Misrepresentation in both instances was alleged and the defendant sought to have the deal dissolved and the contract set aside. The defendant held that he was carrying out the terms of the contract and sale. Attorney Harvey appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney John H. Barnes of Norwich for the defendant.

The case of Abraham Gluskin of this city vs. Mike Postemski of Mansfield for damages of $250 over an alleged commission on a farm sold by Postemski on which the plaintiff said that $215 was due him, was the only case to come before the court. The case was taken up shortly after the opening of the session with the plaintiff, Gluskin, on the stand. He had had a farm in his care owned by Max and Lena Usoherenko of North Franklin and attempted to induce several local people, including Fred Chuba and Leon Dubina, to buy it. Postemski came to him one day and said that he was looking for a farm. The conversation at that time was heard by Mrs. Celia Chason and the plaintiff's wife and his son, Reuben Gluskin. Hearing of a prospective customer for the farm, Reuben Gluskin called on the man to start preliminary dealings.

Shortly after that Postemski and his brother Adam informed the Gluskins that they had sold the farm to Rose Rawakin and when the plaintiff tried to collect a part of the commission, to which he claimed he was entitled, from Postemski, it was refused him. Mike Postemski said that he had talked to Guskin once or twice about farms, but that he alone had brought about the sale of the farm in North Franklin and he knew of no agreement whereby he was to pay Gluskin any commission. Adam Postemski said that besides operating a farm on Bricktop Hill he dabbled in real estate. He denied having had any kind of talk with Gluskin. Of the commission of $450 received through the sale of the farm he kept two-thirds and gave his brother Mike one-third.

The buyer of the farm, Rose Rawakin, testified to the dealings she had had with the Postemskis regarding the purchase of the farm. This concluded the hearing of the evidence and following short rebuttals, the case was declared closed at 3.20 and Judge Maltbie announced that he would reserve his decision.

There was a nearly 100 per cent. attendance of members at the weekly luncheon and meeting of Willimantic Rotary club held Tuesday noon, with one-half of the club reaching out for victory ovre the other half in an attendance contest which is now well under way and promises to close with a low score for the victors in January. The spirit of Thanksgiving was brought forcibly to the minds of the Rotarians in an excellent talk on that subject by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The timely address was an expression of condemnation of formality and custom in the observance of the holiday, warning against an artificial Thanksgiving with thoughts alone for feasting nad vacation and no real gratitude for the great benefits which time, thought and energy have given us. Rev. Mr. Muirhead also suggested a beautiful thought when he advised the development of cheerfulness not only on Thanksgiving day but 365 days a year. Besides the speaker the only guest of the club was W. J. Keeney, who accompanied Charles W. Alpaugh. Dr. George F. Taylor had been scheduled to give an account of his recent European trip, but due to another engagement could not be present. Song Leader John Ahern marshaled a squad of vocalists, Henry Congdon, Harry Standish, Ray Parker, Ellison Smith, Jim Mustard, John Picket, Doc Riordan and Jim Bath, who waded through popular ditties in suffocating harmony. Doc Jones was at the piano. A scrub team assisted in the singing. A report on the proposed city entrance signs was made by Gus Greene, who displayed tentative models. Jim Bath was in charge of the entertainment for the day. Further contributions were made to cover the expense of sending substitute players to witness the Windham-Drury High football game in North Adams, Mass., Saturday.

Under the direction of Professor H. A. Beckerson, of Connecticut Agricultural College, the State Players will open their dramatic season in South Coventry with the presentation of Sir William S. Gilbert's three-act comedy, Pygmalion and Galatea. The play will be given under the auspices of the social committee of the missionary society of the Congregational church. The State Players, who are combined with the college dramatic club, are an interesting manifestation of the development of the strolling players of early England into the rapidly-growing Little Theatre movement in America today. Perhaps the only thing to which they can be conveniently likened is the Jitney Players from Washington Square, whose outdoor performances in some of the larger Connecticut towns are being welcomed with increasing delight from summer to summer. The State Players have a repertoire of several one-act plays as well as one that fills a full evening. Next week they will appear in Andover Dramatic club, and in Hebron where they will appear under the auspices of St. Peter's school. Four new members will appear in the cast for the first time—Madeline Wheeler, Rudolph Billipp, Carl Ajello and Joseph Connor.

A pageant in five acts, The First Thanksgiving, was given Tuesday afternoon in the kindergarten of the Natchaug school by the children of Grade 6A under the direction of the teacher, Mrs. Susan Sullivan. About fifty parents were present, also the pupils from Grades 6B, 5A, B. and C, and 7B. Principal James A. Harroun explained that the pageant was a project costumed, arranged and managed by the children themselves. "Project teaching" said Mr. Harroun, is an effort to get all the branches of study to center about one enterprise in which the children are interested." During the last two weeks the children's history and geography have been in connection with England, Holland and Cape Cod, and the significance to history of the lives of the Pilgrims. Their costumes they made themselves in domestic science classes—buckled hats and demure white bonnets, and elaborate dyed-feather Indian headdresses. For language and spelling they wrote letters and stories of Captain Myles Standish, Governor Bradford and the customs of the Indians. Invitations to their parents were cut pasted and written in drawing and penmanship periods. Such things as the amount and cost of materials for costumes and the number of chairs needed to accommodate the parents were figured for arithmetic.

The pageant was introduced by the reading of an essay on the first Thanksgiving by a member of the class in Pilgrim costume. Act one, The Secret Meetings in Scrooby, England, consisted of two-part singing of a hymn and the recitation of a Psalm by children representing the persecuted fathers, before their departure to Holland. Act II—"A Farewell to Holland was a tableau. Act III, recitation in chorus of Felicia Hemans' "Landing of the Pilgrims"; Act IV, "The First Thanksgiving" in this country; Act V, "The Peace Treaty With Massasoit." The children showed an excellent response to their practical training.

The experts on the car are coming here with the slogan, "Attendance at these meetings may be the means of saving a life—perhaps your own," and it is expected that all who possibly can will witness the demonstration.

FINDS FOR PUTNAM POLICE IN MRS. LEA SMITH'S SUIT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Nov. 25—Judge Maltbie found for the defendants in giving his decision case of Mrs. Leo Smith of Putnam, vs. Captain William J. Jarvis, chief of the Putnam police department and other officers of the department, a damage suit of $10,000 brought on the charge of false imprisonment on April 5, 1924 at the Putnam police station. The case was heard in the September term of the Windham county superior court by Judge Maltbie who filed his memorandum of decision with the clerk of the court Tuesday at the session of court in this city.

April 5, 1924 search warrants were placed in the hands of Captain Jarvis and his officers to search an automobile owned by Samuel Smith, proprietor of the City Hotel, Putnam, as well as the hotel building, for liquor. Captain Jarvis and Lieutenant George Baird boarded an automobile and on the highway leading to Providence near the Windham County Home they encountered the Smith car driven by a daughter of the plaintiff, Cecelia Smith, at a fast rate of speed. In the car were Mr. Lea Smith and two other women. Miss Smith was placed under arrest for reckless driving and the entire party was escorted to the police station in Putnam and detained at the headquarters, being given every privilege but to use the telephone or send any messages to the hotel. During this detention a raid was made at the City Hotel and when liquor was found as evidence a man named Tulley was arrested as responsible. The women were then released. Mrs. Smith later brought suit for false imprisonment. Attorneys Torrey and Miron of Putnam represented the plaintiff and Attorneys King of this city and Carpenter of Putnam appeared for the defendants. In giving his decision Judge Maltbie pointed out that an officer or officers must have the right to exercise temporary restraint over the act of one who might interfere with the service of process. It was also evident that there were no acts of cruelty on the part of the officers and in no way did the plaintiff become harmed physically or otherwise nor did any of the other members of the party. The officers were justified in making a reasonable restraint of the plaintiff to prevent her from giving warning to her husband of the possibility of service and thereby frustrate the purpose of the process in the hands of the officers. The position of Mrs. Smith while being detained was undoubtedly an embarrassing one according to memorandum and one which might cause nervousness, but the circumstances of the raid on the Hotel were alone enough to cause concern and worry.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Edgar White was fined $10 and costs by Deputy Judge E. K. Taft in the borough court, Tuesday morning, for violating the parking laws on Main St. The limit is 40 minutes and White allowed his car to stand in one place for two hours. Upon explaining to the court that he had gone to a barber-shop to get a shave and that there were four or five ahead of him, consequently he allowed the car to remain on the street longer than the borough ordinance allows. Judge Taft remitted $9.00 of the fine.

Frank Siegfried of Rockville pleaded guilty to the charge of failing to give right of way and paid a fine of $5 and costs amounting in all to $16.87. Siegfried's car collided with a car driven by Charles Ciscon of Stafford Hollow, Tuesday night. The damage to the cars was slight and there were no personal injuries. The arrest was made by State Policeman Heinold.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

D. W. Griffith's America at the Breed

It is unfortunate from the historian's point of view that artists and writers choose the spectacular rather than the important events and incidents of a war as the subjects for their paintings and their writings. For it very frequently happens that the really important events of a great war, like those of human life in general, lack that spectacular quality which inspires the artist and the writer, and hence, being neglected, gradually pass from the ken of men. Oftimes, too, events both important and spectacular have been overshadowed by events which might be termed "super-spectacular" and so have passed from memory.

So it probably is that one of the most important campaigns of the War of American Independence, having failed hitherto to attract the chroniclers, has been well nigh forgotten. It has remained for David Wark Griffith, creating his America, the titantic romance of the Revolution, now at the Breed theater to bring from oblivion the great struggle to save the grain fields of the North Country, and to place it where it belongs—among the decisive struggles of the history of the United States.

Confronted with the gigantic task of bringing the high points of the Revolution within the two and one-half hours' space allotted, Griffith, with the advice of leading historians, chose to depict the story of the war in northern New York and western Pennsylvania, rather than the better known, but comparatively unimportant battles and incidents which artists and writers have made famous.

Broadway Theater

The only place to top off that Thanksgiving dinner and make it a perfect holiday is by seeing the perfect show that opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow.

Cuby and Smith in An Unusual Surprise; Jack Shiney, The Jack of Spades; Alice Thornton and Gil Squiers present In the Swim; Cleveland and Dowrey in a satire on Present Day Conditions; Rose and Dell in Sparkling bits of Versatility. It is enough to say that the above acts represent the cream of the vaudeville field.

A young girl lost in the underworld of a big city owes to many dangers among thieves and men of brutal passion, rises out of the mire clean and wholesome, and escapes the doom that awaits many who make a fatal move.

This is the theme presented in The Foolish Virgin, which comes to the Broadway theater Thursday. It is a story full of thrills, clashes of passion and emotion, and finally the resultant happiness that comes after a bitter struggle.

Broadway Theater

After Monsieur Beaucaire, Rudolph Valentino's role in his latest Paramount picture, A Sainted Devil, coming to the Broadway theater, is a decided change and brings the popular star to the screen in that type of a role which made him famous in Blood and Sand and the others.

A Sainted Devil is a fine romantic tale of South America, an adaptation of Rex Beach's story, Rope's End.

Lyceum Theatre, New London.

An event of rare importance in the theatrical programme of the current season in New London is scheduled for the Lyceum theatre at New London on the coming Saturday, Nov. 29, at both a matinee and evening performance, Arthur Hopkins will present a comedy, Close Harmony, written by Dorothy Parker and Elmer Rice. From New London Close Harmony will go directly to New York, where on Monday night, Dec. 1, it will commence its Broadway engagement at the Gayety theatre. Arthur Hopkins stands foremost among America's dramatic producers. Witness Mr. Hopkins' offering in New York that most discussed of all recent dramas, What Price Glory, not to forget John Barrymore's Hamlet, Ethel Barrymore's The Secard, Mrs. Tanqueray, The Jest, The Deluge, The Old Soak, The Hairy Ape and Anna Christie.

The following review of Close Harmony is taken from the Evening Journal of Wilmington, Delaware, where Mr. Hopkins first produced this comedy:

It is the story of the Graham family and of a Mrs. Sheridan, a good woman with a little bad in her, like most of us have. The scene of the first act is the home of the Grahams, in a middle class New York suburb. Harriet Graham, the wife, and the visiting sister-in-law show just what sort of hell a man can let himself in for when he loses his grip on his particular rein in a family and when he gets to the point to taking the gaff whenever it is delivered.

Then there is the parallel story of the Sheridan family, an entirely different story of incompatability.

Of course there is a Graham-Sheridan communion of sympathy and this, in the second act of the play brings the work of the authors and the players to heights of achievement.

In the second act Mrs. Sheridan, played superbly by Wanda Lyon, and Mr. Graham, played by James Spottswood in a masterly manner, get together over some very fine highballs, some music and finally some toddling. "Daddy" is smitten and the pair, disgusted with their home life, decide to go away together and begin life anew.

What finally happens is for the play to tell.

Seats for the New London performances of Close Harmony will be on sale Thursday.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In line with wage reductions announced by other cotton textile concerns in this territory, the Goodyear Mills, Inc., at Goodyear, will reduce wages generally throughout the plant. The cut will be on the basis of 10 per cent., it was stated Tuesday, and will be effective from Monday, November 24th. The Goodyear mills is operating on a full time schedule and has been for months past. The concern is engaged in the manufacture of tire fabric for the parent plant, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio.

It was forecasted in this column last Saturday morning that other cotton mills would make a downward readjustment in wages, in line with such adjustments made by the Quinebaug and Wauregan companies and the Grosvenordale company, to mention a few concerns in this section, of many in New England, that have changed the wage scale within the past few weeks.

At the Connecticut Mills, Tuesday afternoon, it was stated that no announcement of reduction in wages has been posted there as yet, but as the readjustment in wages in cotton textile plants in this section is general that concern likely would have an announcement to make in the near future.

In making the reductions the manufacturers state that they are seeking to stabilize their industries, so as to permit of full-time production for an indefinite period. They are in hope that the plants may continue to operate steadily and that a ready market will be found for the materials produced.

Upwards of 1,500 cotton mill operatives in Killingly will have been affected by the reduction by the end of the present week.

The operatives, as a whole, have taken the matter philosophically. Their hope in that the forecasts for steady work will be realized and that the plants will be constantly busy during the cold weather period of the year.

A worried old gobbler, figuring on his chances of surviving the morrow, said yesterday that it had been handed down in his family for a matter of 300 years that a turkey never did have much of a chance around Thanksgiving time. "But it's many a day since one of our kind was shot wild in this territory," he said. All of this was apropos of how many years have elapsed since it was possible to go out into the surrounding woodland of the town of Killingly and shoot a wild turkey. Not within a century, in all probability, and probably a much longer time. Something over 300 years have elapsed since the Pilgrim fathers began popping the birds for the holiday feast. It appears that the Indians hunted the great bird that cooked to such a savory feast, (also, and that with the growth of population wild turkeys began to be scarce and finally disappeared from all the territory hereabouts, although domesticated birds had taken their place.

Each year one hears speculation as to how many years have slipped away since a turkey feast was to be had for going out into the woods and shooting a giant bird. No one seems able to answer the question accurately, in this territory. It is of the same class of mysteries that pertain to the age of Ann and sundry other such things.

While this information about wild turkeys is not available, there is in Danielson a man who recalls hearing his grandfather tell of getting salmon out of the Quinebaug river in the spring, just below where the Quinebaug company dam is now. Plenty of salmon were to be had there in those days—days before th ariver between this place and New London had been spanned by dams and other devices that marked the coming of the industrial age. No wild turkeys nor river salmon, home caught, in 1924 But there are compensations, almost anyone will admit.

This week Friday the Service Battery basketball season opens, with Willimantic as opponents.

The Battery expects to have an exceedingly strong team this year and hope to annex the championship of the Connecticut National Guard again. Out of last year's championship team "Pop" Williams, star guard, was lost due to his attending Storrs college. This loss will be keenly felt. At present his place is being filled by B. Godreau, a very powerful player. The Battery is very fortunate in having the Eaton Brothers, former Plainfield High School stars, to strengthen the team.

Mr. Littleworth of the High School Faculty, a Storrs graduate, is coaching the team this year and excellent progress has been made.

Lieutenant Gordon J. Gale, director of athletics is serving as manager and Chief Mechanic A. Poirier is assistant manager.

At the next meeting of Killingly grange, December 1, members admitted during the year will furnish the programme of the evening.

In view of the fact that a majority of the stores of Danielson will be closed Thanksgiving Day, business men look for a busy Wednesday this week.

Work continues on the trunk line highway improvement through the town of Plainfield. The torn up condition of the highway daleys traffic, but the benefits to come are so great that few will mind this.

This Thanksgiving eve will be a great time for dances all through this territory. A number of such events are open to the choice of all interested.

In the interest of the church building fund of the Congregational society at Wauregan, some special events have been arranged for the very early days of December.

Judge and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill will leave this (Wednesday) morning to spend the period until Saturday evening with relatives at Dover, N. H.

Mrs. Louis Peloquin of 33 Winter street has returned from St. Vincent's hospital at Worcester, where she recently underwent a serious surgical operation. Mrs. Peloquin is making good progress toward recovery.

A diversion for the morning hours Thanksgiving day will be the Killingly High-Putnam High School football game to be played on the Quinebaug grounds. This will be the closing game of the season.

Removal of the small frame structures which are to be replaced by the new Longo block on Main street was begun Tuesday morning. With these buildings out of the way excavations for the cellar of the new building will be undertaken.

Red Cross workers are continuing their roll call drive, seeing those who it has been difficult to see in the earlier stages of the work.

An Alumni association social at Killingly High School this evening will bring together many of the former members of the school.

Miss Anna Aylward of New York will come here at the week end to be the guest of relatives on Academy street.

Turkeys came to the local market in numbers Tuesday and, likewise, went away as purchases in the hands of the retail trade against the coming of the holiday.

A whist party given Tuesday evening in the interest of St. James parish by the St. Anne society attracted a large attendance.

Thanksgiving greeting cards are coming through the mails in large numbers, not approximating the Christmas flow of such mail, but in greater volume than in other years.

Mrs. Walter Linderman, of Putnam, was a week end visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert House.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Greeley, Mrs. Cathleen O'Neil and daughter Virginnie, Joel Perrey and Jack Neversin were in Providence Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Manzo.

Miss Elsie House of Newburyport, Mass., is visiting her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Herbert House of Spring street for a few weeks.

Mrs. A. L. Dawley visited friends in Central Village Sunday.

HERMAN M. COULTER GOING TO NEW BEDFORD MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Nov. 25—Assistant Treasurer Herman M. Coulter of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town, has been proferred the assistant treasurship of the Fassiao mills of New Bedford, recently jointly purchased by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and the Fiske Rubbar company, two of the great motor tire manufacturing corporation of the world.

The New Bedford mill property referred to is to be newly incorporated and renamed. While Mr. Coulter had not definitely decided Tuesday night as to accepting the additional appointment, it was believed probable that he would do so.

Should he accept, Mr. Coulter will make his headquarters in New Bedford, coming here as occasion warrants to keep in touch with the interests of the Goodyear Mills.

Killingly will regret the prospect of losing Mr. Coulter as a resident. He has been in this town six years, coming here at Christmas time in 1918, shortly after his discharge from the United States army service following the signing of the armistice. Prior to his army service he had been with the Goodyear Tire company in important capacities for a period of years.

Mr. Coulter has contributed much to the success of the Goodyear plant in this town. He is essentially expert in the financing affairs of the great corporation he represents, but has a thorough understanding of the mechanical and manufacturing sides of the business of tire fabric production. A special outstanding tribute to his abilities may be found in the fact that he is one of the few executives of the old Goodyear organization that remained after the drastic reorganization of the great organization and wholesale changing of executive heads in 1920. Mr. Coulter stayed on the strength of the excellent record he had made and has since constantly built upon. That he has been offered the advancement that the assistant treasurership at New Bedford would bring to him in addition to his duties here, is a sterling tribute to his value as a mill executive.

During his residence here Mr. Coulter has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Danielson Trust company and as a member of the board of trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank.

PUTNAM

Four members of Putnam's police force, Captain William Jarvis, Sergt. George Laird and Patrolmen Ryan and Stoncey, who were sued by Mrs. Celia Smith for $2,000 damages, for alleged false arrest, were gratified to learn Tuesday that Judge Maltbie of the superior court and rendered a decision in their favor. The case was tried October 14 and briefs were submitted to the court by the attorneys.

At a meeting Monday afternoon of the committees on Putnam's Come Back celebration, to be held Dec. 5th and 6th, Fred M. Prince, chairman of the committee on manufactured exhibits, reported that 21 firms had agreed to make an exhibit of their products in the state armory. These, with the radio dealers, who are to put on a radio show at the same time, will take up all the floor space of the big building.

The manufacturers have been allotted booths around the four sides of the hall and the radio exhibit will be in the center. The list of exhibitors follows:

Manufacturers — Putnam Foundry and Machine Co., Powdrell and Alexander, textiles; The Grosvenordale Co., textiles; Otto Heineman Mfg. Co., phonograph needles; Waterman Worsted Co.; Putnam Woolen Co; Putnam Box Shop Corp; Marcy Tool Co.; Beechmont Worsted Co.; Lawrence Keegan Co., textiles; Putnam Mfg. Co., textiles; National Rhea Mfg. Co., textiles; Wheaton Building & Lumber Co.; F. A. Maryott Co., belting; C. S. Andem, florist; Reynolds Suit Case Mfg. Co., Putnam State Trade School; O. Hermanson, florist; Lesber Fur Garments Mfg. Co., L. P. Faucher, baker.

The armory will be elaborately decorated and an orchestra will give a concert Friday and Saturday afternoons and Saturday night.

Attorney J. F. Carpenter, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is much improved and is believed to be out of danger.

Joseph Plessis, collector of personal taxes for the town of Putnam, is still at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, under observation.

Mrs. H. A. Houghton and daughter, Miss Madelyn, Mrs. Alice Doughty and Miss Alice Perry motored to Worcester Monday evening.

It was reported at the Day-Kimball hospital Tuesday that the three patients operated on for appendicitis Monday were all doing well. They are Freeman Marrotte, of Brooklyn, Rosa Gnoza, of Thompson and Omar Morin, of Danielson.

Friends here have received the announcement of the engagement of Miss Myrtle Edna Hawkins to Raymond Bates. Miss Hawkins is a resident of Willimantic and is a student at Gordon college of theology and missions. Mr. Bates is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Bates, of Pomfret Center, and is a senior at Newton Theological Institute, Newton Center, Mass.

There is more than ordinary local interest in the announcement that Oliver Wing, treasurer of the Grafton Mass., Savings Bank, was found on the floor of his garage Monday, unconscious from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head. He is 65.

A goose that was the central figure of the front cover of last week's issue of a popular periodical is said to resemble one that lost its life at Warrenville, last Thursday, when it got in the way of a fast traveling automobile. Several members of the Arcanum club could give full details of the goose's demise.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Miron returned Monday from a visit to relatives at Milbury, Mass.

Captain of Police Jarvis is authority for the statement that nearly all of the "drunks" that are appearing in city court owe their condition to denatured alcohol, slightly adulterated, or to some form of synthetic spirits of wine. According to the story of an erstwhile Putnam citizen, now in Brooklyn jail, he heated a well known household extract and strained the solution through a thin piece of chamois. As proof of the "kick" he alluded to the fact that he was almost unconscious when brought into the police station.

An easy way of distinguishing those from Putnam who attended the Yale-Harvard game was by the new raincoats that they wore Monday. A. Newton Vaughn, Jacob Alpert and J. E. Farrell, the last named assistant to Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National Bank, were among those "whose apparel marked the man." Mr. Coffin was also at the game, but his home is in New Haven and he is so accustomed to encountering rain in the Yale bowl that he was prepared beforehand.

Jake Alpert declared that the downpour made the game more enjoyable, that it dispelled the veneering of "swank" which has become too prevalent of late years at Yale and brought the crowd back to a democratic level. On the trains coming home the men removed their shoes and emptied them of water and then took off their stockings and hung them on the steam heating pipes. After a slight hesitation the women aboard followed their example. For the first hour of the homeward journey the passengers, as far as feet covering was concerned, resembled a crowd at a bathing beach.

The patients at Day Kimball hospital will have a generous supply of turkey for Thanksgiving. W. F. Rafferty followed his annual custom of contributing the largest one he could find, and Pomfret school did the same.

Although the time was limited, because of the ban on hunting proclaimed by Governor Templeton, due to drouth, a large number of local and out-of-town sportsmen took advantage of the few days that remained. Mrs. Allen Kenyon of Woodstock had her house full of guests and the men of the party had their guns. Among them were Messrs. Jelliff, Schelbel and Robbins of Bridgeport. Mr. and Mrs. Weiant of New Britain, and William Rawson, of New Haven.

Mrs. Herman Fersenheim has been at Framingham, Mass., called there by the death of her mother, Mrs. Horner. A week ago while descending the stairs at her home Mrs. Horner slipped on the ton step and fell to the bottom, sustaining injuries that proved fatal.

More than fifty Putnam business men attended a supper Monday evening and afterwards listened to a talk by J. S. Greenwald, of Boston, on why the people of Putnam and vicinity should trade in Putnam. The affair was under the auspices of the chamber of commerce and the president, Alex. Gilman, was toastmaster.

Mr. Greenwalt has had a long and successful experience in the work of inspiring self-help and civic pride in communities like this. He advised his hearers to forget the misfortunes of the past few months and look only to the future. He emphasized the fact that the mills and factories are all here, that with one exception they are all running and increasing their output, which means taking on more help, and that banking facilities have been restored through the optimism and efforts of local citizens.

"A community that could accomplish what has been done here," he said, "after all the hard luck and business disasters of the past few months, ought not to be discouraged at anything."

He bore down on the economic importance of trading at home and especially at this time, when, as far as possible, every dollar is required in circulation to meet current needs as well as the liabilities that have been incurred because of the abnormal conditions of the past half-year. This, he said, can only be done by organized effort.

After the supper and talk, Mr. Greenwalt met with the committee on Putnam's Come-Back celebration and gave them some helpful suggestions in the carrying out of their program.

PLAINFIELD

MANSFIELD CENTER

A miscellaneous shower fell last Wednesday evening at the parsonage upon Miss Mildred Davoll who is to be united in marriage at the Mansfield Center church Saturday of this week with Myron Green, of Eagleville. A large lavendar parasol was suspended over the dining table at the parsonage. White streamers fell from the parasol and underneath were many gifts of all descriptions. After the unwrapping of the gifts the evening was spent with music and a lunch served under the direction of the hostess, Rev. Mrs. Jones.

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyocena, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."—Mrs. IDA GEBRITZ, Wyocena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after childbirth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after childbirth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

BUDGET OF $169,755 APPROVED BY COUNCIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Nov. 25—At a special meeting of the common council Tuesday evening at 8.10 o'clock the business of the fiscal year was closed, the report of Acting Mayor George W. Hickey and the budget for the ensuing year were approved. The Chief Executive's report was lengthy and in practically all of the departments showed that out of the appropriations made in the budget for the previous year, amounts ranging from 18 cents to nearly $3,000 had not been expended. Special emphasis was laid on the need of reconstructing West Main St., purchasing a new road roller and securing a contract with the Rockville Willimantic lighting company for the city lighting system. Mention was made of the remarkable increase in the applications for sidewalk construction and the appropriation for that work was increased for the coming year. Acting Mayor Hickey, who as president of the board of aldermen, succeeded the late Mayor Hornisdas Dion, expressed appreciation of the cooperation of the board, Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley, City Clerk J. Schley Donohue and the officers of the various departments in making the first year of his administration a successful one.

The total of the budget for the ensuing year was $169,755 practically the same as that for last year, making exception for a special appropriation of approximately $18,000 to rebuild the burned down ice houses, thus bringing the total of last year's estimated expenses to $186,247.61. The report of the acting mayor, the budget and a supplementary report read by the city clerk were voted approved on motion of Alderman Larramee. Adjournment was taken at 8.45 o'clock.

Following is the budget of the city's expenses for 1925: Fire department $25,000; police dept., $18,000; street trap rock and road roller $28,000; lighting streets, $13,000; library, $2,500; fire alarm, $1,000; interest, $9,500; contingent, $8,000; trimming trees and oiling streets, $8,500; rents, $505; plumbing inspector, $300; maintaining sewers $3,000; collecting taxes, $1,200; new streets, $3,000; foot bridge, $1,000; garbage collection, $4,000; city yard $350; police court $500; printing and advertising $500; sidewalks and gutters $20,000; ice $3,500; parks $100; election $2,500; removal snow and ice $8,000; construction of sewers, $2,000; engineer department, $5,000; maintenance of ice houses (a new item) $500; police pension fund $2,000; fire house extra, unexpended $3,000. Total $169,755.

The parade to mark the opening of St. Mary's choir boys novelty bazaar a full platoon of the city's handsome and efficient policemen is to head the first division.

BINGHAM FOR THE SENATE.

On the fourth of November the voters of the state declared by an overwhelming majority that they wanted Hiram Bingham, of New Haven and Salem, as the next governor of the state. It was a most praiseworthy choice. He is equipped in every way to make an admirable chief executive and the people of this commonwealth had looked forward with interest to his administration.

Three weeks to a day later, because of conditions which had developed as the result of the death of Senator Brandegee and which could not be dealt with at the recent election, the representatives of that same overwhelming majority have expressed their desire for Hiram Bingham as their junior representative in the United States senate. This is, to say the least, an unusual situation, but it reflects the excellent impression which has been made by the lieutenant governor and it shows that he is considered to possess the required qualifications for filling the responsible position and giving to Connecticut and the country the service that is expected.

The convention unquestionably speaks for Connecticut for, even though there were many who believed that Congressmen Tilson or Merritt were thoroughly qualified for the position and perhaps entitled to it because of their experience at Washington, the governor-elect can be relied upon to stand firmly in behalf of the best interests of the state, stand loyal to the administration and stand squarely for national welfare, and while upholding the traditions of the state to give assurance to our neighboring commonwealths that a most worthy successor for the late Senator Brandegee has been picked.

When Lieutenant Governor Bingham spoke in the national republican convention in behalf of Calvin Coolidge he called attention to the fact that he spoke as a farmer. He will do the same thing as a candidate for the senate and in the event of his election Connecticut will have the assurance that the president will have no more loyal supporter in the upper house of congress. That is a most important fact to take into consideration these days.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Until some disposition has been made of it, it can be expected that the problem created by Muscle Shoals will afford something for congress to wrestle with whether there is sufficient other business or not.

By the withdrawal of the Henry Ford offer there is eliminated one angle of the controversy, unless by chance he should desire to make another. He unquestionably had a considerable following because there was faith in his ability to do things. That view even overshadowed the quite important consideration of seeing that the government received what it is entitled to for such a plant, in the construction of which millions and millions have been spent.

Till some definite plan of dealing with Muscle Shoals is developed the idea has been advanced of having the government operate the power plant and dispose of the electrical energy. This of course means government operation and government operation is quite as costly in such a connection as has been the outlay in the building of the plant. As a means to an end, or an effort to prevent waste through idleness such an idea might be tolerated until some decision could be reached, but the country's experience with government operation is adequate to demonstrate that the quicker it can be placed in private hands the better it will be for the government and the better will be the results obtained.

Muscle Shoals cannot be kept on the shelf indefinitely. It was the desire of the president that a commission of experts should determine the best course to pursue in disposing of it. It doesn't seem to be a bad idea at all. It was evident before that there were offers which presented a mass of complications. They may have been built up after, and for the purpose of beating the Ford offer, but it is unquestionably a task for experts to handle. It is not the place for politics to be the guiding influence, but when action is taken there should be good and sufficient reason for it.

PENN'S CHARTER.

Many are the instances where a valuable piece of property, a desirable relic or a much prized antique is brought to attention through a sale only to have a general cry raised because it has changed hands and the new owner is to make great changes or to take it out of the place where it really belongs.

That situation prevails at the present time in Pennsylvania. William Penn gave the historic Charter of Liberties to the Pennsylvania colony back in 1682. Because there is no other it might be rated as priceless. Certainly it is most valuable from an historical standpoint, and what seems most surprising is that it should have been put up at auction a few days ago and struck down to an out of the state bidder without a frantic effort on the part of the historically inclined of that state making a desperate effort to prevent it.

After it had gone then Pennsylvanians woke up. There was no difficulty in creating an interest in regaining this document. Distress was expressed that it was permitted to go on the auction block, and even more that Pennsylvania made no determined effort to retain it. Only a little reflection was necessary to convince the lovers of such historical documents that it should be immediately reclaimed. Of course the purchaser appreciated the situation. He is willing, and now the subscription list is open for the people to buy it, and place it where it where it deserves to be, among the outstanding historical relics of that commonwealth.

It cannot exactly be said that Pennsylvania has woke up too late, for it will unquestionably recover the old charter, but someone must have been nodding when such a treasure was permitted to go under the hammer and to someone in another state, whose interest in what Pennsylvania possessed seemed to have been greater than that of its own people.

SWINDLES.

The claim has been repeatedly emphasized that it is possible to find a purchaser for anything in New York. That might be considered the place where the gullible are not likely to congregate, but experience would seem to indicate otherwise.

It is known of course that the city hall of New York has been sold time and again to those with a small amount of cash looking for big bargains, and there are those who have bought Brooklyn bridge and other imposing public structures of the great city.

The latest swindle was staged out at Mineola where a fellow dropped into a place of business carrying a sack of what he called gold nuggets. His story was swallowed. Credence was given to his claim of being a gold miner and it was not long before he had disposed of his goods for $2,000. The nuggets made such an impression that another parcel was disposed of for $3400.

In the days of the gold brick it was the farmer who was regarded as the most likely purchaser. The gold miner of 1924 goes to a bottling establishment, obtains a quantity of tin caps, pounds them into lumps and sells them for gold nuggets. How he would be envied even by the gold miner of '45!

In spite of all the tricksters, swindlers and robbers there are still those who regard as gospel the alluring tales told by the rankest stranger. Fear of not being able to share in a great fortune forces the display of very bad judgment all too often, and the worst of it is that these things are happening in some form or another nearly every day. There's a strange unwillingness to profit from the experiences of others.

STANDING ALOOF.

In view of the attitude that was taken by its leaders in connection with the third party movement in the recent campaign, it could not have been said a month ago that labor would not give its support to the formation of a permanent third party. The indications at that time were that it was making a test and if the election turned out as Samuel Gompers and some of his able assistants were trying to have it the federation might take a conspicuous part in backing a third party permanently.

The test came election day. Gompers was aligned with the third party effort. The test proved what has been so often repeated that it was impossible for a labor organization to deliver the vote of labor. Whatever the views might be in connection with labor organizations those who make up its membership invariably reserve the right to think and act for themselves politically.

That the election result had its bearing upon the action of the American Federation of Labor in voting down by a large majority the idea of giving support to a new political party seems apparent. It is not going to permit the organization to be used in connection with any future effort in that direction. It is a logical decision, and if we are not mistaken one that has been previously reached. There was a division of opinion in the organization before the last election on labor's connection with a political party and there is bound to be whenever it is brought up.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The turkey trot is over for many a bird thus early in the season.

For Connecticut it is one political campaign after another, but with a decided republican flavor.

The man on the corner says: All goes well till the cross word puzzlers get to talking in their sleep.

La Follette's explanation of the election's outcome is quite as poor as the showing he made November 4.

From the way in which the loans are snapped up there's no question about the willingness to help Europe.

Are you giving the necessary attention to the perfection of that list of things for which you should give thanks?

When the railroads spend a billion for equipment next year how much will you get of it? How much will it cost you?

The same problem confronts the democrats over Senator Wheeler as is faced by the republicans because of La Follette.

The only thing we regret in that ten-foot rise of the Connecticut is that it didn't empty into Fairview reservoir for a few minutes.

It was a foregone conclusion that the result of the Hartford convention would be one that would justify a rousing endorsement in all sections of the state.

It is a good thing to have a praiseworthy plan for the crushing of the narcotic evil, even though the chances of getting it adopted seem none too good.

SHE BORROWED

"Oh, yes, I enjoyed it," Mrs. Simmons' youngest niece answered her inquiry. "But we were all so cross at the end of it, that it almost spoiled the summer."

"Dear me," exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "Aren't you girls grown up enough not to get cross at each other, after having spent a delightful six weeks together?"

"Everybody was lovely all the time," said the youngest niece with a sigh. "Though it seemed as though money fairly melted away and a dollar was gone before you realized you had it."

"I thought this was a sort of summer camp and that one of its attractions was its cheapness," said Mrs. Simmons in surprise. "Was it expensive?"

"Well, we paid rent for the cottage and we had to share the cost of the boats," explained the youngest niece. "And then it turned so cold we had to rent mackinaws at 50 cents a day, and if we wanted to have any real fishing we had to have hip boots to wade out in, and they had to be paid for. And then, too, some of the girls didn't have any poles and tackle and they had to be bought, and whenever we went into the woods we had to have a guide, and though he was big and stunning and awfully good looking, he was cold-blooded enough to insist that he wouldn't guide anybody free. Riding over mountain trails meant $4 a day for the horse and more, because of their old rule that we just couldn't go alone, but had to travel in parties with another guide it was just one expense after another all the time."

"But the circular sounded as though it were a nice cheap place for you," protested Mrs. Simmons. "I read it myself and thought how nice it was for you to go where you could have so much fun at so little expense. It said there was fishing and you could go riding and canoeing and it didn't say a word about those things costing extra."

"That's just it," sighed the youngest niece. "But what could you do? Nobody wanted to sit all day long gazing out over a river off at distant mountains, and every time we turned around it meant a couple of dollars and then some. Of course we did have a perfectly wonderful time, and I wouldn't have the girls know I'd said a thing against it for anything in all the wide, wide world. I was only telling you all this to explain why I felt the way I did when I got home. I guess I was getting to be sort of miserly and selfish after having had to spend so much on what I thought was going to be an inexpensive vacation trip. I didn't care about anything. I was just so mad at Molly I didn't care if I never saw her again!"

"Gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "Do tell me all about it. I have not the pleasure of Molly's acquaintance but I think I should find her quite entertaining."

"Maybe that's what you call it," cried the youngest niece wrathfully. "But she's ill and I think she's the limit! You see, when we came to buy our tickets for home, Molly broke down and cried because she didn't have money enough to get hers and she didn't have time to send for any more and anyhow her family were all away and she didn't know where. All she needed was $2 more and she wondered if we'd lend it to her.

"As it happened I was the only one who had $2 over and above the price of the ticket so I gave it to her, though it meant that I'd have to ride in the day coach instead of the Pullman or parlor car. When the girls found that out they all came with me into the common coach, though it was hot there and crowded and horrid, and we had to sit three in a seat. We didn't see Molly there but thought she had gone into the other car.

"We rode in that common coach from the minute we got up in the morning when we gave up the berth in the evening and we didn't mind very much because we felt that poor Molly would have had to stay indefinitely up in the deep woods. So now, maybe you can understand why we were as mad as hops when we saw Molly getting off the nice cool Pullman when we arrived here! She had used my $2 to let her stay in her seat, while we sat in the common coach!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James W. Wadsworth, mentioned as a possible successor to the late Henry Cabot Lodge in the Republican leadership of the United States senate, has been one of the representatives of New York in the upper house for the past ten years, though he is still well under 50 years of age. Senator Wadsworth comes of distinguished ancestry. On the maternal side he is a great-grandson of Reverdy Johnson, the eminent Maryland statesman, while his paternal grandfather was Gen. James S. Wadsworth, who was killed in the campaign of the Wilderness. Senator Wadsworth is a Yale graduate and a veteran of the Spanish war, having seen active service in Porto Rico and the Philippines. He was elected to the New York assembly in 1904 and was speaker in 1906. While in the assembly he was concerned with and fought on the side of many socalled "reform" laws.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gives the Full Remedy.

Mr. Editor: In reading over the letters in The Bulletin of the past week one can but see still the sad need felt by such as "One of the Audience" at Miss Slattery's lecture. That is an intelligent answer to these questions brought up (in hearing such a lecture) to thinking minds. And the answer by Theo Moje, is certainly as near the mark as one can get, for in that answer is the full remedy. Take the medicine Christ gives us, and we need fear our sickness no longer. It is not a sweet medicine at first, and that is why so many shun it, I presume.

It entails suffering and persecution from some of our (worldly) social friends, but if we take it with a good will and Faith that it will help us we soon get where, what others say, is very insignificant to us. And the medicine gets so good and sweet that we want to take it all the time. The world is surely sick even unto death. Let it take this remedy and be saved.

Is there any difference in the peace treaty (except in name) than a world court? Strange that those who are death on one sanction the other, when it is only a back door way of getting the nation into the peace treaty. "Say ye not a Confederacy, to all them to whom this people shall say a Confederacy. For when they shall say peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them."—Isa. 8:12, 1 Thes. 5:3. There will be a world court soon, but it will be judges selected by Jehovah. My Bible tells me who these judges are to be—the faithful men of old—basing my knowledge on the Scripture. Amongst these faithful and perfect men will be selected those who will compose the members of the world court. The prophet Isaiah says: "I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counselors as at the beginning. Afterwards thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, the faithful city." This word "city" in this text is by Dr. Strong, a recognised Hebrew scholar, translated "court." This is the court that the people want, a "court of righteousness, the faithful court." That will be a court in which the people can have confidence, and will have confidence, because the judges of that court will be guided by the invisible power of the kingdom of Christ in harmony with the divine power. Samuel was one of these judges. Read of his judicial life. 1 Sam. 12: 3-5. The kingdom of God is now being set up. "In the time of these (Gentile) kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom," and this will be the remedy, for all the sickness that has come into the world by sin. "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

We cannot trust peace treaties or world courts of any other description set up by imperfect men.

Help Arkansas.

Mr. Editor: I have read several letters written in your valuable paper on the child labor amendment. It strikes me that everyone loses sight of one of the worst states for abuse of children by working long hours and at tender ages—Arkansas, over and over again, the state of Arkansas has tried to pass decent labor laws, but the power of northern money has always won out against them. This time congress passes an amendment that reaches beyond the power of northern greed in Arkansas and that state quickly ratified the amendment almost unanimously. Shall the cry of Arkansas be heeded or received by deaf ears in Connecticut?

Is it not a fact that we already have a law here that keeps children from certain emolument until they are 18? Why such a law in Connecticut if it is not needed in Arkansas?

I also find that fully 90 per cent of the opponents of the child labor amendment that call it an infringement of state rights don't say a word about the 18th and 19th amendments being infringements of those same state rights.

I for one believe the cry from Arkansas should be heeded. After you get in bed tonight if you are human even in part, just think how you would like to return to the day that little boys and girls worked in the mills of Connecticut for practically nothing. Just think it over and then volunteer to help Arkansas.

Light in Plainfield.

Mr. Editor: The townsmen of Plainfield are beginning to feel as this country felt in 1775 when without any reason they were being imposed upon. Time after time the people of Plainfield have sent in complaints to the Danielson Electric company without any results. Promises and many promises have come from the company to correct the poor service but nothing has been done. Saturday afternoon and evening the power was shut off, a little rain storm being blamed as the cause. Meat grinders, electric ovens, all the restaurants, bake shops, and places of business where light is needed most were in total darkness. Something must be done and if the people cannot get satisfaction by writing and complaining what can they do? Just imagine how the light company would stand for any promises about paying for electricity used? Not very long, as a representative of the company would be down in Plainfield taking out the meters. True, when the lights are not on the people are saving in one way but are the restaurants and grocery stores losing or gaining? It's about time that a little service be given instead of so many promises.

Ringling, the Small-Town Showman

The Ringling boys were born and reared in little Baraboo, Wis., far from the amusement centers, and the old shows they saw were the small travelling outfits that toured the rural communities. Furthermore, their father, the village harness maker, did not believe in circuses and "the like."

Albert, the eldest of the boys, could not keep from entertaining. He ran pin-admission performances and trained his little brothers almost as soon as they could walk. Each learned to play a musical instrument and "Al" saw to it that they could do some stunt.

As a school boy "Al," with some of his brothers, ran away, to tour as a blackface company, but they hardly had started before their father found and took them home. But the boys could not give up the amusement idea, and five went out as the Classic Concert Company, four playing in the orchestra while the fifth performed on the stage. Then they learned that people liked to laugh, and the little band became Ringling Brothers Comedy Concert Company."

"Al" could juggle cannon balls, one of his brothers could walk the tight rope, another could clown, another "eat fire" and another act as ringmaster, so with four horses, a monkey and a hyena, they started a circus. During the first performance given in the jail yard at Baraboo, the seats fell and nearly broke up the show.

Out on the road harsh experience gave them a knowledge of the show business, and also taught them to pull together, to champion their personal ideas while respecting another's judgment, and never to kill the ambition of any one member by majority rule. For 40 years they fought bitter opposition, but never quarreled among themselves.

By dressing up the acts "Al" made the performances more attractive. John was route agent and Alfred publicity man, while Charles handled the opposition and Otto the finances, Henry succeeding him at his death.

The Ringling Brothers circus gradually grew. At the end of six years as a "wagon show," it became a railroad circus, and then success came rapidly. Other circuses were absorbed and today the three surviving brothers, John, Charles and Alfred, control the largest travelling tented exhibition in the world.

Stories That Recall Others

Good For Cross-Word Puzzle.

Little Henry was visiting his grandparents. He came rushing into the house one morning and asked: "Grandma, has grandpa got a sawdust pump?"

An auguer was the instrument he had in mind.

Yes, Both Bill and Buck.

There are among the many who can recall the good old days of 60 years ago whose fund of humorous incidents of those days is almost boundless. He tells of a friend who owned an ox which he prized highly because he had worked the ox for so many years. The day came when the ox went the way of all good oxen and had passed to the "happy hunting grounds." The owner sent an employe to the butcher's with the message that the butcher was to "skin" old Buck, for that was the name of the ox. The employe found the butcher much under the influence of liquor. Returning to his employe he reported:

"What," asked the employer, "Bill and Buck both dead?"

The Dutch airman Vanderhoeg, who started from Amsterdam on October 1, arrived in Weltevreden, Java successfully completing his flight of more than 9,300 miles.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Every Body Accepted

"Well, I'm relieved," said the dear old gentleman rabbit, closing the front door as Old Sic'em trotted down Lettuce avenue. "I'll call Turkey Tim to come out of the cellar."

"Come out of the cellar," cried dear Uncle Lucky
"Though I'm an old rabbit, I'm spunky and plucky."

Dear me, how crestfallen looked Turkey Tim as he climbed up the Goodness me! he grunted.

stairs into the neat little kitchen where Little Miss Mousie was scampering about, preparing a nice supper.

"Who called?" he asked, looking inquiringly at the old gentleman rabbit.

"Old Sic'em, the Kind Farmer's dog," answered Uncle Lucky. "He asked me to tell you that the Kind Farmer is sorry that you ran away. He isn't going to make a Thanksgiving dinner out of you. You're too old and tough," and Uncle Lucky began to laugh and, with a wink at Little Miss Mousie, he invited the poor old gobbler to sit down to supper.

Little Jack Rabbit had already seated himself at the table and in a few minutes Little Miss Mousie was pouring the Turnip Tea, and everybody was having a fine feast. The old gentleman rabbit's tiny housekeeper knew how to cook. Yes, indeedy. Although she wore bobbed hair, she knew the difference between a baking pan and a skillet.

After supper, the bunny boy called up his pretty bunny mother to say that he was going to spend the night with his nice old uncle, and Uncle Lucky and Turkey Tim sat down to a game of pinochle. By and by, it was time for bed, so they all went upstairs and before very long were in dreamland where the clover tops and sweet and pink and lollypops grow near the river's brink.

The following morning the postman's whistle sounded loud and clear at the little front gate, and the next minute up the walk came Paddie Piggie, dressed in a grey uniform.

"Goodness me," he grunted, "I've got nearly a million letters for Uncle Lucky. What's going to happen?"

"A lollypop party," answered Little Jack Rabbit who had honked out on the front porch. "We mailed the invitations yesterday. I guess everybody is coming tomorrow."

"Guess they are," answered Paddie Piggie, almost emptying his big bag. "Uncle Lucky gets all but three letters. Only three left, one for Doctor Quack, the famous duck doctor, one for Squirrel Nutcracker, and the other,—let me see, Oh yes, it's for Peter Possum."

"It took Uncle Lucky and his bunny nephew until late in the afternoon to read them all. Everybody had accepted. Some had written on pink paper, others on yellow. Henny Jenny's was printed on a little round white egg shell and Busy Beaver's on a smooth white chip.

"Now, we must bring the lollypops up from the cellar," sighed tired Uncle Lucky, slipping his spectacles into the case. "Dear me, I wish I were younger. My little pinky toe has the rheumatism so," and the kind old gentleman bunny hopped on one leg out to the kitchen.

"You shan't go down into the cellar," cried Little Miss Mousie. "Little Jack Rabbit and I will bring up the lollypops, and in the next story you shall hear all about the party.

ANNUAL MEETING CONN. MANUFACTURERS' ASS'N

Hartford, Nov. 25.—As Europe recovers her equilibrium and scours the world for markets, American manufacturers will be faced with serious competition not only abroad but also in their home markets, Fred E. Kent, vice president of the Bankers' Trust company of New York, predicted in an address before the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut at its annual meeting today.

Mr. Kent declared, however, that such a development is going to be of great value to the United States and to the manufacturers of the United States, for it is going to increase the buying power of Europe, and of other countries of the world, and is also going to bring within the reach of many of our people articles which they cannot buy at present.

Four new directors were elected for four years each as follows: For director for Middlesex county, Joseph Porter, D. & Scovil, Inc., Higganum; Tolland county, R. T. Jones, Gardiner Hall, Jr., & Co., South Willington; director-at-large, Carl F. Deits, Bridgeport Brass Co., Bridgeport; director-at-large, P. J. T. Armstrong, Torticelli Silk Co., Brainerd & Armstrong mills, New London.

The following take the places of the four directors whose terms expire this year: From Middlesex county, W. W. Wilcox, Wilcox-Crittenden Co., Middletown; Tolland county, William Clark, Riverside Woolen mills, Stafford Springs; director-at-large, F. J. Kingsbury, Bridgeport Brass Co., Bridgeport; director-at-large, Oliver J. Johnson, Aspinook Co., Jewett City.

RESIGNS FROM HARVARD TO JOIN YALE FACULTY

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.—The resignation of George Pierce Baker, professor of dramatic literature at Harvard, was announced today. Prof. Baker, whose course known as English 47, has attracted attention for years, will join the faculty of Yale, it was estimated.

The formal announcement made at Harvard late today said:

"Harvard university announces with regret the resignation of the professor of dramatic literature, Professor George Pierce Baker, but is glad of the splendid opportunity to continue under an endowment difficult to equal the work which he began and carried on so admirably for many years at Harvard."

Prof. Baker was graduated at Harvard in the class of 1887 and served the university as a teacher for 36 years. He joined the teaching staff in 1888 and became professor in 1905.

ESTIMATE 125 FAMILIES ARE TO RECEIVE THANKSGIVING DINNERS

The fine response to the appeal of the United Workers by the school children of Norwich has made it possible for the workers of the Family Welfare Department to supply sufficient Thanksgiving baskets and packages for all needy families in this city on Thursday. As in past years the school children brought vegetables of all kinds and large quantities of canned goods to their respective schools on Tuesday, every school in the town filling one or more large barrels.

As fast as possible the members of the United Workers motor squad made collections of the barrels but the response was so great that by night Tuesday the United Workers had not been able to check up the barrels ready at the Greeneville, Taftville, Bridge street and Hobart Avenue schools. Up to night time Tuesday over 25 barrels filled with Thanksgiving cheer had been collected and brought to the United Workers headquarters where members of the family welfare committee were waiting to fill the baskets.

Eighty-five baskets for families had been filled Tuesday night and a like number of packages filled with vegetables had been prepared, ready to be sent out to the home of the needy in Norwich, sometime today (Wednesday). This work of distributing the Thanksgiving baskets is in charge of the motor squad, comprising members of the United Workers who have automobiles at their disposal and it is hoped that all baskets may be delivered before night.

When the remaining barrels in the various schools of the town have been collected and new baskets prepared it is estimated that about 125 families may be supplied and that the demand for the baskets, from needy families, will be met. However, if the demand does not come up to the amount on hand, the vegetables will be held by the United Workers and distributed among the needy as the call comes in for them.

The work of preparing the baskets and getting them distributed is a difficult one and kept all members of the welfare committee at work all day Tuesday and will do so again today. This work of spreading Thanksgiving cheer among those people not as fortunate as many others is worthy of commendation and the United Workers are more than pleased at the response of the school children of the town and the co-operation of their parents in this humanitarian work.

The work of the family welfare department is under the supervision of Mrs. Julia C. Corcoran, family welfare worker, and her welfare committee comprising: Miss Nancy Lucas, chairman, Miss Mary Porteous, Mrs. Robert W. Perkins, Miss Jane E. Bill, Mrs. John D. Hall, Miss Marion Bishop, Mrs. Gardiner Greene, Miss Martha Osgood, Miss Edith Bliss, Miss Sarah Armstrong, Mrs. Archibald Torrance, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, 4th, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. John H. Barnes, Mrs. William Wade and Mrs. Fitch Dolbeare.

Over 75 prizes will be hidden somewhere in the fields around Norwich, but before anyone can find out where, they must report to the Y. M. C. A. building and receive instructions as to how and where to proceed and in what direction. Many of these prizes or treasures have been donated to the chase by the merchants along Main street, including the following: The Eaton Chase Co., The Alling Rubber Co., R. W. Perkins, Savard Bros., Preston Bros., The Palace theatre, Miss Fay, Jacks Sport Shop, George P. Madden Co., Bigos Bros., Quinn & Desmond, J. C. TRANSLATING NOTE THAT WAS LEFT BY SUICIDE

The note written by Onufry Toupasz of 183 Howard street, New London, before he hanged himself in Mohegan park in this city, on Nov. 14 and found with his body Sunday, was receiving its final translation Tuesday.

The message was written in Polish and Russian and directed to "Dearest Sister," may furnish the only clue to the motive for the man's suicide.

Until Tuesday morning County Detective William E. Lewis, who had the paper in his possession, had translated only the Polish parts of the message. Some mention was made of a bank book which he was sending his sister, stating also that he had some bad news for her.

In his death message Toupasz also asked his relatives to bury him and write to the "old country" of his death. The car which he left abandoned near where he hung himself he said, should be sold for $300.

Whatever else the message contains is written in Russian and in order to get a translation of that part, the note was taken to Jewett City.

Toupasz's body has been taken to undertaking parlors in New London preparatory for the funeral.

For January Meeting of Clergymen.

At a meeting at the New London Y. M. C. A. Monday evening plans were mapped out for the January meeting of the Protestant clergymen of the county which will be held at the Central Baptist church in this city. The death of Rev. R. R. Graham of Christ church, this city, had left the county committee without a chairman and Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church was chosen to fill the vacancy.

MADE FAREWELL GIFTS TO FATHER GUERRIERO

A purse of $800 from the parishioners and additional gifts were presented Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero at a farewell reception held in his honor on Tuesday evening in the assembly hall at St. Patrick's church. Rev. Father Guerriero was recently transferred to Bridgeport after three years service in Norwich. He made the trip back to Norwich especially for the farewell reception and will return to Bridgeport today (Wednesday). Nearly 800 members of the parish were present at the reception. The St. Patrick's boy scouts, in which Father Guerriero took a very active interest, were present in uniform.

The programme opened abut 7.30 o'clock with a few words of welcome by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. Rev. Michael H. May, rector of the church, extended a hearty welcome to Father Guerriero. He came among us and did wonderful work, said Father May. The work he did is known to some of us but the greater part of it is written in the great book of God. We will always welcome him. Father May then spoke of the splendid work done by Father Guerriero in the parish and especially of the great interest he took in the Boy Scouts of the parish. Addressing Father Guerriero the rector said: Father Rocco we are glad you are with us tonight and we will always welcome you. God bless you in your new field of labor.
